It was also alleged that after the accident one of the defendants' servants said: "I am sorry. I can't see why my pupil (Mr. Kehrmann) did not turn when I shouted. I could have prevented the accident if I had been in control." Counsel argued that the defendants were negligent in allowing an unskilful person to control the machine.

Mr. E. C. Pashley entered the witness box supported by crutches, and he was allowed to sit in the box. Counsel explained that he had met with an accident wholly unconnected with an aeroplane. (Laughter.)

The Lord Chief Justice remarked that this was a pioneer action, and that the time had not yet arrived when they could call experts in aeroplane accidents. (Laughter.)

Lieutenant Kehrmann gave evidence, after walking to the witness box with the aid of sticks. Mr. Walker explained that he had been playing football and had met with an accident.

Windfall For Farmer

It is stated that Wm. Armstrong, Cavan, has been notified that he has, with Miss Jane Arnold, Aghavock, been left a huge fortune said to amount to $11,000,000 by his brother, the late Mr. J. Armstrong, Detroit, Michigan, U.S.A., who emigrated thirty-eight years ago and bought building lots in Detroit with his earnings.

Mr. Frank S. Preston, an Old Marlburian and a layman, has been appointed by the council of Malvern College to succeed Canon James on his retirement from the position of headmaster at Malvern, a post which he has occupied for fifteen years.

Curious Tree

A tree which though sound was never known to blossom has been cut down by Mr. James Hayden, Carriglea, on his lands at Pandatown, county Kildare. On the freshly-sawn butt of the tree there was found a blood-red imprint of what closely resembled a hand and part of an arm.

Relics of Old Parliament

Lord Massereene, the lineal descendant of the Right Honorable John Foster, has removed from the Irish National Museum, Dublin, to his castle at Antrim two relics of the old Irish Parliament, the Mace and the Chair. Speaker Foster was the last to occupy the Chair.

Babies at Picture Palaces

Reporting on a measles epidemic in Port Glasgow, Dr. Munro, the medical officer, said he regretted to find it was a common practice with mothers to attend picture palaces with children in their arms at a time when an epidemic of measles was so acute in the burgh.

Moneyless Orphan's Hobby

"I have no father, no mother, and no money, so I make a hobby of railway travelling," Michael McPartland, aged eighteen, was stated at Birmingham to have said when arrested for travelling on the Great Western Railway without paying his fare. He was said to have travelled all over the country under the tarpaulins of empty trucks. Remanding him, the magistrate said that he had missed his vocation, and ought to have been an engine driver.

Footman's Novel Excitement

Edward John Long, aged nineteen, a footman, was remanded at Abingdon on a charge of stealing $55 at Marcham Park, Berkshire. On Sunday morning one of the rooms was found in confusion, the money being missed from a desk, and in the hall a tablecloth was spread on which were placed two silver candlesticks and two Sèvres vases, suggesting a burglary. Long volunteered to run for the police, but, when questioned, produced two postal orders from the hollow brass rail of his bedstead. Formally charged, he stated, "I did it for excitement."

A Local Celebrity

The Parish Council of Chirnside has one of the oldest chairmen in the county, Mr. David Craig, who is in his seventy-fourth year. Mr. Craig, a retired shoemaker, is a keen debater and storyteller, with a fund of Scriptural and poetical quotations. This is all the more remarkable considering that Mr. Craig was never at school, and learned to read by means of pasting up before him at his work the headline of a newspaper and laboriously spelling out the title.

Not Bargained For

A Burnley boy has been taught a lesson he will probably never forget. He mounted the back of a motor car for a ride, but unluckily for him the driver put on speed. When he wanted to get off he was afraid to dismount while the car was running, and was carried to Preston, where he was numbed with cold. Without food or assistance the lad tramped twenty-three miles to Burnley in the dark, and arrived home footsore and weary. His parents were out searching all night for him.

Spiritualist and the Christening

In an action for divorce, heard at Edinburgh, Mrs. Margaret Whitelaw Calderwood, Duke street, Glasgow, said in 1903 a quarrel arose as to the christening of the second child. Her husband, James Calderwood, was very much interested in spiritualism, and used to hold what he thought were conversations with his dead father. He wanted the child to be christened at some spiritualist meeting, while witness wanted it to be christened by a minister. He then left the house, and did not come back and was believed to be in America. Decree was granted.

Dead in the Creek

A strange story was told at the inquest at Tollesbury (Essex) upon Stephen Appleton, sixty-one, oyster cultivator, whose dead body was found in the creek off the fishing village. His daughter said her father went out alone to get up some oysters and promised to bring some home for dinner. As he did not return she looked out and saw his smack with sails set stuck in the mud, where the body was afterwards found. A yachtsman said a bruise on the back of Appleton's head showed he was struck by the boom in squally weather, and knocked overboard. The verdict was "Accidental death."

FUR INDUSTRY

Fur-bearing Animals Lead in Aggregate Natural Wealth

The fur industry of the North American continent is not likely to become extinct, nor are the fur bearing animals being killed off the various parts of the country, is the view of dealers in raw furs. There are more animals killed and thus the collection is greater, but in spite of the fact that thousands upon thousands of animals are being killed every year still the supply does not seem to be lessening. But whatever may be the condition of the raw fur collections, there is no question but what the demand of fashion, the competition of the large circular houses and the general utility of fur garments have sent the price of furs to an enormous height. This a clever trapper can make a small fortune, if he handles his catch properly. The fur trade has rightly been called the greatest of our natural resources. No industry, agricultural, mineral or otherwise, has been the origin of so much wealth to Canada as the fur industry. Before a single field was cultivated, a single mine opened, or a single railroad constructed, the fur bearing animals of this country were the only source of revenue. This was one of the main reasons for the rapid colonization of our country, especially of the West. It was the trappers' trail that formed the path of the first highway and the trapper's fur that formed the first cargo that was ever freighted on any of the inland waters. It was also the trapper's catch that brought the first foreign wealth to this country, and ever since America has been practically supplying the world with furs. No other of our natural resources have been productive for so long a time or have yielded such an aggregate wealth as the fur bearing animals so after all, the fur industry is not dying out.—Fur Magazine.

DOMESTIC CATTLE

The Ayrshire Came to Nova Scotia in 1821

Although the Spaniards may have introduced cattle into the western hemisphere during the 16th century, Canada may claim to have the honor of being the first part of America, north of the Gulf of Mexico to receive domestic cattle. The Plymouth Fathers did not have any until 1623. Up to 1784, New France and Acadia together boasted 35,000 cattle. From the year 1831 the growth of herds in Canada was rapid. Until 1840 Lower Canada held premier place, after which Upper Canada rapidly overhauled her rival province, with the result that in 1861 Upper Canada had 451,640 head against 328,370 in the lower province, with 69,000 in New Brunswick, 110,500 in Nova Scotia, 60,000 in Prince Edward Island and about 7,000 in the Prairie provinces. Between 1871 and 1901 the growth of milch cow herds in all provinces excepting Nova Scotia was steady, the total in all Canada in 1901 being 2,408,677. The coming of the celebrated breeds that comprise this country's herds is of interest. Next to the French and United States cattle, the Ayreshire was introduced. Through the instrumentality of Lord Dalhousie, they came to Nova Scotia in 1821. They were imported into Ontario, by Mr. J. W. Ewert in 1845, and after that large numbers came to Ontario and Quebec. The Jersey breed arrived first in 1859, when Mr. Harrison Stephens of Montreal stocked the farms of his two sons with herds from that island. The Guernsey breed was introduced by the late Hon. John Abbott in 1878. The Holstein, or Holstein-Friesian, came in 1832-3, five Ontario farmers embarking on the enterprise at the same time. Pure bred Shorthorns came in 1825 into New Brunswick, and the year following several Ontario farmers imported them.

Do Animals Suicide?

The question is often raised whether animals commit suicide, and the story of the dog who some years ago held his head under water in the Frog Pond till he was drowned is brought up. The Journal of Paris tells us that a giraffe—an unusually fine specimen—in the museum of that city grew melancholy and moped for several days. At last it swayed its neck, slowly from side to side. The movement became quicker and the animal rearing suddenly, smashed its skull against

REGARDING COLOR

Mr. Lovell on Decorative Uses of Brightness—Good and Bad Contrasts

A champion of "Courage of Color" appeared at the Society of Architects, London, in the person of Mr. Goulburn Lovell (a vice-president), who made an appeal for the more generous use of bright colors in the internal decoration of our houses and as relief to the monotonous greyness of our towns. Mr. Lovell condemned what he described as the popular impression that only vulgar people admire bright colors, and that people of taste must prefer the dull ones. In these northern climes, he said, there is a shrinking from pure colors, a fear that they may be termed gaudy, a general lack of courage in applying any color to one's surroundings except tertiary tones and greys.

In tropical and sunny latitudes less courage is required in using bright colors, because the brilliancy of the sun subdues them, but Northerners require stimulating colors more than those who live in warm sunshine, and fortunately bright colors have a greater force in dull climates.

But the lecturer deplored the want of accurate knowledge of color combination. Study of the theory of color would place a much-needed tool in the hands of the architect, the designer, and the decorator. Colors were so much altered by the manner in which they were seen together, that it became essential for all users and sellers of colored goods to acquire some knowledge of the theory of color-production and color-selection. They would then easily realize how to obtain the best advantage from color, whether in securing the best combinations for wearing apparel, for the decoration of the home, or in the manner of presenting colored goods in windows or show-rooms. Bad contrasting pairs of colors were red and orange, blue and violet, green and blue; and the reason why these colors contrasted badly was that they were too closely related, being less than 90 degrees apart in the chromatic circle of 360 degrees.

Open-air Justice

His Honor Sir Thomas Snagge adopted a novel method of trying an action at Wellington. A cyclist claimed damages for being run down by a motor car. The judge decided that the most satisfactory way of hearing the case was to hold his court at the spot where the accident occurred. Here the accident was "reconstructed," and in the end his honor held that the cyclist lost his head, and gave a verdict for the motor car driver.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly, backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

ROSEBERY ON CLASSICS

Culture Advised For Science Students —University Tendency

Glasgow Technical Institution is affiliated with Glasgow University, and Lord Rosebery, at a public meeting held there, made a characteristic speech, which he prefaced by remarking that he was not a distinguished stranger; he was a retired and elderly gentleman whose speaking powers had become rusty with disuse. As Chancellor of the University, he welcomed the affiliation; for the two spheres of higher education in Glasgow would henceforth not proceed on parallel lines, but proceed jointly. When he was the age of the students present it was the thing for the people to come to the University. But a great change had taken place now. The University had come to the people. The whole ideal of Universities had been transformed. The ideals of Universities had altogether changed, and instead of the cloister they must now be planted—as he felt, rightly planted—in the largest and busiest city that could be found.

He gave the students this advice: "Throw all your energy and pride into your craft, and exalt it by your devotion." He asked them to look, however, beyond the pursuit of their craft, and devote some time, however little, to reading which would stimulate and encourage them in the work, and would feed their imagination in higher ideals than were apt to be got in average life. He did not believe in reading the highest works of art and of imagination unless they could be assimilated, as they would then only produce disgust. If they felt it their duty to read "Paradise Lost" and did not like "Paradise Lost" let them put it back, but let them not go about the streets saying, "Excuse me, I am in a hurry; I am reading 'Paradise Lost.'" (Laughter). If they did not like "Paradise Lost" let them try another masterpiece—"Don Quixote." If they did not like "Don Quixote" they could take Dickens and Thackeray—the classical authors of his youth—and if they did not like them he would advise them to try something else. But if they did not like these he would be at his wit's ends to recommend them anything, unless they might try Euclid. (Laughter).

Whole Crew Asleep

A sequel to the wreck of a fishing boat while the captain, at the wheel, and the whole of the crew were asleep through overwork, was furnished at Yarmouth, when the Board of Trade court of inquiry suspended for six months the certificate of Captain Crane, of the North Shields smack Vera. They recommended, however, that he should be granted a mate's ticket during the suspension. The court found that Crane was suffering from want of sleep, and was not justified in doing his steering and keeping a look-out single-handed. The chairman pointed out to him the great risks he incurred by taking his vessel to sea while suffering from want of sleep. Going at full speed in a busy channel when his vessel was practically not under control he not only endangered the lives of his crew, but his ship was a serious menace to other vessels.

EXTENT OF FISHERIES

Canada's Industry is the Most Extensive in the World

To say that Canada possesses the most extensive fisheries in the world is no exaggeration; moreover, it is safe to add that the waters in and around Canada contain the principal commercial food fishes in greater abundance than the waters of any other part of the world. The extraordinary fertility of what may be called our own waters is abundantly proved by the fact that, apart from salmon, all the lobsters, herring, mackerel and sardines, nearly all the haddock, and many of the cod, hake, and pollock landed in Canada are taken from within our territorial waters. The coast line of the Atlantic provinces, from the Bay of Fundy to the Straits of Belle Isle, without taking into account the lesser bays and indentations measures over 5,000 miles; and along this great stretch are to be found innumerable natural harbors and coves, in many of which valuable fish are taken in considerable quantities with little effort. On the Pacific coast, the province of British Columbia, owing to its immense number of islands, bays and fiords, which from safe and easily accessible harbors has a sea-washed shore of 7,000 miles. Along this shore and within the limits of the territorial waters, there are fish and mammals in greater abundance, probably than anywhere else in the whole world. In addition to this immense salt-water fishing area, we have in our numerous lakes no less than 230,000 square miles fresh water, abundantly stocked many species of excellent food.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Kleptomaniac

He Unintentionally Furnished a Theme For a Story

By HELEN HUNTINGTON

Miss Maria Ashurst, an American girl, was shopping one day in an Oxford street store in London. While selecting gloves an old gentleman of aristocratic appearance stepped up to the other end of the counter and began fumbling with some pairs of gloves that lay thereon. Miss Ashurst noticed the old man watching the saleswoman out of the corner of his eye, and presently when her back was turned he grabbed a bundle of gloves and stuffed them in his coattail pocket. Then he sauntered leisurely away.

Now, while Miss Ashurst did not like to become an informer, yet, believing that the saleswoman would be charged for the missing gloves, she took it upon herself to call her attention to the theft, pointing to the old man's receding figure.

"Oh, that's only the Duke of Chipperton," said the saleswoman. "He's a kleptomaniac. His valet will be along in a few minutes and will settle for what he has taken."

She had hardly spoken the words before a trim, well shaven man in livery stepped up to the counter and said to the woman:

"'Ave you seen 'is grace this mornin'? 'E's shoppin'."

"Yes, the duke was here a bit ago."

"Did 'e purchase anything?"

"Half a dozen pairs of gloves."

"'Ow much?"

"One pound ten."

The lackey opened a wallet, took out the money and paid the bill, and half a crown besides.

"What's this for?" said the girl, pretending not to understand.

"A tip for you, miss."

"Aw! Thank you very much."

Then the valet went off after the duke to make further settlements.

Miss Ashurst was in London on her first visit, with letters of introduction that would admit her to society, and this was her first vision of any part of it.

Miss Ashurst had other views of British high life, for she became very popular in London society. She possessed two faculties that conduced to make her socially prominent. She was well bred and had just enough independence about her not to conflict with good manners. She was invited to the homes of different persons of the social world and at one of them met the Marquis of Scarsdale, a young man, who became one of her admirers. Not long after the meeting she received an invitation which startled her. It read as follows:

The Duchess of Chipperton would be pleased to have the company of Miss Ashurst at Warbridge Grange for the week ending Jan. 20.

The Duchess of Chipperton! Where had Miss Ashurst heard that name? She made inquiries as to the duchess and learned that she was the mother of the Marquis of Scarsdale.

Miss Ashurst accepted the invitation and on arriving at Warbridge Grange was presented to the old gentleman she had met at the glove counter in Oxford street in London. She did not mention the meeting to his grace or to any one else.

The gathering was composed of the marquis' especial friends, being all young persons, and was the first of the kind ever invited to his paternal home. His father's proclivities were well known to his generation, but not to the younger set. Miss Ashurst had not been long in the house before she made up her mind that most if not all the guests were ignorant that the head of the house had a mania for stealing. Knowing this fact herself, she could see that a certain amount of uneasiness was felt by the family lest something unpleasant might happen through the old gentleman's proclivity. The marquis seemed especially ill at ease so much so that it was questionable if he did not regret having departed from the family rule not to invite guests to the grange.

One morning Miss Ashurst on going to her room, before reaching it, saw the old duke coming out. He was half blind and did not see her. Feeling sure that he had been giving way to his idiosyncrasy, as soon as she entered the chamber she looked about her to see if any articles were missing. Pulling open a drawer of the dresser where she had placed her jewels the night before, she saw that they were gone. Turning to a window, she saw the duke walking as fast as his old legs would carry him away from the house. Seizing a wrap and a fur cap, she hurried downstairs and out of doors just in time to see his grace disappearing within a forest not far away. Following him, she caught sight of him putting something in the trunk of a hollow tree. As soon as he had gone Miss Ashurst went to the tree, thrust her arm into the aperture and pulled out a handful of jewels. But what made her gasp for breath was that they were not all hers. Indeed, the bulk of them evidently belonged to other guests.

Miss Ashurst perceived at once that the situation was delicate. It was evident to her that the young marquis, far from being satisfied to have his guests know his father's infirmity, would be dreadfully shocked at this case of wholesale thievery. What action should she take in the matter? She looked over the articles and thought she could name the owners of nearly all of them. She decided to take them back to the house and endeavor to replace them in the rooms from which they had been taken. But in doing this she must run the risk of being caught with the jewels in her possession and placed in the position of a thief.

One of the house party, the Lady Augusta Trimmingham, was evidently ambitious to be the Marchioness of Scarsdale and the future Duchess of Chipperton. Miss Ashurst had restored all the jewels to the different rooms to which they belonged, except some rings belonging to Lady Augusta, without being detected. She was in Lady Augusta's room in the act of placing the articles in her jewel case when who should enter but their owner.

There was a triumphant look on the latter's face when she saw that one she had begun to fear as a rival was in her power. Maria Ashurst's heart sank within her, for she knew that without accusing the real thief she was disgraced. But what at the moment she feared most was that Lady Augusta would make the matter so public that the hosts would feel obliged to make an investigation, which, though it might exonerate her, would bring out the real culprit to their mortification.

Miss Ashurst left the room without excusing herself for being there, and Lady Augusta spoke no word, but later the former returned and said:

"If I consent to leave here at once will you promise to keep my being in your room over your jewel box a secret?"

"I will make no promise," was the cool reply.

Miss Ashurst straightway made her preparations to leave the grange, for she knew that her stay there after what had happened would be practically impossible. She told her hostess that news from America would necessitate her return to London before finishing her visit, and she departed by the next train. But before going she knew that Lady Augusta had spread the story of her disgrace, for she found herself cut by most of the other guests.

Had Lady Augusta Trimmingham been content with driving Maria Ashurst away without going any further it is quite probable that the marquis would never have known the sacrifice the latter had made for him. He did not get the story from Lady Augusta direct. She preferred to acquire credit for not mentioning it, but she told so many others that it could not fail to reach him.

For the moment he was thunderstruck. Then he began to wonder what it meant. Miss Ashurst would have no interest in stealing a few jewels, for she was rich in her own right. Something must be back of it all. He must see her at once.

Giving out that especial business called him to London, he took an afternoon train, promising to return the same night. Reaching the city, he repaired at once to Miss Ashurst's residence.

"What is the meaning of this affair?" he asked.

"What affair?"

"Your being in Lady Augusta Trimmingham's room over her jewel case."

"It means that I was there."

"For what purpose? You certainly did not intend to steal her jewels."

"Certainly I did not."

"As one who has been your host I have a right to an explanation."

"And I, who have been your guest, have a right to demand that if I give you an explanation you will believe me."

"Certainly I will believe you!"

Then Maria told the story of what she had seen of the duke, from his first meeting with her to her finding her jewels and those of most of his other guests in the hollow tree.

The marquis did not keep his promise to return that night, and the next morning telegraphed his mother that matters of importance would prevent his being at home for the rest of the term for which his guests had been invited. He hoped that she would be able to entertain them without his assistance.

The story of Maria Ashurst's disgrace was circulated in London society, but owing to the Marquis of Scarsdale's marked attention to her it did not gain much credence, and when his engagement with the American girl was announced, much to the astonishment of all who had been guests at the grange with his fiancee, the matter circulated was voted the invention of an enemy.

Keeping the Body in Repair

Nature intended that the body should do its own repairing—and it would do so were it not for the fact that most of us live other than a natural life.

Nature didn't intend that we should wear corsets, tight collars or shoes, nor live in badly ventilated and draughty houses, nor eat and drink some of the things that we do, nor ride in street cars when we should walk.

The consequence is that the body when it gets out of order must look for outside help to make the necessary repairs.

DISEASE GERMS STICK.

Hence It Is Almost Impossible to Have Really Clean Hands.

That the slovenly habits or ill health of the cooks and waiters who serve us in dining cars, hotels, restaurants and our own homes may be an even greater menace to our health than defective plumbing is the fact brought out by some interesting investigations made by Surgeon Cummins of the British army.

It used to be thought that if our servants' hands—and our own—were washed with reasonable frequency we were safe, but Dr. Cummins shows that even the most scrupulous cleansing will not relieve hands that have been in contact with disease germs from the liability of infecting others. In short, Dr. Cummins declares that so long as we live in this world of dirt and microbes our hands can never be really clean.

To prove his contention Dr. Cummins dipped the tip of his forefinger in a liquid containing millions of typhoid bacilli. The finger was next rinsed in an antiseptic solution, then in very cold water and then in water that was almost boiling. After all this cleansing it was washed in a small quantity of sterile water. This water when analyzed showed no less than 313 colonies of typhoid bacilli.

Not satisfied with this discouraging proof of the futility of clean hands, the doctor proceeded to soak his infected finger tip in pure alcohol. Then he washed it again in sterile water. This time the analysis of the water revealed four colonies of typhoid bacilli.

Another experiment made by Dr. Cummins was to rest a typhoid laden finger tip for just an instant on the surface of a bowl of soup. The soup was then allowed to stand for twenty-four hours. When finally analyzed it revealed nearly 40,000 typhoid bacilli to every cubic inch.—New York American.

He is the truly courageous man who never desponds.

A Threat or a Promise?

John, a rather backward rustic, sat at one end of the sofa and his sweetheart at the other. Both minds were too full to carry on conversation, but at last the lady spoke:

"John, what are you thinking about?"

John, awakened from his dreams, answered with a drawl, "Oh, just the same as you are," and was surprised to get the retort:

"If you do I'll slap you."—Home Journal.

Little Girl Drowned.

PRESTON, Feb. 6.—A drowning fatality occurred here yesterday afternoon about five o'clock, when a four-year-old girl named Burrell met death on the River Speed. She, with two little girl companions, was skating on the river near the Salverd's hockey stick factory, when the thin ice gave way and all three went under. By hard work bystanders were able to rescue two of the children, but the Burrell girl was drowned in the swift current.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Misses' Dress.

In this model we have the new coat blouse, which is really a blouse with a peplum. Loseness is in every line and a normal shoulder is used and a straight sleeve. The skirt has three gores, closing in front and a bit of skirt material is used on the blouse to give the impression of the pulled up skirt, now so much worn. Blouse and skirt may be of one color or may contrast, as preferred.

The dress pattern, No. 6,524, is cut in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Medium size requires 1⅝ yards of 54 inch plain material and 1⅞ yards of 54 inch plaid goods. Or, 3⅛ yards of 54 inch, if of one material only.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

FAIRS FOR INSTRUCTION.

Not For Leeting of Young By Wandering Gamblers.

TORONTO, Feb. 6. A strong stand was taken by the delegates to the fourteenth annual convention of the Ontario Association of Fairs and Exhibitions, which opened at the Foresters' Hall yesterday in the matter of making the annual fall fair a "day of agricultural schooling" rather than a day set apart for the filching of the pockets of the younger generation by fakirs, etc.

Heated discussions following every suggestion for the elimination of questionable features of the midways from the fall fairs were participated in by the militant agriculturists from as far north as New Liskeard and Manitoulin Island, and from points stretching from Essex to Glengarry. Something of a furore followed the reading of a resolution asking the Attorney-General to summarily dismiss any magistrate who, after finding a fall fair trickster guilty of gambling, allows him to go on suspended sentence. But the resolution was carried.

"I regret to state," declared Supt. Lockie Wilson, "that a number of directors of agricultural societies in 1913 permitted the use of gambling devices on their grounds. The department has not been disposed in the past to deal harshly with these societies which are breaking the law, but leniency does not seem to have the desired effect."

Coulthurst Case Adjourned.

BRIDGEBURG, Ont., Feb. 6.—Deputy Returning Officer H. Coulthurst appeared in court yesterday and by agreement between the lawyers in the case an adjournment was made until eleven o'clock on Saturday. Coulthurst was arrested in connection with his statement regarding the vote record on Thursday last in his polling sub-division when the Canada Temperance Act was submitted to the people.

A HAPPY CHILD IN JUST A FEW HOURS

When Cross, Constipated or if Feverish, Give "California Syrup of Figs," Then Don't Worry.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Early Start In Crime.

STRATFORD, Feb. 6. — Two charges of obstructing railways, two of theft and one of malicious injury to property, to all of which he pleaded guilty yesterday in the police court, have earned for Harold Heathfield, a young lad about 16 years of age, a three months' stay in the county jail, the sentences to run concurrently.

DERBY'S BLUFF CALLED.

Earl's Offer To Sell Land Accepted by Baron de Forest.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A big land deal is likely to result from a political controversy. Maurice Arnold de Forest, who is a hereditary baron of the Austrian Empire, has accepted an offer recently made in a public speech by the Earl of Derby to sell him his estate in Basle, a suburb of Liverpool, for $7,500,000. The property was purchased in 1724 for $35,000, and in a contribution to the land enquiry committee's report, Baron de Forest cited this as a striking example of unearned increment. He estimated the annual income from the property as $500,000 and the value of the property as between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

In his speech proffering the land for sale, the Earl of Derby declared that the estimates were grossly excessive and referred contemptuously to Baron de Forest as "an alien gentleman for whom I have no love, who has come here to tell us landlords what we ought to do."

IMPORTING MUNITIONS.

Rebels In Mexico Will Use Aeroplanes In Their Operations.

CULIACAN, Sinaloa, Feb. 6.—Military aeroplanes will be among the war munitions to be ordered at once from the United States by Gen. Carranza, the rebel chieftain. This was announced yesterday after Carranza had made hasty arrangements to take advantage immediately of the American Government's action in lifting the embargo on the exportation of arms. The aeroplanes will be used in campaigns in northern Mexico.

Fourteen thousand rifles with sufficient ammunition for a long campaign have been ordered.

It was also stated that the insurgents would import artillery with mounts suitable for use aboard vessels which will be armored for operations against the Pacific coast seaports still held by the Huerta forces.

The organization of a aerial war fleet will be effected by Gen. Angeles, sub-secretary of war in the Carranza cabinet. It will be commanded by Captain Frederico Cervantes, who recently returned after having spent three months as a student in military aviation camps in France.

Only Mexican aviators will be used, including two members of Carranza's staff, who are qualified air pilots.

The 14,000 rifles contracted for will be used to equip rebel troops in Chihuahua and Zacatecas.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Western Ontario's radial field day will be held in London during either the last week of February or the first week of March.

An epidemic of scarlet fever has spread over Owen Sound, and as a result one school has been closed and will remain so for three weeks.

Raoul de Reala, a French aviator, was killed at Versailles by a fall from a height of 600 feet when he was experimenting with a new model biplane.

The Township of Cornwall lost a pioneer resident in the death of H. Alguire, at Eamer's Corners. Mr. Alguire was born in the township 86 years ago.

Sarnia and Point Edward may amalgamate. The question has been under discussion for some time, and the village is favorably inclined towards the idea.

My Meals Don't Hurt A Bit

A Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Will Aid Your Exhausted Stomach to Digest Any Meal.

Isn't it a real joy to see children eat? There is almost a ridiculous humour about it. The same joy that a child feels at meal time should be experienced by "grown ups" and would be if they would only do as children do.

The work, worries and woes of adult life exhaust the digestive apparatus and nature very often is not allowed time or opportunity to renew or repair the exhausted organs and depleted digestive juices.

"Well Whats You Think o' a Big Feed Without Pain?"

A Stuart's tablet goes into the stomach like food. It contains nothing but natural digestive elements and when at work in a weak stomach it aids the worn-out gastric glands, supplies the right mixture of stomach juices and under the action of the stomach it thoroughly permeates all the food. Thus when the stomach work is done the meal goes into the small intestines in better shape to be assimilated by the system.

One element of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is so strong and efficient that one grain of it will digest 3,000 grains of mixed food such as meats, vegetables, grains, fluids, etc.

The simple habit of eating a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after each meal will readjust your digestion in a very short time so that you will not longer need assistance.

Go to your druggist and obtain a box to-day; price, 50 cents.

Food is best prepared with gas. The food values, the life giving essences of food are retained by this system. When you roast a piece of beef under a gas flame you harden the albumen on the surface of the meat and keep the juices inside. This ignores Nutritious Food.

"The cup that cheers" is the cup of tea or coffee that is prepared on a gas range from fresh boiled water.

PROPOSAL TO ABOLISH CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Is Debated in the House of Commons—Several Are Opposed to the Bill.

DISCUSSION ADJOURNED

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—Knighthoods and detectophones, the Dominion Elections Act, and the death penalty were among the subjects up for discussion in the House of Commons yesterday.

Great interest is manifested in Mr. Bickerdike's bill to abolish capital punishment. Judging from the debate, the bill would have had many supporters upon a division, but it was not acceptable to the Government, and upon motion of Judge Doherty the debate was adjourned.

Mr. Bickerdike, in moving the second reading of his bill, said he believed it was morally wrong for the state to take the life of a citizen. A man not fit to live was certainly not fit to die. It was shocking to witness the Government of a Christian country contracting with a hangman to put people to death.

After the rebellion of 1837, Mr. Bickerdike reminded the House, a large number of people had been executed in Montreal, and several in Toronto, upon a charge of treason. These executions, his opinion were legalized murders and so deeply did they shock the community that no Governor-General would consent to capital punishment being inflicted in this country for twenty years thereafter. No hangings in Canada occurred between 1838 and 1858, yet no increase in homicides was noticed.

Hon. George E. Foster hoped the day would come when capital punishment would be unnecessary, but he hardly thought that the House should commit itself without considerable thought and discussion to the principle of Mr. Bickerdike's bill. Society had a right to protect itself against vicious individuals.

Mr. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.), opposed the bill. Immigrants, he said, were pouring into the country and also foreign laborers. They should be taught that human life was sacred in Canada, and that the extreme penalty would be inflicted upon the murderer.

Hon. George P. Graham spoke with eloquent vehemence in support of the bill. No men or set of men could confer upon themselves the power to kill a human being. Capital punishment was morally wrong, and so in his opinion was the legalized killing by wars. Our histories and other books did not teach the sacredness of human life but glorified the men who killed their fellows. Our monuments should be erected not to honor those who slaughtered but to honor those who served and saved their fellowmen. It was right to have statutes authorizing the killing of dogs, wolves and other animals for certain offences, but such laws should not apply to human beings.

Mr. W. F. Nickle (Kingston), said many countries which had done away with capital punishment were forced to return to it because murders increased.

The debate was continued by Mr. Thompson, who favored the bill, and Dr. Edwards (Frontenac) who approached the subject with an open mind, but advised against hasty action.

Mr. Verville favored the bill as also did Mr. Proulx (Prescott). Hon. Frank Oliver defended capital punishment, and Judge Doherty, Minister of Justice, also intimated his disagreement with Mr. Bickerdike's proposal, moved the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Verville (Maisonneuve) introduced a bill to amend the criminal code. It seeks to prohibit the employment of armed men and also to place under severe destrictions the detectophone and like devices.

Regarding the first proposal Mr. Verville said that when there was a strike, as at Buckingham a few years ago, men were employed ostensibly as workmen or watchmen, but they were strike-breakers used for the purpose of overawing the men on strike and the community generally.

The detectophone he denounced as a greater menace to society than the revolver. Its unrestricted use would permit intolerable espionage.

Mr. Burnham's bill to abolish the deposit of $200 now required of Parliamentary candidates was defeated upon second reading, and his bill "to abolish titles of honor in Canada" met the same fate.

Hon. Mr. Foster, who was leading the House, said that he saw no objection to his Majesty conferring, or to loyal subjects receiving, titles and decorations bestowed upon them in recognition of great public service.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he was much in sympathy with the views expressed by Mr. Burnham, but the object sought could be better attained by an address to his Majesty. Certainly many titles were not in conformity with the ideas of the day or of a country like this.

Mr. E. M. Macdonald (Pictou) complained that the steamer Alert had again left Sydney harbor for Victoria County, C.B., and was conveying Conservative politicians to the scene of the election in that county.

Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs, said the first trip made by the Alert was caused by a well-grounded report that United States fishermen were fishing within the three-mile limit, the vessel being unable to effect a landing, had returned to North Sydney. Her departure yesterday had been without any orders from the Department and he had suspended the collector of customs and ordered the vessel out of commission.

NO MONEY IS OWING TO HIM

A. F. Brayman Must Face Two Charges of Getting Board and Use of Livery Outfit Under False Pretences

HIS TRIAL TO-MORROW

A man who gave his name as A. F. Brayman appeared in Police Court this morning charged with obtaining board and lodgings under false pretences, from Mr. Blastorah, proprietor of the Palace Hotel. When confronted with the charge this morning he pleaded "not guilty." He admitted that he had received board and lodging from the complainant, and hadn't paid for it. At the request of Chief Thompson he was remanded until to-morrow.

It seems that Brayman entered the Palace Hotel a short time ago, and arranged to stay there. It is stated that he said at the time that he had no money, but explained that a farmer of this vicinity, for whom he was working, owed him a considerable sum of money. It was found out, however, that the farmer in question did not owe the prisoner any wages. Whereupon Mr. Blastorah complained to the police and Brayman's arrest followed.

When the prisoner appears before Magistrate Dumble to-morrow he will have to face a second charge, one of getting a horse and cutter from Jones Bros., livery stable under false pretences. According to the proprietor of the livery stable he hired a single outfit yesterday, saying that he was driving out to the farm of a Mr. Bennett, who owed him money, and would pay for the use of the outfit when he urned. He, however, drove around the city all afternoon, and instead of returning the horse and cutter, he left it in the yard of Hogan's Hotel in East City. It has been ascertained that he was never in the employ of Mr. Bennett, and that the latter does not owe Brayman any money.

George Sweeney, of Havelock, appeared for the second time within the last few days charged with being drunk. He was fined $2 with the alternative of 10 days in jail.

Great Show At The Royal

The vaudeville programme at the Royal Theatre for the last three days of this week is the best that Manager Clayton has yet offered. Dr. Aitkenson, the wonderful ventriloquist has made a tremendous hit and his work yesterday was enthusiastically received. To-morrow afternoon he will put on a special show for ladies and children, and no doubt a crowded house will greet the clever entertainer. In addition to Dr. Aitkenson there is a superb novelty in Allen and Burk's globe act in which all kinds of stunts are pulled off on a rolling globe. Mike Doan, the funny blackface monologist, completes a grand bill.

PRESENTATION TO MISS BARRIE

The members of the Cheerful Workers Bible class met at the home of Miss Annie Barrie, Westcott Street, last evening, the president, and presented her with a silver mesh bag. An address was read by Mrs. Chas. Hall and the presentation was made by Miss M. Drain. Miss Barrie made a suitable reply. A most enjoyable time was spent by all.

Trying to Beat the High Cost of Living.—Great crush to buy the "Housewives' League" Bargains in Toronto. This is an organization of women who buy produce direct from the producer and sell it direct to the consumer, thereby cutting out the middleman and his profit. At the first sale by the League there was a small riot, and several women retired with torn clothing and other damages. At all subsequent sales the police have been in charge, and order maintained. The prices obtained are less than current retail prices, but a very small portion of the crowd which wants to buy can be served.

DR. ROBERTSON'S LAST VOLUME WHERE IS IT?

Remaining Section of the Report of the Technical Commission is Wanted—Lectured in Peterborough Recently

QUESTION OF DISCRETENESS

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—Great annoyance is expressed in government circles that the report of the Technical Education Commission has not yet been handed in complete by Dr. J. W. Robertson. The minister of labour has not yet received the fourth and last volume, and this is the most important, as it deals with conditions in this country as the commissioners found them.

The delay is the more serious as the question of technical education affects the provinces more than the Dominion, although the commission was appointed and financed by the federal authorities. When the complete report is in the hands of the government, copies of it will be sent to the provincial authorities, and nothing will be done by the Dominion Government until the views of the provinces have been obtained and a scheme agreeable to all has been formulated.

The method likely to be adopted by the government will be similar to that adopted in the case of the federal grant in aid of agriculture. A commissioner will be appointed who will visit the various provincial governments, and he will be empowered to make agreements with the provinces, the conditions being, of course, that the grant of money made shall be used for the purpose of technical education alone.

Indiscreet Utterances.

Annoyance is expressed that Dr. Robertson should find time to deliver lectures on the question of technical eduction so long as the report is not in the hands of the government. The point is emphasized also that the policy which Dr. Robertson is laying down as the best for Canada is not official, and there will be no policy laid down until the provinces have been heard from.

It is interesting to remember that when the Technical Education Commission was proposed by the late government, it was understood by the provinces that the report would be simply one of conditions and not of policy. Sir James Whitney and Sir Lomer Gouin were particularly strong upon this. However, when the order-in-council was passed it contained an order to make recommendations.

Hope Long Deferred.

The policy of the commissioners may or may not be adopted by the Dominion and provincial governments, but, meanwhile, the government is tied hand and foot over the report for which it has waited about three years. A session is in progress and ministers are so busy that they will probably be unable to do anything in connection with the matter until the session is over. Several months ago Hon. T. W. Crothers, in the hope that it would expedite matters, ordered the pay of Dr. Robertson and the secretary of the commission stopped. He is still without the last volume of the report.

CONCESSIONS WILL BE MADE TO ULSTER

It is Said That Asquith Will Propose This Without Excluding the Province From the Scope of the Bill

SESSION NEXT WEEK

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 6.— (Special Cable.)—With the reassembling of parliament next Thursday, speculation is reviving regarding the government's proposed action on the Home Rule Bill. It is almost a certainty that Premier Asquith will, during next week, make an important declaration on the question and it will probably take the form of substantial concessions to Ulster without in any way excluding that province from the operations and scope of the bill. While the concessions may not find instant acceptance from the Unionists, if is known that certain sections of the party are not in accord with Carson's methods, and will be ready for some kind of settlement. In the meantime several important meetings of leaders of both parties are scheduled and the results tending to peace in Ireland are anticipated.

A TRIUMPH FOR PETERBORO' LADY CURLERS

Mrs. Coulthard's Rink Captures the Junior Granite Trophy at Montreal With Mrs. Ritchie's Rink the Runners-Up

A GRAND SHOWING

The Peterborough lady curlers that spent the week in Montreal had, in the expressive language of sport, a "high old time." They went, they played, they conquered, and Mrs. Coulthard's rink is bringing home a perfectly lovely silver cup as an outward and visible evidence of their prowess with the stane and besom. Say after this that women don't know how to throw stones. We all know they can wield a broom. In the Granite junior competition at the Montreal bonspiel, Peterborough girls were the runners up for the final, and the two winning Peterborough rinks had to saw-off," which they did with the following results:

No. 1.	No. 2.
Mrs. A. H. Stratton	Mrs. A. J. Grant
Miss E. Morrow	Mrs. W. H. Hill
Miss N.Davidson	Mrs. J.E.L.Goodwill
Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Skip 19	Mrs. H. Ritchie Skip 7

The final struggle and its result is a matter of domestic interest, as between the competing rinks and of course it carried with it both regret and congratulation; but that little final tiff is not what concerns Peterborough. We are proud that a Peterborough ladies' rink annexed the beautiful silver cup, and had to win it from the next best rink in the bonspiel.

The Peterborough lady curlers, as well as the other visiting lady curlers were right-Mount Royally received and treated by their Montreal hosts, or rather hostesses—receptions, luncheons and personally conducted hospitality. Some of the ladies will stay in the city to be present at the final function of the bonspiel, the distribution of prizes.

The press recognition of the ladies was as to be expected of the press, gallantly cordial. The Montreal Star printed portraits of the skips—Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, president of the Peterborough Ladies Curling Club, skip, and of Mrs. Hazen Ritchie, the other skip.

Congratulations are extended to the adventurous Peterborough lady curlers. They certainly did credit to themselves and the city. We sent down two rinks—and both won—their way into the finals, and the only regret is that the impossible was not possible—that both rinks should win in the final clash. They are welcome home.

Sound the trumpet, beat the drum,
See the conquering heroines come;
Fill the "cup" and drink it down,
To them who in the final round,
Brought fame and silverware to town

P.S.—It is suggested that we should send these two rinks after the Tankard.

FIRE LOSS FOR WEEK.

"Fire and Water Engineering" of New York, says that from reports covering the United States and Canada, the estimated losses by fire during the week ending Feb. 2, 1914, aggregated $6,173,000 as against $5,100,000 for the corresponding week in 1913.

WAR INSTILS GREECE WITH NEW CONFIDEN(

CANADA'S DEBT IS NOW 314 MILLIONS

Just an Increase of Ten Millions Over Preceding Month

18 MILLIONS TO RAILWAYS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—Canada's financial statement for the month of January past shows a net debt at the end of the month of 314 millions, which is an increase over the preceding month of $10,000,000. The total revenue of the Dominion for the month of January was eleven and a half millions, as compared with thirteen and a half millions for December, or a decrease of nearly two millions. This dropping off in the revenue is largely accounted for by a decrease in the customs receipts. The total expenditure of the month was seventeen millions, as against fifteen millions for January of last year. Included in the expenditures for the month was two and a half millions for railway subsidies, making a total paid out on account of railway subsidies from April 1st, 1913, to the end of January, 1914, eighteen millions.

"CITIZEN" SAYS THE HIGH COST OF LIVING TO BLAME

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—From time to time I have read your articles, dealing with the causes of poverty in our midst, and I fail to see where you have arrived at anything like a fair conclusion. How many weeks are there between the average working man, who pays his way, and starvation? I don't think for the whole year of 52 weeks, that the average working man will earn over $12.00 per week. Now let us for a moment consider what he has to pay out of this, to be considered a respectable citizen. We will consider him as a married man, with a wife, and two children.

Rent	$3.00
Groceries	3.50
Butcher	1.25
Baker	50
Milk	50
Fuel	1.50
Light	25
Insurance	50
Boots and clothing	75
Say—1 newspaper	10
	$11.85

I am sure the most economical housekeeper will not think the above, an extravagant list. In addition to this, most sensible men, are members of some benefit society, which they most probably joined, during their days of bachelorhood, this must be kept up to provide against sickness. He is very fortunate if he can go through the year without having a little expense through sickness, to his wife or family. If he attends a place of worship, in addition to his weekly subscription, he is called upon throughout the year for subscriptions to the various funds, to all of which he feels it his duty to give. You will notice I have not allowed this little family a trip down the river, a visit to an entertainment of any kind, not even five cents worth of candies for the children, or any cigars for the father. A holiday in the summer time would be the very height of extravagance, in fact suicidal to this man and his family, and to attempt to give his children any accomplishment, such as music, painting, or an education in any of the arts, (which would serve more than anything else, to keep them off the streets, and do more than anything I have yet heard of, to bring about that happy, and to be desired state of morality, for which we all hope), is totally out of the question.

You, Mr. Editor, will not venture to say, that I have asked for anything, for the working man, and his family, that they do not require to be good citizens, and to do credit to the flag under which they live? If I have been anything like accurate in my claims, how is the working man going to provide for adversity? His condition is little better than a hand to mouth existence. Through what? The present high cost of living. This in my opinion is the sole cause of so many being unprepared for the present dullness of trde, which unfortunately has hapened in the winter months, making it doubly hard for those in need. I am,

Yours truly,

Citizen.

BIG STORM ON ITS WAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—The storm forecasted yesterday, will arrive in Ontario the latter part of this afternoon and will remain here all day to-morrow. It is now rapidly approaching from the west and will bring gales, with a fairly heavy fall of snow and a period of sleet or rain to-morrow, followed by much colder weather.

N. Douros Says Patriotism, [illegible] and Public Spirit Have Been Influenced by the Success of Greek Arms.

TO KEEP MEN AT H[illegible]

It was only a handful of his patriots and a few local friends greeted Mr. Nicholas Douros at C.P.R. station last night upon his return from the Balkan war, but, the words of Mr. Martin Harvey, acknowledging repeated calls after the final curtain last night, they made in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers. Mr. Louis Yeotes, Mr. Douros, and others of the local colony, drove to the station in two 'busses and conveyed their countryman to the Boston Cafe, where a supper was waiting. It was the occasion for a general reunion and Mr. Douros was plied with questions concerning the engagements he had passed through, the friends he had left behind and the general welfare of the Fatherland.

To-day Mr. Douros is down to drum business again, the Attic is crowded into the background of memory with the stirring events of the past year and a half. Thus it is that the romance so indefinitely associated with the campaigns of war inevitably give place to the material necessities of every day existence.

A NEW PATRIOTISM

One of the effects produced in Greece by the successes of its arms is a new patriotism and an impetus to the building up of the country. When an Examiner reporter Mr. Douros stated that the government is considering methods by which the Greek men will be induced to stay at home. The time has come for the discouragement of emigration. It is not an easy matter to leave for foreign countries now. A young man wishing to return to America now for instance is pointedly asked what benefits he will obtain by leaving his own country. Statements of financial gain are met with equal inducements to remain in Greece, and the probability the authorities is to make the conditions as promising as possible for young men.

OPPORTUNITIES ARE NUMEROUS

It is desired to settle the new lands secured as spoils in the recent war with young Greeks. Besides,

GET THE BUSINESS

WHAT do people buy and why do they buy it?

This problem should interest everyone who has anything to sell, and the fact that your business is not as large as that of a department store does not mean that your methods of selling should be radically different or that you need give no thought to the subject.

Ask any successful merchant why certain goods sell better than others, and he will tell you it is quality plus advertising. Even poor goods can be sold by advertising, but a second sale is not likely, and either one of two articles equally good, can be sold the most to the exclusion of the other, by good advertising.

Count on your fingers the things that you buy regularly and see how many of them are articles that are extensively advertised. Go home and look in your wife's pantry and see how many advertised articles she buys, and then stop and think. Why does she buy these things in preference to many others which are in many instances, just as good? It is advertising.

You have a desire to try a particular article because you have learned something about it, —you become convinced that it is good and you want it. Your local dealer anvertises it for sale and you ask for it, and though it were an old friend. The sale is the result of good advertising.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

FRIDAY, FEB 6, 1914

GIVE HIM A FAIR CHANCE.

Brantford is considerably shaken over the question of partizanship in municipal matters—mixed criticism and approval are given to the action of the Council of Brantford township in appointing three Conservative assessors this year. It is asserted in defence of this action that Dumfries township appointed two Liberal assessors. Two wrong actions do not make either of them right; and it is wrong to make party of any kind a basis of preference in municipal appointments or municipal service of any kind. Partizan appointments are made from other considerations than fair and efficient service. If anything should be free from any ulterior or exterior influence or consideration, it should be our assessment. With our fearfully and wonderfully made assessment law and our unfair and unequal principles and practices of assessment, an assessor should not be hampered by anything like party considerations. With the best intentions, perhaps, and under the best conditions, an assessor will be handicapped in doing fair and honest work by the use of the tools he is compelled to work with—our assessment law—without having to wrestle with any other impediment represented by extraneous considerations. An assesor should be given a fair chance, which will not be done if he is expected by conditions of his appointment, to serve two masters.

A GOOD RECORD.

The pessimist, according to the phraseology of the "ring," has received another impact in the solar plexus. Toronto, a city of nearly half a milion—450,000—inhabitants during the year 1913 had no murder committed in its borders. We sometimes chaff Toronto upon her goody-goodiness, but in this case the city deserves high praise. A record of a year with the unlucky 13 in its digits of expression, is certainly something to be proud of for a city with an almost cosmopolitan population and is all the more a matter of congratulation when we recall the red record of cities of greater and smaller size across the border. The pessimist who declares the world is growing worse because we have, say, in Toronto bacchanalian New Year's orgies of the saturnalia type, and in Peterborough a good deal and altogether too much wrong-doing, argues from incomplete premises. Relatively there is a vast amount of good to help us in striking a fair credit balance of good conditions. In human affairs everything is relative; there is little that is absolutely good or absolutely bad. It is only when we compare conditions, moral or otherwise, with other peoples and other places that we can form an estimate. Compared with other countries and places and conditions in all ways—in material well-being and moral status, Canada and Toronto and Peterborough are justified without pharisaim in claiming to be a little better, and feel that as far as we are concerned the world is becoming better, the which is an incentive and encouragement to more earnest endeavour in the direction of improvement.

THE ONLY WAY.

Mr. Andrew Broder, M.P. for Dundas, has given notice of the introduction of a bill to prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarettes in Canada Mr. Broder is beginning at the right place—the beginning; he is striking at the root. Any other way would be trifling. So long as cigarettes are manufactured they will be sold; so long as the are sold they will be used, in spite of the laws of the land, the laws of health. If they are not manufactured or imported they can't be sold. If legislation can cure the disease this is the right form of legislation. But why does Mr. Broder confine his attention to the cigarette? Why not make a clean sweep and do away with real tobacco smoking? If he wants to make a name for himself as a great philanthropist, why does he not introduce a resolution to prohibit the manufacture and sale of strong drink? It would be just as easy passing a law to do this as it would be to prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarettes—the same three readings, the same routine of voting, the same form of royal assent. One suspects that Mr. Border, who is an honest farmer, is only a surface cultivator of the moral garden after all. He comes down vigorously upon the infant vice of cigarette smoking, and spares the corn cob pipe and the quid— and the bottle, when with the same process of legislation he could sweep away, dig up the whole evil weed crop. But he is like a great many other reformers. They work for surface remedies for the drink evil, for license reduction, local option, Scott Act and abolish the bar. If they would follow Mr. Broder's example in the matter of cigarettes, attack the enemy in his stronghold, the manufacture of strong drink, they would be doing the only thing, taking the only way to remove, root up and destroy the evils that strong drink brings; otherwise they only skin and film the ulcerous spot. This may be the hard way; but it's the only way; and Sydney Carton has no copyright on the only way.

Apropos of the futility of legal restrictions of the liquor traffic, the Globe this morning tells how a "joker" in the liquor act may kill a crown case; an act which has been revised and tinkered in a thousand ways, and which still, after forbidding under penalties, the unlicensed sale of liquor, permits the sale of intoxicants without a license and without impunity, so far as the courts are concerned. Without going into details, it appears that according to the much repaired liquor law, a wholesaler can sell certain wines, without incurring any penalty, while the retailer who buys his wines from the wholesale merchant, is guilty of breach of the law, and liable to its penalties if he sells the same to his customers. All this and all other uncertainty and confusion and failure would, by the adoption and administration of an act prohibiting the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating drinks be swept away at a stroke. If this is desirable, it would seem to be practicable; if all the effort, agitation and enterprise now dissipated upon partial and perfunctory measures of surface treatment had been and were concentrated upon securing the adoption of the only way, it would be done.

AN UNFULFILLED PLEDGE.

Hamilton Herald: It is interesting to be reminded of the fact that in Ontario cities of 150,000 population and over, the police commissioners have jurisdiction in the matter of issuing and regulating licenses, including licenses of "establishments for the lodging, reception, refreshment and entertainment of the public."

The words put in quotation marks form a fair definition of hotels. Are the police commissioners vested with authority to regulate licensed hotels in large cities?

The point has never been raised. But in The Herald's opinion it would be a good thing to have the police commissioners take over the powers and duties of the license commissioners. If this were done the license law would be better administered than it is. Licenses would be likely to be granted only to persons who "keep hotel" in a real sense and there would be less likelihood of the traffic being used as a party instrument.

It should not be forgotten that one of Premier Whitney's promises before he acceded to power was that the administration of the license law would be absolutely divorced from party politics. That promise has not been fulfilled. The license law is administered by political partizans, usually with an eye to party advantage. Why not fulfill the pledge? It might easily be fulfilled by a very brief statute abolishing the license commissions in cities and transferring their powers and duties to the police commissions.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

QUEBEC CITY, Feb. 6.—Sir Hugh Graham, proprietor of the Montreal Star, as witness before the legislature bribery committee this morning, said these allegations of bribery against the legislature members were submitted to hom before the Montreal mail brought them out, but on advice of his solicitor he declined to publish them in the Montreal Star. He admitted his proprietorship and control of the Montreal Star, but on being asked his connection with the Montreal Herald-Telegraph, said it was irrevalent.

INDIANS HAVE WEATHER MAN BEATEN A MILE

Have Ways of Their Own of Forecasting the Weather Months in Advance---Former Brant County Engineer Does Some Prognosticating.

The governments of all civilised countries have their meteorological offices on which barrels of money are spent yearly to get the weather probabilities 24 hours in advance. About 90 per cent. of these are fully verified and about 95 per cent. fully and partly verified. But the Indians of the north land have them all beaten, for they forecast the weather months ahead, and while some may smile at the alleged weather wisdom of the aborigines, old hunters, trappers and settlers place a good deal of reliance in them.

Boarding-House Group.

In Dane, in the big boarding-house, where those bound for Larder Lake jump off the train and pass a night before hitting the trail that leads to the elusive goldfields, one hears more discussion about the weather than anything else. Not even the latest news from the mining camp is of such general interest. Around the huge camp stove, stuffed with tamarac and birch, there were gathered the other night a party of four. Levi, some of whose ancestors fought with Brant and the British a hundred years ago, was there. He is well known as a fur buyer all up and down the T. & N. I. Railway, and hails originally from the reserve near Brantford. Then there was Bill Macdonald, an old prospector, who, after years of exploration, has at last made good, and Dan Mitchell, an oldtime settler on the Blanche River. Last of all was the stranger, who had less to say than any of the others, for he was a newspaper man, ever ready to get hold of anything in the shape of copy.

Bill had just passed round some samples with the gold sticking out here and there like little freckles on the surface of the quartz.

Talk Turned Upon Weather.

The conversation was interrupted by the opening of the door, and a big fur-robed fellow shouted in, "All aboard for Larder." His coat was well covered with snowflakes and the wind carried a small shower of them in when the door was opened. This interruption switched the conversation from the gold to the weather.

"What sort of weather do you suppose we'll have this winter?" said Bill to Levi.

Signs of Mild Winter.

"I killed no moose this season," answered Levi, as he puffed a cloud of tobacco smoke across the stove, "but the Indians that have killed them say it's going to be mild. I shot a rabbit last week, though, and the fur was white, but only for half an inch or so. It will be pretty mild, I think."

"What do the Indians say?" queried the newspaper man, looking across to Levi.

"Pretty mild," was the answer. "The moose tell them so."

"How do they tell them?" was the next question.

How the Indians Know.

Then he explained that what the whites term the milt in a hog is also present in the moose. Just what use it is in the anatomy of the pig or the moose he could not say; probably something like the appendix in the genus homo—no one appears to know. It is a flat piece of grey-coloured flesh that lies along the stomach. In the moose it is about ten inches long, a couple of inches broad, and of somewhat irregular thickness; one end is slightly smaller than the other. In fact, it somewhat resembles a pig's tongue. Sometimes the smaller end lies towards the animal's head and at others it is reversed. From this and its thickness, as well as its colour, the Indian predicts the weather to be expected during the winter.

Germans Use Same Sign.

It is a strange fact that amongst the Germans of Old Ontario, the very same superstition, or whatever one likes to term it, prevails. After all, perhaps the weather bureau doesn't know it all.

YOU CAN'T EARN MONEY WHEN YOU'RE LAID UP

There are a lot of people in this town who cannot afford to be sick. Perhaps some of you feel that you can, but certainly some of you can't, for as soon as you are sick, your cares stop and worry and debts begin to pile up. The sensible thing for you to do, as soon as you feel run-down and worn out, no matter what the cause, is to take something just as quick as you can to build up strength and health. Make yourself more comfortable and provide against serious sickness.

We don't believe there is any other medicine made that will do as much towards saving your health and thus helping you save your money as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a medicine that gets right at the trouble and relieves it by toning the nerves, enriching the blood, and giving new strength and health to the whole body. It doesn't do this by means of alcohol or habit-forming drugs, because it contains none. Its strength and health-giving power is due to pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites, long endorsed by successful physicians, the one for its food value, the other for its tonic value. Here, for the first time, they are combined, and the result is a real nerve, blood and body-building medicine—a real strengthener that we are proud to tell you about. You don't need to hesitate in using it, because if it doesn't do all we say it will and satisfy you in every way, it will cost you nothing. If it doesn't make you strong and well again, come back and get your money. It will be given to you without word or question. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00.

ANOTHER TROPHY FOR G.T.R. TEAM

Capture the Canadian Ambulance Association Cup

The second competition between teams from the shops of the various companies interested for the Canadian Ambulance Association trophy presented by the Dominion Bridge Company was held at the Railway Y.M.C.A., Sebastopol Street, Point St. Charles on Saturday afternoon last. Four teams competed: The Dominion Bridge Co., the Canada Steel Co., the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk. This trophy was held last year by the C.P.R. team. The Grand Trunk team carried off the honours. The members of the winning team being as follows:

No. 1 A. Poitras, Rolling Mill Staff.
2 E. Castles, Wheel Shop Staff.
3 H. Slack, Freight Car Shop Staff.
4 F. Russell, Iron Foundry Staff.
5 R. Seed, Boiler Shop Staff.

The judges were: Drs. W. J. Patterson, Robert Wilson and H. B. Carmichael. The result is specially complimentary to the winning team as this is the second important competition in which they have captured the honours, having won the Wallace Nesbitt Challenge Trophy on January 16th.

The work that is being carried on by the St. John Ambulance Association is a very praiseworthy cause. The Grand Trunk centre was first organised at their Point St. Charles shops in 1911 with about 12 members to-day the membership numbers 45, and the work of organization is being extended to all terminal points on the system. Classes are now being formed at Ottawa, Toronto, Startford and London, and it is the ultimate intention to extend work to the trainmen and even the general officers.

ZAM-BUK IN THE HOME

Read How Useful It Proved In These Widely Different Cases.

Zam-Buk's strongest point is its effectiveness in all kinds of skin diseases and injuries. Just note how excellent these persons proved it in widely different directions.

Sore Heel.—Mrs. C. A. Campbell, of Powassan, Ont., writes: "One of my heels was very badly blistered by a pair of new shoes, and the poisonous dye from my stocking got into it, and made a bad sore. For a week I could not put on a shoe, and suffered great pain. I applied Zam-Buk, and in a few days it drew the poison out and healed the wound."

Bad Cut.—Mrs. J. Virgint, of Onondaga, Ont., writes: "Zam-Buk healed a bad cut which I sustained. I was hurrying across my yard one day when I slipped and fell heavily, my knee striking a shar stone. At the moment I did not realize how badly I was hurt, but I found I had a bad cut about two inches long, very jagged and very deep. We bathed the cut and applied Zam-Buk. This stopped the smarting very quickly, and in a few days it had healed the wound completely. For cuts and bruises Zam-Buk is a splendid remedy."

Eczema Cured.—Mrs. Antoine Arsenault of Maxiamville, P.E.I., writes: "I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to any person suffering from eczema. I had this disease and was under doctors' treatment for two years, without any good result. I then tried Zam-Buk and in the end it cured me."

Zam-Buk is just as good for piles, blood-poison, festering sores, pimples, eruptions, cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Try ZamBuk Soap, 25c. tablet.

226 BUSINESS FAILURES IN CANADA LAST MONTH

Commercial failures in the Dominion of Canada during January, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., were more numerous and involved a larger aggregate of liabilities than in the corresponding period of recent preceding years, the record being especially unfavourable from a numerical standpoint.

Thus there were 226 defaults last month, as against 154 in 1913, 144 in 1912 and 143 in 1911, while an indebtedness of $2,022,080 compared with $1,730,863 in the previous year, $1,208,367 in 1912 and $1,008,471 in January, 1911.

In the manufacturing lines there were 72 reverses for a total of $969,984, as contrasted with 37 for $736,597 in 1913; 28 for $331,428 two years ago, and only $260,270 in 1911.

The trading insolvencies made a particularly adverse exhibit, the 165 suspensions in that division comparing with 113 in the preceding year and 112 each in 1912 and 1911, while the amount involved was $1,013,196 against $522,294 in 1913, $818,873 in 1912 and $736,197 in 1911.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—President Wilson announced yesterday that he would endeavor to have repealed at the present session of Congress that provision of the Panama Canal Act which exempts American coastwise ships from the payment of tolls. He made his position clear to callers yesterday in unequivocal terms.

The President believes the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with Britain guarantees equality of treatment to all nations including the United States, in the matter of tolls, and that the United States is in honor bound to charge American vessels the same tolls it imposes upon those of foreign nations.

The President impressed upon his callers that he would use every legitimate influence at his disposal to have the exemption clause eliminated from the Panama Canal Act.

This announcement was expected by administration leaders at the capitol. The President's views will be carried out in the House with little difficulty, according to Representative Adamson, chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Commission, who said last night Congress undoubtedly would act quickly by "a straight out repeal."

Not so certain, however, are some of the Democratic leaders in the Senate that the President will be sustained in his resolve on this question, which has agitated American relations with Britain for several years and has been a subject of internal controversy since the passage of the Panama Canal Act in August, 1912. Senator O'Gorman, chairman of the interocean canal committee, which had charge of the bill, and who led the victorious fight in the Senate to exempt American coastwise vessels from tolls last night, declared his purpose to stand by his convictions and fight the President's desire.

Other Senators pointed to the recent action of the foreign relations committee in recommending the British general arbitration treaty for an extension as an indication that the Senate is ready to rescind its action on the tolls question, fear of having to submit it to arbitration having delayed its extension by the Senate last summer. Senator Stone, who voted for the provision, has said he would vote for the repeal, taking the position that under the treaty the United States still has the right to levy any tolls it wishes, the exemption should be stricken out in deference to international good feeling and in line with a desire to avoid any ill-feeling with Great Britain.

TO CROSS ATLANTIC.

Huge Aeroboat Is Almost Ready For Transoceanic Flight.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Plans for flying across the Atlantic Ocean in an aeroplane, which has long been a matter of imaginative speculation among airmen, were reduced yesterday, according to an announcement made at the headquarters of the Aero Club of America, to a definite proposal to cruise through the air lanes from Newfoundland to the west of Ireland during the present year. Not only was an announcement made that a transatlantic trip will be attempted, but it was given out that the construction of a giant aeroplane, or rather aeroboat, in which the trial is to be made, was commenced six months ago at Hammondsport, N.Y., and that the machine is now rapidly nearing completion. Rodman Wanamaker is the backer of the transatlantic expedition, and the aeroboat in which it is to be attempted has been designed under his supervision by Glenn H. Curtiss.

It is the intention of Rodman Wanamaker to have the giant flying boat driven to Europe by two aviators especially selected by the Secretary of the Navy from the navy's aeronautic corps.

Author Goes To Jail.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Frank Harris, formerly editor of Vanity Fair, and now editor of Modern Society, was summoned before the courts Wednesday by Earl Fitzwilliam in consequence of his having published articles in the latter journal in reference to the divorce suit in which the earl is a party, in which the names of high personages in the realm were mentioned. The court viewed the article complained of as the highest contempt of court, and asked Harris to apologize. He refused to do so and was committed to prison for an indefinite period.

New Altitude Record.

CHARTRES, France, Feb. 6.—The French aviator Garaix Wednesday established a new altitude record with five passengers, ascending to a height of 7,382 feet. He made the flight in the new biplane built by Paul Schmitt, an engineer, which Tuesday reached a height of 5,000 feet with seven passengers.

The previous record for altitude with five passengers was made by the Austrian aviator Sablatnik last October at Johannisthol, who reached an altitude of 3,281 feet.

TO GROW HAIR ON A BALD HEAD

BY A SPECIALIST.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair-tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless: the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring grey hair to its original colour, stopping hair from falling out and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavona de Compoyne, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed, add 1 drach of your favourite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics.

Doing Well.

Bix—How are you making out on your resolution to economize?

Rix—Fine! I've got my running expenses slowed down to a walk.

This Will Remove Hairs From Face

(Toilet Talks)

Many beauty experts have discarded the electric needle and are now using a plain delatone paste to remove hairy growths because this method is almost instantaneous and is entirely devoid of pain. The paste is made by mixing some powdered delatone with water and this is applied to the hairy surface for about 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This banishes every trace of hair and leaves the skin soft and smooth. Be sure to get the delatone in an original package.

They have a fast, heavy team and will take a lot of beating. The Y.M.C.A., however, claim that they had an off night against the Exploits the other night, and they are out to show the fans this evening just how fast they can go.

The Wanderers are improving all the time and they will provide the Exploits with plenty of opposition in the second game of the evening.

Len Dobson will referee both games.

PARCELS MUST BE CAREFULLY PACKED

Special Instructions for Eggs and Oils – Parcels Trusted to the Mail Bags

BEGINS ON TUESDAY

In the regulations for the parcel post, which will be commenced on February 10th, the Postmaster-General has given specific suggestions how the various articles should be packed for safe transit through the mails.

For instance, in regard to eggs, it is recommended that a papier mache, wooden, or other box of rigid material with a tight-fitting lid be used —that each egg be wrapped separately in newspaper or other protecting material and fill up the vocant spaces carefully. In addition the parcel is to be clearly marked as containing eggs.

Specific regulations are given as to the method in which liquids, oils or fatty substances must be packed in order to be sent through the mails. Strong wooden or heavy cardboard blocks or tubes are necessary, with a cushion of some absorbent moterial to take up the liquid in case the container should break. Further, every precaution must be taken to make the block or tube watertight. Manufacturers or dealers who intend to send such articles in quantities, are recommended to submit a sample package to the officials, so that the conditions are seen to be observed.

Further, all parcels have to be prepared in such a way that the contents can be easily examined, and the senders' name and address should appear on the cover of the parcel.

Will Use Mail Bags.

Apparently the intention of the department is to use the ordinary mail bags for the parcels post and not to introduce baskets, which are used to a great extent in England. It is interesting to note that in England, some time ago, there were vigorous protests against the disuse of baskets as it was found after a very short trial that tremendous damage was done to countless packages through the lack of protection afforded by bags. The same condition may pertain here if there is a wide use of the parcels system without adequate facilities for more careful transportation than that usually afforded by the use of bags.

For the handling of the expected increase in parcels it is understood that there have been few preparations made beyond the additional floor space that may be needed. So far as could be learned no new equipment has been added to meet th demand which may be made upon th receiving clerks. To facilitate the reckoning of the postage, separate cards have been issued for each Province with the rates tabulated, but the clerks will have to figure them out for themselves and this may lead to some delay, if the Christmas congestion is any criterion of the rush that may occur.

Six Pounds the Limit.

Six pounds is the limit for parcels during February, March and April, and during the same period an extra charge of five cents is made on all parcels to be delivered by letter carriers.

Seventy-one Patients Were Treated At The Queen Mary Isolation Hospital--Two Died

The Third Annual Report as Presented by Dr. W. A. McPherson Reveals Some Interesting Information Concerning the Operation of the Hospital--Eleven Cases of Diphtheria Were Treated---An Epidemic of Measles---Increase in Expenditures.

The important part that the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital has taken in the prevention and treatment of infectious diseases in the city and surrounding municipalities is potent in the third annual report of Dr. A. W. McPherson, superintendent of the Hospital.

With the exception of thirty-one days the Hospital was in operation throughout the year. There were three short breaks—six days in January, nine in June, and sixteen in September and October. This year both wards were busy, owing to the epidemic of measels and the number of urgent cases resulting therefrom. In all forty-four cases were treated. This necessitated more nurses than ordinarily, with a consequent increase in the appropriation for salaries.

Eleven Cases Diphtheria

Diphtheria was prevalent during the latter part of the year and eleven cases were treated. This is a striking contrast to the previous year, when not a single case was reported to the authorities, and the diphtheria side of the Hospital was open only for twenty days, which was for a case admitted in December, 1911.

Fifteen scarlet fever cases were treated during the first year, as compared with thirty-one in 1912.

The number of patients from outside the City was six, one more than that of the previous year.

Complaints Were Nil

The permanent staff was the same as the preceding yar and the work of the nurses was said to be satisfactory in every respect. The report states that not a single complaint was received from patients, parents, or attending physician. Only a short time ago the fathe. of a patient had occasion to say that he was satisfied that if his boy had not been removed to the Hospital he would not have recovered. It is pleasant and encouraging, continue the report, when one finds the public so appreciative of the care that is required and given to the patients in an infectious hospital.

Of the seventy-one patients treated sixty-nine were discharged in good conition, and two died, one from measels and one from scarlet fever.

The Investigation.

At the beginning of the year the Board of Health was asked by the council to investigate into the management of the Hospital with a view of decreasing the expenditures. A number of special meetings were held and the complaints considred. The decision arrived at was to the effect that although he expenditures were high, there was no evidence of willful waste or carelessness on the part of those in charge.

Continuing, the report states that there have been some resulting benefits. The public were made more fully aquainted with the work done The number of cases treatd, the difficulty in securing help, and the good services rendered by those who are employed in the Hospital. The Board of Management had their attention drawn to the defects of the building and to the resulting expenditure. Finally, ways and means were discussed as to how the expenses could be cut down.

A Large Increase.

From a comparison of these figures it will be seen at a glance that the number of patients was more than doubled this year, ouplet with the fact that more than fifty per cent. were measle patients, and the detention period was less than half that of scarlet fever. Both sides of the Hospital were open for a considerable period, necessitating a double staff of nurses. This accounts for the higher expenditure in salaries, provisions, fuel, drugs, etc. Increases in salaries of the staff were responsible for $240 of the increased expenditure. This was counterbalanced by the Hospital authoritis being able to secure additional help when required, for less than was previously paid In this way it was possible to reduce the monthly pay list, which is also being reduced at the present time by $25 to $65 a month.

Permanent Improvemnts.

The item for provisions is $62.49 less than for 1912. This is partly explained by the factthat almost enough vegetables for the year's supply was raised at the Hospital. The cost of maintainig the garden was $34.

During the year the sum of $344.53 was expended on permanent improvements. Two of these were absolutely necessary, viz., the fire appliances, and the septic tank. The third was the feather stripping for the windows and doors. It is expected that in two years there will be a saving in fuel sufficient to pay the cost of installation.

Recommendations.

Dr. McPherson has recommended that the walls of the Hospital be painted; also the plaster repaired, where it has been broken. He also suggests the planting of berry bushes and fruit trees. This matter will be considered by the Board of Health at some future meeting.

LABOUR CRISIS IN NORWAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHRISTIANA, Norway, Feb. 6.—The labour troubles which have been steadily extending over Norway for a long time past are expected to reach a crisis to-morrow, which is the day set by the Norwegian Employers' Association for putting into effect a general lockout against the organized labourers in northern Norway. The introduction of syndicalism into Norway is declared by the employers to be at the root of the present troubles. Until its introduction, it is declared, the workingmen's associations felt bound by any contract that they entered into, but recently it is said that they have disregarded their obligations and engaged in strikes in violation of existing agreements. As a result of strikes now on in Christiana, Trondhjem and other industrial entres thousands of workingmen employed in the engineering, wood pulp and cellulose industries are idle.

A BETTER REMEDY THAN NASTY SALTS

Few people like to take physic, especially salts, because they are so disagreeable to take and because of the griping and pains they cause. Rexall Orderlies enable you to take less physic, and all without griping, purging or excessive looseness. Salts and harsh physics usually give only temporary relief and often leave the bowels worse off than before.

Rexall Orderlies move the bowels promptly, and soothe, tone and strengthen the intestinal muscles, leaving them healthy and regular in action. They taste like candy, and the movement they cause is as easy and natural as though your bowels were in perfect health and you never had to take any physic at all. We have so much faith in Rexall Orderlies that we urge you to try them with the understanding that, if they do not satisfy you in every way, all you have to do to get your money back is to tell us. We honestly believe them to be the best bowel remedy made. In vest pocket tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50c.

$1000 FIRE IN MILLBROOK

Old Landmark Removed by Fire—High Prices for Cattle

(Millbrook Reporter.)

Mr. Geo. Sanderson's house was burned on Thursday night of last week from a defective flue. The alarm was given about 3 a.m., but so much headway had the fire made, only a few articles of clothing were sved. The house was one of the oldest in the town, owned by the late Thos. Hutchinson in the early days. The farm is now owned by Mr. J. C. Kells, who had $400 insurance on house and Mr. Sanderson $600 on contents.

Prize Winners Sold.

Mr. W. E. Leith, horse dealer, purchased Mr. Geo. Brown's fine black show team on Monday. This is the team which won so many red tickets for Mr. Brown, and we understand Mr. Leith paid a handsome price for this well matched team.

"Shiver My Timbers."

Mr. Samuel Hamilton of Zion Line sold last week five head of cattle coming three, which brought him $490; two steers bringing $105 each and three heifers the balance. Sam can laugh at us eating liver and soup bones these days of high prices, but he is to be congratulated on his fine stock.

STREET PAVING MAY BE CONTINUED ON FIRST OF APRIL

The Examiner was informed this morning that Messrs. Foley and Gleason, of Ottawa, who paved George and Hunter streets last summer intended to commence work on the city streets about April 1, 1914. Their first operations will be on George street. If, however, the weather moderates sufficiently, the street paving company may take advantage of the surplus labour supply and commence operations in March.

WAR INSTILS GREECE WITH NEW CONFIDENCE

of the men were killed in battle and the male population has been considerably depleted, and with the true eye of a father the Government wished to populate the lands as extensively as possible with its own sons. Agriculture is taking on a new life and manufactures of all kinds have been affected by the new spirit of confidence and hope, born of the success on the field.

PEOPLE ARE CONFIDENT

This has been one of the greatest results of the war, Mr. Douros stated. The Greeks demonstrated their abilities and the reflex spirit has created a widespread confidence that is everywhere manifest.

Mr. Douros left Peterborough in September, 1912, and spent over a year in actual service. Against the Turks he was engaged with the Greek forces in Albania and afterwards shared in most of the principal conflicts against the Bulgarians. One of the big battles with the Sultan's troops was fought at Mpizame, when 25,000 Turks were captured, including the Said Pasha. Another engagement was at Lagada. Some of the bloodiest battles of the period were those between the former allies, when the Greeks refused to surrender to the Bulgarians any of the territory which they had won. At Lacana, Jumac, Kirkkillesch, Mr. Douros witnessed all the horrors of warfare, but of the dark side of the page he was loath to go into details. Books could be written of the engagements, and the devastations of the retreating Bulgarians includes all the ravages that have ever been conected with the worst side of armed strife. Fields and homes laid waste, the aged and the young left dead and a worse fate for the women. These were actual occurrences, especially towards the close of the struggle.

Mr. Douros stated that the Greeks had conducted themselves humanely and with the least possible ill effects to the country. They left but few signs of their passage behind them, and none that could be held up to them as a reproach.

The proprietor of the Boston said he was pleased to be back in Peterborough. He looks forward to a splendid future for his country, and although Greece suffered a considerable loss of life, the fighting power is strong to-day, and the present sentiment runs in the British strain "What we have, we'll hold."

BRODEUR WAS INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

Alleged Murderer Who Was Captured in Peterboro', Has Been Returned to Hampden County

DISTRICT ATTORNEY WANTED

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 5. — Alfred H. Brodeur, alias Blanchard, the alleged slayer of Mrs. Matilda Case, who was found murdered at her home, 53 Wilcox street, on the night of September 20, 1913, was brought to this city from Peterborough, Ontario, soon after eight o'clock last night. He was arrested last Thursday night in Peterborough. Capt John H. Boyle and Inspector Frank W. Quilty of the police department, who left the city last Friday morning, left Peterborough with their prisoner late on Monday afternoon. Brodeur was taken to held till morning, when he will be turned over to the authorities of Hampden county.

PARTIAL IDENTIFICATION

While walking on the streets of Peterborough he was observed by one of the officers of the Peterborough police force, who vaguely remembered the photograph on the circular. His flat nose led to his partial identification. The officer did not arrest him however, and it is quite possible that the prisoner could have made his escape had he left the city that day. His stay in the city proved to be his misfortune for that night he appealed to the police authorities for lodging. The officer who had seen him earlier in the day became more suspicious when he saw Brodeur at the station, and it was at his request that Brodeur's request for lodging was granted.

PRODUCED A MUSTACHE

While Brodeur was lying in the detention rooms the officers referred to their police files and eventually located the circular sent out for Brodeur's apprehension. They compared the description with that of the man whom they had under suspicion, and were impressed with the strong resemblance. Brodeur in the meantime had raised a mustache but this did not deceive the Peterborough officials from bringing him into the office and subjecting him to a rigid examination. Brodeur denied his identity at first but when confronted with undeniable evidence he broke down and admitted his identity. He told the officers of his arrest at Guelph, where he had been known as Arthur H. Birchwood.

WAS INDICTED

Brodeur was indicted in the Superior Court in December for the murder of Mrs. Case, and consequently it will not be necessary to give him a hearing in the police court. He will be turned over to the Hampden county authorities this morning. The fact that the office of district attorney is temporarily vacant will not permit an early report on the case. The local police, however, will make up their report and will place it in the hands of the district attorney appointed by the governor as soon as he qualifies for the office. It is quite certain that the case will come up at an early sitting of the superior court.

INFORMATION WANTED ABOUT THE DRY DOCK

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Would you kindly tell me if there is any truth in the statement which appeared in the local press that a drydock is to be built here? Mr. Burnham, I understand, says that it will be built, but you will remember that he made this same statement last year, which turned out to be nothing but wind. If such work is to be undertaken I wish you would make some definite statement as to when you would expect operations to begin, and about what time the job will be completed. Judging from past experiences of the promises made by our members, I am inclined to think that this work will be in the distant future, if we get it at all.

Thanking you in advance, Mr. Editor, for your space, I am yours very truly, J. M. FURBY.

Concession Street, East City.

Note.—It would be irreverent to refer our correspondent to the only possible source of knowledge of whom Mr. Burnham's promises of a drydock will be fulfilled or begin to be fulfilled.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT LAKEFIELD

Next Lord's day, Feb. 8th, Rev. Wilson A. Pugsley—Evangelist—will (D.V.) commence a fifteen-day series of revival services with the Baptist Church, Lakefield.

Mr. Pugsley has rendered efficient and successful service in both the pastorate and evangelistic effort, in Canada and the United States, and enjoys the confidence, good-will and endorsement of his brethren. He comes here, therefore, as a clean, safe man, whose efforts, it is hoped, will result in spiritual strength and uplift to all concerned. The success of his meetings of the last month is fairly well known. The crowds at Gilmour Memorial and at the union services in Selwyn, indicate great appreciation and interests on the part of the people. In both places many persons professed faith in Jesus.

CHANGE IN THE TEACHERS' CONTRACTS FULLY EXPLAINED

Do Not Have to Apply to Board of Education for Reinstatement at the End of Each Year

Since the Board of Education meeting on Tuesday evening last, there has been considerable discussion as to the exact effect the change in the contract approved of at the last meeting will have on the local Public School and Collegiate Institute teachers.

As a matter of fact under the new contract the teacher's privileges are neither restricted nor increased to any great extent. Instead, however, of having to apply for reinstatement at the end of each year, as formerly, they do not need to do so now. If they do not communicate with the Board when their term per contract has expired, it will be understood that they desire re-engagement for the ensuing year.

As under the old contract the teachers must give two months' notice if they wish to be released from their duties in connection with the local schools, but whereas formerly they could resign so as to leave at the end of August, March or June, now they can only leave at the end of December and August. Thus if they wish their term of service to terminate during the summer holidays, their resignation must be in the hands of the Board before the end of June.

This provision is included in the contract because the Board have found it almost impossible to secure teachers in the middle of a term, and because of the serious effect on the progress of the pupils when the teachers are changed in the middle of a term.

ANOTHER HULK HAS BEEN FOUND

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CLINTON, Ont., Feb. 6.— What is believed to be the hull of the John McGean, the big freighter that foundered during the big storm of last November, has been seen off Naftals Point a mile from the other one supposed to be that of the Carruthers. According to lake vessel-men, the heavy running sea may have raised them slightly. Expectations of more bodies being washed a sore by spring storms are held by lakeshore people, and preparations for a beach patrol through more sparsely settled lake front townships is being made.

The teachers of the local schools who took the physical culture course last spring, and who succeeded in qualifying in the following examinations, received to-day a grant of $15 from the government. Only those who took the course referred to received the grant, which is intended to reward them for the increased efficiency of their services.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—Tobacco interests have already commenced a strong lobby on both sides of th House gainst Andrew Broder's mea ure to prevent the manufacture, im portation and sale of cigarettes Canada. It is thought that the bi will be quietly side-tracked. Premie Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier hav both on previous occasions expresse their opposition to legislation of suc sweeping character as Broder pro poses.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

DEATH OF THOMAS CHADWICK A WELL KNOWN FOOTBALLER

Was One of the Founders of Blackburn Olympic---Like Father Like Son---Comment on Old Country Football

McCracken has been well advised in times past both by Mr. A. H. Thompson and Mrs. Herbert Broomfield to tender an apology for his refusal to play against England on February 15, 1908, except under his own terms, but all he has done is to apply for a reconsideration of his case. He took the initiative, he asked for relations of a happier character, and he concluded his letter thus: "I can assure you that this application is not prompted by any selfish motives in seeking to remove the obstacles which prevent me securing further international honours. The power is still left in your hands to pass me over in making your selection. But should you decide to place me once more in the position to represent my country in her international games, I can further assure you that nothing would give me greater pleasure. Trusting you will give this application for reinstatement your earnest and, I hope, favourable consideration, etc."

Now in these words McCracken does everything but say that he is sorry for the step he took in 1908. Without desiring that he should grovel in the mire the Irish association have required an apology. That they cannot get, and so McCracken cannot play. We understand that the last attempt has been made by his friends in Belfast to bring about a reconciliation. If there is any further step in the matter, McCracken must take the initiative. It is a most unfortunate impasse, which should have been ended three years ago.

The Death of T. Chadwick.

We regret to learn of the death on January 4 of Thomas Chadwick, of Blackburn at the age of 69. One of the founders of Blackburn Olympic, he was a member of the committee of that club, which first had the honour of taking the association cup into the provinces in 1883. As an enthusiast, nothing gave him such delight as the active interest that his sons took in the winter game. Albert and Edgar Chadwick made their names chiefly with the clubs of Liverpool, while Walter Chadwick is a very active referee on the exclusive list of the Football league.

The most famous member of the family, Edgar Chadwick, has remained at home in Blackburn, instead of fulfilling his duties as the football coach to the Dutch international team, owing to the long illness of his father, who last year had two devastating attacks of influenza, from the effects of which he never recovered his strength. Edgar Chadwick did not consider himself free to go abroad with his father in such a critical condition, but we believe that he will now return to Holland.

JOKES FROM LONDON TOWN.

Wedlock Understood.

After the match at Fullham.

Billie—"Fine game Coleman and Pearce played to-day."

Fitz—"Yes, Pearce played a lot better against the City to-day than when they last met."

Billie—"Well, don't forget he's got married since that game."

Fitz—"Quite true; but what difference does that make?"

Billie—"He understands 'wedlock' now. (Wedlock was the opposing centre half.)

Asked the Wrong Man.

In the Woolwich v. Glossop match when everyone was waiting for the referee to blow his whistle to restart play after half time, the official in charge looked at his watch and then ran to one of the linesmen and borrowed the latter's watch. A spectator in the crowd shouted: "Now, then, Benson, he wants one of your chronometers."

Chilly December.

A biting cross wind blew right across the football pitch, and the outside left was but a spectator. His arms and legs were blue with the cold.

A small boy in the crowd noting this shouted out: "I say, mate, you look like a frozen iceberg."

"Go hon," was the reply. "Ever seen one boiling hot?"

The Ref's Excuse.

The referee of a match played on Hackney Marshes possessed but one arm. In the second half a dispute arose on the offside question. In the argument an onlooker, undoubtedly Irish, shouted sympathetically: "Look ye here, bhoys, how can you expect the poor ref. to see everything with only one arrum."

"Happy Returns."

Just as the train was leaving Paddington for Park Royal a Watford supporter entered a compartment laden with followers of the Rangers.

He was soon the object of a lot of good-natured chaff. But the limit was reached at a station en route, where an advertisement board displayed the letters S.P.Q.R.

"See that S.P.Q.R.?" said a follower of the Rangers to the Watford supporter. "Do you know what that means? Why, 'Smart Players Queen's Park Rangers.'"

"Oh," replied the Watford man, "I was wondering if it means 'Southern Points Quietly Required.'"

Corrected.

It doesn't do to be too vague in criticising players, especially when in a crowd, as the remark, however neatly turned, is apt to be misunderstood. A standite at Stamford Bridge found this out. Turning to a friend he said, with an air of superior knowledge: "Middleboe is quite a finished player."

"You don't know what you are talking about," came a hoarse and indignant voice from the seat behind. Middleboe is only beginning!"

The Blind School.

It was at an F.A. cup match in North London; two of the opposing team wore spectacles. As soon as the home team had taken the lead a youthful spectator was heard to say, "Just like playing a blind school, ain't it?"

A Soldier, Too.

In the Cavalry cup tie between the Queen's Bays and Fifth Dragoon Guards, the "Queen's" centre-forward received the ball in midfield, but commenced to draw the defence.

His outside right was quite unmarked, and, noticing this, an excited supporter offered advice:

"Out to the right," he yelled. "Out to the right, quick." All oblivious of this the centre forward promptly banged the ball to the outside left, much to the digust of "Tommy" who caused much amusement by remarking: "Well, I'm hanged, here's a soldier don't know 'is right from 'is left."

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The draw for the third round of the cup series, to be played February 21, is as follows:

Aston Villa v. West Bromwich,
Millwall v. Sheffield United.
Wolverhampton or Sheffield Wednesday v. Brighton.
Sunderland v. Preston.
Birmingham v. Queen's Park.
Blackburn v. Manchester City.
West Ham. v. Liverpool
Burnley v Bolton.

MR. HOLLY SHEPARD COPPED THE POOL

Holly Shepard was inveigled into a pool on Wednesday night's hockey game, and under similar circumstances might be willing to try it again. A number of the boys about town made up the pool and while it was still open for a few extras one of them stumbled into Mr. Shepard.

"You'd better get in on this Mr. Shepard," he said, and very nicely explained the chances of copping the ot. Mr. Shepard came across and proceeded to the Belmont Minstrel practice where the strenuosities of rehearsal wiped out all thoughts of hockey teams and pools.

A denouncement of course, was that Mr. Shepard romped home a winner with the field strung out behind him. Sixteen dollars and a half was fair picking, especially when you did not know what you had dipped into it. But there it was.

"There should be enough for a new pair of spats out of that" said Mr. Shepard. "I wan to say that I appreciate getting in on this, and when you have another little hockey game, I want to be included in your list.

EXPECT FEW CHANGES IN THE U. S. FOOTBALL RULES

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Once again the members of the intercollegiate football rules committee have gathered in this city to do a little tinkering with the laws that govern the great American college sport. At this meeting, which will continue over to-morrow, the playing rules will come up for their annual revision, although the indications are that whatever changes are made will be of a minor nature. The most important matter to be discussed and acted upon is the proposal to number the players. This plan was introduced at the meeting last year, but was dismissed without serious consideration at that time, the sentiment being then expressed that it was a matter for each college to determine for itself and was not a subject that could properly be included in the playing rules. It is believed now that the proposition of numbering the players will be adopted. The proposition is regarded as especially reasonable in that it would facilitate the following of open plays. It is at present very difficult to distinguish the players, and such a change would tend toward a decided improvement, making it easier both for the officials and the spectators. In addition to this proposition it is regarded as likely that the meeting will take favourable action on the proposal for the reinstatement of the field judge. The need of such an official has been felt ever since he was done away with several years ago. His reinstatement would mean less work for the other officials, who now have more to watch with the present complicated tactics than they can very well attend to.

Midnight Sons Beat R. U. Wells

Salome Graham's Aggregation Won Terrific Game by a Score of 10 to 1

Of all the sad words of tongue and pen,
The saddest are: "Only one for us and they got ten."
—Razor Blade Riley, poet laureate of the R. U. Wells.

In one of the most brilliant exhibitions of hockey ever seen at Brock Street rink, the Midnight Sons were returned winners over their "hated rivals," the R. U. Well Club, last night by 10 counters to 1. Full details of the disaster are not available, and until the wreckage is cleared away it will be impossible to give all the facts. The crash when the two teams met could be heard for miles, and there was great alarm in Browntown, Fraserville and other suburban points until telephone inquiries showed just what the trouble was.

The Midnight Sons are a wonderful team. Led by Snookey-ookum Hamblin, they went down the line faster than a slump in C.P.R. and Buster Leach had to follow the players around with a water sprinkler to extinguish their burning skates when their great speed set fire to the runners. The R. U. Wells died game, and it was no disgrace to get beaten by such a clever organization of puck-chasers. Shrimp Outram in goal for the Midnight Sons, made more stops than a Jackson Park car. Big Head Ballard checked like a pile driver, and Wizard Fair's rushes (mostly on his hands and knees) were a feature. Monster Kenneally had several "blow-outs," but worked on the third speed all right, and as for Hambin—he is the guy who made the key for hockey. There was consternation in the ranks of the Sons at half time when a wire—wire meaning telegram— was received from Jas. Murphy, manager of the Ontario Professionals, offering him a berth for the balance of the season. Snookey-ookums declined the offer amid a wild demonstration. On the wings, Bird Seed Bartley drafted from the Loon Lake team, and Spot Ball Manion, the Pearl of Perth, traveled so fast that they met themselves coming back.

For the R. U. Wells, Butcher Grady played an almost perfect game, failing to miss only one shot. Curly LeBarr and Razor Blade Riley acted as guides to the nets, showing the Sons just how to get through. Slocum Murray could not be stopped, although he had to be sewed up several times. Clipper Donoghue lived up to his name and clipped the fingers and toes off several of the Sons. Tutti Frutti Levasseur and Claw Hammer Lazure starred, or saw stars along the boards.

"Hot Dog" Denison was a very diplomatic referee and as a result of his Jimmy Plush tactics will probably be secured for the next game. He showed good head work at all times.

The teams were:

Midnight Sons.

Goal—Shrimp Outram.
Right Defence—Big Head Ballard.
Left Defence—Wizard Fair.
Rover—Monster Keneally.
Centre—Snookey-ookum Hamblin.
Right Wing—Bird Seed Bartley.
Left Wing—Spot Ball Manion.
Mascot—Hates Work Buster Leach.
Goal Umpire—Race Horse Geary.
Timekeeper—Noisy Sullivan.
Water-boy and Trainer—Limburger Hans Loescher.
Referee—Hot Dog Denison.
Manager—Salome Graham.

R. U. Wells.

Goal—Butcher Grady.
Right Defence—Curly Lebarr (Captain.)
Left Defence—Razor Blade Riley.
Rover—Slocum Murray.
Centre—Clipper Donoguhue.
Right Wing— Tutti Fruitti Levasseur.
Left Wing—Claw Hammer Lazure.
Trainer—Big Head Ernie Parker.
Manager — Auto Driver Bruce Blanchard.
Mascot—Farmer Franks.

After the game the two teams and a number of invited guests fraternized around the festive board in Coleman's banquet hall and a very leasant hour was spent. Slocum Murray presided at the piano and Limberger Hans Loeschers singing of "I Didn't Want To Do It" was a feature. The gathering broke up with three cheers for the two clubs and the singing of the National Anthem.

Hockey--That's All

The intermediates will practice at Brock Street rink to-night in preparation for the next round game. The following are expected out: Dwyer, Flowers, Bond, Denison, Halpin, Park, Bradshaw, Kelly, Rose, Kenneally and Mansfield.

KINGSTON SURPRISED BELLEVILLE

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 6. — Kingston Frontenacs last night defeated Belleville O.H.A. juniors here by a score of 3 to 1 in the presence of nearly two thousand spectators. At half-time the score stood 2 to 0 in favour of the Frontenacs. After 45 minutes of play Belleville scored their only goal. This game give Frontenacs these two districts. A special train from Kingston brought up four hundred fans. The teams:

Referee—A. Kinder, Preston.

BANTAMS TO FIGHT FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The bantamweight championship of Europe is to be decided at Cardiff to-morrow night, when Charley Ledoux, the French bantamweight, and Billy Beynon, of Port Talbot, engage in a return bout of 20 gounds. The winner of the contest will receive a $2,000 purse in addition to the championship title.

BASEBALL

Hamilton Spectator—The Hamilton ball club is not the only Canadian League club without a manager. Brantford is in the same company as the local club, but through somewhat different conditions. Some time ago President Nelson, of the Dykeville club, made a trade with London for Rube Deneau, with the idea of making Rube manager at Brantford. This looked good enough to all concerned with the exception of the London directors, who, at the last moment, decided that the Reuben would have to make a neat little apology to the London directors before he could go to Brantford. Rube had a row with the Cockney owners last fall and said some rather impolite things about them, hence the desire to see him humble himself before he can shake the dust of London this spring for Brantford. And in demanding an apology, it seems as if the London owners are making themselves, as well as all concerned, look rather silly. They are through with Deneau, while Brantford wants him, and yet the business of the Brantford club and, naturally, to some extent, of the league, is being held up because a half a dozen business men want an apology. It looks rather childish from this distance.

Erie Despatch — Erie fans will not only have an opportunity to see a new lot of league teams playing here this season, but some of the squads from the big circuits will cavort at Perry Field before the get-away league bells clang in May. Manager Smith is now trying to bing the Giants, Pirates, Athletics, Clevelands and other outfits for pre-season battles with the Yankees.

Owner McNeil is going to unload a whole lot of his baseball worries on the broad and muscular shoulders of Heinie Smith, the newly chosen pilot of the Erie club in the Canadian League. Smith eats work as an Italian swallows "spaget," and as he is drawing down a fancy salary, he won't dodge around in the dark places when he sees real labour skating his way.

For some several years Smith has been garnishing the "hot and dusty" as some exponent of "H20" term the ball plot, with his presence, and his experience isn't going to be a bad bet when it comes to hauling to his banner youthful players with aspirations towards the big circuits.

"The ethereal blue is the limit. Do an Atwood stunt and scrape down a few stars in the Erie Yankee uniform," quoth the Canuck owner of the local outfit to his man Friday Dollars, hard and cold bucks, whether bearing the head of liberty or the visage of King George, will be spread broadcast by the new owner in getting players through Smith. Erie is going to have a real company of tourists, O'Neil says, and it's up to him.

While the bugs of Erie are safe in a baseball berth for the coming hot spell, those of Youngstown, Canton, Akron, and other towns of the defunct Interstate will bask in the radiance of amateur and semi-pro exhibitions. There isn't a thing in sight to cheer up their lives and while it has been a hard winter, it is going to be a tougher summer. Well, the tickers will tick in the suds foundries and while the fans polish the mahogany they can watch the runs being chalked up on the score boards. Down with King Alcohol!

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Manager Reisling notified President Stevely of the London club this morning that he was after two good outfielders and a third baseman and expected to have them signed up in a few days. The letter did not give any names or any intimation as to who the players are, but it is believed their contracts will arrive at the London ball club headquarters in a day or two.

Manager Reisling is making a big effort to get a third baseman that will burn up the league. He believes that the difficult corner is one of the most important positions on the diamond, and that if the man covering it is weak the whole team is weakened, and that the London club suffered in this respect. Harry Meyers was going good for awhile, but for the greater part of the time he was playing with injuries that would have kept him out of the game had there been anybody to take his place. Jack Smith, who finished the season with London at third, is a little too inexperienced for Class B ball, although he will be given every opportunity to make good this season.

With a good third baseman and shortstop, London will have a pretty nice team in the Canadian league this coming season. The pitching staff will be as good as the best and Manager Reisling has landed one catcher already, that he says will fill the bill nicely. Louis Bierbauer looks good enough for his old-time position, while Linneborn can also be counted on for second base. The team will have an entirely new outfield. Manager Reisling expects to have one of the best bunch of gardeners in the league, and he is scouring the country for good men. In Rychner he believes he has a youngster that will make good, but he will have three or four other youngsters trying out for the positions.

No word has been received from "Rube" Deneau yet in regard to signing a London contract for this season. Until Deneau is heard from it is not likely the Brantford trade will be pulled off. The matter practically rests with 'Rube' at the present time.

GAMES IN THE CHURCH LEAGUE

In the Junior Church League last night, the Knox Church team won their second victory of the week by defeating All Saints 4 to 0. In the senior section at Brock Street rink the St. Paul's team beat All Saints 5 to 1, and St. Andrew's won from McMurary Street by 2 goals to 1.

And therefore I shall keep it clean and fair,

To drugs or drink whichever spread a snare,
Yet shall I always leap to do or dare
In service of mankind in any role.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 6.—J. Philip Morris, sixteen, an office boy, went home from work last night with a week's wage of $30 in his pocket. He is perfectly willing to agree with his employers that he is the highest paid office boy in the country.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT

A painful accident befell the little three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Howe, of Donald, a few days ago, when the little tot was said to have been standing on a small box which tipped backwards while the child fell forward, her tongue catching on a sharp nail that was in the edge of the box, cutting it very severely. A Haliburton doctor was telephoned for and arrived in a short time, to the great relief of the little sufferer. We understand the little one is doing nicely.—Minden Echo.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH FOR MR. HARVEY

"The Breed of the Treshams" a Wonderful Production

Martin Harvey scored a second triumph at the Grand last night when he gave a most masterly and artistic presentation of John Rutherford's powerful play of the days of Cromwell, "The Breed of the Treshams." Unfortunately but a small audience saw the wonderful production, the meagre attendance once more demonstrating the inability of Peterborough play-goers to distinguish the good from the bad, and the valuable from the cheap. Small however as was the crowd, the delightful acting of Mr. Harvey and his associates aroused great enthusiasm, and there were half a dozen curtain calls at the end of each act and after the finale, the curtain had to be raised and lowered eight times, the audience refusing to leave until Mr. Harvey had addressed them.
Being human, the great actor could not refrain from referring to the size of the audience. "It is a pleasure to appear before such an appreciative audience," he remarked. "You are evidently making up in enthusiasm what you lack in numbers."
As Reresby "the rat," the swashbuckling, swaggering, reckless n'er do well, who bravely submits to torture and suffering for the sake of the girl who recalls to him his Margaret of old, Mr. Harvey gave a wonderful demonstration of his skill. It was a big part full of possibilities and Mr. Harvey made it all splendidly real. His portrayal of weakness and pain after the torturng scene was a splendid exhibiton of his ability and the whole presentation was marked by a superb ability. The supporting company was worthy of such a star. Miss De Silva, the the boy "Batty," gave a splendid interpretation. Chas. Glenney was capital as the Hon. Clement Hungerfold. Eugene Welsley was a manly and likeable "Comet Tresham," and the other roles were in excellent hands.
The settings and costumes were lavish, and the entire production a dramatic gem of the first water.

HOGS FED ON REFUSE FROM THE HOSPITAL

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ONT., Feb. 6.—A big sensational will be sprung at the meeting of the Board of Health this evening as the result of the discovery that thousands of dollars worth of hogs which died in this vicinity in the past few weeks, have been fed on garbage thrown out from the city hospitals and restaurants. Many other animals fed on similar stuff have been killed and sold to the citizens as good meat. The citizens are up in arms over the discovery.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCY.

Messrs. Patterson and Hogg are establishing an Employment Agency and Messenger Service. The service will open up to-morrow at 174 1-2 Charlotte Street, opposite the White House.
This agency will be called the Dominion Employment Bureau, and will fill a want that has been apparent in Peterborough for some time.

How society takes a thing is more important to some people than the thing itself.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Olive Morgan of Niagara-on-the Lake is the guest of Miss Robinson, Weller Street.
Mr. E. H. O. Hall, while in Toronto, availed himself of the opportunity to hear the Mendelssohn choir.
Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Gliddor, of the Conservatory of Music, have returned from Toronto, after attending the Mendelssohn Choir concerts.
Mr. James Thompson, of Brantford, was a guest at the Oriental yesterday, and also accompanied Miss Nina P. Reynolds and party to "The Breed of the Treshams" (Mr. Martin Harvey's company) at the Grand.

"Faith And Love" The Subject

Th revival meetings previously announced began in Bethany Tabernacle last night with Rev. L. J. Long of Toronto as the speaker.
Mr. Long gave a very forceful and inspiring address, dwelling at length upon the subject of 'Faith and Love.' In his introductory remarks he paid a glowing tribute to Evangelist Compton, who is expected in the Tabernacle next Monday night. He said he considered Mr. Compton one of the greatest living evangelists, and that Peterborough had been highly favoured in securing his valuable services for two weeks. The service will begin to-night at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

NARROW ESCAPES FROM LOSS OF LIFE IN FIRE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Nearly a dozen women, including two invalids, were carried screaming down the fire escapes by policemen and firemen through blinding clouds of smoke, when a fire broke out early to-day in the five storey Columbus Avenue apartment house. Nobody was seriously hurt.

HORSE RACING ON THE COAST

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 7. — The association of California Agricultural District Fairs held a meeting at the Palace Hotel to-day to arrange a programme of dates for fairs and race meetings during the coming season. The track owners and fair officials predict a banner year for harness racing on the Pacific Coast, their prediction being based on the expectation that many of the big stables in the East and in Canada will be extracted here in anticipation of the big race meetings to be held in connection with the Panama exposition.

SLAYER TO DIE ON THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TRENTON, N.J., Feb. —The week beginning to-morrow has been fixed as the time for the electrocution in the State Prison here of Antonio Fiore, the Newark murderer. Fiore was found guilty April 24th, last, of having influenced his sister-in-law, Mrs. Madalene Ciccone, to administer rat poison to her husband. Tried for murder, she admitted having given the poison, but blamed Fiore. At Fiore's trial she swore he ordered her to kill her husband. Her sentence to death was then commuted to life imprisonment.

Fashion Men Decree Masculine Modes for 1914 at Convention.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The International Asociation of Custom Outters have issued a decree that the frock coat is out of fashion and must go.

The double-breasted habiliment of the undertaker, the country minister and the confidence man will be put in chests. Hereafter according to the Association, the ceremonial dress of the daylight hours will be the cutaway, or morning coat.

Incidentally, it is decreed that men appearing in evening dress with out at least an inch-wide trouser braid are really not quite proper. They might as well appear in night shirts, say, the cutters.

It is also rumoured that slit trousers will be de rigueur for the spring of 1914. Silk and wool mixed suiting will be another of the spring innovations.

Indecency In Dress And In The Dance

BY SYLVANUS STALL, D.D.

At no previous time in the history of this country has such a stress been put upon the virtue of our young men and young women as to-day. The split skirt and X-ray garments of the women make our city streets and village thoroughfares a menace to every man who would keep his mind free from evil suggestions, and when a man is brought in close quarters alone with a woman thus clad, every suggestion made by her presence constitutes nothing short of a pleading appeal upon her part to the very worst that is in him. The time has come when the lawmakers should demand reform by those who fix the fashions and determine the styles and launch them upon a helpless public in a manner that makes it almost impossible for a decent and self respecting woman to purchase in the ready-made departments of an ordinary department store a garment that does not compel her to submit to the disgraceful and debasing influences of fashions which, personally, she thoroughly detests. Indeed, we have come upon the time when a woman is practically compelled either to make her own clothing or to have it specially made in order to avoid the dictates of Parisian prostitutes.

The indecency of the modern dance is such as to make it almost impossible for one to write of it without offending the taste of even the most liberal. To say that the dance to-day is immodest is not to tell one-tenth of the truth. It is indecent! Every movement and posture, with contacts and intertwinings constitute the basest appeal to the sexual propensities of both male and female. It is impossible to understand how decent and self-respecting parents can permit their sons and daughters to be subjected to temptations that are simply irresistible, and that are sending thousands of young men and women every night in the week to not only social and moral, but to physical and eternal ruin as well. The doctor's offices are showing an increased number of wrecks of young men and young women who ought to be physically at their best. The disappearance of formerly respectable young women, and even young girls, under clouds of mystery, some of whom never return to their homes alive, is steadily increasing. The divorce courts are more and more crowded, and the highway of life is being strewn with a wreckage to-day such as the past has never known. It is the duty of every young man and young woman, of every father and mother, of every patriot and philanthropist to array themselves in a united and irresistible influence, to turn back the devastating tide of this evil.

THE NEW SESSION OF THE PARLIAMENT OF GREAT BRITAIN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The session of parliament, which will begin on Monday is expected to have a notable place in British history. Seldom has the political situation been more complicated or the outcome more uncertain. Before the great controversies are reached over the Home Rule Bill and the Welsh Disestablishment Bill, there is the possibility of a grave risis in the Liberal party over the navy estimates. There has been a rapid growth in the party in favour of a policy of reduction, and serious differences of opinion in regards to the question are said to exist in the Cabinet itself. This is the situation which will first have to be faced by the Government after the preliminaries are over in the House of Commons.

In addition Premier Asquith is credited with an intention to present a scheme for the reform of the House of Lords in the shap of a series of resolutions which he will ask the House of Commons to pass and afterward he will found a bill upon them. The plan is to abolish the hereditary principle altogether, throwing the upper house open to popular election, the same as the Commons, but with the voting qualifications based upon a different principle. The House of Lords will, of course, reject the scheme, which, with Chancellor Lloyd-George's land reform proposals, will be the main issue at the next general election.

The Police Woman Is Again Discussed

Editor Examiner:

One can hardly add much to the forceful, practical arguments of the Women's Council in favour of a police woman for this City. And yet the matter seems so fundamentally and vitally important, that I feel I must add a word, too, with the kind permission of the Editor of the Examiner.

It is admitted by both the Women's Council and the Police Commission, that deplorable moral conditions exist in the City. But to better these conditions the Police Commissioners have, as we all know, suggested that the ladies of the City should build a nice House of Refuge for the victims of the immoral proceedings! Do these learned and experienced gentlemen see nothing incongruous, not to say humourous, in this their only suggestion, it would seem? Women to provide Houses of Refuge for those whom men have ruined and placed outside the social scale. This would no doubt permit the sinner to go on sinning more comfortably by relieving him of any material responsibility for his crime! But the proposition, not only humourous, is also uneconomic and non-ethical! It savours indeed of the mediaeval! And yet more than four hundred years B.C. even, there lived a man who could have given pointers in reform methods to our Police Commissioners. This man's methods indeed, were in line with all that modern science would suggest; so may I recall the main facts, in the hope that our Police Commissioners' minds are only hermetically sealed to suggestions coming from women!

Scene—The devasted City of Jerusalem.

Personae— A demoralized, feeble remnant of the citizens, and Nehemiah the reformer, or would-be reformer, rather.

Nehemiah, one of the captive Jews at the Court of Artaxerxes hears of the sad state of Jerusalem, and of the remnant of the Jewish people. To make sure that the situation is what he hears it is, he gathers facts from several sources (as the members of the Women's Council have done!) As these are convincing, he gains permission from King Artaxerxes to visit his own city, with a view to doing something for it and its degenerate citizens. Then "sit down" to consider the cause of the devastation of the city and the demoralization of the people. He finds the root cause, where in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it generally is found—and that is in the people themselves. "We," the Jews' Nehemiah says, "have sinned and disobeyed Thy commandments," etc.

His third step therefore, was to go to the people and inspire them with faith in themselves, in their power to undertake and accomplish "a great work" in spite of their fallen condition! For Nehemiah evidently believed in the regenerative power of work. So, no proposition here for Houses of Refuge to which those who had sinned and those who had been sinned against, might slink awsp, branded as failures, and as unfit to take any further part in the work of the world! Quite the reverse, indeed!

And with what result? we ask. Just the results that Nehemiah set out to, and believed he could accomplish! And this in spite of the fearful odds, "For the city was large and great and the people were few therein." And there were those who persistently mocked and scoffed and intrigued so that the work might not be accomplished. And yet the "feeble people" were inspired and the great walls of the city of Jerusalem were rebuilt "in fifty and two days!".

Let us not, therefore, take council of those who would say to our fallen and feeble man or women, our boy or girl of to-day, "Hie thee to a House of Refuge. But rather of those who would go among these people to speak the inspiring gospel of Faith and Work!

California Has Banner Year — General Outlook Promising.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—E. O. McCormick, Vice-President of the Southern Pacific Railway, in an interview today at The Chicago Club, stated:

"I recently spent several days in the Orange Groves of Southern California. Growers estimate this season's shipments will amount to at least 40,000 cars of oranges. Weather conditions have been ideal and the fruit has matured perfectly. In fact, I have never tasted better oranges.

"Arrangements have been completed by the Railroads to move the oranges in Refrigerator Cars, which will insure the delivery of ripe fruit in perfect condition.

"The recent rainfalls on the Pacific Slope, while unusually heavy, have been of immense benefit to orchards and agriculture in general. At no period in my knowledge of California has the outlook been so favourable for good crops and prosperous conditions for employer and employee."

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

"Why, you old philosopher!" cried the girl, laughing and squeezing his big shoulders. "You're awfully clever, really." Which remark brought a confused but pleased blush to Bissell's hard face that had become wonderfully soft and tender during this hour with his daughter.

"Now, see here," went on the girl severely, "I think there's something back of all this talk about marriage. What is it?"

Bissell looked at her, startled, not having expected to encounter feminine intuition.

"Nothin', only I wish you could marry somebody that would look out fer you the way I mentioned. Then I could die happy, though I don't expect to be on that list fer a long while."

"Anybody in mind?" asked Julie banteringly.

"Well, not exactly," hesitated her father, with another sharp glance. "But I allow I could dig up one if I tried very hard."

"Go ahead and try."

"Well, now there's Billy Speaker over on the Circle Arrow, as gentle a man for a blond as I ever see."

"I've only met him twice in my life," remarked the girl. "Try again."

"There's Red Tarken, foreman on the M Square. He'd be good to yuh I know, and he's a hum-dinger about cows."

"I am glad he has one qualification aside from his red hair," put in Julie seriously. "However, I am afraid that as a husband Red would be about as steady as a bronco saddled for the first time after the winter feeding. He'd better have free range as long as he lives. Once more, father."

"Well, see here, Julie, it seems to me you could do a lot worse than take our own Mike Stelton. I've never thought of it much before, but tonight it sort of occurred to me an'—"

Juliet Bissell broke into an uncontrollable fit of laughter, at which her father fixed her with a regard as wondering as it was hurt. His cherished inspiration so tactfully approached had burst like a soap-bubble under the gale of Juliet's merriment.

"Bud was right, after all," said the girl, after her nervous outbreak. "He told me Mike had some silly hope or other, and I believe Stelton has given you absent treatment until you have made this suggestion. Father, he's just as preposterous as the others."

"I don't agree with you," contended Bissell stubbornly. "Mike is faithful, and has been for years. He knows the ins and outs of the business, and is willing to take the hard knocks that I'm getting tired of. Then there's another thing. I could be half-blind an' still see what Mike has been wanting these last five years."

Juliet suddenly rose to her feet, all the laughter gone from her eyes and her heart. With a feeling of frightened helplessness she realized that her father was serious.

"Are you taking Mike's part against me?" she asked calmly.

"Well, I still don't see why you couldn't marry him."

"You've forgotten the mush, father, but that isn't all. There's something different about Mike lately, something I have never noticed before. His eye seems shifty; he avoids all the family. If I didn't know him so well, I should think he was a criminal. Leaving out the fact that I don't love him, and that the very thought of his ever touching me makes me shudder, this distrust of him would be enough to block any such arrangements. Why"—and her lip curled scornfully—"I would marry Bud Larkin a hundred times rather than Mike Stelton once."

"What!"

Bissell rose to his feet with the quiet, amazed exclamation. He could hardly credit his ears.

"Marry that dirty sheepman?" he continued in a tense, even voice. "I'd like to know what put that crazy notion in yore head. Don't tell me you are in love with that dude."

"No, I am not," answered the girl just as evenly, "but I may as well tell you frankly, that he is the only man within a radius of three hundred miles who has certain things I must have in a husband. I'm sorry if I displease you, father!" she cried, going to him affectionately, "but I could never love any one not of our class."

That diplomatic "our" did not deceive Bissell. For the first time he saw that the greatest treasure of his whole life had grown beyond him; that there were needs and ideals in her existence of which he had but the faintest inkling, and that in her way she was as much of a "dude" as the man she had mentioned.

He was encountering the seemingly cruel fate of parents who glorify their children by their own immolation, and who watch those same children pass up and out of their humble range of vision and understanding nevermore to return. Henceforth he could never see his daughter without feeling his own lack of polish.

Such a moment of realisation is bitter on both sides, but especially for the one who has given all and can receive less in return than he had before the giving. The iron of this bitterness entered into Beef Bissell's soul as he stood there, silent, on the low, rickety verandah under the starlight of the plains.

With the queer vagary of a mind at great tension, his senses became particularly acute for a single moment. He saw the silver-pierced vault of the sky, smelled the fragrance of the plains borne on the gentle wind, and heard the rustle of the dappled cottonwoods and the howling of the distant coyotes.

Then he came back to the reality of the moment, and exhibited the simple greatness that had always been his in dealings with his daughter. He slipped his heavy arm across her shoulders and drew her to him.

"Never mind, Prairie Bell," he said gently. "You know best in everything. Do as your heart dictates." He sighed and added: "I wish I was your mother to-night."

CHAPTER VIII.

FOR REVENGE.

Breakfast next morning at the Bar T ranch was disturbed by the arrival of a cowboy on a lathering, wicked-eyed pony who announced to Stelton that Bud Larkin and his sheep had crossed over into the range. What then occurred is already known, and after Bissell had returned from his final parley with Larkin, he retired sullenly into himself to rage silently.

In his perturbed state of mind, the sheepman's double-edged remark about clearing out had had but one meaning, and he took it for granted that Larkin had been awed or frightened into the better part of valor. This was a partial relief, but he foresaw that although this danger to his cattle was averted, it was merely the first of many such struggles that he might expect.

Human desires, particularly those of great urgency, are of such domination that they take little thought for anything but themselves, except in persons of particularly adroit mind. It was Stelton's misfortune, therefore, to embark on an ill-timed conversation with his chief.

The foreman for ten years had secretly adored Juliet Bissell with all the intensity of a soul made single of purpose by the vast, brooding immensity of his surroundings. So long as he might be near her, serving her in many little ways, he had been, in a manner, content with the situation.

But the sudden appearance of Larkin and the enthusiastic renewal of a former intimacy had spurred Stelton to seek some sort of a definite understanding. Bissell's retirement to the verandah after the noonday meal was shortly followed by Stenton's appearance there, timorous and abashed.

The interview had been short and not very satisfactory. The cowman, remembering with considerable pain the conversation with his daughter, told his employee frankly that he had better give up any such ideas as evidently possessed him. Stelton, who had with some right formerly felt he might count on the favourable attitude of his chief, was astounded, and took the venom of the curt refusal to heart.

Retiring without betraying his emotion, he had resolved to speak to the girl herself, and that same afternoon asked permission to accompany her on her daily ride across the prairies, a thing not unusual with him.

Juliet, although she wished to be alone, consented, and at four o'clock they set out, unobserved by Bissell.

It was not until they had turned their horses homeward that Stelton spoke, almost tongue-tied by the emotions that rent him, alternate waves of fear and hope.

"Miss Julie," he began, "I allow I've known you a long while."

"Yes, Mike, you have."

"An' I allow that I would be plumb miserable if you ever went away from here again."

"Thank you, Mike; I should miss you, too," replied the girl civilly, growing uneasy at the unusual trend of the man's speech, halting and indefinite though it was.

"Miss Julie, I ain't no hand at fine talk, but I want to ask yuh if you will marry me? I've thought about it a lot, an' though I ain't noways good enough fer yuh, I'd try to make yuh happy."

Juliet, taken aback by the suddenness of this declaration, particularly after her talk with her father, remained silent.

"Take yore time, Miss Julie," pleaded Stelton, riding closer to her. "I ain't in no hurry."

"I can't tell you how much I appreciate what you've said, Mike," she replied slowly. "I've always liked you and I always will, but I don't love you, and I would sooner tell you now than keep you in suspense. I can't marry you."

Stelton bit his lip and his dark face grew even blacker with rage at the futility of his position. With anyone other than Juliet Bissell, perhaps, he realized that insistent pressure of his suit might have favourable results. But this cool, calm girl offered no opportunity for argument or hope.

"Mebbe if yuh waited a bit, yuh might think different about it," he ventured nevertheless. She shook her head.

"No, Mike, I wouldn't. I am sure. If you care for me you will never mention this again. And for my part, I shall always remember what you have said to me to-day. It is a sweet thing for a girl to know that a man loves her."

Such gracious refusals are effective with most men, both because they succeed in closing a tender subject and at the same time leave an unwounded pride. But Stelton was not the ordinary type of lover.

Repressed emotions in somber minds feed and grow fat upon their own substance, and it was inconceivable that Stelton's genuine though distorted love, an abnormal product of ten long years, should be dismissed thus with a few words.

"Why won't you marry me?" he demanded, looking angrily into her level, brown eyes.

"I have told you I did not love you. That is the reason and the best reason in the world. Now I ask you to drop the subject."

"Love somebody else, I suppose," he sneered, baring his teeth in a fatal attempt at an ugly smile.

"If I do, it is none of your business," she replied, her eyes beginning to blaze.

"That dude sheepman, I allow. He's a gilt-edged vanderpoop, he is! But I'd hate to be in his boots, if you want to know it."

"Look here, Mike Stelton," and Juliet drew her horse abruptly to a stop, "either you say nothing more on this subject or I shall tell my father what you have done this afternoon when we reach home."

Instantly the man saw he had gone too far, and, with a quickness born of hatred, immediately changed his front.

"I was only thinkin' of protectin' you," he muttered, "and I'm sorry I was ornery about things. That feller Larkin is a bad lot, that's all. He wouldn't be out here if he wasn't."

Perhaps it was that Juliet had given a greater place to Larkin in her thoughts than she realised; perhaps his eloquent defence of wool-growing had not been sufficient explanation for his unheralded appearance on the range. Whatever the reason, the girl rose to the bait like a trout when the ice has left the rivers.

"What do you mean by that?" she demanded.

"You remember that feller Caldwell that rode in late to supper the night Larkin come?"

"Yes."

"Well, I heard him blackmail Larkin for five hundred dollars back by the canal fence, an' Larkin knew what he had to do as soon as Caldwell showed up. Didn't yuh see him turn yaller at the table?"

As a matter of fact Larkin's perturbation at that time had been puzzling and inexplicable to Juliet. Also the disappearance of the two men immediately after supper had mystified her. But without admitting this to Stelton she asked:

"What was it all about?"

"I don't know exactly. Miss Julie, but it worked in somethin' he done back in Chicago a year or so ago. From what I heard 'em say, Larkin just dodged the calaboose. Now there ain't no disgrace in that—that's really credit—but that don't clear him of the crime noways. Why, I even heard 'em talk about two thousand dollars that Larkin give this Caldwell a couple of years back."

"How did you learn all this?" she asked.

"I was a goin' back to the corral for a rope I left hangin' on a post there, an' I heard 'em talkin'."

"And you listened, I suppose," remarked Julie contemptuously.

"Mebbe I did," he retorted, stung by her tone. "But you can be thankful for it. I'd be plenty mad if you throw'd yourself away on a man like-a-that. A hoss that'll kill one puncher'll kill another. Same with a man."

"What are you saying, Mike?" cried the girl, frightened out of her attitude of aloof reserve. "Kill a man! He's never killed a man, has he?"

"He didn't say so in so many words, no ma'am, but that talk o' their'n was mighty suspicious."

Unwittingly Stelton had struck his hardest blow. To him, as to other rough and ready men in the West, life was a turbulent existence conducted with as few hasty funerals as was absolutely necessary. But in the girl who had absorbed the finer feelings of a civilised community, the horror of murder was deep-rooted.

She knew that to a man in Larkin's former position the slightest divergence from the well-defined tenets of right and wrong was inexcusable. Crime, she knew, was a result of poverty, necessity, self-defence or lack of control, and she also knew that Bud Larkin had never been called upon to fall back on any of these. How much of truth, therefore, was there in Stelton's innuendoes?

"Would you swear on the Bible that you overheard what you have told me?" she asked suddenly.

"Yes, ma'am, I shore would," Stelton answered with solemn conviction.

There was no question now in her mind but that Larkin was paying the piper for some unsavory fling of which she had heard nothing. She did not for a moment believe that the affair could be as serious as Stelton wished her to imagine; but she was sorely troubled, nevertheless, for she had always cared for Larkin in a happy, whole-hearted way.

Many times since her final coming West she had remembered with a secret tenderness and pride that this wealthy and popular young man had been willing to trust his life to her. It was one of the sweetest recollections of those other far-off days.

Now, because the thought of Stelton's revelations was unbearable to her she resolutely put it from her until a time when she could mourn alone over this shattered illusion.

Participating vs. Non-Participating LIFE ASSURANCE

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a prominent Merchant on George St. took out a 10 pay 15 year Endowment Policy No. 68979, for $2000 on his life at age 45 in the Sun Life of Canada, premium $189.50.

Had this man taken a Non-Par Policy his Premium would have been $172.50 or $17.00 per year less.

Participating Results		Non-Par Results
$2637.75	Total Cash 1st Dec. last	$2000.00
1895.00	Total premiums paid	1725.00
742.75	Amount received over that pd. in	275.00
Almost 40 p.c.	Percentage returned over Premium paid	almost 16 p.c.
1299.70	or, Cash returned and a paid up Policy of $2000	661.25

Now this man paid $17.00 per year for 10 years only, or $170.00 all told and it yielded him $637.75 in profits. Just figure out what rate of interest that is on the $17.00 per year, paid extra for profits, and see if you would not like to invest a few dollars at the same rate. If so, Call at or 'Phone the Sun Life Office, 402 Water Street.

The above Policy-holder thinks he had a splendid result. Don't you?

Fertilizing Use of Peat

The most important use to which peat is put in this country is as a fertiliser, the annual consumption for that purpose being, according to Popular Mechanics, 41,080 tons, while only 1,300 tons were used for fuel; 3,000 tons for stock food and 2,000 tons in the manufacture of paper. In preparing peat for use as a fertilizer the field bearing the peat deposit, unless it is already under cultivation, is thoroughly drained and plowed, and planted for one or two seasons with some crop which destroys or disintegrates the coarse material and aerates and improves the upper layers of the peat. It is then plowed and harrowed and allowed to dry thoroughly, and, after being scraped into windrows, is hauled to the factory for further drying or storage. The drying is completed by passing the material through long rotary cylindrical driers, through which the heated air and gases from furnaces are forced by fan blowers. This process requires a somewhat expensive plant. In preparing peat for fuel it is made into the form of cylinders.

FOR EVERY DRIVER

A Few Sensible Suggestions Generally Approved by Horse Owners

See that the harness fits the horse properly.

See that the horse is properly put to wagon.

See that mane is pulled out from under collar and fore-top from under brow-band.

See that tail is pulled out from under breeching.

See that breeching straps are tight enough to back the wagon instead of by saddle or crupper.

See that the turn buckle is adjusted properly, and thus avoid pole being carried by horses.

See that the blinders are properly adjusted and do not rub the eyes. (The use of blinders should be discouraged.)

When putting a team in harness see that reins are buckled together first, and pass same on to driver's seat, then fasten breast straps—next fasten the holdbacks and then hook the traces.

When unhitching a team—see that traces are unfastened first—then the holdbacks—next the breast straps, then unbuckle the reins when ready to unhitch—this precaution will prevent many accidents.

Walk horses when leaving stable for a few blocks, also after watering, and thus avoid serious illness.

When horses go lame—first examine foot, and remove shoe if necessary.

Never drive with a slack rein.

Never jerk your horse with reins.

Never strike your horse over the head.

Never allow anyone to tease or tickle your horse—the horse only feels the torture and does not understand the joke.

Never beat or permit anyone else to beat your horse, as nothing so soon makes him permanently vicious.

Never stand your horse in a draft.

Never start your horse with the whip.

Never back your wagon with the brake on.

Never drive your horse with a shoe off; if too far to drive to stable, go to the nearest horseshoeing shop and have it attended to.

When starting a load, always have a tight rein on your horses.

Always water horses before eating.

RURAL SECURITY

It has, singularly enough, come to pass that we have allowed the industry of our farms to lag behind the other activities of the country in its development. I need not stop to tell you how fundamental to the life of the nation is the production of its food. Our thoughts may ordinarily be concentrated upon the cities and the hives of industry, upon the cries of the crowded market place and the clangor of the factory, but it is from the quiet interspaces of the open valleys and the hillsides that we draw the sources of life and prosperity, from the farm and the ranch, from the forest and the mine. Without these every street would be silent, every office deserted, every factory fallen into disrepair. And yet the farmer does not stand upon the same footing with the forester and the miner in the market of credit. He is the servant of the seasons. Nature determines how long he must wait for his crops, and will not be hurried in her processes. He may give his note, but the season of its maturity depends upon the season when his crop matures, lies at the gates of the market where his products are sold. And the security he gives is of a character not known in the broker's office or as familiarly as it might be on the counter of the banker.—Woodrow Wilson, to Congress.

Mrs. Thos. A. Julian, Almonte, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know how thankful I am for what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has done for me. A few years ago I was operated on for appendicitis, and was confined to the hospital for five weeks. When I returned home I contracted a severe cold which left me with a bad cough. A neighbor told my husband about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup so I decided to try a bottle. When it was finished it had done me so much good I took another which completely cured me. I can very, very strongly recommend it."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the famous Norway pine tree, which makes it the very best preparation for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all Throat and Lung troubles.

ENORMOUS DEMAND FOR "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

1,152,000 Boxes Sold Last Year.

Six of These Fruit Liver Tablets for Every Man, Woman and Child in the Dominion.

In seven short years, "Fruit-a-tives" has become the most famous and the most widely used medicine in Canada that has ever been introduced to the people of the Dominion. Even those who take "Fruit-a-tives" regularly and recommend these famous fruit juice tablets to their friends, probably have no idea of the enormous number of "Fruit-a-tives" that are being used by those wishing to regain their health.

Last year, over eight thousand gross boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" were sold. As there are one hundred, forty four boxes in a gross, this means that over one million one hundred thousand boxes were sold in 1912. And this year, this number will be still further increased.

This means a box of "Fruit-a-tives" for every six persons in Canada, or six tablets for every man, woman and child in the country.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold in every section of the Dominion. On the rugged Atlantic coast, throughout the Maritime Provinces, among the French in Quebec and the English in Ontario, all over the great Prairie Provinces and on the shores of the Pacific, "Fruit-a-tives" is the best selling medicine in stock.

This is true because "Fruit-a-tives" gives results. For chronic Constipation, Indigestion and Stomach Trouble—for bad Blood, Skin Eruptions and Eczema—for Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago—for Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Troubles—"Fruit-a-tives" cures when nothing else will.

In the head office in Ottawa, are hundreds of letters and photographs from grateful men and women who have been cured of sickness and suffering by "Fruit-a-tives." Many of these letters and photographs have been published by permission and have induced other sufferers to try "Fruit-a-tives." This is one of the factors in the demand for "Fruit-a-tives," which is now sold in every city, town, hamlet and cross roads store.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50 trial size, 25c., at all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Mushroom Mines

Abandoned mines in Akron, New York, are being profitably used in growing mushrooms. The mines were damp, cool, and dark, and a shrewd man saw that they were ideal places for mushroom culture—better even than hothouses in certain ways. Three crops a year are harvested from these supposedly useless mines.

Useful Plant This

A PAGE OF THE BEST HUMOR OF THE WEEK

Might Have Her Tonsils Removed.

"Shall we have a eugenic marriage, dear?" he asked.

"Well, for my part," she replied, "I don't think it is necessary. I've been operated on for appendicitis. I've been treated with antitoxin, and I have a vaccination mark that is as big as a quarter!"

Cause for Pallor.

Wife—George, I want to see that letter.

Husband—What letter, dear?

Wife—That one you just opened. I know by the handwriting it is from a woman, and you turned pale when you read it. Hand it here, sir!

Husband—Here it is, dear. It is from your dressmaker.

Following Instructions.

"This story of yours is flat," announced the editor.

"Well," explained the aspiring author, "I read a book called 'Advice to Young Writers,' and the very first thing it tells you is not to roll your manuscript."

Criticism.

A local band was one day playing at Dunfermline, when an old weaver came up and asked the bandmaster what that was they were playing. "That is the 'Death of Nelson,'" solemnly replied the bandmaster. "Ay, man," remarked the weaver, "ye ha'e given him an awfu' death."

No News to Her.

"Dearest," he said, "I couldn't live without you!"

"I know you couldn't," she replied. "That is why I felt so sorry for you the other day, when father threatened to cut off my allowance, just because we had been married for a year."

Nevergork (to kindly disposed gentleman): "Wot's the good of working. Everything's monopolised. Why, 'ere's this 'ere chap doing the work of three men and can't get a living."

Sherlock on the Job.

"How do you know she is his wife?"

"Didn't you notice, when they were dancing together, that he didn't clap his hands for an encore?"

Always Thinking of Beauty Aids.

Earnest teacher—What is profile?

Frivolous girl—Profile? Why, it is something in a manicure set.

Degeneration?

Howard—My son is a headliner in vaudeville.

Coward—From whom does he inherit his talent?

Howard—His grandfather was secretary of state.

Real Extravagance.

A man who had never been hunting shot at a duck in the air. The duck fell dead to the ground.

"Well, you got him!" exclaimed the amateur's friend.

"Yes," replied the amateur; "but I might as well have saved my ammunition—the fall would have killed him."

Pleasing Theory.

Anxious Mother—There's a look about that young man's eyes that I don't like. He looks at me out of their corners, as if trying to conceal something.

Daughter—Perhaps he is trying to conceal his admiration for you, ma.

Mother (much relieved)—Oh, I didn't think of that!

Worst Yet To Come.

Mrs. Shimm—I see the Moroccan authorities have captured Raisuli, the notorious bandit. Do you think that will end his career of evil doing?

Shimm—It is to be hoped so; but he may yet go into vaudeville.

A Bishop Surprised.

"I never knew till I got a car," said Bishop Eighty, "that profanity was so extremely prevalent."

"Do you hear much of it on the road?"

"Why," said the bishop, "nearly everybody I bump into swears dreadfully!"

His Only Chance.

Johnny—Paw, why was Adam created first?

Paw—To give him a chance to say something, my son.

A Bargain.

Footpad—Your money or your life!

Mrs. Tightly—That's reasonable enough, Jake. You've got only fifty cents.

Better Drained Now.

Once an old [illegible] prophet at Whittinghame informed Mr. Balfour that "it's gaun to rain seventy-twa days, sir."

"Come, come!" said the statesman. "Surely the world was entirely flooded in forty days."

"Aye, aye," was the response; "but the world wasna ade well drained as it is noo."

Serene Audacity.

"I have a mind to give you a whipping!" exclaimed the impatient father.

"Well," replied the athletic youth, "maybe you can. But if you succeed, it will be some item for the sport page."

The Hallmarks of Station.

Roly—Is yours a select neighborhood?

Poly—I should say it was! On one block we've six limousines, four Pekinese pups and one baby carriage.

Satisfied Him.

When a fellow is traveling a long distance, all by himself, he gets lonesome and has a hankering to talk to anybody who looks as if he might be the least bit companionable. You know how that is?

Well, other people feel that way, too. So why do you get mad when some total stranger bores you? Wouldn't you like to bore some other total stranger? Well, then!

In the smoking-room of an eastbound Pullman the other evening, there were two men — one of them grouchy, the other one receptive. After smoking two indifferent cigars, the latter said to the former:

"How far are you going?"

"Buffalo," acknowledged the other one, taken off his guard.

"Is that so? Well, Buffalo is a great town. I have a cousin living there, and I've been there myself several times. The last time was during the Pan-American Exposition, 12 years ago and over. Er—what are you going to do in Buffalo?"

"Change cars."

A Manner of Speaking.

"So you're going to be a taxi driver in New York? Why, I've a brother who lives there!"

"Is that so? Well, I hope I run across him some time."

Just Naturally.

First Suburban: "How do you get so many eggs?"

Second Suburbanite: "I treated my hens so unscientifically they're all laying for me."

A Gracious Providence.

When the late P. T. Barnum was exhibiting his famous Siamese twins, they were, as is well remembered, a wonderful sensation.

A certain divine, accompanied by his daughter, was much interested, and their curiosity was unbounded. The young woman asked where the twins were born. Mr. Barnum told them that they were born in Siam.

"And are they brothers?" asked the clerical gentleman.

"Oh, yes!" said the world's greatest press agent.

"Well, well!" said the visitor. "Think of that, Mary! How good and kind of a gracious Providence to allow them to be brothers, and not to have linked a pair of strangers together for life!"

Her Own Caller.

Recently an imposing matron employed a new domestic named Norah. A couple of afternoons later she went downtown shopping, leaving Norah in charge of the house.

"Norah," said the mistress, as she removed her wraps on her return three hours later, "were there any callers while I was out?"

"Yis, ma'am," was the quiet rejoinder of Norah. "Mrs. Cassady called."

"Mrs. Cassady!" wonderingly repeated the mistress, pausing a moment to commune with herself. "Why, I don't know any Mrs. Cassady!"

"Quoite loikely, ma'am!" came back the calm response of Norah. "Ol'll interduce yez the nixt toime she comes around."

Reality.

Minister (calling on inmate of prison): "Remember, Mr. Kenney, that stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage."

Kenney: "Well, they've got me hypnotised, then, that's all!"

Cherchez la Femme.

Considering all that's to be seen in the streets these days, it certainly is h— to be near-sighted.

The Test.

Haw: "What would you do for the girl you really loved?"

Aw: "Marry someone else."

PEACEFUL PERSUASION.

The mistress was complaining to the maid that the balusters seemed always dusty: "I was at Mrs. Brown's yesterday, and her stair-rails are clean and as smooth as glass."

"Yes, mum," said Mary Jane, "but you forget that she has three small boys."

STRETCHING HIS POWER OF RESISTANCE.
— Chicago Record Herald.

Of Course!

Cinder: "That eugenic couple have a baby."

Ella: "So! What did they call him?"

Cinder: "Eugene, of course!"

Definite.

First Photographer: "You were rejected yesterday, weren't you?"

Second ditto: "Yes, but I got a clear negative."

1914 Model.

"Been the new cigar, Jim, that has the slit at the bottom of the wrapper?"

"No. I haven't! Does it draw well?"

Profiting by Experience.

Little Johnny had been naughty all day. At last, to cap the climax, he slapped his little sister.

When father came home from the office the mother told him of his son's misdeeds.

"The next time you tease your sister, you go to bed without your dinner," the father said sternly.

The kiddie sat in silence for a few moments. Then all of a sudden he turned to his father.

"The next time I want to hit sister, I'll wait until after dinner," he remarked.

Room Savers.

"These collapsible opera hats are a great convenience!"

"So?"

"Yes; you have no idea how much room they save in a flat!"

Sometimes.

Tommy: "Pop, a man and his wife are one, aren't they?"

Tommy's Pop: "Yes, my son; sometimes one too many!"

Not Guilty.

Visitor: "How does the land lie out this way?"

Native: "It ain't the land; it's the land agents."

The Proper Spirit.

Mrs. John: "My husband admits that there is no place like home."

Mrs. Jack: "How thoughtful!"

Mrs. John: "But he spends his evenings going around to congratulate the other places."

Insult to Injury.

A widely-detested man, who had somehow managed to become a member of a well known west-end club, made himself peculiarly obnoxious to his fellow clubmen by continually swaggering on the steps at the entrance.

One day, soon after he had taken up his position there, a Major X, in passing him, said:—

"I say, M., I could get up a subscription of five hundred dollars for you if you would only take your name off the books."

So M., in high dudgeon, went off to a friend of his, W., and said:—

"What do you think, W.? I have been grossly insulted by Major X. He said that if I would take my name off the club books, he would get up a subscription of five hundred dollars for me. What would you do?"

"Well," replied W., "if I were you, I would not take it; you stand out, and you'll get a thousand!"

"Bridget, were you entertaining a man in the kitchen last evening?"

"Well, mum, that's for him to say. Oi done my best wid the materials at hand, mum."

A clumsy carver once sent a goose into a lady's lap. His apology was better than his carving.

"Ah, madam, how potent your charms are; they attract not only the living but also the dead!"

"Is your client going to plead insanity?"

"I haven't decided," replied the lawyer. "He wants to look the ground over and see which is the easiest to escape from, the prison or the asylum."

An Irishman and a Frenchman were disputing over the nationality of a friend of theirs.

"I say," said the Frenchman, "that he was born in France; therefore he is a Frenchman."

"Not at all," said Pat. "Begorra, if a cat should have kittens in the oven, would you call them biscuits?"

The Guv'nor (threateningly): "Look here, Parkin, I've got tired of seeing these figures dropping month after month, and I shall have to seriously consider taking the only steps left to me to bring about an alteration."

The Manager: "Yes, sir, and from when would your resignation take effect?"

Bishop Creighton interviewed a London vicar at St. Paul's Cathedral, and requested that he would abandon the use of incense, to which the vicar attached most vital importance.

"You see, my lord, I have the cure of ten thousand souls to minister to."

"Quite so," rejoined the Bishop; "but you don't wish to cure them with smoke like so many kippers."

She was very literary and he was not. He had spent a harrowing evening discussing authors of whom he knew nothing, and their books of which he knew less.

Presently the maiden asked, archly:—

"Of course, you've read Romeo and Juliet?"

He floundered helplessly for a moment, and then, having a brilliant thought, blurted out happily:—

"I've read Romeo."

Olive and Gerald, who were out walking, met a vicious bulldog, and Gerald's conduct in the few moments left much to be desired. When they had safely passed Olive turned to Gerald and said, reproachfully:—

"[illegible], Gerald, you said you would face death for me."

"I know I did," answered Gerald, "and I meant it. But that bulldog wasn't dead."

A lady of recent widowhood encountered much difficulty in framing an inscription for her dear husband's tombstone. After endless consultations with her friends and neighbors this was the one she selected:—

"Rest in Peace—until we meet again."

Little Tommy at school was being examined in geography.

"Now, Tommy," said his teacher, "if your left hand is west and your right is east and in front of you is north, what is behind you?"

Timmy wriggled about, and finally he answered:—

"Well, the whole class can see it's a patch I have on me trousers. You don't need to point it out."

When Judge Dows was practising at the bar a judge asked:—

"For whom are you concerned in this case, Mr. Dowse?"

"I am concerned, my lord, for the plaintiff; but I am engaged for the defendant," was his reply.

Two smart ladies entered a church the other day, and were asked by the verger if they would like to see the old plate, which was noted for its unique design and great age. Of course, they said they would, and anything else worth looking at. After taking up a lot of the old man's time and patience, he then asked if they would like to see the modern plate as well. This, too, they were willing to do. So he handed them the offertory plate, saying:—

"This is it, ladies, and it would look better with some silver or gold on it."

Harvey, aged five, was being instructed by his grandmother in morals. She told him that all such terms as "By golly," "by Jingo," "by thunder," were in reality oaths, and but little better than other profanities.

"You can always tell an oath, my boy," she said, "by the prefix 'by.' All such are oaths."

"Well, then, grandma," asked the young hopeful, "is 'by telegraph,' which I see in the newspapers, swearing?"

"No, Harvey," replied grandma; "that's frequently only lying."

Indignant passenger (to railway manager): "Here, I say, I got a cinder in my eye from one of your confounded engines, and it cost me four and six for a doctor to get it out and dress the eye. Now, what do you propose to do in the matter?"

Railway magnate: "Nothing, my dear sir—nothing. We have no use for the cinder, and you are perfectly welcome to it. No doubt, strictly speaking, you did go off with our property—the cinder, of course, was not yours—but we do not care to make a fuss about such a small matter. Pray do not give the incident a moment's thought."

"Listen to this, Maria," said Mr. Stubb, as he unfolded his scientific paper. "This article states that in some of the old Roman prisons that have been unearthed they found the petrified remains of the prisoners."

"Gracious, John," exclaimed Mrs. Stubb, with a smile, "them's what they call hardened criminals, I expect."

Lord Cross was fond of telling the following:

"Sir Frederick Bramwell, the eminent engineer, one day sat beside me whilst George Bidder and I were engaged in a case before a committee of the house of lords. Lord Hardwicke was one of the members of that committee. He was interrupting a good deal during George Bidder's cross-examination.

"'Mr. Bidder,' said he, 'you have been talking about a jetty. Will you tell me what is a jetty?'

"Whereupon Bramwell whispered to me:

"'Fancy a peer not knowing about a jetty!'"

When a small boy was taking his father's dinner, he stopped for a moment to watch a workman emptying a sewer.

"That," remarked the youngster, interestedly, "is the grating my brother lost a shilling down."

The workman's eyes lit up. "Well, young man," he said, with a show of carelessness, "you'd better get forward with that dinner before it's cold."

In about half an hour the boy returned to find the man still at the same grating.

"Are you quite sure it was this grating the shilling was lost in?" asked the workman.

"I am certain," replied the boy, "because I saw my father get it out."

Apropos of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's retirement a good story is told by the Rev. Arthur Mursell, in his recently published memoirs. It occurred on the occasion of Lord Rosebery's installation in the chair of the Junior Liberal Association at Birmingham, observing an animated verbal duel between Mr. Jesse Collings and Mr. J. S. Wright. Mr. Chamberlain asked:

"What are Collings and Wright fighting about? They are like the lion and the unicorn fighting for the crown."

"Well," quickly replied Mr. Powell Williams, who was seated near, "you wouldn't have them fight for half a crown, would you?"

Afraid of Lawyers.

An old colored man, charged with stealing chickens, was arraigned in court and was incriminating himself, when the judge said, "You ought to have a lawyer. Where's your lawyer?"

"Ah aint got no lawyer, jedge," said the old man.

"Very well, then," said his honor. "I'll assign a lawyer to defend you."

"Oh, no, suh; no, suh! Please don't do dat!" the darky begged.

"Why not?" asked the judge. "It won't cost you anything. Why don't you want a lawyer?"

"Well, jedge, Ah'll tell you, suh," said the old man, waving his tattered old hat confidentially. "Hit's jest dis way—Ah wan' tuh enjoy dem chickens mahse'f!"

Needs a Rest.

An Indianapolis woman had a negro cleaning the yard for her. His wife had been dead for several years, and he might be fairly regarded as on the market once more. So his employer seized a favorable moment and proceeded to sound him.

"John," she said, "you're a good, steady man and ought to have a home of your own. Lots of women would be glad to have you. Why don't you get a wife?"

John leaned on his rake and scratched his head reflectively.

"Well, I tell you," he replied; "you know I was married seven years, an' I've got to have a rest."

During a certain battle the colonel of an Irish regiment noticed that one of his men was extremely devoted to him and followed him everywhere. At length he remarked:

"Well, my man, you have stuck by me well today."

"Yis, sorr," replied Pat. "Shure me mither said to me, said she, 'Just stick to the colonel, Patrick, me bhoy, and you'll be all roight. Thim colonels never gets hurted,'"

On a Slushy Day.

Boggs: "That chap who just passed in his auto must be a politician."

Boggles: "Why so?"

Boggs: "Didn't you notice the way he was throwing mud?"

The Caller: I want to see your master about a bill.
The Diplomatic Servant: He left for the country last night.
The Caller: I want to pay him.
The Diplomatic Servant (hastily): But he returned this morning.

Editor (to reporter): Now, look here; this afternoon I've booked you for a flight with one of these upside-down airmen, and I want you to make a real pithy article out of how it feels.

Floors that Safeguard Health

The floor is the logical collecting-place for dust and germs. Resting and breeding there they are a menace to health—particularly the health of the children.

RONUK FLOOR POLISH

is an effective antiseptic and germicide. Not only does it sink into the pores of the wood and seal up all crevices that harbour germs, but it actually kills them.

It forms a surface so smooth that it is kept perfectly clean by simply wiping with a dry cloth—no more scrubbing—and it is easier and more economical to apply and keep polished than ordinary wax or varnish.

10c., 20c., 35c. and $1.00 the tin.

Clean currents by rubbing well in flour, then wash them.

To remove chocolate and cocoa stains from table linen, soak over night in cold water, then turn boiling water through them.

A couple of figs eaten before breakfast, followed by a glass of water, is an excellent laxative.

If you want to catch a rat, bait the trap with an oyster.

Never iron black stockings, as the heat from the iron fades them.

Sweet oil and cinnamon applied to a wart will cause it to disappear, used faithfully.

To make a good home cleaning fluid, take two ounces of ammonia, one ounce of white soap shavings, one quart soft water, and one teaspoonful of saltpeter. Shake well every time before using.

It spoils fine hair brushes to put them into water. They should be cleaned with gasoline and a mite of soap rinsed in the clear fluid, and dried. Rub thoroughly, in a small quantity of corn meal to finish the process.

Cut off the leather top of an old soft shoe, and sew it between several thicknesses of cloth. Then you can iron with perfect comfort and without burning the hands.

Every particle of dirt and dust may be removed from a felt hat by rubbing the entire surface with fine sand paper. This treatment will leave the hat looking new.

Eaton—Why don't you think Pentam will ever be a literary light?

Singley—Because he won't break away from his combination.

Eaton—His combination?

Singley—Yes. He tries to imitate Robert Browning's style and doesn't try not to imitate Josh Billings' spelling.

An Operation for Appendicitis was ordered by his doctor.

But Complete Cure was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels.

Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure. Dr. Chase's medicines have proven of wonderful benefit in our home as the Ointment cured my little girl of a severe skin when nothing else would bring relief."

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers. Sample box mailed free if you mention this paper. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

ALL ALONG BROADWAY

By Herbert Corey.

Francis Gallatin, the lawyer, discussed the other day the absolute lack of morals—rather than immorality—which some persons exhibit. Half a dozen cases had come under his eyes lately in which the offenders seemed to take to crooked courses because they lacked some sort of moral compass which might have pointed the straight course out to them.

"I was asked to defend a very intelligent, well-dressed, cultured man on one occasion," said he. "He vehemently declared that he was innocent of the charge brought against him, and he convinced me of the fact. He was so clear-eyed and candid and honest in appearance, I began to ask questions about his life.

"'Of course,' said he, 'you will be somewhat handicapped by the fact that I have served three terms in state prison.'"

Gallatin was thunderstruck. He could just gasp: "You have?"

"'Oh, yes,' said the other cheerfully, 'you see, although I do not look it, I am 50 years old.'"

Alma Gluck, the opera singer, in a recently published statement declared that American girls who study singing abroad are mercilessly victimised by the men with whom they come in contact. Mme. Gluck's opinion of the character of the average American girl student does not lend itself to publicity.

"She may have misjudged them," said another of the grand opera. "They are foolish, I know, but that is because they do not understand."

She told of one American girl who did understand. She has been upon the stage some years. When abroad she was told by a gentleman-in-waiting that King George of Greece admired her, and wished that she be presented.

"I will not meet him," said she, "king or no king. I am an actress—and you know what would be said of me the first time that was seen in the King's company."

Speaking of the stage, Miss Margaret Leslie of "The Secret" is a sister of Martha Hedman, the Swedish actress. After Miss Hedman made her first big success here she visited the North-west. She met the governor of Minnesota and all the notables. One day she was interviewed by a girl reporter. Miss Leslie tells the story:

"You know," said Miss Hedman, "that I am a Swede."

"Really," said the girl reporter. "May I ask, are you a Swede from Sweden or a Swede from Minneapolis?"

Maybe this story isn't precisely new. But it's a true story, and completely characteristic of Nat Goodwin. Also, it is timely, for that comedian has just announced blithely that his legs have come back. Following his accident on the Pacific coast, he was given over to crutches for the rest of his life by a hasty press. He's on the stage again, about as lively as ever.

"A tobacco salesman," according to Frank Kelly, "joined Goodwin's table in the Lambs' Club one night, and insisted upon handing around some of the cigars he was selling. Goodwin's better judgment was overruled, and he lighted one of them.

"'They're good cigars,' said the salesman, 'and, anyhow, we give premiums with them. If you smoke 50,000 you get a grand piano.'

"Goodwin laid his cigar down with an air of distaste.

"'If I smoked 50,000 of those,' he said, 'I'd want a harp.'

"Everyone laughed — except an Englishman. An hour afterward he approached Goodwin.

"'I didn't get the point of that jolly spoof of yours at first, old chap,' said he. 'But after I puzzled over it a bit, I saw it, of course. Travelling as much as you do, it would be most inconvenient to carry a grand piano.'"

STAGELAND

May Buckley has joined the Princess Players in New York.

The American stage is being treated to a grand revival of Shakespeare.

George Cohan has reconsidered his announced intention to retire from the stage.

The much-heralded "red light" drama "The House of Bondage," proved a rank failure.

It is said that Klaw and Erlanger will establish a big chain of motion picture theatres on the Pacific Coast.

John Hyams and Leila McIntyre are appearing in a vaudeville playlet written for them by William Collier and Herbert Hall Winslow.

The Liebler Company will produce Cyril Maude's success "Grumpy," with a juvenile company such as presented "Disraeli" and "Pomander Walk."

Elsie Janis is to go to England next month to take part in a revue to be produced there by Florence Ziegfeld. She is now appearing in the "Lady of the Skipper."

Frank Craven, the original Jimmy Gilley of "Bought and Paid For" has come forth in a comedy of his own writing called "Too Many Cooks."

Jean Haves has written an operetta called "A Dutch Courtship" with the scenes laid in Holland. It is slated for an early production in New York.

Kate Claxton is living in quiet enjoyment of the comfortable fortune she made by her five thousand or more appearances in the celebrated old drama of "The Two Orphans."

"Iole," made by Robert W. Chambers into a musical comedy from his story of that name, was given cordial critical praise when presented recently before a New York audience.

Nearly one hundred prominent ministers, physicians, educators and social workers of Philadelphia, gave their endorsement to the production in that City of Eugene Brieux's sociological drama "Damaged Goods."

Herbert Hall Winslow and Mary Norman are the authors of "Mary and John," a farce on suburban life, which is being produced with much success on the vaudeville circuit by John O'Rice and Sally Cohen.

At the conclusion of its successful New York run "The New Henrietta" is to be taken on a tour of the large cities with William H. Crane, Douglas Fairbanks, Amelia Bingham and Patricia Collinge in an all-star cast.

Tristan Bernard is said to be devoting his time to rewriting Hamlet so as to free the name part of its complexity and philosophy and make it represent "human drama, poignant in emotion and feeling."

"The Speckled," Conan Doyle's own dramatization of his story of that name, is being presented in Chicago with Miss Anne Sutherland, H. Cooper Cliffe and a number of other well-known players in the cast.

Suderman's newest play, "Claudian's Hymn of Praise," has been produced in Berlin. The play deals with the crucial struggle for supremacy between Germanism and Rome. The author introduces the Emperor Honorius as th personification of decadent Rome, and also the Vandal Stilicho, whose protege, the poet Claudius Claudianus, later becomes his benefactor's slayer.

Radway's Ready Relief

Jacob Able of R. F. D. No. 1, Millstown, N. J., writes: "For the last three years I have had kidney disease and backache, and I have had it so bad that for eight days and nights I could not get my clothes off. I thought I would try Radway's Ready Relief. I gave my back and hips and sides a good rubbing, and in a short time the pain was all gone. No one in this world knows but God and myself the misery I was in till I USED Radway's Ready Relief."

All Ended Happily.

The talk at a recent reception turned to literature, when Louis Mann, the comedian, was reminded of a story read by a party in New England.

The party was the wife of a farmer, and as she laid down the magazine that she had been reading and soulfully sighed her husband glanced up from his newspaper.

"What's the matter, Marlar?" asked the old man. "Have ye finished that story?"

"Yes, Henry," answered Maria, "just this very minute."

"I s'pose," said Henry, resuming his paper, "that it ended happily?"

"Yes," answered Maria. "The beautiful heroine got over a long spell of sickness, an' what's more, the story give the name an' the price of the medicine what cured her."

Heart and Nerves Were Bad.

Could Not Sleep.

To the thousands of people who toss on a sleepless pillow night after night, or who pace the bedroom floor with nerves on the jump, the heart action all wrong, and to whose eyes sleep will not come. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound refreshing slumber, as they restore the equilibrium of the deranged nerve centres and correct the wrong action of the heart.

Mrs. Charles Teel, Horncastle, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. My heart and nerves were so bad I could not sleep, and the least noise or excitement would make me feel so that I used to think I was going to die, and I would tremble until I could hardly stand. I took doctor's medicine, but it did not do me much good. At last I tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and can certainly say they did me a great amount of good. I can recommend them to anyone who is suffering as I was."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been on the market for the past twenty years, and have done more to steady shaky nerves and strengthen weak hearts, than any other known preparation.

12 Tumors Removed Without An Operation

Silver Lake, Ont., Sept. 20, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Curran.—I am enjoying better health than I have for eight years and I think I am entirely cured. I have none of the old symptoms. I am very grateful for my present health, and think Orange Lily is the greatest treatment for women the world knows. Its use in my case caused 12 tumors or growths of some sort to be expelled. Some were as large as a hen's egg, and others smaller, down to the size of a walnut. You may use my case in your advertisement, for it is the solid truth, and pen cannot describe all the good it has done for me. Mrs. Louise B. Boiteridge.

This letter gives an indication of the positive benefits that always follow the use of Orange Lily. It is an applied treatment and comes in direct contact with the suffering organs. It produces results from the start in all cases of women's disorders, including painful periods, falling of womb, irregularities, leucorrhoea, etc.

I will send a sample box containing 10 days' treatment absolutely free to any suffering woman who has not yet tried it if she will send me her address. Be sure to state and address MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

Politics That Interest Ontario Women

Ontario women are becoming more and more interested in politics—of that there is no doubt. Indeed it would be strange if the women of this Province were not influenced by that spirit of "awakening" which is moving the women of all the world. An interesting question is "In what sort of politics are the women of Ontario so much interested?"

There are several sources to which one could go for an answer, but none better than the Women's Liberal Associations which are beginning to spring up throughout the Province. Clubs are already established in Toronto and Wiarton and organizations are planned in Hamilton, Brantford and other points. The movement shows signs of becoming general in a short time.

The Toronto Club, not yet a year old, has over 300 members enrolled. What are these women interested in? What do they talk about? Is it theoretical politics such as the ancient history of Liberalism or historical or philosophical reasons why Liberalism is different from and, according to the Liberal point of view, better than Conservatism, or is it present day practical problems affecting women and the homes of the people, and which have to be settled at least partially by Legislative enactment?

The answer is that undoubtedly the second line of subjects is the more popular and arouses the more spontaneous interest. The historical and theoretical aspects of politics and of Liberalism are admitted important enough and there are groups of women anxious to become familiar with them. Meetings, however, at which the high cost of living or the social reforms proposed by the Liberal party in Ontario are discussed, inevitably lead to the largest number of questions being asked and bring on the most widespread and spirited discussions.

A resume of the subjects listed for enquiry by the Women's Liberal Association of Toronto will give a fair idea of the line taken by that organization under the direction of its president, Mrs. N. W. Rowell, who, together with Lady Laurier, is also one of the honorary presidents of the Wiarton Club.

Some of the subjects are as follows:

The abolition of child labour and the guarantee to every child of the opportunity for health and education.

The protection of the interests of women and girls employed in factories and shops.

A living wage and suitable hours of labor for every woman and girl worker.

Adequate and suitable housing accommodation for all workers.

Reduction in the present high cost of living.

The suppression of all preventable diseases.

Reasonable compensation for all workers injured in the course of employment.

Advanced temperance legislation.

Development of Canadian nationality within the Empire.

The Complexion In Winter

As much care must be given to skin in winter as in summer. The blemishes of tan and freckles in summer time are offset by the benefit to the skin of fresh air, sunlight, and perspiration, the latter keeping the pores open and ridding the skin of impurities by a natural process. In cold weather when there is no perspiration of the face because there is no humidity to produce it, the grime and dust collected on the skin while one is on the street becomes absorbed by the pores unless the face is very carefully and frequently bathed. Especially before retiring to rest at night the face should be made thoroughly clean.

Close rooms, too much artificial heat and rich food also work havoc with the complexion in winter time. The sunlight is often excluded from luxurious dressing-rooms by silken and lace curtains. The hat and veil are adjusted in a becoming half light. Restaurants, tea-rooms, theatres, and shops all have the same flattering half light, and one really scarcely gets a glimpse of one's own, or one's friend's, face by broad daylight. Take a handglass some sunny winter morning, roll up the window shade to the top, and then examine your complexion carefully in this uncompromising and unflattering light. You will be surprised at its really grimy look and at the unsightly little black specks embedded in the skin around chin and nostrils.

The skin seems to lack "tone," too, and may be actually pasty or flabby around the eyes—if more than twenty-five years have gone over one's head. All this is the result of hasty bathing of the face once a day, perhaps, too little fresh air, and too much rich food.

Have a good professional facial massage to start with. Then bathe the face faithfully every night before retiring. Wash it first thoroughly with warm water. Pat it dry and apply cold cream. In fifteen minutes wash off the cold cream with more warm water and a little pure soap. Rinse in cold water, into which a few drops of benzoin have been put and then dry it thoroughly and go to bed. In the morning you will be surprised at the fresh, charming face that greets you in the glass. And in the morning be sure and drink two full glasses of water, not too cold, or better still, if you can manage it, a cup of hot water. Before breakfast also take some orange juice.

If the skin above the eyes looks baggy and swollen upon awakening in the morning, you may have sat up too late—or there may be uric acid in the blood. Rheumatism sometimes puts out its first signal this way, before a single pain has been felt in a joint. The swollen lids may be helped temporarily, however, by dabbing them with linen cloth dipped in a cup of boiling water, in which a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved. If there is any tendency of the eyelids to look puffy on awakening, they should be massaged gently each day, and if the trouble persists, go to a doctor.

Good Things With Potatoes

It is not the most expensive nor the greatest variety of food that makes our tables enviable; it is the food, to the cooking of which the most attention is paid. A certain cookery book gives three hudred ways of cooking potatoes; yet plenty of ignorant housewives think usually of only four ways of cooking this staple vegetable...four good ways, to be sure, but much that is good becomes monotonous.

It behoves the potato cook first to understand the four usual methods, of course.

Baked Potatoes—should be thoroughly scrubbed before they are cooked. They should be as even and as smooth as possible. When they are half done they should be pricked with a fork to allow the moisture inside to escape, so that they will be mealy. They should be thoroughly cooked.

Boiled Potatoes—should be cooked in boiling, not only hot, water. When they are done pour off the water, and let them stand in the open door of the oven for a few moments to become mealy. Spread a piece of cheesecloth over the saucepan in which they stand.

Mashed Potatoes—should be thoroughly boiled, and then mashed smooth. They may be put through a ricer. Then hot milk, melted butter, and pepper and salt should be added, a little milk at a time. They should then be beaten to creaminess in the top of a double boiler with a large dover egg beater. They should be served hot.

Fried Potatoes—should be fried in fat that is very hot to begin with. Thus a crust is formed. The heat may then be reduced slightly so that the potatoes do not burn.

Potato Omelet—is a delicious luncheon dish. For it, cut boiled potatoes into quarter-inch squares. Cover them with white sauce. Put the mixture into a frying pan in which a tablespoonful of butter is bubbling. Cook it like an omelet. Sprinkle it with pepper and salt before folding.

Potatoes with Cheese—can be prepared in several ways. One way is to slice or dice cold boiled potatoes, spread them in a buttered baking dish, cover them lightly with white sauce and sprinkle them with grated cheese and buttered breadcrumbs. Then brown them in the oven.

Chopped Baked Potatoes—cooked in this way are delicious. Boil them with the jackets on until they are tender, but not mealy, and when they are cool, peel them. Chop them rather fine and put them in a buttered baking dish. Cover them generously with small bits of butter, and pour over them enough milk just to show at the top. Season the milk before pouring it, with pepper and salt. Now comes the important part of this dish. Bake it slowly for at least an hour, and better for an hour and a half. Add more milk if necessary. When it is done the potatoes should be moist, firm, and ready to melt in the mouth.

For Potato Pudding—mash six large potatoes and add to them salt, pepper, and a well-beaten egg. Line the bottom and sides of a baking dish with an inch-thick layer of the potato and add a cupful of cold cooked meat, minced, and seasoned with butter, pepper and salt. Put on a covering of mashed potato and bake thirty minutes.

WHIMS OF DAME FASHION

Net has a prominent place in the newest lingerie. It has many good points. It is inexpensive, dainty and durable. It washes well and, whereas it has the body and strength of sheer muslin, has the transparency and the thinness of lace. It is much used for nightgown yokes, for one thing. Sometimes it is hand-embroidered, in satin stitch worked in rather heavy mercerized cotton. The designs embroidered are usually rather small and dainty.

Tucked net is also used for nightgown yokes. The tucks, which are not more than an eighth of an inch wide, strengthen the fabric of the net and make it easier to handle and more durable. The tucked net is sometimes used to band crepe de chene or chiffon petticoats and under bodices. Then it is used between two strips of lace insertion or between strips of puffed chiffon or crepe de chene.

Figured net is also used in underwear of all sorts. Dotted net is combined with white crepe de chene in a charming nightgown—one thus is durable and easily laundered, too, in spite of the delicacy of the materials used. The yoke and short sleeves of net are cut in one piece and they are edged with a tiny frilling of the crepe de chene. The skirt of the gown is tucked into the yoke, and the joining is covered with a bias strip of the crepe. Just about the hem is an inch-wide band of the dotted net.

A useful and beautiful petticoat is made of white net and lace. The net is cut in six gores, which end at the bottom in deep, rounded points. These are edged at the bottom with a strip of lace insertion about two inches wide and edging of the same width, put on without mitering. The gores are fastened together with strips of insertion.

Another attractive petticoat is made of net. There is a straight and plain upper section. Just below the knees this is banded with insertion about three inches wide. Below this is a band of gathered net six inches wide, then another band of insertion and then some wide edging, plaited in narrow plaits.

QUEEN MARY DRESSES HERSELF

Queen Mary, unlike most royal ladies, prefers to dress herself, with the assistance of a single maid, whose duties are of the most perfunctory description, and mainly consist of dressing Her Majesty's hair and passing her such garments as she desires to assume.

Save upon the occasion of a Court, Her Majesty considers half an hour ample time in which to change one costume for another, and this is the limit she allows herself when visiting a country house. She prides herself that she is never late for dinner, and often sets fellow lady guests an example by her punctuality.

Queen Mary, however, declares that she loves her jewels, and she collects rare stones with much interest. One of her favourite ornaments is a pearl and diamond necklace of graduate pearls (all of different colours) that had taken fifteen years to collect, and which was given to the then Princess of Wales during her visit to India.

Carries Her Knitting.

Queen Mary dislikes nothing so much as idleness, and her habit of carrying a little workbag about with her and seizing every opportunity of doing something with her needle is growing upon her.

Crochet does not appeal to her particularly, but she loves knitting, and every evening at Balmoral, when the King and some of his guests are playing bridge—common bridge, not auction—the Queen sits by and knits socks or stockings or petticoats for the various societies and charities in which she takes an interest.

Recently she has been knitting babies' socks, and carries her hatred of sitting with her hands in her lap to such lengths that she sometimes knits in the carriage as she is driving.

PARIS DOCTOR SAYS

Dandruff, Falling Hair Are Caused by a Microbe—Dr. Sangerbond Proves It

Dr. Sangerbond is the leading dermatologist of France.

To prove his theory that germs cause dandruff, he infected a guinea pig with these microbes and in a short time the hair from the animal's body disappeared.

Parisian Sage, which can now be obtained all over Canada, has an immense sale and is highly recommended by physicians in all parts of the world.

It is just because it is the only prescription or hair tonic that is absolutely sure to kill the dandruff germ.

It is guaranteed to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

In warm weather it keeps the scalp clean and cool and free from obnoxious odours. Parisian Sage is a pleasant and dainty hair dressing that will put a bewitching charm and lustre into faded and lifeless hair in one week. It is distressing for any woman to have dull, unattractive hair and women so unfortunate should use Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage comes in large 50-cent bottles at the Warne Drug Co., and is sold by leading druggists everywhere. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every bottle.

TO MAKE LIVEABLE HOMES

To teach women to make their homes livable, to show them that even if they cannot afford to employ a decorator or to furnish their rooms in conventional style, they can make them really artistic with the material they have at hand, is the object of an authority on interior decorating, who gave up a position as art director in a technical school to carry on this work.

"The furnishings of a house may be costly and beautiful," she says, "and yet the atmosphere may not be homelike. It takes more than artistic furniture and magnificent hangings to make a home. A real home must have a soul, it must express the owner. Wonderful results can be obtained with beautiful things, but they are not absolutely necessary. If she knows how to go about it, a woman can make a charming, homelike room with cheesecloth curtains and pictures cut from magazine covers, and on the other hand, she can use the most expensive materials and yet have a room that is absolutely cold and dead. Some homes, though exquisitely beautiful, have the unlived-in air of a magnificent hotel.

"Modern industrial conditions are in a way very cruel to a woman," the student thinks. "She is often expected to be the homemaker and the breadwinner in one, and this is in many cases very hard. However, every woman is happier and better off if she has some place to call her own. Many working girls live in cheap boarding-houses and have no idea of home life or home-making. However, the necessity for knowing how to make a home is not confined to working girls, many women of wealth and education lack that knowledge. A woman must realize that her home must be attractive as well as sanitary and her babies happy as well as healthy. There are women who have reduced their housekeeping to such a science that their husbands and children never remain at home if they can possibly get away. These women are making a great mistake. Science is all very well, but it is a means, not an end. A woman should make her home so cosy and attractive that her husband and children will love to be there above all other places in the world."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

COPYING A HEROINE

The Result Was a Hero

By HELEN ARMSBY

Young Mrs. Hathorne, recently married, was sitting at one end of the library at her home reading, while her husband and his friend Chenoworth sat at the other end smoking and chatting.

"What so interests you, Bet?" asked Hathorne.

"A splendid novel."

"What's it all about?" asked Chenoworth lazily.

Chenoworth was a big, handsome fellow with lots of strength, of which he seemed unconscious. He was a favorite with women, but bestowed his attentions on all he happened to fall in with, and only a keen insight into the nature of the softer sex and an able diplomacy kept him out of trouble. It was said of him that he could pass through more affairs of the heart without blame than any other man in America. Replying to his question, Mrs. Hathorne said:

HIS WIFE THREW HER ARMS AROUND HIS NECK.

"The heroine is a remarkable woman. She married a man whose character was far inferior to hers. They had scarcely passed the honeymoon when he began to show by his manner that he was becoming tired of her. Then he began to pay attention to another woman. What would a wife naturally do under such circumstances? Upbraid the husband, of course, and thus drive him away from her and into the arms of her rival. What did this woman do? Without showing any distrust of her husband she gave him every facility to be with his new attraction. She even planned to have the two go abroad together. After a long absence from his wife he began to realize that after all he loved her and returned to her voluntarily."

"Noble man," grunted Chenoworth, blowing a ring of smoke.

"Noble man!" exclaimed Mrs. Hathorne indignantly. "You mean noble woman."

"Sensible woman, noble man," persisted Chenoworth. "She played her rival admirably. If the man had not been a fine fellow, instead of going back to her he would have left the second woman for a third."

"Well, I declare!" exclaimed the lady. "That's the most diabolical view of the case that could be conceived."

"My dear," interposed Hathorne, "don't consider anything he says. Treat him as one without a conscience. He doesn't know the meaning of the word constancy; he was born without any such bump in his cranium."

"Dick," said Chenoworth, "I have a mind to throw you through the window."

"You won't do anything of the kind, Bob."

"Why not?"

"Because you're too lazy."

Mrs. Hathorne retired from this war of words, leaving the two friends together. Neither man seemed to regard the question that had momentarily held his attention of sufficient moment to call forth further comment, and both passed to a discussion of questions of the day.

Some months passed, at the end of which Hathorne, being called away, asked his friend Chenoworth to see that his wife was not lonely during his absence. Chenoworth promised to do what he could in the matter and made it a point to call two or three times a week and escort the lady to some place of amusement. When Hathorne returned he thought he noticed a change in his wife's bearing. It would only have been perceptible to a lover, for outwardly at least it was very slight. He received the same enthusiastic embrace, but he thought the enthusiasm did not last quite so long as formerly. Then, too, he found Chenoworth at his house when he returned, and the latter did not seem overjoyed at meeting him.

That Mrs. Hathorne had become used to having Chenoworth about her and that Chenoworth had become used to being about her soon became evident. When Chenoworth called to spend an evening with his friends Mrs. Hathorne was animated; when he did not call she was dull.

One evening while Hathorne was with his wife, she being without animation or anything to talk about, he took up a book. It proved to be the novel that had excited the brief discussion with which this story opens. He finished it before going to bed. Without saying anything to his wife on the subject he resolved to apply the expedient adapted by the heroine of the novel to his own case.

One morning he announced to his wife that he was obliged to make a long business trip, and the same evening, when Chenoworth was present, told the latter that he would rely on him, as he had done once before, to see that Mrs. Hathorne should not be left to mope alone. Chenoworth again promised to give all of his time to the lady she desired, though there was an undercurrent of embarrassment between the trio that did not appear on the surface.

When the husband departed he had no idea of swerving from the plan adopted by the heroine of the novel, whose action his wife had so much admired. In that case there was no attempt on the part of the wife to spy on her husband. She left him free to act in accordance with his own pleasure, and when he returned it was because he had discovered that he loved his wife better than the other woman. A man would not be apt to play such a part, and Hathorne's original intention was turned awry by a desire to discover on his return the status between his friend and his wife. Chenoworth had been used to complaining that Sunday evening was the loneliest to him of all the evenings of the week, and his calls at that time were frequent. Hathorne wrote that he would return on Monday, at the same time intending to walk into his house about 9 o'clock Sunday evening. He would contrive to enter without being heard.

Arriving in the city, he started for his home—brisk at first, but soon slowing his pace. As he drew near the house he almost stopped altogether. His nature revolted from what he was about to do. He was about to play the spy on his wife and on his best friend. He balked in his purpose.

Supposing these two had become attached to each other, were they not, like all other human beings, amenable to what we call temptation? He thought of the words in the Lord's Prayer, "Lead us not into temptation."

Hathorne could go no further with his reasoning. He felt that he was not immaculate, but was as liable to yield to a temptation as either his wife or his friend. What he would do he would decide when a decision became necessary. One thing he would not do—he would not demean himself by becoming a spy upon his wife and his friend. Walking up to his front door, he put the key in the lock, took plenty of time scraping his boots on the rug in the vestibule and was about to open the inner door when it swung on its hinges, and his wife threw her arms around his neck with all the old time fervor.

The embrace lasted some moments, not a word being spoken, but each knew that the same matter influenced both. When they entered the living room Hathorne expected to see Chenoworth. He was not there. But Hathorne made no comment on his absence. He stammered an explanation as to his coming a day earlier than he had expected, but it is difficult for an honest man to lie, and he had not thought to frame an excuse before entering.

"Never mind the reason, dear," said his wife, who with woman's keen intuition had divined the true one. "You intended to surprise me and Dick, but you couldn't bring yourself to do it. I have tried you, dear, because I was obliged to do so in order to try your friend. To deceive one it was necessary to deceive the other. Sit down and listen to me."

He seated himself, drew her down on his lap and she continued:

"You remember our conversation about the heroine in the novel who reclaimed her husband by leaving him with her rival and Dick's singular comment? Well, I resolved to test Dick to see whether he was of an unprincipled as he pretended. Fortunately you were called away"—

"No; I went intentionally to apply your heroine's device to you."

"You don't mean it? Well, it helped me amazingly in what I was intending to do. I soon saw that you were jealous but I didn't think it best to take you into my confidence, and it wouldn't be for long. Since you have been away this time I have put a severe test upon Dick."

"And the result?" asked Hathorne eagerly.

"He is not at all the man he is supposed to be and that he permits others to think him. I have proved to my satisfaction that he has a high regard for women and deep sympathy with one attempting to maintain her loyalty to her husband."

"You have, eh? What did you try to do with him?"

"I tried to make him love me. I offered to run away with him before your return."

"And what did he do?"

"Fled, as if Satan were pursuing him."

"And you consider that he did this out of reverence for your sex?"

"I do; he told me so."

"The liar! He acted through loyalty to me."

SUFFERED AWFUL PAINS

For Sixteen Years. Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moretown, Vermont.—"I was troubled with pains and irregularities for sixteen years, and was thin, weak and nervous. When I would lie down it would seem as if I was going right down out of sight into some dark hole, and the window curtains had faces that would peek out at me, and when I was out of doors it would seem as if something was going to happen. My blood was poor, my circulation was so bad I would be like a dead person at times. I had female weakness badly, my abdomen was sore and I had awful pains.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash and they certainly did wonders for me. My troubles disappeared and I am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. W. F. SAWYER, River View Farm, Moretown, Vermont.

Another Case.

SHOULD REPEAL ACT.

Removal of Panama Exemptions Would Be Friendly Says Paper.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Several of the morning newspapers print editorials on President Wilson's announcement that he would use his influence to have the provision of the Panama Canal Act exempting American coastwise vessels from the payment of tolls repealed.

The Daily News says experience has shown that President Wilson's use of his legitimate influence is, for practical purposes, irresistible.

The Daily Chronicle, expressing the hope that President Wilson will carry the Senate with him, remarks that it makes little difference whether the objectionable clause be repealed or referred to arbitartion since it is unable to conceive that any arbitartion court would decide the issue otherwise than in favor of Great Britain. The Chronicle thinks, however, that repealing the clause would be the more friendly, dignified and courteous course to pursue.

ILLNESS CONFIRMED.

Commission of Doctors Attest to Mr. Mousseau's Condition.

QUEBEC, Feb. 7.—The committee of the Legislative Assembly investigating the charges of corruption will have to dispense with the evidence of the only accused members of their House, as the medical commission last night reported that J. Ostave Mousseau, who has resigned his seat in consequence of the graft charges against him was quite unable to appear. Dr. Edouard Lebel described Mousseau's condition as being very serious. He added: "He may remain that way for weeks, for months and perhaps for years. But it is not possible to tell yet if it will prove fatal."

Asked to tell the committee the nature of the case, the doctor said he could not do so as he had not made a diagnosis of the case. He was not asked to do so, but merely to ascertain if he was able to appear before the committee.

Armand Lavergne: "But if you don't know the nature of his illness how can you tell that he is likely to remain like it for years?"

Dr. Lebel: "I cannot answer that question. It is a professional secret."

Dr. Lebel's two colleagues corroborated the serious nature of Mr. Mousseau's illness.

TRIED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or exposure of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

Condemns Deportation.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 7.—In the debate in Parliament yesterday on the bill to indemnify the Government for its acts under martial law, Patrick Duncan, former Colonial Secretary of the Transvaal, strongly condemned the recent deportation of the strike leaders as not having been justified by their acts, and as not being conducive of industrial peace.

Mr. Duncan said if the principle of right of judicial trial were thrown aside there would be nothing before the country but government by revolution.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds, and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure, and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia water drink.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS MAKE WOMEN WELL

Just because she is a woman, there are times when every woman needs help and strength in the form of a blood-building tonic.

To thousands of girls and women Dr. William's Pink Pills have proved a blessing, because they enrich the blood, give strength and restore tone to the aching nerves. The anaemic girl who is languid and pale, the wife whose back feels like breaking; the matron whose health fails as she reaches middle age—for all such sufferers, Dr. William's Pink Pills are invaluable, because ill health in woman is usually caused by poor blood or insufficient blood. These pills have cured thousands of others, why not you? Mrs. D. Morine, Wallbrook, N. S., says:—"It is impossible for me to say too much in praise of Dr. William's Pink Pills. I have been a great sufferer from those troubles that make the life of so many women an almost constant misery. Pains in the back and side racked and tortured me. My nerves seemed to give out, and at times I could do no house work, and only women who have similarly suffered know what I endured. I tried medicine after medicine without any benefit, and was finally persuaded to try Dr. William's Pink Pills. Soon after starting the pills I found an improvement, and as I continued their use my health and strength returned, and I now feel as well as ever I did in my life, and I am relating my experience merely in the hope that it may lead some other suffering woman to renewed health. I my add that my mother suffered from rheumatism, so badly that she had to use a crutch and Dr. William's Pink Pills completely restored her to her usual good health."

Always get the genuine pills with the full name "Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. If your dealer does not keep them, the pills will be sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by writing The Dr. William's Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

During the course of the rising at Lima, Peru, eleven persons were killed and 37 wounded.

The Port Arthur council will send a deputation to Ottawa to urge the immediate construction of the Georgian Bay Canal.

Word was received from Urban, Ky., that six workmen had lost their lives when boilers in a sawmill at that place exploded.

The German Minister to Mexico yesterday requisitioned the German steamship Ypiranga for the removal of German subjects from Tampico.

Wreckage of a big ship has been sighted off Naftel's Point, near Clinton. It may be the John McGean of Cleveland, which went down in November last.

Another case of smallpox at McGill University discovered yesterday will probably result in the entire closing down of the faculty of science for the time being.

Early closing of all stores is expected to go into effect in Clinton, Ont., on Feb. 16. The move is the result of a big agitation on the part of the local merchants.

The petition to establish a domestic relations court in Montreal for dealing with cases of desertion and non-support, which was sent to Quebec a fortnight ago, is receiving favorable attention.

Citizens of Nelson, B.C., are now riding in their own street cars. Under the bylaws for the purchase and operation of the system which were passed, the municipality agreed to take over the cars.

MISS SYLVIA SECEDES.

She Disapproves of the Peaceful Leanings of Her Sister.

LONDON, Feb. 7. — Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of the militant suffragette leader, yesterday announced her secession from the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant women's organization. Her east end of London federation, which hitherto has been a branch of the parent organization, will henceforth be entirely independent.

The rift among the militant suffragettes is said to be due to Miss Sylvia Pankhurst's ultra-revolutionary aspirations, which the leaders of the Women's Social and Political Union are beginning to believe are damaging their cause.

Reports of dissensions in the inner circles of the militant organization, involving the Pankhurst triumvirate, have been in circulation for some time. According to these, Christabel Pankhurst is anxious to end her long exile in Paris and return to London and take control of the organization.

But Christabel, the reports have it, desires to come back under conditions that will not necessitate frequent terms of imprisonment for her under the "cat and mouse" act. Therefore, it is said, she wants militancy dropped.

Sylvia Pankhurst, on the other hand, is not prepared to abandon militancy until she has fully tested the fighting capacity of her "people's army."

JOSEPH MARTIN IS ILL.

Former Premier of B. C. Confined to Room in Toronto Hotel.

TORONTO, Feb. 7. — Taken ill while coming from the west, on his return to England, Joseph Martin, the Canadian M.P. who represents St. Pancras in the British House of Commons, was forced to leave the train when it reached Toronto yesterday, and on being taken to the King Edward Hotel, was confined to his room, being too ill to see anyone.

The Canadian member of the British House had left his home in Victoria, B.C., at the beginning of the week, and had expected, by making close steamship connections, to be present during the opening week of Parliament in London. Owing to his illness, however, he was compelled to discontinue his journey at Toronto. He expressed the hope to some friends that a rest of a few days here would enable him to resume his trip.

His indisposition is in the nature of a nervous breakdown, and it is possible it may lead to his postponing his return to England for an indefinite period.

ATTACKS THE EDITOR.

Marie Lloyd Makes Violent Attack on Vancouver Journalist.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 7—Marie Lloyd, the English comedienne, yesterday afternoon called at the office of The World newspaper and viciously attacked L. D. Taylor, the manager and a former mayor of Vancouver. The police were sent for, and a big crowd had gathered before the trouble was stopped. Miss Lloyd used a heavy trunk strap and struck Mr. Taylor several sharp blows across the face before bystanders interfered.

The singer was enraged at an article in The World, criticizing her performance in a local theatre, and referring to her difficulties at the hands of the immigration officials.

Schmidt Will Not Appeal.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7. — Hans Schmidt, who was found guilty of murder of Anna Aumuller, is seemingly content with the verdict and declines to permit his counsel to appeal.

Schmidt will be sentenced next Wednesday to die in the electric chair.

He has worn a silk handkerchief in lieu of a collar and his appearance has been unkempt.

BIG ESTATE DWINDLED.

Strathcona's Fortune Is Now Estimated at $31,500,000.

MONTREAL, Feb. 7. — The most reliable estimates of Lord Strathcona's estate place it at $31,500,000. Three years ago it would have been $45,000,000, the difference being attributable to shrinkage in Northern Pacific stock. The death duties will aggregate about $5,000,000.

The Messrs. Garson of Edinburgh, Lord Strathcona's lawyers, and Mr. Sterling of New York, as administrators, will divide 7 1-2 per cent. amongst them, totalling $2,300,000.

The legacies will probably aggregate $4,000,000 apart from his daughter, Lady Strathcona, and a special provision entailed for her heirs. Thus Lady Strathcona will have control of $20,000,000 inclusive of the special provision for her heirs of $2,500,000. Her family consists of one daughter (Mrs. Kitson), married to a lieutenant in the navy; one unmarried and three sons, Donald, Harold and Arthur, the eldest of whom will become Lord Strathcona with an entail of $2,500,000 and a probable revision of $4,000,000 more.

FIRE LOSS IS $250,000.

Plant of Shurly-Dietrich Co. of Galt Is Completely Gutted.

GALT, Ont., Feb. 7.—Fire, which broke out early yesterday morning in the Shurly-Dietrich, Ltd., saw and bed manufactory, gutted practically the whole plant, which covers the greater portion of a block. Only a solid brick warehouse, recently erected, remained, the rest of the building not so solidly constructed having burned like tinder. Although at one time it was thought the solid stone office would be saved, the fire got it. It is expected that the loss will reach about $250,000, and 150 men will be thrown out of employment. The insurance is $86,000.

The fire started in the tempering department and Joseph Moore, night watchman, tried for a time to fight it with a single hose of the factory department.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1914

PACKAGES FOR PARCEL POST MUST BE CAREFULLY WRAPPED

Instructions From Post Office Department in Connection With New System to be Inaugurated on Tuesday.

MARK PERISHABLE GOODS

It is not expected that the introduction of the parcels post scheme will create any unusual upheaval in connection with things postal and otherwise. Up to the present there have not been many inquiries made at the local post office and Mr. Jas. Edgar, postmaster, stated to the Examiner that he believed it would be some time before the advantages of parcels post were realised and appreciated by the general public.

There is nothing very intricate in the procedure of sending a package by parcels post. The public is reminded that the weight limit until April is six pounds. If you have a parcel to despatch by this system take it to the stamp vendor at the post office where it will be weighed and the clerk will state the number of stamps to be placed on it.

A Few Cautions.

The following are a few instructions which should be remembered by those sending parcels:

First they should not be sealed. A sealed package is subject to letter rate.

Second, do not place a letter inside it. One local man was fined ten dollars some months ago for this offence against the postal law.

Third, wrap the parcel as carefully as possible, and tie it just as carefully.

Fourth, the sender should write his name on the inside and also on the outside of the package. For instance J. Jones is sending a package to Hamilton. He should write on the outside of the package, and possibly apart from the address. "From J. Jones, 23 Bertram Avenue, Peterborough." And to make assurance doubly sure it will be best to write the two addresses on a piece of paper which is wrapped up with the package.

Fifth, all addresses should be clearly and plainly written.

Sixth, articles such as butter, fish, meat, fruit and other perishable goods should be so designated on the outside of the package in order that they shall receive immediate attention.

After April all packages will be insured and the necessity of registering them will be removed.

The Delivery of Parcels.

There will be two deliveries a day in the business section of the City and one in the residential districts. Every parcel weighing more than three pounds will be delivered in a waggon, Mr. W. Lytle having received the contract for this work.

It is expected that the business handled by parcels post will grow according as the people become acquainted with it. It must be remembered that the rate within a twenty mile zone is 5c. for the first pound and 1c for each additional pound or fraction thereof to four pounds, and two cents for each subsequent pound up to eleven pounds which will be the limit of weight after April.

To all other points in the Province the rate is 10c. for the first pound and 4c. for each subsequent pound. To points outside the province the rate is 10c. for the first pound and 6c. for each additional pound with an additional charge of two cents for each province to be crossed to the destination of the parcel, not including the province in which it is to be delivered up to a maximum of 12c. a pound.

Example of Rate.

Hence a three pound package may be sent to Hastings for 7 cents, a six pounder for 12c. and an 11 lb. parcel for 22c.

A three pound parcel sent to Hamilton would cost 18c. and so on.

The system will be inaugurated on Tuesday. Two assistants have been taken on in the local office, and Toronto has only six. It is thus evident that the Department does not expect an exceedingly heavy business at the beginning, although it is impossible to tell what the results will be.

AWAIT NEW PARLIAMENT ANXIOUSLY

Essential Issue of Coming Session in Britain is the Enforcement of the Parliament Act

HAVE UNIONISTS A SCHEME?

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., Feb. 7. — Politicians await Tuesday's opening of Parliament with an anxiety rarely paralleled in modern times. There is everywhere a sense of strain and tension which may easily develop at the first fight into scenes of amazing violence. Parliamentarism and democracy are on trial.

The Liberals realize that the essential issue of the coming session is not home rule, but the enforcement of the Parliamentary Acts, and the demonstration of supremacy of the Comons over the Lords. The Unionists during the past week have developed an amazing air of confidence. They declare that they have a secret plan up their sleeve which will inevitably force dissolution within the next three months. Rumour describes their methods to be schemes which have been previously mentioned: the rejection of the Army Bill by the Lords in combination with the Labour Party, and anti-armament Liberals to defeat the Government over the navy estimates, the Unionists voting with the others in a snap division for reduction, or organized obstruction. Unless they have some better scheme they will fail. The Government on their side have resolved to leave no stone unturned to advance their conciliation policy. King George has again taken a hand in the game and is exercising his full influence within constitutional lines, to effect a compromise. Ireland will from the opening hour, dominate the new session. Nothing else is now discussed. Lloyd George's press supporters continue to refer acrimoniouly to Churchill's ducal indifference to money. The latest report is that Lloyd George, compelled to yield to Churchill on various details of expenditure, is avenging himself by planning a budget to make the rich pay, and will increase the death duties and impose a supertax of two shillings in the pound on incomes over five thousand pounds.

POLICE ARE STILL MYSTIFIED

Over the Disappearance of a Bulgarian in Havelock—No New Developements

RETURNED TO TORONTO

HAVELOCK, Feb. 7.—Very little light has been thrown on the mystery surrounding the disappearance of N. Doloff, a Bulgarian, who has been missing since December the sixth. Doloff had been working with a C.P.R. construction gang and at the time of his disappearance, is said to have had a large sum of money. Some of his clothes covered with blood stains have been found.

Another Bulgarian, named Kola Volceoff, disappeared after being questioned by the police.

Constable Clarence Post informed your correspondent this morning, that no further revelations had been made. Provincial Detective Boyd, who has been investigating the case, has returned to Toronto.

St. George's A.Y.P.A. Had Good Meeting

Address on Telepathy by Mr. W. F. Johnston Was One of the Features

Everyone who has ever had anything to do with St. George's Anglican Church, on Braidwood Avenue, must know that it neither has chancel, tower bell, and perhaps a lot of other things; but at the same time it can boast of one of the most sociable young people's societies in Peterborough. The membership is increasing every week, much to the satisfaction of the committee, who are doing their best to make every meeting better than the one preceding it. The last meeting, which was hld on Wednesday last, was very much enjoyed by all present. The programme started with an address on 'Telepathy' by Mr. W. F. Johnston, after which the usual social programme was carried out. Before the speaker started his address he said that as a member of St. John's Church, he wa always glad to do all he could to assist St. George's. St. John's has always been regarded as a mother Church by the people in the South end, hut Mr. Johnston goes a step further than that and calls it Mother in-law, because it is always ready to help the young Church along. The subject was very interesting from start to finish, many things being said that set the audience thinking, and it is quite possible even now that some of the young people do not agree with all the ghost-like stories that were told. The Committee thanks Mr Johnston and also the other ladies and gentlemen who were kind enough to sing and make the evening so pleasant. At the close of the musical parts of the programme the ladies served light refreshments. Next Wednesday evening the society hopes to have an other good speaker, but further particulars will be published later.

PRESENTATION TO S. S. TEACHER

Mr. A. Stewart Given a Handsome Club Bag

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Micks, 425 Stewart street, entertained the Inthon Bible Class of the George St. Methodist Church last evening. About twenty-five members were present and a very pleasant time was spent with a programme of readings, music and speeches. During the evening a presentation was made to the teacher of the class, Mr. A. Stewart, of a handsome club bag and set. Mr. H. J. Walker, president of the class, read the address, while the presentation was made by Mr. R. Shield. At the conclusion refreshments were served and thus ended one of the happiest times in the history of the class.

Mr. Wm. Collins Is Re-elected Auditor

Mr. W. Collins was re-elected one of the two auditors at the annual meeting of the Ontario Association of Fairs and Exhibits held in Toronto on Thursday and Friday. He and Mr. Charlie Moore represented the Peterborough Exhibition. T. Bredin and T. T. Milburn of Lakefield, Messrs Howson and Eason of Keene, Messrs. Roxburgh, F. Birdsall and C. O. Reilly of Norwood were also present. Mr. Collins states that the fall fairs are more than holding their prestige. The reports for last year showed a good financial standing.

A MEMENTO OF THE PAST

There is considerable historic significance in the circumstance that the C. P. R. has just taken for the winter month the old Cunard building erected by the founder of the Cunard line—Mr. Samuel Cunard, who was a Halifax man and who made his name famous in the shipping and mercantile world. It was to Halifax that he brought his first ships; it was in the old office he bent over his task. There is a new day and new methods; and a degree of expansion of which he could not have dreamt. The shipping business has increased hundredfold during the last half century. The stress and strain of life are indicated by the speed demanded on land and sea — speed which the old founder could not have foreseen in his most prescient moment. The old house (or offices) is a three-storey building of stone with the quaint old windows hinting a quiet and sedate world which minded its business and did not bother looking out at hobble skirts. The name is cut on the old building—"S. Cunard"—offering a memento of the past full of interest, suggesting at once the small beginnings of a great business to which he devoted his energy and genius and the amazing development of that business, keeping pace with modern demand, by the C. P. R.

Impossible.

Binks—When will you be able to pay me that money you owe me?
Winks—Next week, Friday.
Binks—And will you call at my office?
Winks—Impossible! I'm going on a hunting trip with it.

PLEADED "GUILTY" BUT DISCHARGED

Albert Brayman Faces Two Charges of Getting Board and Livery Outfit Under False Pretences

CHARGES OF THEFT

A precedent was established in the local Police Court this morning when Albert Brayman pleaded guilty to securing a horse and rig from Jones Bros.' livery, under false pretenes, and after doing so the Magistrate dismissed the charge against him. Brayman was found guilty however, of securing board and lodgings from Mr. Blastorah of the Palace Hotel, under false pretences, and was fined $4 and costs amounting to $7.75 with an alternative of ten days in gaol.

In the first case the prisoner, on the advice of his counsel, pleaded guilty to the charge, and it turned out subsequently that the Chief had ample evidence to prove the case. He asked for a remand for a week, but this was not granted and the Magistrate expressed his wish to hear the evidence.

Mr. Jones, of the Jones' livery, was the first witness. He said that on Thursday Brayman entered the livery barn and asked for a horse. He told Mr. Jones that he wanted to drive to the home of Mr. Bennett, who owed him some money, and that he would pay him when he came back. He went away and did not come back at all. The outfit he left in a yard in East City.

"Could you swear positively of your own personal knowledge that any fact he alleged is not true and that it was because you took his word for that fact that you gave him the outfit?" asked the Magistrate.

"Yes. He said he'd bring it back and he didn't."

"But do you know that this man in the country does not owe the prisoner money?"

"No".

"Well," said the Magistrate, before the Chief could ask for the opportunity of offering more evidence, "you have not proved there was any fraud. The case is dismissed.

In the next case the prisoner pleaded guilty to scuring board and lodging from the proprietor of the Palace Hotel, and the Magistrate, as in the first case, asked to hear the evidence.

Mr. Blastorah told how the prisoner came into the hotel on January 22nd and secured board on the promise to pay when he received the money coming to him from a farmer of this vicinity. Prisoner left the hotel, however, and did not pay for his board.

Detective Newhall, in the witness box, said that the prisoner had admitted to him that he had no money coming to him from the farmer in question.

"That is a case of fraud," said the Magistrate.

"He admitted the same thing to me in the Jones case," said Detective Newhall.

"The Jones case is disposed of," said the Magistrate.

Brayton was fined $4 and costs or ten days in gaol.

Three young men, Frank Longo, Wesley Crouter and Leslie Wright were charged with stealing four horse hides, valued at $15. They were defended by Mr. G. N. Gordon, who, on their behalf, elected summary trial and pleaded "not guilty." At the request of the Chief the young men were remanded until Friday next.

The young men are alleged to have stolen the hides off the four horses killed by the C. P. R. train in Oronabee, last Friday. They were the property of Mr. W. Brownson and Mr. Foster of this City.

Six Months For Bank Clerk

Forbes Skene of Lindsay Was Convicted of Forgery

LINDSAY, Feb. 7.—Two cases were up in police court yesterday. Forbes Skene, late of the Bank of Montreal, whom Chief Chilton brought back from Toronto last night, appeared to answer two charges of forgery brought against him by the guarantee company which furnished him with bonds to the Bank of Montreal. It appears he forged two receipts of fifty dollars each on the savings account of Walter J. Graham. He was sentenced to six months in Central Prison on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently. G. H. Hopkins, K.C. acted for the Crown, and Geo. A. Jordan for the accused.

GUELPH FARMER KILLED AT A LEVEL CROSSING

Two Others Hurt When Train Strikes a Buggy—Three Children Jumped

WAS SNOWING HARD

GUELPH, Feb. 7.—Robt. Wright, about 40 years of age, of Ashgrove, three and a half miles from Georgetown, was killed, and Mildred Bessey, aged 15, is lying seriously injured at the Guelph General Hospital, as a result of being struck by a Grand Trunk passenger train going east shortly before five o'clock yesterday afternoon, while driving in a buggy.

The fatality occurred at a level crossing on the seventh line of the Township of Esquesing, two miles west of Georgetown.

Pearl Bessey, aged 13, who also was an occupant of the buggy, escaped with a bruise on one knee. Her brother, Roy, aged 9, and David Marcellus, another lad of about the same age, who were sitting in the back of the buggy, jumped in time to save themselves and were uninjured.

Wright, who died as he was being lifted from the train at Guelph station, had been in attendance at an auction sale on the seventh line of Esquesing, as had also John W. Bessey, the father of the injured girls, but Wright left for home first, fearing that the snow storm might block the road. He picked up the four young people on the way, as they were going home from school.

It was snowing hard and Mr. Wright could see only a short distance ahead of him, but he evidently heard that rain coming and kept telling the girls to watch out for it. Just before they came to the crossing the train came thundering down the track, and the horse becoming unmanageable, bolted directly in front of the engine. It was killed instantly and the occupants of the buggy were thrown some distance.

The train was brought to a standstill as quickly as possible and the injured were placed in the rear coach and taken to Georgetown, where physicians were summoned. The injured were placed on the westbound train for Guelph, but as stated, Wright died as he was being lifted from the train. It was later discovered that his back was broken.

An examination proved that Mildred Bessey's right thigh was broken a: l her left arm also, and she has not regained consciousness. Her condition is serious. Mr. Bessey came up on a later train and is at the bedside at the General Hospital.

BY-LAW IS ENDORSED BY THE COMMITTEE

Ratepayers Will be Given an Opportunity of Voting Ten Thousand Dollars to Assist in the Erection of a Sanatorium

"THE STEAMBOAT CURE"

A by-law for the purpose of borrowing the sum of ten thousand dollars to pay to the Peterborough Health Association to assist in the erection of a tuberculosis sanatorium for City purposes will be submitted to the ratepayers at some future date. That is providing the City Council give legislative effect to the roommendation that was endorsed by the Committee of the Whole Council, last evening. An amendment asking for special legislation from the provincial parliament, authorizing the expenditure without the assent of the ratepayers, was defeated. It was the general consensus of opinion among the Aldermen that the ratepayers should be consulted in respect to the proposed expenditure.

A Deputation.

A deputation comprising Messrs. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., W. H. Dunford and Dr. O. Neale, representing the Peterborough Health Association, waited upon the Committee and renewed the request which had its initiation on Monday last. Those present at the meeting were His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Duffus, Anderson, Stratton, Saunders, Duncan, Johnston, Green and Langford.

Mayor Buller opened the discussion by reading a section of the Act relating to the erection and maintenance of a sanitaria. Such institutions are exempt from all taxes including school taxes. It is proposed to erect a sanatorium in Peterborough, costing in the neighbourhood of twenty-four thousand dollars. Ten thousand of this amount to be raised by the Health Association, ten thousand to be provided by the City, and the remaining four thousand dollars by the Government, in the form of a grant.

The city has the choice of submitting a by-law to the ratepayers authorizing the issuance of debentures to the extent of ten thousand dollars, or of securing special legislation enabling them to expend that amount without the assent of the people. The Council indicated their preference for the first method of raising the money, with the result that it was decided to submit a by-law to the people.

"If we are going to have a hospital of that nature," said Ald. Stratton, the measure should go before the people. I don't think we have any right as a Council to spend ten thousand dollars without the sanction of the ratepayers."

Ald. Green—"I don't think we have the money to spend. We have two hospitals at the present time where tubercular patients can be treated. There is plenty of room. I don't think we want a hospital of this kind within the Corporation. In Gravenhurst consumption is said to be on the increase among the inhabitants, owing to the number of consumptives that pass in and out of the town."

"Where would you put them?" inquired Mr. Peck.

"Just a minute," interrupted Mayor Buller. "You can apply the same argument to this question as you applied to the Isolation Hospital. If you dispense with the Isolation Hospital you would have to put the patients in the regular hospitals and meet the cost. It is just about as cheap for the City to build an institution of their own. I think the Isolation Hospital is a good thing, but I think a cheaper building would have done. As it is now it is an expensive piece of furniture. I am not against building hospitals. You have got to take care of the poor man and the bachelor. You cannot chloroform them."

"It might be wise to let the gentlemen be heard," suggested Ald. Johnston at the conclusion of the Mayor's one-minute dilation.

Not Fair to Other Patients.

"The trouble in Gravenhurst," said Dr. Neale, in reply to Ald. Green's remarks, is that they don't enforce the laws. If we have an institution of our own we can control the patients over whom we have supervision. Our idea is to serve the City, and probably at some subsequent date arrangements could be made to serve the County. The hospital is no place for an advanced case of tuberculosis. It's not fair to the nurses and the other patients to have them there.

WHAT do people buy and why do they buy it?

This problem should interest everyone who has anything to sell, and the fact that your business is not as large as that of a department store, does not mean that your methods of selling should be radically different or that you need give no thought to the subject.

Ask any successful merchant why certain goods sell better than others, and he will tell you it is quality plus advertising. Even poor goods can be sold by advertising, but a second sale is not likely and either one of two articles equally good, can be sold almost to the exclusion of the other, by good advertising.

Count on your fingers ten things that you buy regularly and see how many of them are articles that are extensively advertised. Go home and look in your wife's pantry and see how many advertised articles she buys, and then stop and think. Why does she buy these things in preference to many others which are in many instances, just as good? It's advertising.

You have a desire to try a particular article because you have learned something about it,—you become convinced it is good and you want it. A local dealer advertises it for sale and you ask for it, as though it were an old friend. The sale is the result of good advertising.

CONGRATULATION.

There is double cause for congratulation over the appointment of ex-Mayor Bradburn to the important office of commissioner of the Town Trust. We believe the city has secured a good servant in this capacity. His experience in the office of Mayor, whose duties he discharged to general satisfaction, conjoined with a business experience largely associated with financial operations should count as essential qualifiactions for his trust. He is to be personally congratulated, for he has been honoured by promotion to his present official associations, and become a successor to a long line of honoured citizens who have held positions on the Trust Commission during the past fifty-three years. So far as is known, and trusting to the endorsation of successive auditors, the business of the Town Trust has been discharged with fidelity and effectiveness; and with the board now complete, we have no reason to fear that there will be any variation of the traditions of faithfulness and efficiency the experience of the past half century has associated with the Peterborough Town Trust.

HANGING AND HOMICIDE.

Mr. Bickerdike's bill to abolish capital punishment, brought out one of the few lady-like debates that are heard in the Commons. Its mild character was a tribute to the good intentions of the members; they didn't seem to think the matter had a personal bearing—they don't seem to intend to do anything that would hang them, at least anything that the law would recognise as a hanging matter. Throughout the whole debate there was a delightful absence of partizanship. The only exception was Mr. Edwards of Frontenac, who got a "side sweep" at Hon. Mr. Doherty, Minister of Justice when he declared that the inmates of the Kingston penitentiary would prefer the rope to imprisonment in this well known prison under its present administration. The bill is still under debate, but is not likely to pass; the House will not likely remove a punitive provision that makes our sleep o' nights attended with a sense of safety. This would be wanting if murderers would be tempted to ply their business under fear of no heavier penalty than a few years in a penitentiary, with the hope of release if confinement tended to derange their delicate organizations and induce ill health. When we feel inclined to pump up maudlin sympathy for bloodthirsty wretches whose room is better than their company, and commiserate their removal by a painless process of elimination, we lose sight of the prolonged suffering they inflict to compass the death of useful members of society.

SAVING HIS COUNTRY'S HONOUR.

President Wilson of the United States has, so far, justified the confidence of the electorate whose trust in his honourable character, sound judgment and fidelity to principle, secured his elevation to the highly responsible position he holds. In many ways he has shown moral courage, the courage of his convictions and of his promises, expressed and implied. It is doubtful, however, that he has ever shown to such advantage as a man and a statesman as he does in the stand he has taken in regard to disavowing sympathy with the policy of discrimination in the matter of Panama Canal tolls in favour of United States' coasting vessels. He is reported as a favouring the repeal of the provisions of the Panama Canal Act of 1912, which grants exemption from payment of canal tolls to United States' shipping engaged in coastal trade. This is the position one would expect any man of honourable principles to take, not to speak of a man occupying the place of head of the nation, the custodian of the honour of the country he governs and of its good name for fidelity to the obligations that international good faith imposes. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty between Great Britain and the United States is regarded as unmistakably guaranteeing equal treatment to all nations in the matter of canal tolls; and it is difficult to regard the proposal of discriminatory favours to United States' vessels as involving anything less than a breach of national faith. If President Wilson succeeds in giving effect to the views he is credited with holding upon this matter, he will have done something for his country that will far transcend anything he has yet done or may be called upon to do. His saving his country, from the reproach of huckestry with its national honour for the sordid sake of comparatively paltry material gain will be something well worth while. His saving the national good faith from being made a synonym for Punica fides, will not be one of the smallest achievements of his presidential career, however distinguished it may be.

THE MENACE OF MILITARISM.

Europe may be regarded as the continental cradle of civilization; but it also promises to become the grave of civilising influence and progress. Its extravagant militarism threatens to strangle civilization in its best manifestations and disturb and displace boundaries, as a form of militarism, made for settled national conditions the definition of boundaries and advance of civil liberty and personal freedom. For centuries Europe was an armed camp, a scene of shifting battle fields. Out of this fighting chaos came order and comparative peace and the ripening of the fruits of civilization. Now militarism, the mad race of armaments threatens to unmake what has been made. Europe has lost her unique prestige as the home of civilization and all that it implies. On other continents the same conditions of advance are growing up or have grown up. North and South America and Australia are developing new great powers, and even Asia is stirring in her sleep, and waking to join the ranks of civilized nations. Europe may long maintain her leading place in the ranks, but it needs little wisdom to see how her chances are imperilled by the concentration of so much national energy upon the development and maintenance of disintegrating forces represented by the dominance of militarism. Sir Edward Grey is right in regarding disaster as the finishing post in the race of armaments, the legitimate out come of the exaggerated spirit of militarism. Behind this as a spur in the jingo spirit, born of worship of gold lace, and the greed of gun and armament makers. Reasonable means of defence in armies and navies is easily defensible on the same grounds that a police force is defensible. Canada has no warrant for contributing to the wicked waste of money, diverted from the legitimate purposes of peaceful development. We might well build and maintain a modest naval force of our own. This would involve domestic material development and would serve every purpose for which Canada can reasonably expect to need or use a naval force, the policing of her two coasts and in a case of need cooperation with the home navy.

MOTTLED BUTTER

What is the cause of mottled butter, and how can this fault be remedied?

Butter which is full of mottles (white specks of hardened casein) is due solely to fault in the process of manufacture. The cow cannot be blamed for this trouble, as she sometimes is when the butter is tainted. If the cream is properly ripened, the butter sufficiently washed, and good salt employed, mottled butter does not obtain. Churning sweet cream is often a cause of white specks in butter, but this practice is fast declining, except in a few cases where sweet-cream butter is demanded.

In the ripening of cream it is the lactic acid which dissolves the casein, but if the cream is too acid the casein precipitates and hardens. In this state much of the casein becomes incorporated in the butter, instead of passing away with the butter-milk or washing-water. If the butter is mottled even when the cream has been judiciously treated previous to churning, the cause may lie in the over-heating of the cream in the churn, or the insufficient washing of the butter grains. Over-heated cream cannot be churned to butter grains, and therefore the butter cannot be properly washed. Dry salted butter is more liable to go mottled than when brined, as in the former case it is difficult to distribute the salt evenly throughout the butter. Always employ a good brand of dairy salt, as inferior salt causes mottled butter and also affects the flavor of this commodity.

Making More Dollars

Canada is "making" money. The Government has to print more dollars every year to meet the demands of business prosperity—but the dollar you make must have purchasing power if it adds to your health and comfort. For a Canadian dollar you can get one hundred and that means a hundred wholesome, nourishing breakfasts. If you add coffee, milk and cream, a deliciously nourishing Shredded Wheat breakfast should not cost over five cents. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is ready-cooked and ready-to-serve—a boon to busy housekeepers and growing children.

SHREDDED WHEAT

Always heat the Biscuit in oven to restore crispness. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with hot milk or cream will supply all the energy needed for a half day's work. Try Toasted Triscuit, the Shredded Wheat wafer, for luncheon, with butter, cheese or marmalade.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Syndicate.)

History has failed to locate a man or a boy, a woman or a girl, who ever made any kind of a success, who ever amounted to anything, who ever was in demand, who ever was respected, who ever obtained promotion, who ever was recognised as worth while for a friend, who didn't work, and work hard, whatever his or her station in life may have been.

The loafer in business, and in society, is without friends, and stands no chance of recognition. He never gets anywhere, and he never stays anywhere He is despised, even by his kind.

There is no royal road to success. The highway leading to accomplishment is never straight, never smooth, and never strewn with flowers. It is a hard road to travel. If it were not so, there would be no incentive for ambition, and the whole world would stagnate.

We hear a great deal of talk about genius and natural ability. We are told that some men reach the top without working, without straining themselves. Facts force me to admit that one without ability is not likely to rise as high as one who possesses it, but all the ability in the world, magnified and intensified, is practically worthless without incessant labour.

There is no market for undeveloped ability.

The great vocalist, whose voice has thrilled millions, would have been but an unknown singer, if he had not trained what nature gave him.

The natural financier, who is jingling millions in the hollow of his hand, would have remained an under-clerk, if he had not studied, worked and developed his ability.

Success depends, not wholly upon ability, and not wholly upon development, but upon both. Slight ability, well developed, is worth more than great ability undeveloped.

It is seldom that anything comes to those who wait for it; and, if it does arrive, the recipient does not know what to do with it.

The under man looks up to the one above him, and he may ignorantly assume that, because accomplishment seems easy to the man of success, it was not difficult for him to reach the goal. Work may not be strenuous after one has become fully trained, but ease in doing is dependent upon the hard work which preceded it.

May I not relate a little story? A man, with a cinder deeply imbedded in his eye, called upon a great eye specialist. With a few movements of his fingers the cinder was removed and the charge was twenty-five dollars. The patient had an altercation with the doctor's assistant. After he had expressed himself, the attendant quickly replied to him, "The doctor charged only a dollar for taking out the cinder, and twenty-four for knowing how.' This physician, who was able to command a large fee for a few seconds' or minutes' work, had spent years in developing his skill.

The same condition applies to all industries and to all business activities. One cannot know how to do anything unless he has worked hard while a student or in the develoment state, after which difficult things become easy.

Work, and you will climb,
Loaf, and you will fall.

Have Been An Untold Benefit

New Brunswick Woman Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She Suffered for Four Years, and the Doctor Could Not Help Her, But Dodd's Kidney Pills Gave Her a New Lease of Life.

Porton, Carleton Co., N.B., Feb. 6.—(Special).—"I find Dodd's Kidney Pills the best kidney medicine I have ever used. They have been of untold benefit to me."

The speaker is Mrs. John S. Dickinson of this place. She is enthusiastic in her praises of the great Canadian kidney remedy, and not without reason.

"I suffered from kidney trouble that started in a cold," she continues, "and for four years I was never free of it. I was treated by a doctor, but he did not seem to be able to do me much good.

"I had rheumatism and neuralgia, and my joints were stiff; my muscles cramped, and I was always tired and nervous. I perspired freely with the slightest exertion. I was depressed and low spirited, my limbs swelled, and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"Nine boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new woman of me."

Are not Mrs. Dickinson's symptoms those of any run-down, worn-out womn? They are also the symptoms of kidney disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills give new life to run-down women by curing their kidneys.

House Throws Out Burnham's Bill for Making Dominion Election Deposit Vary With Provinces

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—The bill fathered by Mr. Burnham of Peterborough, providing that the question of a deposit from candidates in the Dominion elections follow the practice of the Province was lost on its second reading. The present practice required a uniform deposit of $200 from candidates at the Dominion elections. Hon. C. J. Doherty thought that this uniformity was desirable, and the majority of the House agreed.

HERE'S A FULL LIST OF LUCKY BIRTH STONES

If You Were Born in June Wear Pearls—For October the Opal is the Lucky Gem

For January the proper gem is garnet. One of its attributes was supposed to be that it brought sleep to those subject to insomnia; riches, honour, great wisdom, constancy and fidelity in every engagement—surely a very "lucky" stone.

For February is the amethyst. Some of the light, pale varieties come from Brazil, while others that are livid with purple light come from Ceylon and India. The ancient Bommans believed that he or she who drank wine from a cup made from this gem could not become intoxicated.

For March, the bloodstone is the symbol of wisdom and courage, and it produces firmness of affection. It is a dark green quartz with small red spots of jasper diffused through it, is opaque, and usually cut with a rounded top and with a flat abck. It is mined in India.

April's birth stone is the diamond supposed to keep its wearer from wrong-doing and unavailing remorse.

Emeralds For May.

For May, the accepted gem is the emerald. The best specimens are mined at Muso, Columbia, South America. It is believed to be a strengthener of the eye.

For June is the pearl — the queen of all gems. The olden Chinese used them as medicine for diseases of the blood. Cleopatra, in order to show her contempt for money, and to outshine others in her lavish wastefulness in those days of oriental splendor, dissolved and swallowed a magnificent large pearl.

For July is the glowing ruby or red sapphire. It denotes love, or a loving disposition. An old belief was that this gem caused one to discover the presence of poisons, warned the wearer of impending danger by darkening in colour, and when the evil presence had passed resumed its bright red colour.

For August is the sardonyx. The person wearing this gem will it is said, overcome all contentions. It insures freedom from evil passions. conjugal felicity, is a cure for epilepsy and causes strife and melancholy to depart.

For September is the ever-popular sapphire. It was supposed to have many virtues. It extinguishes fires, corrects bad manners of the wearers, insures freedom from evil passions, and sadness of the mind.

Opal Wondrous Gem.

For October is the wondrous opal. This beautiful gem, when extracted from the damp earth, is quite soft and destitute of life, but the air and sun gives it various degrees of colour and beauty.—Emblem of hope.

For November the stone is topaz, found in the Ural Mountains, Brazil, Mexico, and other countries. It is emblematic of friends and true love.

For December is the heavenly blue turquoise. It is a cheerer of a depressed soul, and insures prosperity in love affairs.

SHE LOST HER HAIR AND GOT IT BACK WITH HERPICIDE

Don't become discouraged simply because your hair falls and is thin, weak and wispy until you have tried Herpicide. "I first began to use Newbro's Herpicide three years ago, after a spell of fever, which caused me to become almost bald. Herpicide soon restored the quantity and natural colour of my hair. I feel lost without a bottle of Herpicide in the house." Thus Mrs. Anna C. Layn, 821 Second Ave., Louisville, Ky., tells in her own words how she lost her hair, and how she got it back. Mrs. Layn's experience has been duplicated a thousand times and can be repeated thousands more.

Newbro's Herpicide keeps the hair and scalp in a perfectly healthy condition. When the hair papilla has not been destroyed by the ravages of the dandruff germ, the hair will resume its suspended growth.

Newbro's Herpicide eradicates dandruff and checks falling hair. The itching of the scalp stops almost instantly. Others imitate and make similar claims, but the original dandruff germ destroyer is Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Send 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

ARMAMENTS IN THE LINE OF NEWER VISION

How pathetic is this open confession of the failure and breakdown of armament achievements for national defence, made by Sir Edward Grey to the Manchester Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday. Were it not for the ghastliness of its background the thing would be matter for a comedy. The great nations, Britain among them, have been in a mad rush each to outdo the others in their unprecedented expenditures on armaments. They have all taxed their peoples to the dead-line, republic and monarchies alike, democracies and autocracies alike; and now the greatest Foreign Minister among them all stands up in the presence of leaders of his own nation's commerce and confesses that while "Britain has felt the strain the least," his own mind is oppressed by "a foreboding that the competition in armaments will eventually lead to disaster, and sink the ship of European prosperity and civilization." There is the prospect.

From the British point of view the pathos of the situation is deepened by Sir Edward Grey's grim admission, which no one can gainsay, that in this armament folly "Great Britain is partly responsible and open to criticism for setting an example by building the first Dreadnought." Unfortunately that regretful admission will not undo the international mischief which at the time wise men in England foresaw. Every tu'penny-ha'penny nation not counted bankrupt by British and German armament syndicates has followed Britain's Dreadnought precedent.

"Most can grow the flower now,
For all have got the seed."

The pathos becomes tragedy when, as Sir Edward Grey confesses, "the increase in the number of Dreadnoughts is now proceeding without reference to British expenditure, and while increases in one country provokes increases in other countries, slackening in one country, even when attributed to exhaustion, fails to produce slackening in the others." And so these war nations, calling themselves Powers, sometimes even boasting themselves as Christian, with Britain among them, each staggering under its own crushing burden, all of them together helpless in a mess of their own making—these nations of civilization are expected, by their militarist dictators and by their interested armament syndicates, to muddle along to their own disaster, as though there were in Christendom neither intelligence nor reason nor justice as applied to international relations!

Such a situation is not only depressing and dangerous; it is half-barbaric. It magnifies force, brute force, in the just setlement of disputes between peoples who profess to have emerged from the brute stage of development. As between brutes brute force is fitting and adequate, but not as between men. If, as we are loudly but sometimes falsely told, nations are only the aggregates of individuals, then the rule holds: if the club and the sword and the bullet do not settle the justice of any cause for civilized men, neither can they settle such disputes between aggregates of civilized men. To rely on brute forces is to appeal to brute instincts. That appeal must fail. It ought to fail. Sir Edward Grey bemoans its failure. He should rejoice rather that men are not brutes; and he should call his colleagues and his nation and every other civilized nation to play the parts of civilized men, "and let the ape and tiger die."

One thing Sir Edward Grey and the British Government can do: they can reverse their unfortunate decision at the last Hague Conference that made Britain responsible for the continuance of the pagan policy which holds private commerce at sea rightful prizes for belligerents. The British statesmanship denounces that outgrown policy. It ought to be abandoned. We believe it will be abandoned by Britain at the next Hague Conference. With its going would go also the chief German pretext for this extravagant and ruinous naval expenditure.

Interesting Lecture On The Drama

By Mr. J. V. McElderry at Regular Meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of the T. A. S.

INTERESTING SUBJECT

The Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. held a meeting last evening in the hall of the Lyceum, when Mr. V. J. McElderry gave a very scholarly and instructive address on "The Drama." The evening opened with a good musical programme, which was as follows:

Instrumental duet—Miss B. Giroux and Miss H. Pearce.

Vocal solo—Miss H. Warmington.

Violin solo—Mr. V. McCabe.

Vocal solo—Mr. J. Minicolo.

Accompanists—Misses O. Tangney, E. McCabe, and B. Giroux.

Mr. McElderry took as his subject "The Drama," partly on account of the interest manifested by the younger portion of the society in amateur theatricals and because the drama in Canada just now is forcing itself more and more on the attention of the people.

The drama has in every age, exercised a great influence on public thought, and at the present day, the moving-picture shows seem to have as much influence in this direction as the press itself. The drama is a branch of the fine arts, and it is true that a greater degree of literary perfection is reached in most of our modern plays than in many of the modern novels. The dramatist has the whole world of history, fiction and every-day events to draw from, and the facts of every-day life alone are multitudinous. The modern drama has fallen away considerably, however, from earlier standards. Now, as a rule, owing principlly to the enormous expanse of scenery and costumes, there are only three acts. The first may portray a scene in London, the second transport the audience to Hong-Kong, while the third winds up in the Sahara Desert, and the period of time may extend anywhere from two weeks to six months or to years. The rules observed by Beaumont and Fletcher, Shakespeare, in fact, all the earlier dramatists were those which divided the play into five separate parts, or acts, the first, really an introduction in which the author explained the circumstances, and introduced the characters, the second showing the progress of the plot, the third, developing the idea to its height, the fourth unravelling the plot, and the fifth, drawing all loose ends together, and bringing the whole to a more or less satisfactory conclusion. One of the greatest faults of the modern play-maker, who gets his plot to a certain distance, and then is compelled to bring in a lot of extraneous matter to help it out, is thus avoided, and the unity of idea, place and time is preserved. This unity is well exemplified in the ncient Greek plays, however, the basis of our modern drama. Their plays, however, although perfect in form, are of too cold a perfection, wanting in the human element and romance which distinguish present-day productions. They were divided sharply into comedy and tragedy, but the comedy was more in the nature of satire, and one might search in vain for any spark of humour. As the speaker remarked: "One might very well split one's head over them, but one would never split his sides." "The tragedies of Aristotle, one of the greatest of the law-givers of ancient Greece, and an authority on philosophy and art, are described as serious, complete, and of a certain magnitude. The Greek tragedies were extremely sad, and designed to create terror and inspire awe. The three great classic dramatists, Sophocles, Euripides and Aeschylus, embodied in their work, the central idea of fate, the will of the gods overruling mortal wishes. The drama in Greece was more like a national sport, for whole cities went to see a play enacted, and the municipalities provided money for them. In the centre of the City of Athens rose the hill of the Acropolis, on the southern slope of which was erected the Theatre of Dionysius. Of the sixty-seven marble seats erected in the first row of this ancient theatre, sixty remain to this day, on which inscriptions may be deciphered. The speaker described this theatre minutely, and the customs of that day, which appear strange to modern minds. The actors walked about on low stilts, and appeared in masks that covered the whole face, while in front, in the space reserved for them, the chorus performed. This Greek chorus, composed of twenty or thirty people, added a lyric element to the play, and recited poetry which explained the action, pointed the moral, and formed an intermission between acts.

Mr. McElderry then gave a short version of "Hecuba," one of the plays of Euripides, as an illustration of the ancient Greek method, which was greeted with much applause.

The chairlady, Miss E. Hayes, then called on Rev. Dean McColl, who thanked the speaker for the splendid intellectual treat he had given the audience.

ALL IS QUIET IN THE NORTHERN VILLAGE

BRIDGENORTH, Feb 7—The ice-cutters are waiting very patiently for the ice to get thicker. At present it is only 12 inches. There is a lot of ice to be taken out as nearly all the farmers use ice and the cheese factories and the butchers use a lot. Some of the cottagers have their ice houses filled for the summer.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Church held an oyster supper on Thursday night, which proved a great success. The Church was filled. Mr. Cunningham's Orchestra from the City gave the entertainment and was much appreciated. The proceds amounted to over $60.

Everything is quiet in the Village at present with the exception of the young folks sleighing on the hills these moonlight nights. It is rumoured that a certain councillor of the township enjoys the pastime with the boys and girls.

WEDDING BELLS

MILLS—McDONALD

The wedding was solemnized by Rev. H. J. Keith on Feb. 4th, at 2 p.m., in the presence of witnesses, of Mr. Archibald Mills to Miss Jessie Fraser McDonald, both of Dummer. Mr. and Mrs. Mills will reside in Dummer.

STEWART—STEWART.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. James Matchett, Maple Avenue, Otonabee, on Feb. 4, 1914, when her niece, Miss Lizzie Jane Stewart, was married to Mr. Ormiston Stewart. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. McConachie, pastor of Stewart Memorial Presbyterian Church, and Miss Mary Laing played the wedding march.

The bride, who was unattended, and given away by Mr. Beecher Matchett, looked pretty in a costume of lace over white satin, trimmed with Irish lace and seed pearls, and carried a sheaf bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

The grooms gift to the bride was a beautiful set of Persian Lamb furs, and to Miss Laing a gold brooch. After congratulations, guests to the number of seventy-five partook of a dainty wedding supper. The tables were prettily decorated with smilax, roses and carnations.

Amid showers of rice and confetti Mr. and Mrs. Stewart left for their home, the bride attired in a suit of navy blue serge, and black hat, with large black plume and tiny rosebuds.

The large number of beautiful, useful and costly presents testified to the popularity of the contracting parties. Their many friends in Peterborough and vicinity wish them a long and happy life.

OBITUARY

WM. TORPEY

The Chronicle, Lost Nation, Iowa, of Friday, Jan. 23, 1914, refers at some length to the death of Mr. Wm. Torpey, which occurred in Lost Nation, on Friday, Jan. 16th. The late Mr. Torpey was born in the Township of Douro, Peterborough County, on September 10, 1834. He removed to Iowa in the spring of 1866, where he resided on the farm near Lost Nation, until 12 years ago, when he moved to Lost Nation. His wife and 11 children are left to mourn his loss.

NAPOLEON GUERIN

The death occurred last night of Napoleon Guerin, aged 84, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. Barbeau, 112 Aylmer street.

The late Mr. Guerin was born in La Prairie, Quebec, and moved to this City 65 years ago. Since that time he has resided in Peterborough, winning the respect of all who knew him. For many years he was in the employ of the City and in the days when the local pedestrians used to make their way from one block to another over board sidewalks, Mr. Guerin had charge of repairing the sidewalk. This exacting task he attended to to the satisfaction of all. He was a member of the Sacred Heart Church.

Deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. A. Barbeau, of this City, as well as three sons, Paul of Sudbury, Joseph and Edward, of this City. His wife predeceased him 20 years ago.

The funeral will be held on Monday morning at 9 o'clock from the residence of his daughter, 112 Aylmer street, to the Sacred Heart Church, and St. Peter's Cemetery.

Eggs Show Signs Of Lower Price

The farmers' market this morning was smaller than usual and presented nothing particularly interesting to buyers. Eggs were around 37c., and had the attendance been larger they would have dropped still further. One of these fine Saturday eggs will flatten out in price to something like a reasonable figure. Butter was steady at 30c. and poultry was unchanged. The outside market was meagre and limited supplies of beef and pork were offered.

SCORES WAR OFFICE

Hon. Col. Sam Hughes Replies to Bisley Rifle Rulings

NO CANADIANS WILL GO

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—The most important item of the sitting of the House of Commons yesterday came just before going into supply yesterday when the members irrespective of party heartily applauded a statement by Hon. Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, regarding the refusal of the British War Office to permit the use of the Ross rifle at the Bisley matches.

Before going into committee, E. M. Macdonald, the Liberal member for Pictou, N.S., moved the adjournment of the House for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of public interest to it, the reported refusal of the Dominion Government to send a rifle team to the Bisley competition.

Mr. Macdonald said he thought it important to have an official statement from the Minister of Militia respecting the press reports that Canada was not to be represented at Bisley next summer. As he understood it, the National Rifle Association of Great Britain, which controls the competition, objected to the use of the national arms of Canada. The Ross rifle was the Canadian service weapon, but Canadians, as he understood it, would not be allowed to compete unless they use the Lee-Enfield rifle, with the open sight, instead of the Ross rifle with the aperture sight.

Col. Sam Hughes did not leave the House long in doubt as to his position. He said that the Bisley meeting had been established by the late Queen to encourage rifle practice throughout the Empire, and that Canadians had as much right there as Englishmen. The British War Office, which financed the undertaking, however, had laid down the rule that the Ross rifle with the aperture sight could not be used. This was a most arbitrary performance, and it was intended to force Canadians to discard the finest weapon in the world and to use instead the obsolete Lee-Enfield, still in use by the British army. "No volunteer," he continued, "shall leave Canada with that yoke upon his neck." (Applause.)

Replying to questions, Col. Hughes said that the aperture sight was a part of the service rifle in the United States, Canada and many other countries, and would be included in the new rifle the War Office was designing. He was quite willing that the British competitors at Bisley should be as well armed as the Canadians, and would loan them Ross rifles if requested.

When the House went into committee of supply and Mr. Crothers presented his estimates for the Department of Labor, F. B. Carvell charged the Government with withholding from the public information to which they were entitled respecting the happenings on Vancouver Island during the coal strikes at Nanaimo and other places. He read from The Labor Gazette to show that the magnitude and importance of the strike had been minimized, and declared that it would be a good thing to abolish the Minister of Labor, the Labor Department and The Labor Gazette. Mr. Carvell said also that the Minister had appointed his law partner, Mr. Price of St. Thomas, as a royal commissioner to investigate conditions on Vancouver Island, but had done nothing himself to ward off the strike or to bring about a settlement.

Mr. Crothers, in reply, said that the partnership between himself and Mr. Price had been dissolved years ago. The strike at Nanaimo had occurred on May 1, 1913, and the Department only learned that it was to be ordered on the preceding day. He (the Minister) had gone to the scene and labored to bring the parties together. Both sides refused to apply for a board of investigation under the industrial disputes act, the men saying they were not on a strike but a holiday, and the mine owners denying the existence of a lock-out. The mine owners were willing to meet the men, but would not deal with the union known as the United Mine Workers of America, while the men demanded recognition of the union before they would treat with the employers. The strike had been on for many months, just as the coal strikes in Nova Scotia continued for twenty-two months.

E. M. Macdonald (Pictou) thought it curious that Mr. Price's report should have been dated on Aug. 14, 1913, just before the serious trouble occurred in Nanaimo. Mr. Crothers replied that the date upon the report was a true one, and paid a tribute to Mr. Price's high standing in Ontario.

Considerable discussion went on in which the mine owners, the militia and the provincial police were freely criticized.

Mr. Shepperd, Nanaimo, and Mr. Stevens, Vancouver, defended the course of the Dominion and Provincial Governments.

THOUGHT MR. HOLLY SHEPHERD WAS RICH. CARLE

"I think I saw Richard Carle on the street this morning," said a traveller to one of the fair young men at the White House, the taller one.

"He can't be here. He's playing in "The Doll and Girl" with Hattie Williams.

"I know that," replied the traveller, "but I thought they might be here to-night. However, if it wasn't Carle it was his double. He wears a round grey hat with a few nobby dents in it."

"Lots of our home brews wear them, too,' remarked the clerk.

"Yes, but the stage was written all over this chap. I'll bet he is in the business. He was wearing grey spats and a general air of satisfaction that seemed to say the world is all right."

"I got you now," the clerk said, and laughed as if something tickled him. He pointed to the writing table in the rotunda where a gentleman wearing a grey suit, glasses, and a soft felt hat was busily engaged with a pen. "That's the gentleman, isn't he?"

"Sure, that's he," spoke the traveller in a lower tone. "I'll leave it to you. Wasn't there an excuse for me being mistaken in his identity?"

Said the clerk, "I don't know Carle well enough to be sure I would recognize him, but that is Holly Shepard. He is training the Belmont Club Minstrels for their big show, and one of the fellows claims that Mr. Shepard put the bells on Belmonters, and also the muse in music. You were right about his being in the theatrical game, and if you are in here on the 12th or 13th you should see the show. He is there 57 ways and one or two more."

"Well we will try and get around for it," said the traveller as he sauntered up to his room.

ANOTHER LETTER ON THE COST OF LIVING

February 6, 1914.

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I read with interest the letter signed "Citizen" in Friday's Examiner and I think all will agree that his summary of expenses was very reasonable. He remarks he has not allowed for a trip down the river for the family nor for any other pleasures, but that of course is as it should be, for have we not been told, time and again, both verbally and through the press, that the working man has positively no right to spend any money on pleasure, not even for an occasional visit to the movies, but should always keep his nose to the grindstone, even for 365 days a year, if his employer is graciously pleased to permit him to do so, which in reality is just as long as it suits the employer's convenience, or he can get some one forced by circumstances to work cheaper.

Perhaps some of those persons who know so much of the working man's extravagance, knowledge they have gained by their lack of experience of the struggle for existence, will give us a few pointers on how to save money for the hard times, not forgetting those who not average 12 dollars a week for 52 weeks in the year, or anything like it, and with probably not two children but five or six. But apparently the working man's problem is nobody's business. There was some talk of the City starting some work to ease the present situation, but as a certain alderman remarked, "it would cost more to do it now with the frost in the ground, and several people had remarked to him that they would sooner see the unemployed have charity than the work done at a little extra cost, so apparently the idea was abandoned and so it goes.

Thanking you, sir, I am,

Faithfully,

"OBSERVER."

CHOPPED DOWN TREE.

Raleigh Township Lad Instantly Killed by Flying Limb.

CHATHAM, Feb. 7.—Otto Boyes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Boyes of the 13th concession of Raleigh, was killed yesterday afternoon through being struck by a flying limb of a falling tree.

Boyes and another young man named Herbert Pardo were cutting down a tree in the former's bush to get a coon that had sought refuge in the branches. The felled tree struck another in falling and one of the branches was knocked off. It struck young Boyes on the head, fracturing his skull. Death was instantaneous.

The victim was about 25 years of age and had been married only six weeks. He and his wife were living at his father's home.

The unfortunate young man was a brother of Alex. Boyes, who was killed three years ago when a threshing machine engine broke through a concrete bridge in Raleigh.

To Punish Careless Freight Handlers.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—Rough handling and pilfering of perishable shipments will be made a criminal offence if an amendment, to be proposed by J. E. Armstrong of Lambton, becomes law. Under the Fruit Marks Act shippers are penalized if they do not pack their fruit in a certain way or up to a certain standard, yet the handling by express employes or others is often so rough that whole shipments are seriously damaged. The only redress is by thes low progress of damage claims.

Mr. Armstrong will propose to amend the act so as to make fruit inspectors, cargo inspector at big shipping ports.

BABY COVERED WITH RASH

From Head to Foot. Itched and Burned. Disfiguring. Face and Arms Worst. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

Legare Corner, Moncton, N. B.—"When my baby was five months old he had a rash which used to trouble him very much. The rash was very bad and he was covered from head to foot. I got no rest day or night with him. It would itch and burn so much that he used to scratch till he used to bring the blood and then it would turn to a mattery sore which disfigured him. The worst was his face and arms.

"I tried a good many different salves and soaps but to no use; he got no better. But after a while I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment and had only used them two or three times when I saw a great change. The sores dried up and came off and he was cured." (Signed) Mrs. George French, May 26, 1913.

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

MEDICAL MEN ARE WAKING UP

The Purity Advocate says: It has been stated upon good medical authority that fully three-fourths of human suffering comes as the direct or indirect result of the diseases which accompany vice. During the past fifty years, the human race has come very slowly to a recognition of this fact. During the past ten years there has been a general awakening upon this subject, not only among physicians, but among laymen. The widening of public intelligence upon this subject is manifest in the action taken at the recent meeting of the Pennsylvania State Medical Society at Philadelphia.

At the opening session of the convention, Dr. Edward Martin, an eminent surgeon connected with the Medical Department of the Univer[illegible] of Pennsylvania, read a paper on the social evil. Dr. Martin, a splendid type of physical manhood, tall and erect, with a clear, manly voice that was clearly heard in every corner of the auditorium, won the heartiest applause for the appeal which he made for the suppression of vice, and the reporting to the Board of Health of all cases of gonorrhea and syphilis. He said that the political methods of handling vice would never succeed. He said: "We are face to face with a scourge worse than small-pox, scarlet fever or diphtheria. We take drastic measures to curb these latter maladies, and we must use the same course if we would reduce the social diseases and save society. We quarantine the man with small-pox, and let a man with a disease more vile, roam at large, to endanger every member of the household, and bring misery upon mothers." Dr. Martin said he knew his mode of attack would break up some homes, ruin some reputations, and disclose some leprous lives, but it would be a vast benefit to numberless thousands living and unborn.

Dr. Martin contended that the horrors that now attend social maladies can easily be prevented, the same as those resulting from small-pox, if the public generally really desires to have these diseases suppressed. He urged that each city should provide means by which all those now infected with the diseases which accompany vice, might be cared for and cured at public expense, and that all centres of contagion should be treated as any other seat of a general pestilence.

Toward the close of the convention, "The House of Delegates," the law-making body of the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, submitted a motion to the State Society, favouring the enactment of a law by the legislature, requiring that all venereal infection should be reported to the Board of Health, the same as small-pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and all other contagious diseases, and that persons so affected should be quarantined of placed under surveillance, the same as in other infectious diseases.

The progress which is being made along these lines as the result of a more general public intelligence, is simply amazing. Ten years ago, when one suggested the need of such action to physicians in general, the only answer was, "impossible." At that time, when one suggested that these diseases would be reported to the boards of health inside of twenty-five years, even physicians fairly laughed to scorn the person who made it. But, the world moves, and it generally moves in the right direction.

The importance of understanding these subjects is manifested by the statement of a physician at this same convention, that although so little is known by the general public, yet these diseases are the cause of 40 per cent. of the blindness, 50 per cent. of the sterility, and three-fourths of the feeble-mindedness in the State of Pennsylvania.

STILL A MYSTERY

Sir Hugh Graham Declines to Say Who Controls Herald

COMMITTEE EXCUSES HIM

QUEBEC, Feb. 7.—The chief witness at the enquiry into the allegations of corruption against certain provincial legislators was Sir Hugh Graham, admitted proprietor of The Montreal Star and the reputed controller of the newly-amalgamated Herald-Telegraph. Acting, as he said, on the advice of his counsel, Sir Hugh absolutely refused to answer questions regarding the alleged "conspiracy of silence" manifested by certain Montreal newspapers in regard to the charges of corruption finally published by The Montreal Daily Mail.

This refusal on the part of Sir Hugh Graham was made before the investigating committees of both Houses of the Legislature. Sir Hugh Graham had been summoned before these investigating committees as an important witness in regard to the so-called "conspiracy" against the Legislature.

It was shown before both committees that the charges against members of the Legislature had first been submitted "to the new owners of The Herald," Sir Hugh Graham admitted yesterday that this evidence of corruption had first been submited to him. But when asked categorically whether or not he now owned The Herald, Sir Hugh Graham, "acting on the advice of his counsel, positively and absolutely refused to reply."

There was a dramatic episode in the committee of the upper House when Mr. Macnab, editor of The Daily Mail, explained that he had had twenty-five years' personal experience with Sir Hugh Graham and asked permission to put a few question to the witness.

Mr. Macnab first of all explained to the committee that witnesses before the committee had been required to swear to an oath which contained a statement concerning "a conspiracy among parties unknown." It was submitted that that was the reason why Sir Hugh Graham should be examined. The Daily Mail had published the revelations in the public interest. Sir Hugh Graham had been shown the evidence in the first place, and he had refused to publish it, once more "acting on the advice of his counsel."

Mr. Macnab said that in his long experience of Sir Hugh the latter did not pay much attention to the advice of counsel, but published what he pleased.

Still Sir Hugh Graham maintained silence, and Hon. Thomas Chapais, chairman of the investigation committee, declared that the matter did not particularly concern the investigation entrusted to the committee.

Jean Prevost called the attention of the lower House, during its sitting yesterday, to the summary adjournment last night of the assembly special committee. He said he had asked that Mr. Biddinger be examined immediately by the committee, but the chairman of the committee had seen fit to adjourn, and now Mr. Biddinger had left the city.

"I think it is better for the honor of members of the Legislature that Mr. Biddinger be recalled," Mr. Prevost said. "I declare from my seat as member for Terrebone that Mr. Biddinger had a very formidable declaration to make, and it is useless to cause the disappearance of a quorum of the committee to prevent him from speaking."

The Hon. L. A. Taschereau, chairman of the committee, in a vehement speech, said that Mr. Marechal had declared that he had no further witnesses to call except Mr. Mousseau.

A NEW USE FOR THE HOSPITAL

Mayor Buller is of the opinion that it would be better to convert the present Isolation Hospital into a sanatorium for consumptives, and construct a cheaper building for the care of infectious diseases.

Alderman Duffus.

Alderman Duffus expressed himself as being in favour of a civic grant of ten thousand dollars to the Health Association, especially when the latter have signified their willingness to raise another ten thousand dollars beside the four thousand that would be forthcoming from the Government. He believes that the question is, at least, entiled to serious consideration on the part of the Council. He also spoke of eugenic marriages.

Cost of By-law.

The Peterborough Health Association may even consider the advisability of financing the cost of submitting the by-law, should the city decline to assume that responsibility. The cost is estimated at about three hundred dollars. The Council discussed the question of submitting the by-law with a similar measure, but it is evident that the Association would prefer to place it in the field alone.

IN REGARD TO THE PROPOSED SANATORIUM

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Aren't our City Fathers getting a habit of going to the Legislature for increased privileges —save the mask—of exercising their frenzied finance? This $10,000 grant for a sanatorium knocks all previous records into a cocked hat.

A $4,000 government apple has been adroitly pointed out to them, and they immediately lose all recollection of that ancient storm of ancient Adam.

During a famine in Parnell's early days' an officer of a Relief Association asked a famished Irishman why the complaints about the efforts of the Association "If yez plase," said Pat, "we asked yez for a tater and yez gint us an agitator." Our consumptives can at least claim a more generous supply of agitators.

Have we not already ample and excellent accommodation at St. Joseph's and Nicholls Hospitals, and is it not a fact that a large percentage of all patients admitted to these is for tubercular treatment. I understand no one is denied admission to these institutions because of tuberculosis or poverty. Then why are we continually regaled with harrowing tales of wanton suffering and inhuman neglect? Would it be an insolent suggestion—if the Council for instance would present one of these hospitals with $10,000, and our City Health Association present the other with a like sum for the benefit of tubercular patients. This would indulge in a pardonable way our Council's bump for spending and give our Health Association a much needed respite from their constructive thinking.

TRADES AND LABOUR NOTES

Notes by the Official Scribe

The meeting this week, which was to have been public, was somewhat disappointing, as Mr. Fred Bancroft, [illegible] as the speaker of the evening, and whose topic was to be the Compensation Act, was unavoidably detained. President J. J. Hartley expressed regret to those outside of the Council who had come to hear Mr. Bancroft, and announced that the absent spokesman would no doubt be heard next meeting night, February 18th. Before dismissing the gathering the President called on Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., to speak a few words.

Mr. Peck said that all should endeavour to hear Mr. Bancroft, that gentleman being excellently posted on all the phases of the Bill. He (Mr. Peck) had always seen two inequalities in Workmen's Compensation. The first was that the man had to prove negligence on the part of his employer, and the second was the necessary legal expenditure. The bill would be taken up about two weeks after the Legislature convened, and the two aforementioned clauses would eventually be amended. To prove negligence on the part of the employer would no longer be a combative point and compensation would be granted, minus legal expense. The bill was favoured by both parties in the Provincial House and its enactment meant nothing less than a distinct recognition of labour.

Mr. Peck concluded with a repeated recommendation to hear Mr. Bancroft when he does favour the City with a visit.

The visitors then withdrew and the regular business of the Council was proceeded with.

Mr. Burnham Writes.

Mr. Burnham sent a letter acknowledging the Council's protest of the proposed legislation to disrupt Canadian unions, and informed the Council that Mr. Crothers was to bring in a bill to grant a half-holiday on polling days.

A Municipal Committee.

A committee was named by the President, whose duties will be to attend the public metings of the City Council and report. That the whole Trades and Labour Council be a committee was the idea of some energetic members members, but more definite the work of a few was the ultimate result of the debate.

A Free Concert.

Representative Hugh Robertson called attention to the fact that the Hall Trustees had installed a piano and to put the instrument to a good use he suggested that as there were a lot of unemployed around the City, why not give a free concert and try and enliven the dull period. This idea looked good to the delegates, and a committee was formed to draw up a programme. The date fixed is Friday, Feb. 20, and everybody is invited whether members of an organized body or not.

Further particulars will be announced later.

ROWELL DEMANDS A STOCK-TAKING IN ONTARIO INTERESTS

Special to The Examiner:

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 6. — A demand for a stock-taking and a thorough agricultural survey of Ontario was made by Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., M.P.P., in a speech given in the City Hall in his own constituency at Woodstock, last (Friday) night.

"To-day's high cost of living," he declared, "is dividing public attention with the question of Workmen's Compensation in all the industrial communities of this Province. The Leader of the Opposition dealt fully with both these questions. "I cannot but think," he said, "that one of the important causes of the present high cost of living is the great increase in our consuming population in Ontario and the decrease of our food-producing population accompanied by a decline in food production by the farmers of this Province."

It is evident that Mr. Rowell is paying serious attention to this problem of food production and indeed the whole question of rural life both for itself and in its relation to the whole of the Province. He has taken up this theme at a number of his recent addresses and at the Woodstock meeting emphasized it again with new points of view.

"The decline in rural population," he continued, "has been accompanied by a decline in the strength and vitality of the rural school and the rural church." Mr. Rowell quoted figures and gave definite instances which showed the startling extent of the decline in certain sections in the church and school. "The whole question of the present condition of rural life," he said with enphasis, "constitutes so large and grave a problem, one wonders that even the Government of this Province should fail to see it and grasp its significance.

"We cannot emphasize too much the need for radical and aggressive action in dealing with this question.

"One of our most urgent needs today is Leadership in the Department of Agriculture. Any who recall the great work which John Dryden did for the agricultural interests will realize the loss Ontario has sustained by not having a strong leader at the head of the Department of Agriculture today. In the year 1881 the Government of Sir Oliver Mowat appointed a commission to investigate the agricultural conditions in Ontario, a commission of which John Dryden was a member. It made a most thorough study and presented a careful and exhaustive report. That investigation started a new era in the agricultural development of Ontario. More than thirty years have passed since then and the time has now come when we should have another stock-taking and a thorough agricultural survey with a view of getting at the exact conditions. Let us get at the facts and thus help the Government and the people to see how we can proceed most effectively with the further development of the great agricultural industry with the work of the staying the decline of our rural depopulation and with the recreation of rural life.

"Last session we proposed to the Government that a thorough, independent and non-partizan commission should be apointed to carry on this investigation, but the Government shut its eyes to the problem and voted down the resolution. We shall again press the matter at the ensuing session nd we hope with better success. The problem can no longer be ignored. It must be faced and dealt with.

"In the meantime there are certain questions of great moment to the rural communities of the Province which should be pressed to a solution without further delay." Among these questions Mr. Rowell mentioned farm labour and declared that the Government must co-operate with the agricultural interests in dealing with this question more effectively than they have yet done. He also discussed good roads and declared that the appointment of the Good Roads Commission should not be used as an excuse for further delay, but that the Government should introduce its Good Roads Bill this session. "If it is an adequate bill," said Mr. Rowell, "it will have our support. "If it is inadequate, we shall endeavour to help improve it. In any case we shall stand by our policy of endeavouring to promote a system of good roads throughout the Province for the benefit of the agricultural communities as well as the dwellers in the cities and towns." Other points discussed by Mr. Rowell were the extension of the Hydro-Electric to the farmers of the Province, radial railways, co-operation among farmers and agricultural education. In connection with the last point Mr. Rowell congratulated the people of Woodstock on establishing a class in agriculture in their High School. He said that the people of the Province should endeavour to give to every farmer's boy and every farmer's girl the opportunity for vocational training in agricultural and domestic science. "To do so," he said, "we must entirely revise existing plans and deal with the whole question on a more comprehensive and adequate scale and the time has come for such an advance. Leadership in education as well as in agriculture is one of the urgent needs of the Province."

INTEREST IN CASE

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., Feb. 6.—There is interest in Northampton and Weymouth in the question whether Thomas McNab, aged 95, of Weymouth, and Mrs. Alice Clark, aged 74, of Northampton, will succeed in getting married in accord with plans first made known when Mr. McNab applied for a marriage license in the office of the Northampton city clerk, Saturday. The Weymouth overseers of the poor have reasons for wishing Mr. McNab not to encumber himself with further obligations of expense, and have written to the Northampton overseers bespeaking their powers of persuasion in an attempt to induce Mrs. Clark to break with her fiance. The Northampton overseers were willing to oblige, even to the point of meddling with a love affair, and they did. But triumphant Cupid has their scalps dangling at his belt, or would if he was in the habit of wearing a belt, and the exact terms in which the woman in the case condemned their excursion outside the confines of their jurisdiction has not been made a matter of record. The local overseers conveyed to the Weymouth overseers the failure of their diplomatic mission, and it is Weymouth's next move. Mr. McNab appeared at the office of the city clerk yesterday and took out his final marriage papers in Northampton, but will be unable to secure his certificate from Weymouth before Saturday, since he did not make so early an application in his home town. Mr. McNab has arranged to have the Weymouth certificate sent to him by mail and will stay in Northampton until the wedding day, which is set for to-morrow.

Y.M.C.A. AND ALERTS PLAY TWENTY MINUTES OVERTIME TO A 5-5 TIE

One of the Most Exciting Games of the Season in the Junior City Hockey League Last Night—See-Saw Scoring in Overtime.

EXPLOITS WON AGAIN

The fans who did not turn out for last night's Junior City League fixtures at Block St. Rink, missed one of the best and most exciting games of the season in the clash between the Exploits and the Y.M.C.A. which wound up in a 5-5 tie after twenty minutes' overtime. It was by far the best exhibition of hockey seen in the City League this season, and had the two hundred fans present whooping all the time. The only unsatisfactory thing about the game was a dispute over a goal scored by the Y.M.C.A. at the end of the first half. It is claimed that time was up for the half before the rubber was shot into the nets, but the timers did not ring the gong until the score was made. The Y claimed the goal but Referee Len Dobson refused to count it. As it turned out the counter would have settled the game without any overtime.

The Y.M.C.A. had the edge in the early stages. They led by 2 to 1 at half time without the disallowed goal, and when they opened the second half by scoring another it looked to be all over. Then the Alerts moved all hands up on the attack and drove the Y back on the defensive. Before the half was over they had scored twice and tied up the count. In the first five minutes' overtime the Y found the nets, but in the second period the Alerts evened up. After a rest they were sent at it again. This time the Alerts took the lead but the Y came back in the fourth period and scored again. President Maher then called the game, which will be re-played if it affects the standing.

It was fast hard hockey all the way with both teams showing good form. The Alerts had much the advantage in weight, and exhibited a burst of speed as well, while the Y team had better team work, and a more effective system in going in on the nets. The checking was close and hard, and the pace never faltered.

Both goal keepers played sterling hockey. They had a lot to do and handled themselves nicely. For the Y team Knapman was easily the star, and it was mainly through his fine rushing and persistent back-checking in the overtime periods that the Y escaped unbeaten. He was going when the other forwards were tiring and kept the Y in the hunt. Jackson did some fine work in spite of an injured shoulder. Roy Smyth checked hard on the defence, and his rushing was of much assistance.

For the Alerts Legendre, Davidson and Lowes were very effective, especially in the last stages where their weight counted. Doughty played a snappy game at centre, handled himself well in front of the nets, and O'Connell and Heath did well on the wings, the former packing a bullet-like shot that kept Darling busy.

The teams were:

Alerts.		Y.M.C.A.
	Goal.
Legrow		Darling
	Right Defence.
Davidson		R. Smyth
	Left Defence.
Lowes		Cranfield
	Rover.
Legendre		Knapman
	Centre.
Doughty		Quinn
	Right Wing.
O'Connell		E. Smyth
	Left Wing.
Heath		Jackson

With both teams going at top speed it was an interesting game from the start. The Y were showing the better combination and getting in closer while the Alerts contended themselves with one-man rushes and shots from outside which Darling blocked well. The Y were the first to score, Jackson finding the nets on a side shot. They came back with a neat rush, Knapman scoring from well in. With the Y twp goals ahead the Alerts woke up and pressed hard, Doughty finally scoring from a scrimmage. Then came the disputed goal, Knapman scoring on a conbination rush, the score being disallowed.

Soon after the second half opened the Y broke away nicely and Knapman got right inside on a combination dash, fooling Legrow. The Alerts came back with a vengeance, and with six men on the attack, they drove the Y back to their own end of the rink and held them there. Lowes scooped one counter past Darling and then Doughty slipped one through from the side and the score was tied.

After five minute rest, Referee Dobson started the teams out to play five minutes each way, and the first five minutes the Y found the nets. Roy Smyth shot down the side and with the Alert defence out, slid the rubber over to his brother, who tore in and fooled Legrow. When the teams changed ends the Alerts pressed but the period was nearly over before they could score, Legendre scoring on a long shot from a scrimmage.

After another rest they came back at it again and in two minutes Doughty put the Alerts ahead, going in on top of Darling after a combination rush. In the fourth five minute period, the Alerts held their lead until 45 seconds before the call of time, when the Y got away with a four-man combination which carried them inside. The shot ws foozled, but the rubber was passed out from behind to Cranfield, who scored and the game was once more tied.

The summary:

1—Y.M.C.A., Jackson.
2—Y.M.C.A., Knapman.
3—Alerts, Doughty.

Half time.

4—Y.M.C.A., Knapman.
5—Alerts, Lowes.
6—Alerts, Doughty.

First Overtime Period.

7—Y.M.C.A., E. Smyth.
8—Alerts, Legendre.

Second Overtime Period.

9—Alerts, Doughty.
10—Y.M.C.A., Cranfield.

In the second game of the night, which had to be cut short on account of the drawing out of the first game, the Exploits had not much trouble in beating the Wanderers. The League Leaders won by 6 to 0, with the half time score 3 to 0. The Wanderers were on the defensive most of the time and checked hard but they could not hold the Exploits out. Butcher, Graham and Rose played stellar hockey. Coughlin was the best for the Wanderers. The teams were:

Exploits.		Wanderers.

Phelan	Defence	Guerin
Regan	Defence	Coughlin
Graham	Rover	May
Butcher	Centre	Brotherson

LOCAL CURLERS DEFEATED THE TORONTO RINKS BY 75 SHOTS

Peterboro' Quartettes Have Established Their Title to the Waddell Capon Cup for Last Season and Have Secured a Majority of 32 Shots in This Year's Games.

In ten games with the visiting rinks yesterday afternoon and evening for the Waddell-Capon trophy, the local curlers emerged with a lead of 75 shots over the Toronto Victoria Club's quartettes.

The five afternoon games were played to establish the title of the two clubs to the cup for last season, as the Toronto curlers failed to come to this City for the return games. Last winter the local club journeyed to Toronto and lost the games by 10 shots. Yesterday afternoon the return games were played in this City, the local curlers winning by 43 shots. The title for last season, therefore, goes to the local club.

The evening games for this year's possession of the silverware, resulted in a 32-stone margin for the Peterborough rinks. Only one rink lost, that being Mr. W. G. Ferguson's squad, and it is thought that if the stones had not been hustled off the rings so quickly when the game was over, it would have given the locals a 5-end instead of 4, and the game would have been a tie. However, the sportsmanship of the locals rose to the occasion and they agreed that the score remain 13-14. The Peterborough rinks will play the return games in Toronto at an early date, and as they already have a lead of 32, they are very hopeful of retaining the cup.

The scores were:

Queen Alexandra School Win 7-0

A very interesting game of hockey was played between the King George and the Queen Alexandra schools. The "Queens" won from the "Kings" by the score of 7 to 0.

The ice was in god condition for the youngsters' game and both teams showed some fine stick handling and good speed all through the game, although there was some very rough playing at times. Through it all there was only one man from each team in the penalty box. Graham of the Queen Alexandra team received a cut on the upper lip, but was able to continue on after a short time.

The stars for the King George were Hagerman and Nellist. Gillespie guarded the nets in good condition.

The stars for the Queen Alexandra were Simpson and Graham. Parks was there the same as usual and showed some fine body checking and stick handling. Snelgrove and Henry showed some fine work in the checking and combination.

C Lowes handled the bell in good shape and showed great interest in both teams.

The line-up was as follows:

Q. A. S.—Goal, Robson; point, Simpson; cover point, Henry; rover, Snelgrove; centre, Park; right wing, Head; left wing, Graham.

K. G. S.—Point, H. Gillespie; cover point, Rutherford; rover, Anderson; centre, Hagerman; right wing, Nellists; left wing, J. Gillespie.

MARRIED MEN OF THE K. P'S WERE BEATEN

In a spectacular game at Brock St. Rink last night the married men of the Knights of Pythias were beaten 8 to 6 by the single members of the order. The married men gave a great exhibition but were bothered by the keen ice. The line-up was as follows:

The half-time score was 2-1 in favour of the Sacred Hearts. The stars for the Sacred Hearts were Murray, Audette and Shaughnessy, while Begley and Wolfe were stars for the losers. The line-ups were as follows:

Sacred Hearts—Goal, Ranger; defence, Dorie and McCarney; rover, Murray; centre, Audette; right wing, Shaughnessy; left wing, Coursey.

Mr. Walter O'Connel was a satisfactory referee for both sides.

Hockey—That's All

In an interesting game at the Brock Street Rink this morning, the Central School team beat the Queen Mary seven by 3 goals to 2. Frost, the Central School rover, was the star, getting all three of their scores.

NEWS FROM THE OLD COUNTRY SOCCER CAMPS

Comment on the Result of the English Cup Ties--Stockport's Goalkeeper is in Fine Form---Typical Cup Tie Football--Misfortune Laid a Heavy Hand on St. Helens Town.

The football coupon skill competition has given football more advertising, locally, than any other thing. One and al hope as a result that it will create a lasting effect, and if it does no more than persuade strangers to make full inquiries into the football code, it will have accomplished a big stroke of business.

Quite a buzz of excitement was visible in football circles the other evening when the result of the third round of the English Cup ties became known, Birmingham men especially commenting freely on the fact of the Villa and West Bromwich coming out of the hat together. Birmingham enthusiasts here say the ground will not be half big enough to accommodate the crowd that will possess a desire to witness this great tussle. A most singular thing was that during the earlier part of the day when conversing with an ardent admirer of the Villa, he concluded by saying, "Would not be a bit surprised to see the Villa and West Bromwich drawn together." That the coincidence must have been a conviction of fate in the minds of many was further demonstrated when the same words were repeated by others later on. Seemed very funny, to saythe least, that the pairing of the twain should have been almost suspected.

Something hard comes together in the bracketing of Millwall and Sheffield United. It's truly coming to a serious business now.

Winners of the Wolves and Sheffield Wednesday game will entertain Brighton. The men from Sheffield will probably act in that capacity.

Sunderland are certainly lucky in being drawn at home for the third time in succession. But the powerful Wearsiders will have a tough, a very tough, proposition with the proud men of Preston, although it be on their own pitch.

Birmingham cannot grumble at all in the fortunes of the draw. Their gate will suffer on this occasion; but the overflow crowd that fails to gain entry to Villa Park will likely pack their ground also.

Blackburn Rovers are also extremely lucky individuals in being thrice drawn at home. With the Cits of Manchester as visitors, Etwood Park will no doubt have to close its gates early.

West Ham United and Liverpool is more good fare for London people, and will keep the Metropolis very busy along with Millwall.

Last, but not least, comes those old war horses, Burnley and Bolton Wanderers. What a clash this is. It's like giant meeting giant in every way; and 'twill be a fight worthy of the name.

Barrow possess a fine shot in McKnight.

Bury reserve team did well to defeat Southport Central.

Evans, Stockport's goalkeeper, is in fine form just now.

The Rochdale wing men led the City Reserves a merry dance last Saturday.

Joe Barton and Benyon, of St. Helen's Town, gave the Barrow back a lively time.

Stockport's players are stated to have designs upon the league "talent money."

In the Manchester Senior Cup tie at Hurst Cross on Tuesday the gate receipts totalled $300.

Rochdale amply atoned for their earlier defeat when then entertained Manchester City on Saturday.

Mather, Barton, and Lockett have appeared in all the 27 games so far played by Stalybridge Celtic.

What did Hall, the Manchester Cuty full back say when he put the ball through his own goal?

Hurst have the distinction of being the first Lancashire combination team to take the maximum points from Chorley.

The replay at Bury produced typical cup tie fotball. There was little science shown, but plenty of vigour, by either side.

Ridings, the clever Chorley inside right, is being watched by an Aston Villa official who saw him to advantage at Hurst.

J. Kenyon, the ex-Millwall and Glossop player, found his shooting boots against Chorley last week, and scored three clever goals for Hurst.

Up to date the Hurst management have tried no fewer than 28 players, of whom Sam Crawshaw, their custodian, is the only one who has appeared in every match.

Misfortune again laid a heavy hand on St. Helens Town in their match with Barrow, for they had to play most of the game with ten men, and some parts with only nine.

Cunningham, the Irish International, played a sterling game for Crewe at Bower Fold last week, his clever work at outside right being one of the features of the game.

Mr. Shalleross, at Bury on Wednesday of last week, had no option but to order "Wally" Smith off the ground. He deliberately struck an opponent in the face in front of the referee.

Both Bluer, centre-half, and Gault, inside right, of Stockport County, are so far recovered from recent injuries that they are expected to play in the match on Saturday.

Even if Bury go no further in the cup ties, they will receive most useful financial help. As a result of the first round they share at an aggregate "gate" of over $4,000, and the game at Blackburn should add considerably to this amount.

One could scarcely conceive a more crude display of football than that given by Glossop in the first three minutes of their encounter with Everton in the English Cup. The Peak forwards and half backs scarcely touched the ball during this period except a chance kick in front of their own goal.

It will be a long time before a couple of left wings are seen to the same advantage on one ground as in the Glossop-Everton match. Harrison and Bradshaw combined beautifully, whilst Barnett and Knight played well together, especially after the interval and combined effectiveness with cleverness.

W. Stapley is just now playing splendidly at centre half for Glossop, and as a despoiler the amateur has few superiors. On heavyv going Stapis really great, and has the saving grace of never crying out when fouled. He keeps on playing, and always returns what he gets with full interest.

Arthur Causer, the Glossop custodian, has never been seen to such advantage as against Everton. He and George Hampton defied the brilliant and brainy efforts of the whole of the Lancashire team for twenty minutes, whilst their colleagues wandered about in aimless and practically useless fashion.

Makepeace, the Everton left half, played a great game against Harry Stapley, who was not seen to the same advantage as usual in this cup tie. He is, indeed, a fine player who can successfully cope with the Glossop amateur, and Everton had a bit of luck in finding this brilliant player below his usual form.

Glossop's wonderful rally against Everton surprised even their own supporters, who have come to expect a great deal of the Peakites in the closing stages of a game. It is a great defence which can withstand Glossop's last twenty minutes' dash, for it is so virile that it generally sweeps opponents off their feet.

Chorley suffered severely from injuries at Hurst last week. After twenty minutes' play Willacy, their left half, was rendered hors de com bat. Early in the second half Bennet the centre half, had to retire for fifteen minutes, and before the finish Harrison, right outside, was carried off. It was after Willacy's departure that Hurst opened the scoring, prior to which there was very little between the teams.

STARTING ANOTHER WEEK SURPRISINGLY GOOD RESULTS

The Boys of the City Have Made Good Progress in the Examiner Contest

The Examiner Newsboys' Contest has resulted in a spirited effort being put forward by the boys to acquire new customers for themselves, and it has been very satisfactory in every respect.

The first week of the competition is just over, and three boys will receive on Monday cash prizes for the largest gains for this week. A boy can enter any time and feel that he is going to win a prize if he is any kind of a hustler. The boys will no doubt be canvassing you if you are not a reader of The Examiner, and we bespeak for these little business men a good reception. It means dollars for them, and you can receive The Examiner weekly at a cost of 6nly 10c per week.

New boys who wish to enter the campaign have a chance of winning the 27 prizes we offer. The first of which is for $25.00, the second $20.00, the third $15.00, the fourth $10.00, and so on down to 12 dollar prizes. It is worth any boy's time to sell The Examiner. It's a boys work in spare time, and hundreds of young men in the city have occupied their spare time in a similar way.

PETERBORO TO PLAY WINNERS

Word was received this afternoon that the Peterborough intermediates will play the winners of the Orillia-Midland game, which is played tonight, on Tuesday night on the northern team's ice, with the return game here next Friday night.

A CHANCE FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

The new messenger service nd employment bureau that has been instituted by Messrs. C. H. Patterson and G. S. Hogg, at 174 1-2 Charlotte street, was formally opened to-day.

Several messengers have been employed and are ready to serve the public whenever required. As the business progresses, uniforms will be supplied, thereby introducing to Peterborough an innovation never attempted before.

Through the employment bureau, one may procure a position in almost any line of business. The firm will keep consistently in touch with all the manufacturers and other employers of labour. The agency will be known as the Dominion Employment Bureau. The offices occupied by the Bureau have been handsomely fitted up.

The firm will also handle all lines of insurance together with real estate. The latter will be controlled by Mr J. A. Gibbs.

First class service to the public, is the slogan, that will be given material effect by the Bureau, which it is believed will fill a long-felt want.

IS SUEING FOR SUM OF $400

Mr. M. Pappas Defendant in Suit Being Heard in County Court

In County Court this afternoon G. Revellos, a Toronto man, is suing Mr. M. Papas of this City for $400. The case has arisen out of a complication concerning the lease of a store on Queen Street, Toronto, the property of Mr. Miles Vokes of that City.

It seems that G. Revellos leased the store in question from Mr. Vokes at $65 a month. A year before the lease expired Revellos asked to be released from the agreement as he wished to leave the premises. This was agreed to by Mr. Vokes and the property was reverted to him in an agreement signed by Revellos and Mr. Vokes himself.

Shortly after Mr. Pappas bought the fittings of the store from Mr. Revellos for $1200. This, the former claims, was stipulated in the agreement to include the lease of the store for the ensuing year. Mr. Pappas took possession of the store and remained two months. At the end of that time the owner sued Mr. Papas for rent and damages, and judgment was given in favour of the plaintiff.

Finding that he could not legally remain in possession of the store, Mr. Papas, who had paid $800, and given a third check for $400 for the fittings and lease, ordered the payment of the last check to be stopped. Revellos is now suing Pappas for the $400.

Mr. Pappas claims in defence that the remainder of the lease was included in the $1200, and that he was put out of the store after two months' possession, the agreement was broken, and he does not have to pay the $400.

The case is proceeding.

In the Vokes vs. Pappas case, heard in Toronto, Mr. Pappas had to pay the former $115 a month for rent, and damages for a contract the owner had broken owing to Mr. Pappas' possession.

"Treason In The Council"

Committee Meeting Comes to an Abrupt Conclusion Following Certain Statements Regarding Publicity

Ald. Green is still seeking information concerning the Hydro-Electric. When it was intimated that some one member of the City Council had committed the act of treason by divulging information that was delivered int the enemy's camp through the medium of the press, Ald. Green arose and pleaded not guilty to the implication, which was given general significance, stating that he could not have revealed Hydro information to the press as he had none to give, but as a representative of the people he would like to know how matters stood in respect to this all important matter.

Denied the Allegation

Other members of the Committee also denied that they had any part in the publicity that was given in connection with a recent meeting of the Power Committee, at which the press was asked to retire.

A heated discussion followed, during which Ald Langford remarked that the Council operated at a disadvantage when wide and unrestricted publicity was given to the doings of the Council.

Last night the press was again invited to retire in order to facilitate a discussion on the Hydro question. The latter did not materialize, however, as Ald Green left the committee room and the meeting came to an abrupt conclusion.

Not Responsible

Ald Johnston produced a copy of a recent issue of the Examiner, from which he read an article referring to the progress of the Hydro Electric scheme. This, he contended, should not have been given publicity, and intimated that some one member of the Council was responsible. He, together with several other aldermen, eulogized the press for the conscientious manner in which the press was wont to record the confidences of the Council when requested.

It was decided to have Ald. Johnston, as Chairman of the Power Committee, report upon the Committee's recent trip to Toronto where they interviwed Hon. Adam Beck and others connected with the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario. This, however, did not materialize.

The Class passed a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Clarry for their kindness and hospitality. They then dispersed to their respective homes, after singing, "May God be with you till we meet again."

Anniversary Services Of The George Street Church Yesterday

Rev. Dr. Speers, of Toronto, Delivered Two Inspiring Sermons —Special Music Was Greatly Enjoyed.

WILL LECTURE TO-NIGHT

The 69th anniversary of the George Street Methodist Church was observed by the congregation yesterday. The Rev. Dr. J. C. Speers of Toronto had charge of both services, and delivered two inspiring sermons.

Special music was rendered at both services, and was greatly appreciated by the congregation. The work of the choir was of a high order both anthems and all the solos of yesterday making a decided impression.

At the morning service the Rev. Dr. Speers took his text from Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians, 5:27, "That He might present it to himself a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish."

"I am reminded that years ago I was a Clerk in one of the stores on George Street," said the speaker, in opening, "and a member of the George Street Church. I wish to join with you to-day in the celebration of the 69th anniversary of this Church."

Then, reverting to the text, Dr. Speers said that one of the most intense moments in the history of the Christian Church was when, after the resurrection, Jesus kept his promise and met with His disciples on the mountain, which, in all probability, overlooked the Valley of the Jordan. This scene and its impressions were indelibly photographed in the minds of the apostles, so that they conveyed some of the passion of their own enthusiasm to all with whom they came in contact.

The concensus of opinion was that Paul was in Jerusalem during the life of Christ, but whether or not that was so he later came in direct contact with the apostles, and in the epistle to the Ephesians some of the spirit of the meeting of Christ and th disciples on the Mount was present.

"We are not our own by creation; we belong to God," said the speaker. If in a court of law one man sued another and was able to prove that the latter acknowledged the debt by paying a portion of it, then his case was won, and the defendant must pay the whole of the debt. The very constitution of the empire was built solidly on the great truths found in the Bible, so that if we are true Britishers and believe in the cardinal principles of the constitution we admit the claim of Christ upon us. So by marriage by a Christian minister, by the baptism of our children in the Christian Church, and by partaking of the Sacrament. In all these ways we admit that we are His.

The Church must be a healthy Church and have the glow of health on its face. The Great Physician in Heaven could look down and discern the difference between the glow of health and the ruddiness of fever.

A Church, busy, full of work, aggressive and sanely militant in the world about it, was one that would win the approval of God.

In Germany, hundreds of thousands of secular societies are binding themselves together to remain separate from the Church. The Church must do its duty along these material lines.

His text said "glorious" Church. Glory was a word often misrepresented. The Jews thought they had a glorious Church. So did the people of the middle ages. But a "glorious" Church was one that radiated a warm, soft light, illuminating the dark hearts and minds of the people. The light of the glory of God was in the salvation of immortal souls.

The Rev. Dr. Speers will lecture to-night on "Songs and Singers" in connection with the Church anniversary.

Detroit To Vote On Charter

Special Wire to The Examiner:

DETROIT, Mich, Feb. 9.—A special election will be held here to-morrow for the purpose of determining whether the new charter drawn up for the city of Detroit shall be adopted. The new chater is designed to bring to the City the first fruits of municipal home rule. It provides for the lengthening of the terms of office of the mayor and other elective city officials to four years, holding the elections in the spring to keep them free from State and national campaigns; and the choice of officials by means of the non-partisan, preferential ballot. The charter also gives the people the power of recall in case any of the officials fail to deliver satisfactory service.

COMEDIENNE HITS EDITOR

Marie Lloyd Attacked Ex-Mayor of Vancouver With Trunk Strap

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 7.—Marie Lloyd, the English omedienne, called at the office of the World newspaper and viciously attacked L. D. Taylor, the editor, and a former mayor of Vancouver. The police were sent for and a big crowd had gathered before the trouble was stopped. Marie used a heavy trunk strap and struck Taylor several sharp blows across the face before bystanders interfered.

The singer was enraged at an article in the World criticising her performance in a local theatre, and referring to her difficulties at the hands of the American immigration officials.

Last fall, she was admitted to the U. S. under bond, after an order had been issued for her deportation, because of her travelling companion. Since coming to Canada to fill engagements she has been notified that she cannot re-enter American territory.

ANOTHER LETTER ON THE POLICE WOMAN PROBLEM

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—For the past few weeks I have been reading the Daily Examiner very regularly and have taken especially keen interest in the police woman question, and, being a woman, I feel I should like to voice my opinion.

Now, I am far past the giddy age and I must say of very ordinary appearance, but during a recent visit in your fair city, after having heard different discussions on the conditions existing there at the present time I began to observe for myself, and from what I can see, conditions are positively vile among some classes.

I noticed in your paper of Monday, February 2nd, one woman says: "What is needed are good mothers." She is surely right; but where are the good mothers to come from if the rising generation of girls are not checked in their careers of crime. Good fruit is not borne on a blighted tree. She has no more right to think that infancy is the time to begin training than the woman who says "begin at ten years." You must begin generations back and if the young people of to-day are living wrongly give the Town women-police, give them anything, at any price which will help mend matters.

Who says the price is too much to pay? The price that is being paid now is certainly too much. "Give me my daughter! You have her there and I want her" is what I heard a mother say in Peterborough one day as I walked along one of your public streets. There were tears in her voice and there were some boys standing around, jeering at her. I enquired about the place and have seen things in your daily papers since which have led me to believe it was a very dangerous place for a young girl to be. I wonder who pays the highest price—the man whose taxes are raised a little to help pay a woman police; the mother whose head is bowed because her poor girl or boy has gone or been led astray, or the poor girl or boy who has gone astray? Oh! the money only lasts the few years we are here on earth, but how long does it take the poor wretch to pay for the mis-spent life? Who can tell? If dollars would do it, it would not be so bad; but dollars do not count there.

And do not blame it all on the youth; the very leer in the eyes of some of the men on the streets, well past being youths, is insulting to a respetable woman. I have spoken personally to Ottawa citizens who were in a position to know well the result o fthe experiment there, and they said the result was most satisfact. And if successful in one place, why not in Peterborough, or any other town or city where conditions require it. I remain, yours with best wishes to the Peterborough Council of Women.

A Mother.

GORE SUIT TO COME TO TRIAL

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 9.—The fifty-thousand dollar suit brought by Mrs. Minnie E. Bond against United States Senator Thomas P. Gore, the "blind man eloquent," is docketed to come up for trial in the district court here this week. Few cases in the annals of the Oklahoma courts have attracted more attention than thissuit. Mrs. Bond alleges defamation of character through an attack she alleged Senator Gore made on her in Washington last March. In depositions made before a justice recently, Mrs. Bond gave the testimony which forms the basis of her action. She testifies that she went to Washington last March, taking the references of her husband, Julian R. Bond, who was an applicant for the office of internal revenue collector for the Oklahoma district. Her suit arises from alleged occurrences connected with the interview with Senator Gore over the appointment. It is understood that Senator Gore will put in a vigorous defence to the charges made against him and will endeavour to show that the whole affair is a plot hatched by his political enemies to prevent his re-election to the Senate.

The Osteopath Is A Skilled Anatomist

Osteopathy Has Done Much to Drive Drugs Out of the Rival Schools of Healing

THE "O" SECTION

A man with the habit of noticing what he reads was fingering the book of the new city directory the other day and happened to stop at the O section. He looked up, remarking:

"Do you know that there is a half-column of folks here engaged in a mighty important profession that was unknown or practically so fifteen years ago?"

He was speaking of the osteopaths and pointed to a list of names, many of them well known throughout the city. Then he delivered a little lecture on osteopathy, and being a well read, intelligent and observant man it was worth while listening to his comments. He ranked the osteopath as among the oldest of practitioners in human healing, or rather the predecessors of the modern osteopath. And in his argument was a bit of mighty logical reasoning. He viewed the present day osteopath as the scientific successor of the old time healer who cured by laying on the hands accompanied by more or less manipulation of the bones and muscles. Rather less when the healer cloaked his work in mystery and more when he sought results rather than a reputation for miraculous powers.

Nowadays practical healing by the laying on of hands method has lost its flourishes but has gained in vigor and in common sense. Also it is called osteopathy and is taught in regular colleges like law, dentistry, medicine or any other profession. It has broken away from whatever chicanery may have existed just as the practice of medicine has broken away from the use of dried serpent's blood and naked hearts of lizards. Only in sundering the veil of mysticism and standing boldly out in the light osteopathy has made speedier progress and has travelled a rougher road. But is now on a level and recognized highway of human progress and its right there is acknowledged, even by practitioners of other schools, who at first were both skeptical and antagonistic.

With the spread of knowledge of what osteopathy really means has come a greater participation in its benefits, and the success of osteopathy has been rapid because it is founded upon a broad and solid basis of common sense scientifically applied. It means the application of knowledge to the adjustment of the human machine — the body. It is based upon the idea that if there is a right adjustment of the body, other things being equal, a man will be well, will live longer and will live more to the point, be that point work or the enjoyment of living. And the beauty of the idea is that it has proved itself so many times that its correctness has been solidly established.

Blood vessels feed all parts of the body and nerves are the telegraph wires over which the brain sends its messages of control. Both are linked up with the muscles, bones and organs into one entirety in which each part affects the other. If anything is out of kelter the osteopath goes at the cause. He doesn't drug or cut or give a shotgun prescription that may help through one of the shot hitting the mark. He works to restore the part of the human mechanism that is injured to its normal condition, to repair the break. And as in a piece of machinery that is pounding along with resulting injury to all its parts, the repair of the break, the readjustment of the chief defect, goes a long ways towards putting the whole machine in smooth running order again.

Pain is an outcome of nature's effort to readjust something that is wrong in the makeup of man. The forces of nature was trying to bring about a correction. The pain in nature's alarm signal.

Formerly a drug that stilled the corrective force and deadened the pain was hailed as a cure. It worked on the ostrich plan, the eye closing plan. Its general effect was about as advantageous as for a man standing on a railroad track to close his eyes to an oncoming train. Sometimes the train stops. Then the drug or the eye closing may appear effective. But when the train doesn't stop there is a violent termination of eye closing and with drugging the finish is about the same. The main difference is in the period of time occupied.

Drugging lessens the vitality, clogs the alimentary tract. Other potions reverse the latter, but not the former. But the natural method of readjusting the bodily machine never has been known to decrease the vitality. That is where it is different. It stimulates the vitality, strengthens the body, gives nature a chance. Osteopathy works with nature. It doesn't whip her into excessive activity followed by exhaustion, nor drug her into indifference.

Naturally men who never thought of this method of readjusting the human body opposed it. Some through an acute comprehension of financial angles or perhaps of the coming conflict of ideas in which they might be possessed of a brand that would be recognized as inferior. Osteopaths were not regarded with favour by practitioners of other forms of relieving illness. Graduates of osteopathic colleges were frowned upon by graduates of other institutions. They encountered adverse legislation and much criticism. The opposition was very active ten or a dozen years ago. It takes time for everything that is good to prove its merits. Centuries ago practitioners of "regular" medicine were persecuted for the black art. Nowadays the osteopath is recognised as a respectable professional man, just as the allopath or homeopath. And he should be. The course in an osteopathic college of the present time is as rigid as that in a medical college. The osteopath is a skilled anatomist, educated in diagnosis and in the application of common sense he is probably the best founded of any school of healing.

Osteopathy has done much to drive drugs out of the rival schools of healing. It will do more. It will bring the personal equation more prominently to the front. The osteopath cannot treat a patient by looking at his tongue, feeling his pulse, writing a few words on a piece of paper and hurrying away. His is a personal contact of longer duration. He must be with his patient such a period of time that he can observe the treatment as he applied it, and its results.

Maybe that personal contact and intimate knowledge of what is wrong and what is needed that the resulting close study of a case brings can account in part for the rapid strides lately made by the profession of osteopathy. Another reason is that old time opponents have been convinced, and many of them admit osteopathy's claims to merit. Even opponents who have not yet consented to the writing of "former" before the term admit the advance of osteopathy in public confidence and in practice. They cannot do otherwise with that annual increase in the directory page confronting them.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

"Thank you, Mike, for telling me this," she said gently. "Please never say anything further about it."

And Stelton, elated that his plan of revenge had worked so well, smiled with satisfaction and relapsed into silence during the remainder of the ride home.

All of these events are set down here with some pretence at detail to indicate the important trend of affairs after Larkin had said a more-or-less indifferent good-bye to Juliet Bissell at the fork of Grass Creek. While he was wrestling with material problems, these others that destiny had suddenly joined to him were undergoing mental disturbances in which he was the principal though unconscious factor. And this unconscious prominence was to be the main reason for what next occurred.

It was perhaps noon of the day following Larkin's capture by the rustlers, when from a point directly east of the ranch house a cowboy appeared, riding at a hard gallop. Contrary to most fictions, cowboys rarely ever urge their ponies beyond a trot, the only occasions being the round-up, the stampede, the drive, or when something serious has occurred.

Mike Stelton saw the puncher from a distance and walked to the corral to meet him. Jerking his pony back on his haunches, the rider leaped from his back before the animal had fairly come to a stop.

"Mike, we've been tricked!" he cried. "That whole two thousand head of sheep are tracking north as fast as they can go far over east on the range, beyond the hills."

"What!" cried the foreman, hardly able to credit his ears. "The boys down on watch at the Big Horn swore they had scattered the flock last night when Larkin started to run them north on the range."

"Well, they swore wrong, then, for I've just come from where I seen 'em. I was over back of them hogbacks and buttes lookin' for strays and mavericks when along come them muttons in a cloud of dust that would choke a cow. I allow that darned sheepman has made us look like a lot of tenderfeet, Mike."

Stelton at this intelligence fairly gagged on his own fury. Larkin had scored on him again. The two were joined at this moment by Bissell who had noted the excitement at the corral. When apprised of what had happened, the cowman's face went as dark with anger as that of his foreman.

Beef Bissell was not accustomed to the sensation of being outwitted in anything, and the knowledge that the sheep were nearly half-way up the range put him almost beside himself.

For a few moments the trio looked at one another speechless. Then Bissell voiced the determination of them all.

"By the devil's mare!" he swore. "I won't be beaten by any sheepman that ever walked. Stelton, how many men will be in to-night?"

"Fifteen."

"Get 'em and bring 'em to me as soon as they come."

While the foreman went off about this business Bissell learned from Chuck, the cowboy, just where he had seen the sheep last, how fast they were travelling, and how far he calculated they would go before bedding down for the night.

"I reckon the outfit ought to camp somewhere about Little Creek," said Chuck. "That's runnin' water."

"And how far beyond that is Little River?"

"Two miles more or less."

"Fine. Wait around till the rest of the boys come in, Chuck. Oh, by the way, how near are the sheep to our eastern herd of cows?"

"Five miles more will bring 'em to the range the cows are on now."

An hour before supper the rest of the punchers began to come in from riding the range and rounding up strays. Before they were permitted a mouthful, however, Bissell went out to the bunk house with Stelton.

"Boys," he said, "which of you was down at the Big Horn last night an' turned them sheep back?"

A man spoke up and then two more who had been left on guard in the vicinity.

"How many did you scatter?"

"Dunno, boss," replied the first judicially. "From the noise they made I allow there was at least a thousand."

"Well, I bet you a month's wage there wasn't more'n a hundred," said Bissell, glaring at the puncher.

"Won't take yer, boss," returned the other calmly. "Why?"

"Because practically the whole flock is beddin' down at Little Creek now. Chuck seen 'em. Now I want all you fellers to get supper an' then rope an' saddle a fresh hoss. There is shore going to be some doin's to-night."

CHAPTOR IX

The Man in the Mask.

As Bud Larkin jogged along on Pinto, apparently one of the group of men with whom he was riding, he wondered mechanically why his captors insisted on travelling ten miles to a tree sufficiently stout to bear his weight.

"I should think they'd stand me up and do the business with a bullet," he thought.

But a moment's reflection furnished the answer to this query. These men were cattle-rustlers and horse-thieves, than which no more hazardous existence ever was since the gentle days of West Indian piracy, and to them merely a singe pistol shot might mean betrayal of their whereabouts, capture and death.

The character of the country through which they rode gave sufficient evidence of their care in all details, for it was a rough, wild, uninhabitable section that boasted, on its craggy heights and rough coulees, barely enough vegetation to support a wild mustang.

It was three o'clock of the afternoon and behind them the party could still see the place where they had camped. Joe Parker, fearful of stirring about much until the thoughts of range-riders were turning homeward like their ponies' steps, had delayed the departure beyond the hour first intended.

The rustlers really did not want to dispose of Larkin. Being plainsmen, their acute sense of justice told them that this man was absolutely guiltless of any crime deserving death. Untoward circumstances had forced him into their hands, and, like the boy with the fly-paper, they were unable to get rid of him peaceably. Their abuse of his insane folly was colourful and vivid.

But Larkin had reasons for his stubborn attitude. With the arrogance of youth and the inexperience of real danger, he had resolved that as soon as his sheep should be safely up the range he would devote some time, money, and effort to the running down of these rustlers. Some of their faces were unforgetably stamped on his memory now, and he had no doubt that he could be of great service to Wyoming Territory, which was just at this time petitioning for the dignity of Statehood.

He had known the losses and insolence of rustlers on his own sheep ranch in Montana, and, like every sympathizer with justice and order, had sworn to himself many times that all of them should be run to earth.

The longer Bud remained with the rustlers the more nervous some of them became. Since morning a number had been wearing masks made of their neckerchiefs, and one man had not shown his face since the moment he rode into camp after the all-night drive. This man's peculiar actions piqued Bud's curiosity, and he tried a number of times to draw him into conversation. But the rustler refused to speak and moved away whenever he found himself in the prisoner's vicinity.

About five o'clock the cavalcade arrived at a point where, ahead of them, through the barren buttes and hogbacks, they could see the long, level expanse of the range; and, about halfway to the horizon, a line of trees that indicated the snake-like progress of a river. Here Joe called a halt and gave orders that the party should lie concealed until after dark, as the remainder of their business could then be conducted with less danger to themselves.

Accordingly the horsemen turned away from the trail they had been following and after fifteen minutes of tortuous riding, made camp on the other side of a particularly uninviting wall of rock.

After eating supper prepared around the little fires Larkin saw the rustlers all gather into a circle and start drawing lots. He shivered a little at the thought that this was his execution party being made up.

Four men had been designated as the number to see Larkin off on his long journey, and when at last the drawing was finished it was found that Joe Parker, the masked rider, and two others had been selected.

As darkness drew on Parker began to lose his patience with Bud.

"Look-a-here, Larkin," he drawled, "I don't love no sheepmen, noways, an' I never did, but you aint no ordinary 'walker' an' I ain't ashamed to talk with y'u. Now the boys want to meet y'u half-way on this business, an' you won't do it. All you got to say is that you won't appear agin any of us in court, an' won't ever say anythin' agin any of us. Now what in blazes you're actin' like a mule balkin' at a shadder for, I dunno. Be sensible."

But to all such entreaties Larkin remained unmoved.

"If you hang me," he said, "you'll only hang yourselves, for all the sheepmen in Wyoming as well as the men from my own ranch down here, join with the cattlemen, and clean you fellows out. And if my Basque herders start in on you don't imagine you will have the luxury of hanging. They'll take their skinning knives and work from the neck down. No, I'd advise you to let me go and take your chances rather than kill me and wait."

"NA-DRU-CO DYSPEPSIA TABLETS Proved of Great Value to Me"

There is only one explanation for the numbers of enthusiastic letters that we receive praising Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and that is that these tablets certainly do cure any kind of stomach trouble.

Here is a typical letter from Miss Eliza Armsworthy, Canso, N.S.:

"It is with pleasure I write to inform you that your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great value to me. I tried remedy after remedy but without any lasting good. Having heard of your tablets curing such cases as mine I decided to give them a fair trial. They proved satisfactory in my case."

The remarkable success of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is such a success as can only come to an honest remedy, compounded according to an exceptionally good formula, from pure ingredients, by expert chemists. If you are troubled with your stomach just ask your Druggist about Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, and sold throughout the Dominion at 50c. a box. 143

OUR CIVILIZATION

Rev. R. J. Campbell Does Not Think It Altogether a Success

Rev. R. J. Campbell, of the London City Temple, talking to a representative of the British Congregationalist, answering the question as to whether he thought civilization has been altogether a success said: "Frankly no. Do you? What has it given us in many departments of life that we did not possess before, perhaps many thousands of years ago? We have advanced in science, but not perhaps in the highest form of knowledge. But in Art, have we? What modern painters have excelled the best of the old masters? What modern musicians those of a past age? What orators of modern times those of a past Greece and of Rome? It appears to me that we are approaching an age when we must begin over again, unlearn something of what we have learned. Gibbon was it not, who painted so vividly the causes of national and world decline. Are there no indications that the causes he stated are recurring in this, our own day—in the reckless luxury of the rich, in the lowering of the moral standard, the disregard of the highest ideals—in the press very often, for example—in the cravings for great possessions, which have no permanence? I think so. The hopeful sign is that many are dissatisfied, though frequently without knowing from what cause. That is the most hopeful sign."

DEFECTIVE CHILDREN

A Topic of Discussion in the Old Country

Sir James Crichton-Browne expressed the opinion, in a recent speech, that in the large public schools to-day it would be impossible to find ten absolutely sound children.

"The principal childish ailments," said the secretary of the Children's Hospital, "or those which the hospital treats in the greatest numbers, are connected with adenoids, tonsils and teeth. Out of 4,200 out-patients last year I should estimate that 3,000 were treated for adenoids or tonsils. We had 1,256 cases of defective teeth; but trouble among children with tonsils is on the increase, though we can give no definite reason for it."

It appears, also, that tuberculosis and pneumonia are also increasing among children, though here, again, it is difficult to account for the fact.

The headmaster of a well known public school declared that Sir James Crichton-Browne's statement was erroneous. "I could," he said, "point to dozens of my boys who are perfectly fit. I won't say that none of them has no defective teeth, or does not have a headache or some minor ill now and again. But if he would explain more definitely what he means by soundness I might be able to reply. None of us is an entirely perfect specimen of humanity, and it is absurd to raise alarm because no such individual exists.

"So far as public school boys are concerned their life is a healthy one; every care is taken to keep them fit; and when they do get any illness or complaint there are doctors, nurses, and their own hospitals waiting to make them well once more."

Domestic Servants Strange Claim

In Edinburgh a decision was given in a case under the Workmen's Compensation Act, in which Lizzie Borland, domestic servant, sued Mrs. Margaret Middleton, widow, for compensation in respect of incapacity resulting from injury by an accident. The servant's case was that she was knocked down and injured by a large Irish terrier which she was instructed by defendant's daughter to take out with her. The Sheriff said the servant took the dog out, having asked the permission of the daughter. The accident did not arise, therefore, out of her employment, and the action failed.

Veteran Pastor's Young Bride

The announcement is made of the marriage of the Rev. Dr. Cynddylan Jones, a Welsh Nonconformist leader, and Miss May Gertrude James, of Cwmcarn, Monmouthshire, who is twenty-four years of age. Dr. Jones, who is seventy-five, is a Calvinistic Methodist, and has been Moderator of the General Assembly. For many years he was the representative for Wales of the British and Foreign Bible Society, but he retired from this position some time ago. He is a celebrated preacher.

Abolishing Pauper Dress

A very interesting project is on foot amongst the guardians of the Midleton Union, namely, the introduction of ordinary children's clothing instead of the distinctive garb in which the workhouse school children are attired. The idea is to abolish the distinctive pauper uniform heretofore worn by the children of the institution, so that they may no longer be branded as child paupers.

PASTOR RUSSELL'S PHOTO-DRAMA

Formally Opened in the Boston Theatre on Sunday.

BIG SUCCESSES EVERYWHERE

In Sermon Pastor Russell's Subject Was, "Satan's Great Lie—What Harm It Did"—The First Lie—Where It Was Told—Why It Was Told—To Whom It Was Told—Its Result—Its Repetition—The Disastrous Results to Humanity—All Manner of Crimes Are Its Heritage—The Only Remedy—Why?—When?—How?

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

Boston, Mass., February 8th.—Pastor Russell is here, and in the Boston Theatre to-day conducted the opening exhibitions of his Photo-Drama of Creation, which will be exhibited at this theatre every Sunday at 10 A. M. and 3 and 8 P. M.

Since the Photo-Drama of Creation was first shown to the public at The Temple in New York City on January 11, which was the beginning of a series of world-wide productions, it has been introduced in several cities to crowded houses, in all of which it continues to enjoy a wide patronage.

Profound Bible scholars say that there is nothing of the kind in the world to-day comparable to Pastor Russell's Photo-Drama of Creation and its ninety-six remarkable phonographic talks, and that its several parts are superior to a seminary course in theological preparation.

In his sermon in the forenoon Pastor Russell discussed that feature of the Photo-Drama which relates to "Satan's Great Lie, and What Harm It Did." His text and discourse follow:

"When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own; for he is a liar, and the father of it."—John 8:44.

Nonsensical traditions handed to us from the Dark Ages have greatly confused the people of God on every Bible subject; for instance, Satan has been pictured grotesquely, and described as presiding in a far-off torture chamber. He has been represented as superintending the tortures of the non-elect of humanity. The Bible account has been wholly ignored. Instead of the Bible's representing Satan as a repulsive being with hoofs, horns, and forked tail, it tells us that he was an angel of a very high order—beautiful in person and highly endowed. Instead of residing afar off, he is the "prince of the power of the air." Instead of stoking fires, he "worketh in the hearts of the children of disobedience"—seeking to blind them and to bind them with ignorance, superstition, falsehood.

According to the Bible, Satan's primary sin was an ambitious pride. He imagined he could direct the affairs of the universe, in which he might set up a separate dominion, and try out his schemes. When Divine Power created Adam and Eve, and bade them multiply and fill the earth, Satan saw his opportunity to put his ambitious schemes into operation. The holy angels would not think of rebelling against Divine authority to co-operate with him in his schemes; but here was an inexperienced man, who might be deceived into disobedience to God, and thus be won over to Satan and his schemes. Through him he saw his way to an earthly empire in which his will would be done as Jehovah's will is done in Heaven.

Thus it came that when God instructed Adam and Eve in respect to the fruits of the Garden of Eden and forbade their eating of one certain kind of fruitage, and put a penalty upon disobedience, then Satan, through the serpent, lied to them. He told them that their Creator wished to keep them in a measure of slavery, that the fruit forbidden them was the very best necessary to their highest development, that so far from doing them injury it would be a boon, and make them a wise as God Himself. Satan intimated to them that God did not wish them to be as wise as Himself but desired to hold them in the slavery of ignorance.

The thirst for knowledge and the doubt of God's Wisdom and Love came before our first parents as a temptation; and they yielded. They disobeyed. This was sin. And it brought upon them the penalty God had foretold—"Dying, thou shalt die." The dying process began immediately, but so strong was the perfect man that even in the imperfect surroundings of the accursed earth outside of Eden he was able to prolong his dying 930 years.

Satan obsessed, or took control of the serpent, and so guided it that it spoke the deceptions to our first parents. It is not even necessary to suppose that the serpent spoke with an audible voice. Quite likely, as our adage goes, its actions spoke louder than words. It partook especially of the fruit forbidden to our first parents. The fruit did not kill the serpent. On the contrary Mother Eve perceived that it was wiser than any other of the beasts of the earth. By its actions it declared to her mind that God had misstated the facts when He told them that the eating of that forbidden fruit would bring death to them.

When Satan beheld Adam and Eve outcasts from Eden, and perceived that gradually the penalty, "Dying thou shalt die," would come upon mankind, weakening them in mind in body and in morals, he should have been convinced of the folly of his course. But no, an evil course of pride, once entered upon, leads further and further astray. Instead of surrendering to the God of all grace, Satan became more defiant. Instead of repenting of the lie by which he had injured a race, he added to it, still seeking to lower God in the eyes of humanity.

Apparently Satan sought so to alienate and demonize mankind that a perpetual barrier would be raised in their hearts against the Almighty, and that thus humanity might be hindered from ever again coming into fellowship with God, no matter what provision God's mercy or grace might make for their return. For six thousand years Satan has been carrying on his wicked work of slander and misrepresentation of the Divine character and purpose.

According to the Scriptures, Satan was disappointed that his subjects were dying, and was resolved to remedy this matter. Hence his next step was to inoculate the race with a fresh strain of life—vitality—vigor from the angels, who had never shown any symptoms of death. These, possessed of the power to materialize — to assume human bodies—were encouraged by Satan to violate the law of their being and the law of their nature—to misuse their materializing powers. Satan's word to our first parents, "Ye shall not surely die," must be upheld. By hook or by crook he would strive to fulfil his word, and to make the Almighty the falsifier.

The allurement was successful. Many of the angels heeded God's adversary and indulged themselves in the pleasures of sin. Of this matter we read in Genesis 6:2. Those angelic sons of God, saw the daughters of men, that they were fair, beautiful, and took of them for wives such as they chose, and started human families—all contrary to the Divine arrangement of their being, wholly misusing their power of materialization. Satan's course seemed to prosper. God's time to interfere had not yet come. He would allow disobedience and a certain amount of liberty that it might eventually illustrate to all certain great principles and lessons respecting the Divine character, Plan and arrangements, designed for the good of all God's creatures.

The children of this combination of angelic vitality grafted upon the human stock was a race of giants—physically and intellectually superior to the condemned and dying race of Adam. Being begotten and born under purely lustful conditions, and in violent opposition to the Divine will, this new race of giants retained nothing of the image or likeness of God. They were brutish, sensual tyrants. Under them the human family would soon have been exterminated; for we read respecting conditions that God perceived that the earth was full of violence and that the thoughts of men's minds were only evil continually. God's Wisdom saw that it would be best to blot out entirely that order of things, and to start a new arrangement. The Deluge accomplished this.

Thenceforth these angels who for centuries had lived of sin were restrained from materialization and separated from the holy angels, being confined to Tartarus—or earth's atmosphere. Meantime, instead of starting a new race of men, God carried over Noah and his family of seven. These constituted a new start for the Adamic family. And the statement that they were perfectly generated and that they had no angelic adulteration, assures us of the solidarity of our race, and that the Redemption-price paid for Adam includes every one of us; under the Lord's arrangement that "As all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive."

This was the first defeat that Satan had met with—the first great manifestation of Divine Power in opposition to him. But still it only partially stopped his program. The liberties of himself and his associate fallen angels were thenceforth restricted, limited, to earth. No longer had they privilege to roam the universe. Furthermore no longer were they permitted to assume a human form by materialization. They still, however, had their original perfection of organism and their general liberty. Satan thus had opportunity for assuming that God had done all that He was able to do in the way of restraining and opposing him.

Adapting himself to the new conditions, Satan and his fallen host attacked mankind in a new way after the Deluge. They would poison the minds of humanity against God. They would declare that Satan's original lie was the truth, and that God's statement was the lie. They would seek to prove to mankind that the dead are not dead—that they have merely changed their condition from a lower to a higher one and that they are more alive than ever. Whoever would come under the influence of this their teaching would discredit God's statement—would "believe the lie," would think of a dead man as really advanced to a higher station, instead of having fallen into death.

Men, persuaded that the dead are alive, could easily, on the basis of that error be led to believe that the dead were suffering torments, and the thought that God would authorize and permit such torments would tend to brutalize mankind, and tend also to stop them from thinking of God as gracious, merciful and sympathetic. Thus, alienated from God in their minds, they would be more amenable than ever to Satan and his associates in evil. Then, too, upon the basis of this falsehood, this deception, other errors could be introduced. Some could be taught respecting a purgatory and respecting the possibility of escape from purgatory under certain terms and conditions. All this would tend to bring about the slavery of the human mind, and make possible further inroads by the evil spirits.

St. Paul refers to these doctrines of demons, and styles them also "strong delusions, that they should believe a lie," because they had less pleasure in the truth. These strong delusions have been operating in the world for now more than four thousand years. Can we wonder that they have gained a strong hold upon humanity? Can we wonder that they are to be found in every corner of the earth—among the savage Indians of America, among the blacks of Africa, among the millions of India, China, Japan? We cannot wonder at this, especially when we remember the Apostle's statement, "We wrestle not with flesh and blood, but with wicked spirits in high (influential) places."

Of course, there must be some channel, some theory, some attempted proof given in support of Satan's lie. Of old it was accomplished by witches, and necromancers. These pretended to communicate with the dead and to get from them answers to the questions from the living. Thus by continued deceptions in accordance with Satan's original lie, mankind was kept from knowing the source of these instructions and the demons, the fallen angels, were permitted to inveigle mankind, thus binding them more closely than ever with fetters of ignorance and superstition.

So far as the world in general was concerned, God permitted this, intending eventually to deliver mankind; but in the case of Israel, God's favored nation, He especially intervened to shelter them from the attacks of the Adversary, by special laws and regulations prohibiting mediumistic operations of the evil spirits. He did this by warning Israel against having anything whatever to do with those who had familiar spirits—witches, necromancers, wizards, etc. Under penalty of death none of these were to reside in Palestine.

Some of them, however, risked the penalty and did reside there, as evidenced by King Saul's visit to the Witch of Endor, when he desired to communicate with Samuel, the Prophet, who was dead. Of course, Samuel was dead, and neither Saul nor the witch could revive him. But the evil spirits could impersonate Samuel; and that they did so, is the record. They caused the witch to see certain things, which she described to the king and which he interpreted to himself. Thus was the error propagated even in God's special nation—separated from all the others of the world to be His people.

In the days of our Lord we find that many of the people had been dabbling in Spiritism, and had come under the influence of the fallen angels to the extent of obsession, and some of them to the extent of being possessed by evil spirits, which did their thinking and talking for them, merely using their human organs as their servants. This would seem to have been the alternative to materialization. If the fallen angels could no longer materialize, they would do the thing next to their preference—they would get control of the mind of some individual and thus have control of his body.

In all such cases, it would appear that the victim, becoming a tool of the evil spirits, is frequently caused by them to say and to do things indicating depravity greater than he or she had before the obsession began. The tendency of all such things seems to be toward licentiousness. In the days of Jesus and His Apostles, according to the Scriptural accounts, they cast out demons from many people, some of whom had more than one. One man had a legion. Many physicians know well that some who are apparently insane are not really so as respects any brain disease. They merely are obsessed, possessed of evil spirits. When several of these gain control of one man, they make his life unbearable by the conflicts which they establish, especially operating along the auditory nerves.

Throughout this Gospel Age Satan and his demon legions, operating through dreams, mental impressions, etc., have so thoroughly deluded the masses of mankind, that nearly all believe Satan's lie, and only an extremely small minority believe the Word of the Lord. The process of supporting the lie continues. Writing mediums, trance mediums, tipping mediums, black art, theosophy and occultism in general—all support the theory that a dead man is more alive than a living one. In the symbolical language of the Book of Revelation, all nations have been made drunk with the wine of false doctrine.

Those who discern the falsehood have learned a great lesson—to put confidence in the Word of the Lord and not in human imaginations. This great lesson, ere long, will be taught to all, and we may assume will surely justify the Lord's course in permitting Satan's lie to flourish so thoroughly and for so long. We know not certainly what further terrible experiences may come to man as a result of believing the lie of Satan instead of the Word of God, but certain Scriptures seem clearly to imply that this Age is to end with some great catastrophe which will demonstrate the wisdom of those who hold fast the Truth and the folly of those who neglect it.

BAD BLOOD IS THE DIRECT CAUSE OF Pimples.

Pimples break out on the face and body, and it is impossible to get rid of them, unless you cleanse the blood of all of its impurities.

Burdock Blood Bitters is without a doubt, the very best medicine for this purpose.

This old, and reliable medicine has been in use for nearly forty years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other preparation for removing all the impurities from the blood and banishing the pimples.

Mr. Edward Paquette, Navan Centre, Ont., writes:—"One month ago my face was covered with pimples and a rash. I had tried a number of these so called blood purifiers with no avail. Seeing an almanac of yours in which you strongly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to try a bottle, and after I had taken it I could see a decided change, and after using three bottles more all the pimples had completely disappeared."

Gray Hair Becomes Dark, Thick, Glossy

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or grey; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musty and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

PRESENTATION TO S. S. TEACHER

Mr. A. Stewart Given a Handsome Club Bag

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Micks, 425 Stewart street, entertained the Inthon Bible Class of the George St. Methodist Church last evening. About twenty-five members were present and a very pleasant time was spent with a programme of readings, music and speeches. During the evening a presentation was made to the teacher of the class, Mr. A. Stewart, of a handsome club bag and set. Mr. H. J. Walker, president of the class, read the address, while the presentation was made by Mr. R. Shield. At the conclusion refreshments were served and thus ended one of the happiest times in the history of the class.

The Secret of Good Digestion

In perfect health, with regular and healthful action of the liver and kidneys, you need not know there is such a thing as digestion or indigestion. Unfortunately, however, modern life is artificial, and not many people avoid suffering more or less from troubles of this nature.

The great secret lies in keeping the liver and kidneys in health and vigour, for then the food is passed quickly along the alimentary canal, the nutritive portions being assimilated in the blood stream and the poisoned waste materials are passed out of the body.

When the liver and kidneys get wrong you will obtain relief most promptly and effectively by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If chronic indigestion is to be cured it must be by enlivening the action of these filtering and excretory organs. To persons who have thought only of the stomach as being the offending organ this may seem strange, but any competent physician will tell you this is correct.

A MEMENTO OF THE PAST

There is considerable historic significance in the circumstance that the C. P. R. has just taken for the winter months the old Cunard building erected by the founder of the Cunard line—Mr. Samuel Cunard, who was a Halifax man and who made his name famous in the shipping and mercantile world. It was to Halifax that he brought his first ships; it was in the old office he bent over his task. There is a new day and new methods; and a degree of expansion of which he could not have dreamt. The shipping business has increased hundredfold during the last half century. The stress and strain of life are indicated by the speed demanded on land and sea — speed which the old founder could not have foreseen in his most prescient moment. The old house (or offices) is a three-storey building of stone with the quaint old windows hinting a quiet and sedate world which minded its business and did not bother looking out at hobble skirts. The name is cut on the old building—"S. Cunard"—offering a memento of the past full of interest, suggesting at once the small beginnings of a great business to which he devoted his energy and genius and the amazing development of that business, keeping pace with modern demand, by the C. P. R.

AUDITORS' CERTIFICATE.

We have made a continuous audit of the Cash and Bank Accounts with the books and vouchers of The Union Trust Company, Limited, for the year ending 31st December, 1913, and have verified the securities, and we hereby certify that the accompanying balance sheet is a true and correct statement of its affairs at the date named. The books are properly kept, and all required information has been freely given.

C. R. CUMBERLAND, A. C. NEFF, F.C.A. } Auditors.

In moving the adoption of the report, the President, Mr. H. H. Beck, said:

The profits for the year, after payment of interest on Guaranteed Funds and cost of management and expenses of every kind, amounted to $300,794.05, being a return of over 30% on the Company's Paid-up Capital, and I am sure you will agree with me that this is an admirable and most satisfactory result of the Company's business.

Out of the profits, including balance brought forward, there have been paid $100,000, being four quarterly dividends at the rate of 10% per annum, $100,000 has been added to Reserve Fund, and $39,736.78 has been carried forward.

The year just closed has been a very eventful one in many respects. The phenomenal growth in the prosperity and wealth of Canada has been assisted in a very marked degree by the large amount of English money which has been invested in this country, but this movement received a severe check in the beginning of last year when the war in the Balkan States, coming just at the time when the demand for loans reached and apparently exceeded the available supply, caused a sudden change of conditions, and a number of important undertakings involving the expenditure of large sums of money which had been undertaken in the expectation of securing the funds in England were unable to be proceeded with.

The suddenness of the change was severely felt for a time, and it was predicted by some that the country would not be able to adapt itself to the change, and that disastrous results would ensue.

As you are all aware, however, nothing of the kind occurred. The country adapted itself to the altered conditions with surprising rapidity. Expenditure was curtailed wherever necessary, values were maintained to a remarkable degree, and aided by the good crop in the North-West Provinces, a healthy recovery followed the temporary relapse.

These conditions have had a tendency to increase rates of interest, but, on the other hand, the high rate of interest obtainable on loans caused a very serious decline in the value of municipal and other bonds, and, in view of this, our Board considered it wise and in the interest of the Company to set aside a substantial amount to cover possible depreciation in the securities owned by the Trust Company, otherwise I may say to you that the profits of the Company for the past year would have amounted to a much larger sum.

As you will notice from the Auditors' Certificates, there has been a daily audit of the Company's accounts at Head Office, with monthly audits of the Branches, and the Company's securities have also been checked and certified by the Inspection Committee, consisting of the Hon. Sir George W. Ross and Mr. W. H. Hunter.

I desire to express our appreciation of the very great assistance and excellent results which we are receiving from the Manager and Staff of the Winnipeg Office, and the Chairman, Committee and Staff of the London Office.

I regret very much that Mr. T. Wilkes Chitty, who has been one of our English Directors for some years, is unable to continue as a Director owing to his editorial and other duties. Mr. Chitty has rendered the Company valuable services since he came on the Board. I am glad to be able to say that, although retiring from the Board, he has promised to give us the benefit of his assistance whenever required.

I wish also to express our appreciation to the Officers and Staff at Head Office, who have given us their best services during the year.

We all miss to-day the presence of Sir George Ross, one our Directors, and a member of the Inspection Committee, who is absent through illness. We hope that he will be able to be with us again before long.

I have much pleasure in moving the adoption of the Report.

The President then called upon the General Manager, Mr. J. M. McWhinney, who said:

The Company's Reserve Fund of $950,000, together with the balance of undivided profits carried forward, makes a total of $989,736, which is almost equal to our Paid-up Capital of $1,000,000.

Our funds are divided, as you know, into three accounts, our own funds being kept separate from Guaranteed and Trust funds. Our Capital Account, of course, remains about the same from year to year, but our Trust Savings Accounts show an increase of 50% over the previous year, and there has also been an increase in the value of estates in the hands of the Company as executor, administrator, liquidator, etc., and our total Capital, Guaranteed Funds, Trust Funds and Estates show a gradual and steady increase, having risen from $10,627,052 in 1908 to $14,360,059 in 1913. We also acted as trustee for bondholders and countersigned bonds aggregating several million dollars, which are not included in the above figures.

A number of very important estates and liquidations have been placed with us during the year, and I believe that our system of administration of estates is meeting with appreciation on account of the careful attention and prompt realization of assets by the Company. We have received also a number of important Wills, and I refer with much pleasure to this department of the Company's work.

The fiducial services given by the Company to persons owning or purchasing property or contemplating the investment of money is becoming recognized, and the public are becoming more generally aware of the many ways in which they can, at small expense, take advantage of the experience and assistance of the Trust Company.

Our Mortgage Investments have been particularly successful and no losses have been sustained. Our rule is to make loans only in districts where property is readily saleable, it must be centrally located, have suitable buildings, be revenue-producing, and the amount loaned is limited to fifty per cent. of the appraised value. Special care is taken to avoid accepting loans on property in speculative townsites or in districts which are likely to depreciate.

Of the applications from Ontario submitted to the Board during the year, I find that about forty per cent. only were accepted; in the others there was either insufficient margin, or they did not comply with the above conditions. In Ontario interest on mortgages has, as a rule, been promptly paid, and at the end of the year the interest in arrear over one month amounted to only one-eighteenth of one per cent. of the principal. In the North-West, while the arrears were larger than usual during the early part of the year, the payments during the later months showed marked improvement, and the arrears on December 31st were not larger than usual.

No relaxation has been made in our rule requiring inspection of the property offered as security, by the Company's Inspector, before acceptance of the loan, and to this I attribute in a large measure our success in not making losses.

The Company's Real Estate Department, Transfer Department and Safety Deposit Vaults also report a satisfactory year.

Already we have evidence of easier financial conditions, and looking forward I feel that the Company's prospects are most encouraging.

In closing, I wish to add my testimony to the hearty and faithful support given by the members of the staff during the year.

The Report was seconded by Hon. E. G. Stevenson, and adopted.

Sir George W. Ross and Mr. W. H. Hunter were appointed members of the Inspection Committee, and Messrs. C. R. Cumberland and A. C. Neff, F.C.A., were appointed Auditors of the Company.

The following were elected Directors for the ensuing year: Samuel Barker, M.P.; H. H. Beck, E. E. A. DuVernet, K.C.; Henry F. Gooderham, Right Hon. Lord Hindlip, Sir Charles H. Hoare, S. F. Lazier, K.C.; Charles Magee, George S. May, Dr. J. H. McConnell, J. M. McWhinney, Right Hon. the Earl of Onslow, H. S. Strathy, Hon. Elliott G. Stevenson, Sir George W. Ross.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. Charles Magee was elected Chairman of the Board, and Mr. H. H. Beck, President, the Hon. Elliott G. Stevenson and Mr. E. E. A. DuVernet, K.C., Vice-Presidents of the Company.

The following were appointed members of the London Committee:—Mr. Charles H. Hoare, Rt. Hon. Lord Hindlip, Rt. Hon. the Earl of Onslow, Major J. C. Brinton, D.S.O., M.V.O., and Mr. Arnold R. Rathbone.

Votes of thanks to the President, Directors, Officers and Staff were passed, after which the meeting adjourned.

To Fight For Life

Asquith Government Faces the Crisis of its Career

SESSION BEGINS TO-MORROW

LONDON, Feb. 9.—After the longest vacation that members have enjoyed since the Liberal party came into power eight years ago, Parliament reassembles to-morrow for a session that promises to be full of hard work and excitement.

There are not only the home rule and Welsh disestablishment bills which come up for third passage and then to become law, despite anything the Lords may do, but there is a great mass of other business which will compel the Government to fight continually to hold the confidence of the House of Commons. From start to finish of a session a British Government must keep on the alert to prevent an adverse vote, which, if it has the backing of a majority of the members, means the retirement of the Ministry. The danger will be more acute than ever during this session.

From the moment that King George leaves the House of Lords after delivering his speech from the throne opening the proceedings, the Government will be under fire, not only from their Unionist opponents but on several questions from Liberals as well. Fortunately for the Government, it probably will have the support of many Unionists on the questions that the revolting radicals will chose for their attacks.

In taking up regular measures it is understood that the Welsh disestablishment bill will be given precedence over home rule, which will be left until the last in hope that some compromise will be forthcoming. Between these two big measures will be introduced the bill to abolish plural voting, which has already passed once under the Parliament Act, and which Liberal election agents are deeply anxious to see made law before another election, as they believe most of the plural voters are Unionists.

There is still much interest as to how the House of Lords will receive the home rule and Welsh disestablishment bills. The Liberals contend that under the Parliament Act no matter what the Lords do the bills will become law on receiving the signature of the King. There are some Unionists, however, who believe that as the act distinctly says they shall become law on the Lords rejecting them for the third time, if the Upper Chamber simply refuses to consider them they cannot be rejected, and, therefore, cannot become law. The House of Lords, however, would require a lot of urging to take that view, remembering as they would that the people have already endorsed the Parliament Act and any attempt to evade it might have serious consequences for the Unionist party. The Government, therefore, is looking with confidence to a smooth passage for its two chief measures.

It is reported that the Unionist device to force a dissolution of Parliament and thus defeat home rule for Ireland is for the House of Lords to reject the annual army budget bill. If this were done the army would cease to exist, and the Government would be compelled to appeal to the country.

It is believed that such an extreme course is hardly practicable, and the milder suggestion is said to be favored of amending the bill in such manner as to put the army out of existence in Ireland alone, and thus prevent it being employed to coerce Ulster.

Boys Charged With Theft.

CORNWALL, Feb. 9.—Four young boys, ranging in age from 8 to 13 years, were before Police Magistrate Davis, charged with breaking into W. H. Gardiner's grocery store and stealing between ten and fifteen dollars worth of candy, gum, etc. Entrance was effected by breaking a plane of glass 10 x 15 inches in the rear of the store. The plunder was put into two canvas bags and secreted in a barn.

TO CLEAN UP SLUMS.

King George Orders Complete Reconstruction on Cornwall Properties.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—It is not generally remembered that King George or the Prince of Wales, as the beneficiary of the estates of the Duchy of Cornwall, is the landlord of one of the worst slums in London. There is a part of Kennington on the south side of the Thames which belongs to the Duchy of Cornwall, and consists of a maze of small streets and alleys, constituting a veritable Alsatia. At the King's personal instigation the committee which controls the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall has taken in hand the task of doing away with the conditions prevailing there, and the whole area has been subjected to a cleaning-out process. Old houses have been torn down, new streets laid out, and a number of artisans' dwellings of the latest model will be constructed.

A tribute to the work started by the King in this connection was paid by Sir James Crichton-Browne at a meeting of sanitary engineers on Saturday. He said: "In the reconstruction work being carried out under the direction and supervision of his Majesty on his estate in Kennington, he has declared that the object to be kept in view is to make people happy and comfortable. His Majesty also recognized the fundamental principles that are to be observed if that object is to be attained, for he insisted on the planning of substantial, commodious and comely dwellings, with every modern improvement.

THE EARL OF DERBY—In a speech at Bootle he offered to sell his estate in Bootle, a suburb of Liverpool, for $7,500,000. The property was purchased in 1724 for $35,000 and Baron de Forest cited this as a striking case of unearned increment. He estimated the value of $20,000,000 and immediately offered to purchase Lord Derby's estate at $7,500,000.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The spendthrift is a plain and simple fool, with no excuse for his idiocy.

The miser is unworthy of the space he fills.

True economy lies between the two extremes.

Comparatively few people are normal in their expenditures.

The economical person frequently over-practises economy, to the injury of his mind and body.

Since God saw fit to house the human soul and intellect within a material structure, it is as much of a crime to ignore the necessities of the body as it is to neglect the feeding of the mind. For, as a matter of fact, you cannot take care of the mind without looking out for the body.

Thousands, yes, hundreds of thousands, of young men and women, boys and girls, especially those in business or at other work, economize to the extent of under-nourishing the body, which reacts upon the mind and dwarfs the capacity o accomplish.

A cup of coffee, and a piece of pie or a doughnut, are not sufficient for the making of human steam, or for keeping the mind at normal.

Good, substantial, and plain food is absolutely necessary for any kind of accomplishment.

The quick-lunch counter is opposed to health and efficiency.

The hurried breakfast stands for depression and over-strain.

The heavy dinner or supper makes for unrefreshing sleep, and does not allow the body and mind to recuperate during the hours set apart for renovation.

Don't button your suit coat on a frosty winter morning, and persuade yourself that you are warm enough, because you want to atend a series of dancing parties with the money which would be well invested in an overcoat.

Don't limit your diet to a sandwich and a cup of coffee, in order that you may have a few more neckties or go to the theatre every other night.

Don't try to fol your stomach. You can't do it.

The lack of a pair of rubbers or stout shoes invites colds, pneumonia, and other illness.

An insufficient outer-covering, like a warm overcoat for winter, sends one to the office chilled and devitalized.

If it is necessary for you to practice strict economy, endeavour to economize in directions which will not affect your health or your work.

Without good food, proper clothing, and plenty of fresh air, you will never realize the best of your capacity; and, if you are careless while young, you will pay the penalty at once or later, for Nature, while absolutely just, has no sympathy with those who abuse her laws. She exacts a penalty, which you must pay—perhaps not to-day but eventually.

If you would use your mind, and get the most out of yourself, take care of your body. Consider it as sacred as any other part of yourself. It was given to you for a definite purpose, and it will not ake care of itself.

Above all, don't imagine that your body is subordinate to your mind. Well feed and house them both.

DEAD IN HIS SHACK.

Springbank Hermit Frozen Stiff When Found by Neighbors.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 9.—Wm. Fulton, known locally as the hermit of Springbank, from the fact that for many years he has lived the life of a recluse in a three-roomed shack on the bank of the Thames, was found dead yesterday by neighbors, who, not having seen him for some days, and suspecting that something was wrong, broke in his door.

The body was lying right behind the door and was frozen stiff, but a doctor who was summoned expressed the opinion that death had been due to heart failure, and that the freezing had occurred subsequently.

An inquest will be held.

No Feud With Sylvia.

PARIS, Feb. 9.—Miss Christabel Pankhurst said yesterday it was untrue that there was any personal estrangement between herself and her sister or her mother, or that she intended to return to England.

"There is nothing new," Miss Pankhurst said, "in the relations between Sylvia's East End Federation of Suffragettes and the W.S.P.U., Sylvia's movement having been independent. They always have had even separate funds, and there has been no connection between the two bodies."

Germany Would Like To Stop.

LONDON, Feb. 9. — Admiral Von Tirpitz, the German naval minister, has made the interesting confession that his refusal to entertain Winston Churchill's proposal of a "naval holiday" was mainly due to industrial reasons. He states that England, having such a number of shipbuilding contracts from abroad, could cease building for the British navy without danger of demoralizing her labor conditions. Germany, however, would be compelled to shut down her shipbuilding yards during a naval holiday.

WILL NOT SELL ESTATE.

Earl of Derby Refuses to Fulfill Offer to Baron de Forest.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Earl of Derby has declined to sell to Baron de Forest his Bootle estate in the suburb of Liverpool, as at one time appeared likely, on the ground that the Baron had wilfully misrepresented the terms of his offer.

Recently in a contribution to the land enquiry committee's report Baron de Forest cited the Bootle estate of the Earl of Derby as a striking example of unearned increment. The property, which was purchased in 1724 for $35,000, he estimated to be worth at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 at present.

Lord Derby declared that the estimates were grossly excessive, and said he would sell the Bootle estate to Baron de Forest for $7,500,000.

Sent to Death In Tunnel.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 9.—Locked in the cars of a Mexico Northwestern Railway passenger train by Castillo's bandits and sent to their death in the burning Cumbre Tunnel, near Madera, Mexico, was the fate of ten American officials and employes of the railway and of more than thirty passengers, according to a despatch sent to the officers of the company here by a party of officials who are searching for the victims at the burning tunnels.

The Skin Troubles of Childhood

School Records Show Much Time Lost From Eczema.

Chafing and skin irritation, whether from changing temperature, rough winds, strong soap or the action of the clothing, naturally develop into eczema, spread over the body and defy ordinary treatments.

Most doctors do not give much attention to skin diseases, and, consequently, it is necessary for parents to select some treatment which has proven a cure for such ailments. If records of cures count for anything, then you can turn to Dr. Chase's Ointment with fullest assurance that in this you will have the means of controlling itching skin diseases.

By affording prompt relief from the terrible itching, Dr. Chase's Ointment puts an end to suffering, and removes the cause of scratching. As the fires of eczema die away the ointment sets up the process of healing, and brings about thorough and lasting cure. As a treatment for the skin troubles of children nothing has ever proved so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Bluff Called.

The following exchange of courtesy was secretly chronicled in a German paper's advertisement:

"The gentleman who found a brown purse containing a sum of money, in the Blumenstrasse, is requested to forward it to the address of the loser, as he is recognised."

A couple of days later appeared the response, which, although courteous, had an elusive air, to say the least:

"The recognised gentleman who picked up a brown purse in the Blumenstrasse, requests the loser to call at his house at a convenient day."

STRANGE ANIMAL LIFE

QUEER BEASTS WHICH INHABIT OUTSKIRTS OF EMPIRE.

New Zealand Breaks All Traditions With the Remarkable Nature of Her Birds, While Australia Takes the Palm For Weird Animals—The Duck Billed Platypus is Nature's Greatest Joke.

Two strange animals, the great white rabbit and the little musk ox, have been the means of keeping life in the bodies of the Cook and Peary companies almost to the pole. The former is the largest of all rabbits—much bigger, indeed, than the "jack-rabbit" of our western plains. Like the latter, it is, properly speaking, a hare. It is usually called the "Arctic hare," and is one of the few creatures in existence that, without being albinoes, like the ordinary white rabbit, is perfectly snow-white.

But one does not have to go to such impossible spots on the globe to find the strangest beasts.

In the matter of feathered creatures, New Zealand is undeniably the most remarkable country in the world. It is particularly the home of the flightless birds, of many species, which flourished there in earlier times, owing to the fact that there are no large carnivorous beasts to prey upon them. Unfortunately, the white man in establishing himself in the land of Maori, has brought with him his dogs and cats, which are rapidly driving the non-flying birds to extinction.

The best known of these birds is the ki-wi, or apteryx — the latter, which is its scientific name, signifying wingless. It is, indeed, practically without wings, and lives in thickets, often covering itself with dead leaves and twigs for concealment. About the size of the average turkey, it is thick-set with plumage long and hairy. Worms and insects furnish the bulk of its food, which it seeks at night, hiding itself by day.

The ki-wi is especially interesting because it is a close relative of the gigantic moa—a New Zealand bird, rivaling the roc in size, which became extinct not more than a century ago. When full grown it weighed half a ton, exceeding the aepyornis, of Madagascar, in weight, though less in stature. Its leg bones were enormously heavy, and it was very sluggish in its movements.

But the most curious of all New Zealand birds in some respects is the kea, a very large native parrot. It is a killer of sheep, actually preying on these animals, and the loss it causes in this way is so great that the sheep farmers destroy it as often as they can.

In Australia all the mammals, without exception, are marsupials, carrying their young in breast-pouches until they are big enough to take care of themselves. Thus the new-born baby of the giant kangaroo, which attains a height of seven feet, is hardly bigger than a lima bean when it comes into the world. At once thereupon it is placed by its mother (together with 10 or 12 brothers and sisters, perhaps) in the pouch afore-mentioned, and does not emerge therefrom until it is the size of a rat, when it is able to make its way in the world.

Unquestionably the most remarkable of the Australian animals are the echinda and "the duck-billed platypus"—for these are the only mammals that lay eggs. The platypus, indeed, is a veritable zoological paradox, inasmuch as it is a quadruped with a stout fur-covered body, a toothless beak like that of a duck, webbed feet and a short tail. It feeds on mollusks, insects and crustaceans, and is of aquatic habits, living in and about streams like the otter and muskrat.

The marsupials, as already explain-

Backache Banished.

Thousands of men and women are suffering from weak, lame and aching backs, and many of them unable to do any work for the pain.

The stitches, twitches and twinges are bad enough and give enough misery, but, back of the backache, and the cause of it all are the disordered kidneys crying out in warning through the back.

Backache is kidney ache, and there's serious trouble ahead for you if you neglect it.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of backache by curing the sick kidneys that cause it.

Mrs. Jack Mason, Springhill, N.B., writes:—"I have been suffering from backache for a very long time. I tried everything and did everything, but still I would suffer. One day I was looking over your Almanac, and saw your advertisement for Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got 5 boxes, and I am glad to say that they brought me back to life again, and from now on I will never be without them."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

eg, are once members in the kingdom creation: Under the rules they ought to have passed from off the earth many thousands of years ago. But nature has strange and unaccountable ways. Thus, for another example, there is the queer bird called the hoatzin of Guinea and eastern Venezuela, which in infancy, so to speak, is a reptile. At all events, it is reptile-like during the first months of its existence, climbing about on the branches of trees by the help of well developed claws attached to those portions of its wings which correspond anatomically to the thumbs of our hands. Of course, a bird's wing is merely an arm modified for flight.

The sloths of Central and South America are another strange survival of an ancient epoch. Mammals of their primitive kind roamed over a wide range of latitudes in North and South America 100,000 years and more ago—some of them of gigantic size, weighing as much as six tons—but to-day they are represented by only a few tropical species, such as one on the Isthmus of Panama, which is two feet long, feeds on the leaves of trees, and almost never comes to the ground. It must be the original "mossback," for a lichen, growing on its hair, colors it green, and renders the animal almost indiscernible as it hangs immovable from a hospitable bough. There could be no more curious example of natural disguise, protective against enemies.

It may be said, perhaps, that in its way, the most remarkable artistic effect of nature is shown in the designing of the wings of the Argus pheasant, which is an extremely shy bird of the Malay Peninsula, Sumatra and Java. So wary is this feathered creature that snares of special and highly ingenious construction are employed for its capture by the natives of these far-off islands.

Wet and Dry Moons.

There is an old superstitution, which dies hard, that the position of the horns of the new moon tells what the weather will be; if the horns of the crescent are on the same level, it will hold water ,and hence it is dry moon; but if it is tipped up, then the water will run out, and it is a wet moon.

One thing has helped keep this belief alive; the moon is "dry" in the part of the spring that is usually fair, while it is "wet" during the season of autumn rains.

If this were a sure sign of the weather we could have our predictions years in advance, for an astronomer can predict the exact position of the moon at any time in the future.

The cause for the different positions of the crescent is simple: The moon is south of the sun in the autumn and north of it in spring. The crescent is formed by the light of the sun falling on the moon, and the horns are naturally in a line perpendicular to the direction of the sun from the moon. That is all there is to it.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE BARGAIN

Mr. Bob Chalmers had gone up to the mountain resort with full $500 in his pocket, and a liberal balance was left in the bank after he had drawn that sum.

Mr. Chalmers dabbled a little in paints and oils. Some folks referred to him as an artist, but he never claimed the title. He said he just daubed and dabbled because it helped to loaf the time away.

Mr. Chalmers did not seek the mountains because it was fashionable. The doctor recommended it as a cure for dyspepsia. He did not take three or four trunks and seven or eight changes of clothing, but only one, and a rather small one at that.

He just wanted an easy, loafing time of it for two or three weeks, and he hoped to meet no one he knew. In this hope he was not disappointed. All were strangers to him, and no one sought to break through his aloofness.

In fact, he was so severely let alone that the manager of the hotel began to take notice. There had been two or three dead beats at that caravansary, and was this another? Was it misanthropy, or was it fear of the bill to be presented when the week was up?

Mr. Chalmers hadn't folded his $500 into an envelope and written his name and the amount and asked the clerk to take care of it. Had he done so he could have looked and acted like a pickpocket or robber and the office would have stood by him.

The dabbler in paints and oils had had no occasion to use much money during the week. When Saturday came he felt for his wealth, and it was gone. In his rambles over the mountain he had lost it, and it would be like looking for a needle in a haystack to go out and search for it.

Five hundred dollars is worth worrying about. For less than that sum people have upset a whole hotel and have had 200 guests looking at each other with suspicion.

Instead of shouting his loss through the halls and on the verandahs, Mr. Chalmers loafed along down to the office and stated it to the manager, and asked his advice about writing out some reward notices and posting them about the grounds.

"I have known them to do that!" was the ironical reply.

"What do you mean, sir?"

"I have known them to do that, but no one ever succeeded in finding the lost sum!"

"You seem to intimate, sir—you seem to intimate—"

"That if you do not pay your bill you will be arrested as a fraud! There is a law to cover the case!"

Mr. Chalmers haughtily asked the amount and wrote out a cheque on his city bank and tossed it over. The manager simply pointed to a sign of: "No cheques cashed."

"I will telephone my bank to send me up a few hundreds."

"And you know, of course, that the line has been down two days!"

"See here, man, I don't like this kind of talk. I came up here with $500 and have lost it. That doesn't break me. If your telephone is out of order I will go down to the station in the bus and telegraph my bank. Do I look like a hotel beat?"

"I shall object to your going to the railroad, except with the Sheriff, and as for the looks, I have nothing to say. It's my money I want. You'd better look around and see if you can't borrow it."

Mr. Chalmers wandered away to find a quiet retreat and think. He may have been followed at a distance by some hotel clerk, provided with a police whistle to give an alarm in case he bolted.

The quiet retreat was found half a mile away, but the dabbler had not occupied it ten minutes when a good-natured fat man came along, and plumped himself down and said he wished he had gone to the seashore instead.

A fat man always reminds others of good cheer—of money to buy good cheer with. He looks easy to borrow off. Strange thoughts entered the head of Mr. Chalmers as he glared at the intruder.

Should he tell his tale and try to borrow? Should he take him by the throat and command him to give up? Should he kill him and despoil the body and bury it beside the big rock?

And all the time the fat man had been casting furtive glances at the dabbler, as if seeking to place him in his memory. He finally slapped his leg and laughed and cried out:

"Got you at last! Your name is Chalmers!"

"Well?"

"Well, you painted by portrait about three years ago. My name is Gregg. Funny you shouldn't know me at first sight, after so many sittings."

"Yes, and you must excuse me, Mr. Gregg. Yes, I ought to have recognised you at once, but—but—"

"But you were meditating."

"Yes. I am in a little trouble."

"Glad of that, for I always like to advise. Just go ahead and tell me all about it."

It was humiliating to do, but it was done, and Mr. Gregg enjoyed every word of it. When the tale was finished he said:

"Chalmers, I'll make a bargain with you. I paid you $300 for that portrait, but it's so execrable I never hung it up. If you'll agree never to paint another I'll lend you $200 more!"

Mr. Chalmers wasn't hurt a bit. He had always said he was no artist, and that he pitied the buyers of his portraits and landscapes. He reached his hand for the bills and Mr. Gregg passed them out and added:

"Two hundred dollars and I'll introduce you to my daughter Molly besides. Here she comes. Molly, this is Mr. Bob Chalmers, whom I have just hired to do no more portrait painting. He'll tell you why while I move on."

How Brown Learned How.

There is a man who makes shoes for children—and sells them to stores all over Canada
But he is only just learning how people buy.

It was this way: His wife—let us call her Mrs. Brown—'phoned to him and asked him to buy some underwear for little Brown.

Picture Brown now among the throng of mothers at the "Children's Underwear" counter. He asks for Underwear for a child of six. He looks it over helplessly. What on earth does he know about Children's Underwear? For lack of anything better to say he asks: "Is this good quality?" The answer is short and quite conclusive: "It's Blank's"—naming a well-advertised line. That short word says everything. Brown pays his money and goes home, quite satisfied with his purchase.

Now what bothers Brown—a manufacturer of shoes, is this: How would it affect the purchase of a child's shoes if the salesman said "They're Brown's"?

Nobody knows Brown's shoes. Brown doesn't advertise.

The name Brown signifies nothing when used in connection with children's shoes. The salesman must use all his persuasive wiles to induce people to buy them.

The point is—If the name Brown was as synonomous with Children's Shoes as "Blank's" is with Underwear, wouldn't Brown sell more shoes with less effort?

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. THE PARSON OBLIGED.

Former Gov. Charles W. Lippitt, of Rhode Island, was reminded of a little incident when a fellow club member remarked on how an innocent word or two thoughtlessly spoken often gives the construction of things a rather amusing twist.

"Some time ago," the former governor said, "the Elks in a certain town were preparing for their annual memorial service when the exalted ruler asked a parson friend of his to make one of the prayers provided for by the ritual. The parson very kindly consented.

"Mr. Jones," said the exalted ruler, meeting the preacher at the opera house on the afternoon of the service, "as you probably know, the Elks are a charitable organization. In fact, it is one of the features on which we put especial stress, and I thought perhaps you would like to refer to it in your prayer."

"Nothing could be more fitting," was the prompt response of the parson. "I am very glad you mentioned it, Mr. Exalted Ruler."

Came the time for the parson's prayer, and with beautiful eloquence he lauded the charity of the Elks to the skies. To the bowed audience it seemed that the good dominie had led charity by the horns to the centre of the stage and stood patting him on the back. But, alas! Ah, ye jolt of jolts!

"And once again we are reminded, O Heavenly Father," impressively concluded the parson as the brother Elks began to glare at each other, "that charity covers a multitude of sins."

SHILOH CURES COUGHS & COLDS

WHERE LIVING IS EASY.

If you are just awfully tired of working for your living and have about decided that life is altogether too strenuous for comfort in, let us say, Peterborough, then go to the islands around Madagascar! For there you would only have to work about 25 days a year and could support yourself and family in all possible comfort.

They number some 16,000, and only 600 of them are inhabited. Nature is wonderfully lavish. A man can own a whole island himself or live on one that is already peopled. Land is abundant, and, like the air and water, it has no price.

And the best things to eat are yours—all kinds of the finest fruits—bananas, melons, oranges, figs, pineapples, and berries—and you don't have to go without such delicacies as figs and citron. There is plenty of tobacco to be had and all the coffee that you could possibly drink. Then there is domestic poultry in great numbers. Fat-tailed sheep and goats that you could cook up into all sorts of luscious dishes.

You wouldn't have to be afraid of your life all the time for fear that you were going to be run over the next moment, either, for there isn't a single automobile on any of the islands.

IN DREAD OF CROUP

Every mother dreads croup unless she knows about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Given in frequent small doses, at the first indication of trouble, this treatment lessens the cough and affords relief and comfort. It can be kept up until the child is entirely recovered.

COD LIVER OIL AND IRON

Two Most World-Famed Tonics Combined in Vinol

Cod Liver oil and Iron have proved to be the two most successful tonics the world has ever known—iron for the blood and the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil as a strength and tissue builder for body and nerves, and for the successful treatment of throat and lung troubles.

Two eminent French chemists discovered a method of separating the curative medicinal elements of the cods' livers from the oil or grease which is thrown away, but to these medicinal elements tonic iron is now added, thus combining in Vinol the two most world famed tonics.

As a body-builder and strength creator for weak, run-down people, for feeble old people, delicate children, to restore strength after sickness; and for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis or pulmonary troubles we ask you to try Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

FIREMEN ESCAPE DEATH.

Explosion Occurs In Chicago Elevator While 30 Men Are Inside.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Thirty firemen had a narrow escape from death in the blaze which early yesterday destroyed a big grain elevator owned by the Armour Grain Co. Twenty minutes after the fire was discovered and when it was believed to be under control, an explosion occurred, and for a time all the firemen in the building were given up for lost. All escaped, however, although a number were overcome by smoke and had to be carried out by comrades.

The loss was estimated at $900,000. The elevator had a capacity of 1,500,000 bushels and contained a large quantity of wheat.

The building was entirely destroyed. A second explosion brought down the wall facing the Chicago river and a third caused the remaining walls to crumble inward.

Serious Riots In Barcelona.

BARCELONA, Feb. 9. — An attempt was made yesterday to kill Senor Ossorio-Callardo, who was governor of Barcelona at the time of the disorders in 1909. The ex-governor escaped and, in his stead, an inoffensive citizen was shot dead.

A great mob gathered outside the building, and in spite of repeated charges of the police forced their way to an automobile in which it was supposed the ex-governor was riding. A volley of revolver shots was fired into the machine, and when the body of the victim was taken out it was found to be that of a civilian. In the meantime Senor Ossorio-Callardo drove off by a roundabout route.

Zamor President of Haiti.

PORT AU PRINCE, Feb. 9.—Dreuter Zamor was yesterday elected President of Haiti. The revolutionary troops under Zamor occupy all the military stations. There were no disorders on the arrival of the revolutionists from Gonaives. Congress met at two o'clock yesterday afternoon and elected Zamor President by a vote of 93 out of 105 ballots cast.

It was announced that after the election the detachments from the foreign warships would return to their ships, as conditions were entirely tranquil.

PETROLEA, Feb. 9.—Major R. Starrit states that already eleven municipalities in Lambton County have passed resolutions requesting the Hydro-Electric Commission to investigate and report at once on a system of radials for the county. Thirteen more, it is expected, will pass a similar resolution at their next meetings of council, and with an army of rogers, villages and townships back of the request, the commission will have no alternative but to start an immediate survey.

CLEANING UP CITY.

New York Police Are Making Round-Up of Gunmen.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Revelations of the great number of gunmen and desperate characters that infest the city were made yesterday to Magistrate McQuade, in police court by Police Commissioner McKay's "clean-up" squad. This squad, under the direction of Commissioner McKay, has been waging war against gangs in all sections of New York, where these outlaws are active.

Warfare began as a result of the recent gun fights among gunmen on the streets of the lower east side, in which several persons were shot and one man killed. The result so far has been that in the last 21 days 520 revolvers and 27 blackjacks have been confiscated. Besides this the squad has raided 16 alleged gambling places, made three arrests for larceny, captured one outfit of burglar tools and recovered thousands of dollars' worth of stolen property.

BANDIT GANGS BUSY.

Montreal Police Think They Have Four Youthful Robbers.

MONTREAL, Feb. 9. — In Joseph Gilmour, 17 years old, arrested Saturday on a charge of burglary, the Montreal police believe they have landed one of a gang of ten youths who have been extensively looting factories in the east end of the city. The gang is said to have stolen thousands of dollars' worth of goods. Gilmour is held in connection with the theft from the Metal Shingle Co. of goods valued at $300 which were sold for $7. Three other youths, said to belong to another gang which has been operating in departmental stores, were remanded last week.

The rooming house which they occupied was searched and revealed quantities of boots, clothing and other articles which had been reported missing.

Secrets on Film.

BERLIN, Feb. 9. — The auction sale of personal effects of Col. Redl, the Austrian traitor and spy for Russia, who killed himself several months ago, has disclosed some of his operations. A high school boy in Prague bought at the auction three rolls of film. When he reached home he discovered that on one roll of supposedly unexposed film there was cleverly hidden the photographic copy of a secret military order of the highest importance, signed by the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, and intended only for the eyes of the corps commander of Prague and the chief of the Prague general staff. It was promptly delivered to the army authorities.

No Tour This Summer.

LONDON, Feb. 9. — A statement has been issued from Buckingham Palace denying the report published Saturday that the Prince of Wales, accompanied by Prince Albert and Sir John Anderson, would begin a tour of the overseas dominions in August.

Such a tour at the time indicated is entirely out of the question.

GUSTAVE IS SCORED.

Swedish Monarch's Speech to Peasants Severely Criticised.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 9. — King Gustave's speech to the 20,000 peasants who attended the demonstration Friday in favor of the increase of Swedish armaments, threatens to lead to a serious conflict in the Cabinet, the members of which hold that the speech was tantamount to severe censure of their policy and that the language was stronger than a constitutional monarch was justified in using.

During the court of his remarks the king said that the problem of defence was one which must be solved without loss of time, and declared that on that point he was determined not to yield.

The whole Cabinet intimated its desire Saturday to resign, and in both chambers the king's speech was severely criticised. What is considered the awkwardness of the king's position is increased by the unwillingness of the Conservatives to form a Cabinet.

HUERTA COMMANDEERS ENTIRE STOCK ON HAND IN VERA CRUZ---OIL SEIZED

Lull in Fighting in Mexico is Expected Until General Villa Gets Supplies and Then Constitutionalists Will Move on Towns Between Present Position and Tampico—Officers to Return.

REBELS WAIT FOR ARMS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 9.—The straits to which the Mexican Government is reduced for fuel with which to continue the operation of the National Railway lines is shown by the commandeering yesterday morning of practically the whole fuel supply of Vera Cruz, thus threatening the speedy suspension of all traffic between this city and the capital.

The Government Saturday night sent a train of eighteen oil cars, with a capacity of 12,000 gallons each, to Vera Cruz. Yesterday morning an officer at the head of a squad of troops made a formal demand on the agent of the Aguila Company to surrender all the oil in its possession.

The agent replied that the oil had already been sold to the Mexican Railway, which is a British corporation, and was told that it was immaterial to whom the oil belonged. The engineer in charge of the pumps refused to fill the oil tanks and was arrested. Later he was released, but was compelled to obey the order.

There now remains in Vera Cruz only a six days' supply of oil for the operation of the Mexican and Inter-Oceanic Railways, and there is no prospect of receiving more oil from Tampico. Under the circumstances it is believed it will be impossible to maintain communication with Mexico City beyond the end of the week, except in cases of trains for government service.

It is asserted that the next move of the Mexican Government will be to seize the locomotives and rolling stock of the Mexican Railway to replace the engines and cars recently destroyed in the north. It is possible quickly to transform oil burning locomotives into coal burners, but there is practically no coal in the country.

It is reported, apparently on the best of authority, that a decree has been prepared and only awaits the President's signature doubling the duties on all imports from the United States.

Rebels Will Move South.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 9. — President Huerta has succeeded in the past week, without much fighting, in reopening the lines of communication to Tampico and Laredo and between Santille and Torreon. This apparent advantage is explained to some extent by the rebels having received instructions to cease operating in small bands in those districts, where they had been persistently cutting the lines, and join the concentration movements near Torreon, the middle districts, and about Tampico, on the gulf coast.

The indications are that there will be a lull in the military operations until the rebels have supplied themselves with additional arms and ammunition, which are now available from the United States, and that when Gen. Carranza and Villa and other rebel leaders have completed their preparations for an advance, several important engagements will be fought.

In the isthmus of Tehuantepec, and in the adjoining regions extending north, both east and west of the capital, numerous rebel organizations are operating, but the interest in their campaigns has grown less.

The opinion is held here that the rebels in the north from now on will direct their energies along two lines of campaign, one looking to the capture of Torreon, Zacatecas, Aguascalientes and other towns in their path to the capital, and the other to the capture of Tampico, with Monterey and San Luis Potosi as secondary objectives. The moral effect of the capture of Torreon and the other towns along the first line of campaign would be great, but military men point out that the strategic value of Tampico would be still greater, as it is the source of the fuel oil supply. That the rebels are full cognizant of the importance of the strategic position of Tampico there is no doubt, and a bitter struggle for its possession is anticipated.

COMPANY IS LIABLE FOR BIG DAMAGES

British Court of Appeal Declares That Negligence in Navigation Caused Titantic Disaster

VERY HEAVY CLAIMS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 9.—The British Court of Appeal to-day affirmed the verdict that negligence in navigation caused the Titanic disaster in April, 1912. This makes the company liable for millions of dollars' damages in actions which are now pending against it by relatives of the victims of this great disaster. The point before the court was whether the wreck was caused by the officers' negligence or by an "Act of God."

Charges Were All Dismissed

Havelock Men Found "Not Guilty" of Breaking Liquor License Law

In Havelock on Friday, five men appeared before the local magistrate, charged with being drunk in a local option district. All of them admitted having a drink, but the magistrate ruled there was no evidence to prove they had been drunk, and the charge was dismissed.

In another case a man was charged with stealing a quantity of whiskey from the C.P.R. Owing to the disappearance of the main witness for the prosecution the charge was withdrawn

JUDGMENT WAS RESERVED IN SUIT FOR $400

Judgment was reserved by Judge Hayden in the County Court on Saturday in the Revellos vs. Pappas case. In this action the complainant is suing Mr. Pappas for $400, and the defendant has entered a counter claim for $1,000 damages for breach of contract under transfer of the lease of the building on which the debt of $400 was contracted. Mr. D. O'Connell is acting for the defendant.

The case has arisen out of a complication concerning the lease of a store on Queen Street, Toronto, the property of Mr. Miles Vokes, of that city.

It seems that G. Revellos leased the store in question from Mr. Vokes at $65 a month. A year before the lease expired Revellos asked to be released from the agreement as he wished to leave the premises. This was agreed to by Mr. Vokes, and the property was reverted to him in an agreement signed by Revellos and Mr. Vokes himself.

Shortly after Mr. Pappas bought the fittings of the store from Mr. Revellos for $1,202. This, the former claims, was stipulated in the agreement to include the lease of the store for the ensuing year. Mr. Pappas took possession of the store and remained two months. At the end of that time the owner sued Mr. Pappas for rent and damages, and judgment was given in favour of the plaintiff.

Finding that he could not legally remain in possession of the store, Mr. Pappas, who had paid $800 and given a third cheque for $400 for the fittings and lease, ordered the payment of the last cheque to be stopped. Revellos is now suing Pappas for the $400.

Mr. Pappas claims in defence that the remainder of the lease was included in the $1,200, and that he was put out of the store after two months' possession, the agreement was broken, and he does not have to pay the $400.

He also has entered a counter claim of $1,000 for breach of contract under the transfer of the lease of the building in connection with which the debt of $400 was contracted.

Judgment is expected in the case within a week.

In the Vokes vs. Pappas case, heard in Toronto, Mr. Pappas had to pay the former $115 a month for rent and damages, for a contract the owner had broken owing to Mr. Pappas' possession.

HEROISM SHOLD BE RECOGNIZED

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—In July last you noted the fact that little Willie Lightheart, of 321 Rink Street, had plucklily rescued Willie Scully, 67 Aylmer Street, from a watery grave, at the imminent risk of his own life, by plunging into the river with his clothes on and swimming with him to a place of safety. You properly observed that the brave little fellow was deserving of public recognition for his bravery and saving a life. Since then nothing has been said or done except his receiving the munificent sum of 5 cts. If ever there was a case where a medal was won this is certainly one of them. I think it is up to Mayor Euller and the City press to get busy and see what can be done on behalf of the boy.

What do you think of it, Mr. Editor?—Citizen.

CHARGED WITH NON-SUPPORT

Wife Claims That Her Husband Has Only Given Her Five Dollars During the Past Month.

AIRED IN POLICE COURT

In this morning's Police Court a local man was charged by his wife and two children with neglecting to support them. He pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. G. N. Gordon. Mr. V. J. McElderry appeared for the plaintiff.

It seems that the two children have been keeping up the house and providing for themselves and their mother for over a month, and have now laid the charge against the father and husband. The family formerly resided in East City, but now live in the South End.

The wife, in the witness box, said that she had been the wife of the defendant since 1892, and had two children living, aged 17 and 15.

"Is your husband a carpenter?"

"I think so."

"What does he earn?"

"About $15 a month."

Witness said her husband had not been living with her for about a month. Her daughter, aged 17, earned $5 a week, and the boy, aged 15, a dollar a day. Since her husband left her daughter had been giving her $5 a week and the boy two or three dollars a week.

"Have you received any money from your husband since he left you?" asked Mr. McElderry.

"Yes, $5."

"Have you earned any money yourself?"

"No, sir."

"Have you any money on hand now?"

"No."

"Are you in need of money?"

"Yes."

"Is the money you received from your children sufficient for your support?"

"No, sir."

Witness said that the fuel was just done, and they had nothing to eat in the house. The children's pay day was to-day, and the husband's to-morrow.

At this point Mr. Gordon said. "The children are earning $44 a month, and, according to law, all of their earnings can be taken by the mother until they are 21 years of age."

A commotion was heard in one corner of the court room, and the noise of hurrying feet disturbed the tranquility. Then the court room door slammed as though it might be shaken off its hinges.

"Who was that went out?" asked the Magistrate.

"That was the 15-year-old son, Your Worship."

"He must be a chip off the old block," said the Magistrate.

"He doesn't seem to like my interpretation of the law," was Mr. Gordon's comment.

The son returned to the court room.

"Young man," said the Magistrate, "if you have occasion to leave the court room again do so without making so much noise, or you'll find yourself behind the bars."

It was brought out that the wife had a cheque for $10, which came in the mail for her husband. She claimed that she had given him $10 of her own money, which he lent to a man. The man returned the $10 in this cheque and she refused to give it to her husband. She could not cash it without his endorsement, and he refused to endorse it.

The daughter, in the box, said that she had only received one pay since her father had left the house. That was $10, and she gave it all to her mother. The money went for groceries, bread, milk and fuel.

The son testified that his wages last pay day amounted to $10. He gave it to his mother. It went for household necessities and clothing.

It was brought out by Mr. McElderry that grocery bills had been accumulating until they amounted to the amount of the wages the two children would receive to-day. The family, he submitted, were on the verge of starvation, and he asked for a conviction against the defendant.

The Magistrate adjourned the case for two weeks, to see what would be done by the husband. He, however, said that he would go to jail before he would pay another cent.

After the Magistrate gave his decision the seventeen-year-old daughter confronted her father and said, with an admirable show of spirit:

"If I were a man I'd trim you."

"That's a man's job," was his reply.

"Oh I don't know!" chimed in the son.

A local man was charged with cruelty to animals, and with being drunk and disorderly in a public place. He admitted both charges, and was assessed $5.75 on the latter, and $5 in the former, making, in all, $10.75.

He left his horses standing in a shed yesterday for five hours.

KNOCK PRICES NOT TITLES SAYS MECHANIC

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Seeing so much lately in your paper about "dead heads" and "hand-to-mouth living" in Peterborough, I thought I would make a few remarks on the subject. It is to be wondered if the average working man has any other mode of living, viz., "hand to mouth," considering the high price of all necessities. How is it possible for a working man to make any precautions against hard times, when he gets barely enough to make both ends meet when times are considered good?

Are wages raised according to the soaring prices of household commodities? No! What firms in Peterborough are paying their men a g[illegible]ing wage? Certainly few. A man [illegible] years back could live better on $1.25 a day than he can now on $2 a day.

One of the worst obstacles to be overcome so as to attain a good living wage is to stop firms having boys doing a man's work at a boy's rate of wage. Is it likely a firm will hire a man when a boy will do the same work at a greatly reduced price? Not likely. By doing so the firms reap a good profit, keep down the working man and boost the high cost of living. Crush down the honest working man to get rich quick. That seems to be the law that governs.

Canada to-day is full of combines, and unless the working men quit party politics and vote for men that will look after their interests they can't expect much change in the present state of affairs.

What is our present member doing for the working man? Not much.

What good is knocking titles to the wage-earner?

Knocking prices is what we want.

Finally, no matter how large a man's family may grow, he won't receive any more pay, and so is to say. But will work on and hope for a better day.

Thanking you for space in your valuable paper.—Yours truly,

Mechanic.

Carpenter Said to Have Told Mousseau That He Wanted $20,000 or Nothing Would Go Through

GOUIN'S STATEMENT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 9. —C. P. K. Carpenter, the man from Gaspe, who "butted in," is to tell the story tomorrow of his connection with the Montreal Fair Association bill. He represented himself to Mousseau, so it is alleged, as having influence in both Houses, and particularly the Upper House. He is declared to have said, "I have a man who will block everything if you do not give me $20,000." Who the man is who would block everything (if such a man exists) will form the subject of some searching questions when Carpenter takes the stand. Sir Lomer Gouin prime minister, this morning emphatically denied the possibility of dissolution at the end of the session in consequence of the graft charges. "No charge whatever has been made against the Government," he said, "or any member of the government."

Made Million With His Feet

Interesting Reminiscences of Geo. Primrose, Veteran Minstrel, Who is in Peterborough To-day

"The man who made a million with his feet."

Who is he? George Primrose, the minstrel, in Peterborough to-night.

He was born in Picton, Ont., some sixty odd years ago, and he has danced his way to fame and fortune.

Many a man who has amassed a million (and Primrose's fortune is in that neighbourhood) would have retired long ere this to enjoy his remaining years in idleness and ease. Not so for George Primrose.

"I can't just do it," he says. "I can't bring myself to leave the stage. I tried it and found I couldn't. It was all right for a month or two, but somehow my feet began to itch, and it was back to the footlights again for me. I didn't know what to do with myself when I wasn't on the stage."

George Primrose was a por boy in his early years, and he's not ashamed to talk it over now that he's a millionaire. He thinks he deserves credit not only for making his money, but for being able to keep it. Many an actor has made almost as much, but has spent it easily and foolishly.

Primrose began as a bellboy in the Tecumseh Hotel, London, Ont., and from that time he began to save his surplus coin and to invest it wisely.

One of his first engagements was in Toronto away back in 1869. "It was in the back room of a free-and-easy hotel, the old Traders, I think, on King Street East, and I remember the soldiers used to frequent it. I danced and sang there for $6 a week, with the same feet that later on earned for me $10 a minute."

That $10 figure is no fiction. Primrose was in vaudeville some years ago at $1,000 a week, and his act lasted only fourten minutes.

Mr. Primrose's educated feet are wonders. Though he has been dancing for over forty years he has never had a corn, a bunion, a callus, or the slightest trouble of any kind with his feet, which he says is due to the fact that he always kept his pedal extremities in action and always wore one kind of shoe. Although it is many years since he was a telegraph operator, Mr. Primrose is still able to send or receive a clicked message as adeptly as the most expert operator, and he still composes and executes telegraph messages with his feet when practising about the treatre.

SOME THINGS AND A FEW OTHERS

Who said the Canadian winter had lost its kick, or that we were not going to get some of the old-time zero stuff?

A cold day or two does not prove that the bear saw his shadow—(this for the benefit of the old-timers, who belong to the I-Told-You-So club).

Frapped lemons were numerous during the past two days. They belong to the human and not the ice-cream species.

Will some one explain how there could be "treason" in the Council when there has been nothing to disclose?

The members of the Health Association must have been impressed by th stand-pat attitude of the Council.

The Junior City League games are worthy of bigger attendances than have marked the series so far. The youngsters come through with a mighty interesting sample of hockey.

Harassed by tax howlers the Council deserves a little sympathy for any caution exercised in regard to the expditure of public money.

The lovers of dramatic art must have blushed at the measly houses that greeted Martin Harvey.

Recommendations and Improvements.

Some repairs to the plaster of the walls are required in a few places. There should be more protection against fire risk. There should be a basin with running water in each corridor. The present plan is not satisfactory. More out side work on roads and parks in summer should be provided for the men. Two or three of the prisoners are feeble minded.

HELEN MACMURCHY,
Inspector.

The improvements referred to are now in the hands of the Property committee of the County Council, who will doubtless see that they are carried out in accordance with the recommendations.

MARIE LLOYD'S NAUGHTY SONGS SHOCK BAXTER.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 9.—Mayor Baxter attended a fine opening performance of a new theatre and listened to Marie Lloyd's London music hall songs. The mayor decided that these were digusting, and accordingly instructed the city's play censor to appear at the show Tuesday afternoon and demand that some of Maries piquant songs be dropped.

Before taking action the mayor telephoned to several of the aldermen and asked their individual opinions. Nearly all agreed in declaring that the performance was off-colour; but one, Ald. Hepburn, who is a Scotsman, a prominent church-goer, and a leading moral reformer, insisted that the performance pleased him very much, and that he intended to go again and take his wife. The entire incident has caused a great deal of public discussion around the city.

DR. A. W. McPHERSON TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION AS MEDICAL HEALTH OFFICER FOR CITY

Has Spent Five Years in the City's Service—His Greatest Difficulty Has Been the Enforcement of the Provincial Health Act.

IS A DETRIMENT

Dr. A. W. McPherson has tendered his resignation to the City Council as Medical Health Officer for the City. A rumour to that effect has been current for several days, and it was not until Dr. McPherson was asked by the Examiner to deny or affirm the rumour did it become known that the City was about to lose an official who has spent five years in trying to enforce the rules and regulations as laid down by the Provincial Board of Health.

When seen this morning Dr. McPherson declined to state his reasons for desiring to relinquish the position which he now holds. He admitted that he had forwarded his resignation to the Council, and said that he would rather not discuss the matter, especially as the question had not yet been dealt with by the City Council.

"Stand Pat"

At the inaugural meeting of the Board of Health Dr McPherson intimated that he would expect an increase in salary of $200. At the present time the position is worth $800 a year. Mayor Buller declared that he was opposed to any increases, and advanced his 'stand pat' theory. The same argument was applied to Sanitary Inspector Spence's request for an increase from $700 to $800 a year.

Detriment to Private Practice.

A prominent physician, when spoken to this morning, in regard to the matter, said that he would not accept the position at any price. He claimed that it was a detriment to business and would in no way help to build up his private practice. He claims that the Medical Health Officer is handicapped by the fact that he is held responsible for the enforement of the Health Act, as laid down by the Provincial Board of Health which, at times, is at variance with the views of the Peterborough Board of Health and the City Council.

CHURCH WILL BE ERECTED IMMEDIATELY

New Charlotte Street Church Will be a $55,000 Structure and Will Be Built to Seat 900 People

A SPLENDID EDIFICE

The Board of the Charlote Street Methodist Church have been authorised to erect a splendid new church, and to have it built as soon as possible.

The new church will cost in the neighbourhood of $55,000, and will be erected on what is known as the Aaron Cox Property, at the corner of Reid and Simcoe Streets.

The revised plans are expected to be approved within the next three weeks, and before the month of February has passed the Board hope to be in a position to advertise for tenders for the erection of the new church.

The main building will be of modern ecclesiastical architecture, and will be built so as to give a cloister effect, with side aisles. The outer walls will be roofed in half way up from the base, and will be supported on the inside by artistic massive pillars. A transept and gallery will be built in the rear of the church, which will be built of stone, and made to accommodate 900 people.

The present church will be allowed to stand, and will be used as a Sunday School until a suitable building can be provided on the new site. It is hoped to have the new church ready well within eighten months from the present, it being calculated that it will take a year's building to complete the church.

BOYS GET BUSY AFTER THIS WEEK'S PRIZES!

The Winners of the Weekly Prizes in the Examiner Newsboys' Competition Are Given To-day

The first week of The Examiner Newsboys' Competition has come and gone and three boys received their weekly prizes to-day.

Every week during the competition three prizes will be given. If you did not win last week you might win this week. It is unlikely that the same boys will win again. They have to secure new customers over and above what they had on Saturday last to win the prize. The boy who has not started in the competition yet to get new customers has as good a chance as the boy who won the prize last week.

The boys who win the prizes at the end of the Competition are those who have added one or two new customers each week for the time the competition is on. Boys, it is easy to get customers at 10c a week if you canvas for them.

Any new boy who wishes to enter this competition may do so and feel that he has an equal chance with the other boys to secure one of the best cash prizes.

TWO GREAT RIVALS.

Sir George Ross and Sir James Whitney have long been keen political rivals, and have measured swords many a time. One thought that disease that brought both to the gates of death would have ended the rivalry; but with the distinguished patients lying in the grip of disease in adjoining hospital wards, the fivalry still continues. A few days ago it seemed to be a race between them for the last goal. With returning health, both are on the "home stretch," and the race is now to see which will get home first. The latest reports indicate that both doughty knights are improving, but that Sir George will win home first. If the weather conditions are favourable, Sir George Ross will be taken home to-day. Sir James, however, will not be removed to his home for some time. The Examiner congratulates both. They both have been "bonnie fechters' all their lives, and their most gallant fight has been with the scythe bearer. For the moment they have won and we wish them many years' enjoyment of their restored health.

MUTUAL LIFE'S BEST YEAR.

The term of praise, a green old age, can aptly be applied to the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada. At its last annual meeting facts developed to prove that after half a century of existence it is stronger in the going and stands higher in the public confidence than ever before. It has honestly gained this position of eminence by a happy combination of conservation and progressive methods. Some assurance companies achieve greatness, others have greatness thrust upon them. In this class is the Mutual Life which, within recent years has had business virtually thrust upon it. In 1913, the amount of new business written showed an advance of ten per cent. over the previous year; and the directors report an increase of thirty per cent. in the new business of 1913 over 1912. The increase of insurance in force was $9,472,862, bringing the total of effective insurance up to $87,302,026. The assets of the company, making assurance doubly sure to the assured, which have increased pari passu, and are of the highest quality, total twenty-two and a quarter million dollars.

The big business of the company has been got without sacrifice of conservative methods; for the mortality loss last year was but 46 per cent. short of expectation, indicating of course, careful selection of risks. Last year the Mutual Life of Canada had the most successful year in its history of steady progress.

WHAT THE PEOPLE DON'T GET.

The Borden government in itself is proof that the more money we collect in taxes, the more we spend. With its advent came a cessation of prosperity, and the proposal is to restore prosperity by spending money recklessly. Of course, the government doesn't officially avow this policy; but one of its less prudent supporters, said on the boor f the House, "Let us dash away and spend the public money." The man said this, but the too frank statement was cut out of Hansard and did not appear in the revised edition; still, he expressed the policy of the government as proven by facts. We find defenders of the Borpolicy of sending abroad $35,000,000 of the people's money to relieve the burden of taxation upon British tax payers. What a Canadian government should do, one thinks, is to relieve the heavily burdened Canadian taxpayer. Canada has the highest rate of taxation in the world. The Globe prints a calculation showing that the tax revenue of Canada last year was $17.30 per head, while that of Great Britain is $16.84, as compared with Canada's $17.30 per head. This means that last year the average Canadian family of five persons paid in taxes on food, drink, clothing, and household supplies, $86.50. To carry out the Borden government's policy—"dash away and spend the public money," there must be more public money to spend, wrung out of the public. In the last year of the Laurier government, the revenue from taxation was only $12.47 per head. Even this comparatively small per capita tax was considered too much, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier's lost office on the head of a proposal to lessen the annual burden of taxation by about four million dollars per year. To show how the people benefitted by their choice of rulers, it is to be stated that the Borden government in its two short years of power collects nearly five dollars per head more in taxaion than was done under the Laurier government, which died in the attempt to lessen the burdens of taxation, and consequently contribute to the public benefit. Are the people who voted for the Borden government realising their expectations? They voted for a policy of "no truck nor trade with the Yankees," yet last year the total trade with the United States increased 64 million dollars; we were told to "let well enough alone." The Borden government inherited an era of prosperity, and they have brought hard times. They voted for better government, for a cessation of what Mr. Borden called a "criminal" national extravagance. The national expenditure has been almost doubled in two years under the Borden government. They voted to the tune of a high imperial note, and they see themselves governed by a cabinet in which Nationalism is a large if not a dominating factor. The people should be satisfied. They have got almost everything they didn't vote for.

THE PEOPLE SACRIFICED.

It seems probable that the Dominion Government has decided to continue benefitting the big interests at the expense of the farmers and the people as it has done in the past. It will not, it appears place wheat and flour on the free list in order to give the farmers of the west the advantage of a larger and profitble market to the south. The amendment of the United States tariff provides for free admission of Canadian wheat and wheat products, when Canada removes the duty on similar products. The excuse for refusal is that the removal of the duty would injure Canadian milling interests. Do the millers deserve this consideration, and will they be injured by the removal of wheat duties? In regard to the ruin of the millers a Conservative M.P., who is not under the thumb of the big monopolistic interests, has opinions. Mr. W. F. McLean, M.P., South York, said in the House:

"Do you mean to tell me that Canadian millers, with their mills almost at the seat of production of the wheat, cannot compete with the Americn millers? I say they can; I say they are ready for the business. Of course they would like to keep the monopoly they have today in regard to wheat milling in this country, and they have got a great monopoly. They are well linked up together and are in a position, by reason of a monopoly and the association of the railways, to keep down the price of wheat. Thus in two ways the Canadian farmer will benefit by putting wheat on the free list. They will gain by the competition of the American railways and they will benefit by the fact that the millers will have to come up to the scratch and give them more for their Canadian wheat if they want to grind it in their mills."

When the millers by the monopoly which a Conservative authority says they enjoy, use the tariff to advance prices, one can question their right to continuance of their unfair advantage. That they do this and at the expense of the Canadian purchaser of Canadian flour, is shown by the fact that they ship flour ground from Canadian wheat three thousand miles to Great Britain and sell it in the British market at a lower price than Canadians can get it for. But it seems that even if the millers are deprived of the advantage of the tariff lever to raise prices, they will be rather the gainers by removal of the duties. They will get free admission of their flour to the United States market. And taking into consideration the benefits that free wheat will mean to the western farmers, in the shape of millions of dollars additional, from better prices for their wheat, there is no excuse for the BordenGovernment obstinately refusing a measure of tariff modification that will be of general advantage. But the big interests, the combines and the monopolists, forbid any such concession to the rights of the people. They seem to fear that one little measure of tariff reduction will mean further inroads upon the special privilleges that our unduly high tariff confers. When it comes to a conflict between the interests of the people and the interests of the monopolists the people are sacrificed.

HOW ADVERTISING LOWERS PRICES

Does the consumer pay the advertising bills? Many economists have mintained that he does, and that in the large sums which manufacturers, wholesale houses and retail dealers are spending for advertising lies one of the chief reasons for the present high cost of living. There is, however, much convincing evidence to show that the right kind of advertising produces exactly the opposite effect and that, instead of raising prices, it lowers them and improves the quality of the goods into the bargain. In other words, you get a better article at a lower prices when it is intelligently advertised than when it is not.

To understand why this is so, consider the two functions of all advertising—first, to individualize the product, and, second, to increase the demand for it. The importance of the first function is apparent to all who have even a superficial knowledge of modern trade conditions. A nationally known and nationally advertised trade marke is an asset that market fluctuations cannot dissipate. It has at all times a fixed marketable value.

Whether advertising raises the selling price or cheapens the quality is a matter concerned entirely with the second function. Can the demand be increased without the consumer having to foot the bill? That is the question.

It has been proved many times that the saving in manufacturing costs per unit between a maximum sale per thousand and an unadvertised brand and a like sale on an advertised brand is far greater than the cost of advertising. Those who do not advertise do not get either the reduced cost of manufacture that comes from a large volume of sales or the decreased selling costs which come with trades-marking and advertising. Advertising, then, by reducing the cost of production, and also the cost of selling makes it possible to give the consumer either a lower price or a better product or both without lessening the manufacturers' profit.

Certain silk manufacturers inaugurated some time ago an advertising campaign in the interest of a trade-marked line of silks. Within a fixed period $60,000 was spent in this campaign. The sales made in this period amounted to $3,000,000, or $50 in sales for every dollar in advertising. Because of the volume of business the manufacturers were able to produce their goods at he lowest rate of cost and to sell on the same basis. The consumers, therefore, were direct beneficiaries.

Another manufacturer was selling his line through salesmen on a ten per cent. commision basis. He began a country-wire advertising campaign, and soon after found that the demand for the line was so great that he was able to cut his salesmen's commission to five per cent. To-day the salesmen are making more money at five per cent. than they formerly made at ten per cent. Not only that, but the manufacturer has sliced three per cent. from selling costs, as the advertising averages only two per cent. of the sales.

LOYAL TO PARTY IDEALS.

Toll Exemptions No Part of Democratic Policy Say Leaders.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The provision favoring free passage for American ships through the Panama Canal was injected into the Democratic platform without the knowledge of the majority of the resolutions committee at the Baltimore convention, according to the assertion yesterday of Representative Adamson of Georgia, chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Commission. He had met but three or four members of the convention, he said, who knew of the existence of the tolls plank before the platform was promulgated.

Branding the tolls exemption provision as "heretic doctrine" Adamson issued a statement Saturday paving the way for congressional debate on a repealing bill, to be introduced in accordance with the determination of President Wilson that the United States should recognize the claim of Great Britain exemption for American ships is in violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Senator O'Gorman, who will fight the repeal provision in the Senate, and Representative Broussard of Louisiana, the Senator-elect from that state, were members of a subcommittee at Baltimore, which wrote the tolls exemption plan into the platform. It was done, it was stated on Saturday, without the consent of a majority of the full committee or Secretary of State Byran, chairman of the resolutions committee.

"I am not at all troubled about the cry," said Representative Adamson, "that repealing the exemption violates the Democratic platform. A subsidy is not a cardinal doctrine of the Democratic party. In act that exemption is a contradictory interjection into an anti-subsidy plank in the platform and is utterly void.

Rushing into a smoking compartment, an old man cried, excitedly: "A corkscrew! Who's got a corcscrew?" A score of hands sought pockets, and a score of kindly voices said: "Here you are, sir." "I thought so," shouted the old man. "And now I lay before you, gentlemen, fifty temperance pledges. Who will sign first?"

TWO GREAT RIVALS.

Sir George Ross and Sir James Whitney have long been keen political rivals, and have measured swords many a time. One thought that disease that brought both to the gates of death would have ended the rivalry; but with the distinguished patients lying in the grip of disease in adjoining hospital wards, the rivalry still continues. A few days ago it seemed to be a race between them for the last goal. With returning health, both are on the "home stretch," and the race is now to see which will get home first. The latest reports indicate that both doughty knights are improving, but that Sir George will win home first. If the weather conditions are favourable, Sir George Ross will be taken home to-day. Sir James, however, will not be removed to his home for some time. The Examiner congratulates both. They both have been "bonnie fechters' all their lives, and their most gallant fight has been with the scythe bearer. For the moment they have won and we wish them many years' enjoyment of their restored health.

MUTUAL LIFE'S BEST YEAR.

The term of praise, a green old age, can aptly be applied to the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada. At its last annual meeting facts developed to prove that after half a century of existence it is stronger in the going and stands higher in the public confidence than ever before. It has honestly gained this position of eminence by a happy combination of conservation and progressive methods. Some assurance companies achieve greatness, others have greatness thrust upon them. In this class is the Mutual Life which, within recent years has had business virtually thrust upon it. In 1912, the amount of new business written showed an advance of ten per cent. over the previous year; and the directors report an increase of thirty per cent. in the new business of 1913 over 1912. The increase of insurance in force was $9,472,882, bringing the total of effective insurance up to $87,392,926. The assets of the company, making assurance doubly sure to the assured, which have increased pari passu, and are of the highest quality, total twenty-two and a quarter million dollars.

The big business of the company has been got without sacrifice of conservative methods; for the mortality loss last year was but 46 per cent. short of expectation, indicating of course, careful selection of risks. Last year the Mutual Life of Canada had the most successful year in its history of steady progress.

WHAT THE PEOPLE DON'T GET.

The Borden government in itself is proof that the more money we collect in taxes, the more we spend. With its advent came a cessation of prosperity, and the proposal is to restore prosperity by spending money recklessly. Of course, the government doesn't officially avow this policy; but one of its less prudent supporters, said on the floor of the House, "Let us dash away and spend the public money." The man said this; but the too frank statement was cut out of Hansard and did not appear in the revised edition; still, he expressed the policy of the government as proven by facts. We find defenders of the Borpolicy of sending abroad $35,000,000 of the people's money to relieve the burden of taxation upon British tax payers. What a Canadian government should do, one thinks, is to relieve the heavily burdened Canadian taxpayer. Canada has the highest rate of taxation in the world. The Globe prints a calculation showing that the tax revenue of Canada last year was $17.30 per head, while that of Great Britain is $16.84, as compared with Canada's $17.30 per head. This means that last year the average Canadian family of five persons paid in taxes on food, drink, clothing, and household supplies, $86.50. To carry out the Borden government's policy—"dash away and spend the public money," there must be more public money to spend, wrung out of the public. In the last year of the Laurier government, the revenue from taxation was only $12.47 per head. Even this comparatively small per capita tax was considered too much, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier's lost office on the head of a proposal to lessen the annual burden of taxation by about four million dollars per year. To show how the people benefitted by their choice of rulers, it is to be stated that the Borden government in its two short years of power collects nearly five dollars per head more in taxation than was done under the Laurier government, which died in the attempt to lessen the burdens of taxation, and consequently contribute to the public benefit. Are the people who voted for the Borden government realizing their expectations? They voted for a policy of "no truck nor trade with the Yankees," yet last year the total trade with the United States increased 64 million dollars; we were told to "let well enough alone." The Borden government inherited an era of prosperity, and they have brought hard times. They voted for better government, for a cessation of what Mr. Borden called a "criminal" national extravagance. The national expenditure has been almost doubled in two years under the Borden government. They voted to the tune of a high imperial note, and they see themselves governed by a cabinet in which Nationalism is a large if not a dominating factor. The people should be satisfied. They have got almost everything they didn't vote for.

THE PEOPLE SACRIFICED.

It seems probable that the Dominion Government has decided to continue benefitting the big interests at the expense of the farmers and the people as it has done in the past. It will not, it appears place wheat and flour on the free list in order to give the farmers of the west the advantage of a larger and profitble market to the south. The amendment of the United States tariff provides for free admission of Canadian wheat and wheat products, when Canada removes the duty on similar products. The excuse for refusal is that the removal of the duty would injure Canadian milling interests. Do the millers deserve this consideration, and will they be injured by the removal of wheat duties? In regard to the ruin of the millers a Conservative M.P., who is not under the thumb of the big monopolistic interests, has opinions. Mr. W. F. McLean, M.P., South York, said in the House:

"Do you mean to tell me that Canadian millers, with their mills almost at the seat of production of the wheat, cannot compete with the Americn millers? I say they can; I say they are ready for the business. Of course they would like to keep the monopoly they have today in regard to wheat milling in this country, and they have got a great monopoly. They are well linked up together and are in a position, by reason of a monopoly and the association of the railways, to keep down the price of wheat. Thus in two ways the Canadian farmer will benefit by putting wheat on the free list. They will gain by the competition of the American railways and they will benefit by the fact that the millers will have to come up to the scratch and give them more for their Canadian wheat if they want to grind it in their mills."

When the millers by the monopoly which a Conservative authority says they enjoy, use the tariff to advance prices, one can question their right to continuance of their unfair advantage. That they do this and at the expense of the Canadian purchaser of Canadian flour, is shown by the fact that they ship flour ground from Canadian wheat three thousand miles to Great Britain and sell it in the British market at a lower price than Canadians can get it for. But it seems that even if the millers are deprived of the advantage of the tariff lever to raise prices, they will be rather the gainers by removal of the duties. They will get free admission of their flour to the United States market. And taking into consideration the benefits that free wheat will mean to the western farmers, in the shape of millions of dollars additional, from better prices for their wheat, there is no excuse for the BordenGovernment obstinately refusing a measure of tariff modification that will be of general advantage. But the big interests, the combines and the monopolists, forbid any such concession to the rights of the people. They seem to fear that one little measure of tariff reduction will mean further inroads upon the special privilleges that our unduly high tariff confers. When it comes to a conflict between the interests of the people and the interests of the monopolists the people are sacrificed.

HOW ADVERTISING LOWERS PRICES

Does the consumer pay the advertising bills? Many economists have mintained that he does, and that in the large sums which manufacturers, wholesale houses and retail dealers are spending for advertising lies one of the chief reasons for the present high cost of living. There is, however, much convincing evidence to show that the right kind of advertising produces exactly the opposite effect and that, instead of raising prices, it lowers them and improves the quality of the goods into the bargain. In other words, you get a better article at a lower prices when it is intelligently advertised than when it is not.

To understand why this is so, consider the two functions of all advertising—first, to individualize the product, and, second, to increase the demand for it. The importance of the first function is apparent to all who have even a superficial knowledge of modern trade conditions. A nationally known and nationally advertised trade marke is an asset that market fluctuations cannot dissipate. It has at all times a fixed marketable value.

Whether advertising raises the selling price or cheapens the quality is a matter concerned entirely with the second function. Can the demand be increased without the consumer having to foot the bill? That is the question.

It has been proved many times that the saving in manufacturing costs per unit between a maximum sale per thousand and an unadvertised brand and a like sale on an advertised brand is far greater than the cost of advertising. Those who do not advertise do not get either the reduced cost of manufacture that comes from a large volume of sales or the decreased selling costs which come with trademarking and advertising. Advertising, then, by reducing the cost of production, and also the cost of selling makes it possible to give the consumer either a lower price or a better product or both without lessening the manufacturers' profit.

Certain silk manufacturers inaugurated some time ago an advertising campaign in the interest of a trademarked line of silks. Within a fixed period $60,000 was spent in this campaign. The sales made in this period amounted to $3,000,000, or $50 in sales for every dollar in advertising. Because of the volume of business the manufacturers were able to produce their goods at he lowest rate of cost and to sell on the same basis. The consumers, therefore, were direct beneficiaries.

Another manufacturer was selling his line through salesmen on a ten per cent. commision basis. He began a country-wire advertising campaign, and soon after found that the demand for the line was so great that he was able to cut his salesmen's commission to five per cent. To-day the salesmen are making more money at five per cent. than they formerly made at ten per cent. Not only that, but the manufacturer has sliced three per cent. from selling costs, as the advertising averages only two per cent. of the sales.

LOYAL TO PARTY IDEALS.

Toll Exemptions No Part of Democratic Policy Say Leaders.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The provision favoring free passage for American ships through the Panama Canal was injected into the Democratic platform without the knowledge of the majority of the resolutions committee at the Baltimore convention, according to the assertion yesterday of Representative Adamson of Georgia, chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Commission. He had met but three or four members of the convention, he said, who knew of the existence of the tolls plank before the platform was promulgated.

Branding the tolls exemption provision as "heretic doctrine" Adamson issued a statement Saturday paving the way for congressional debate on a repealing bill, to be introduced in accordance with the determination of President Wilson that the United States should recognize the claim of Great Britain exemption for American ships is in violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Senator O'Gorman, who will fight the repeal provision in the Senate, and Representative Broussard of Louisiana, the Senator-elect from that state, were members of a subcommittee at Baltimore, which wrote the tolls exemption plan into the platform. It was done, it w stated on Saturday, without the consent of a majority of the full committee or Secretary of State Byran, chairman of the resolutions committee.

"I am not at all troubled about the cry," said Representative Adamson, "that repealing the exemption violates the Democratic platform. A subsidy is not a cardinal doctrine of the Democratic party. In fact that exemption is a contradictory interjection into an anti-subsidy plank in the platform and is utterly void.

Rushing into a smoking compartment, an old man cried, excitedly: "A corkscrew! Who's got a corscrew?" A score of hands sought pockets, and a score of kindly voices said: "Here you are, sir." "I thought so," shouted the old man. "And now I lay before you, gentlemen, fifty temperance pledges. Who will sign first?"

Blackburn Rovers Add A Few Points To Their Standing

Are Still Leading in the First Division--Other Teams Near the Top All Met Defeat---Crystal Palace Win From Swindon Town---League Tables.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—After the holiday from league games a week ago last Saturday, which was entirely taken up by the English Cup ties, all clubs throuhout England settled down seriously last Saturday to try and improve their position in their respective leagues.

The leaders in the First Division, Blackburn Rovers, were faced with a tough proposition in tackling Derby County away from home, but winning by 3 to 2 further improved their fine position at the top of the table, as all the other clubs near to them lost their games.

Manchester United were a big draw in London and attracted 35,000 people to see them play Tottenham Hotspur, where an exciting game ended in a win for the famous "Spurs" by 2 to 1.

A fierce fight is going on in the Second Division between Woolwich Arsenal, Notts County and Hull City for top place, which carries promotion to the first division at the end of the season. All picked up points last Saturday, and the race is as exciting as ever. Woolwich Arsenal accomplished the best performance by drawing their game with Bury away from home.

The tit-bit of the Southern League was the meeting of Swindon Town and Crystal Palace on the ground of the former team. This resulted in a win for the Palace by 2 to 1, enabling them to tie for first place. Watford is now playing desperately to get away from the bottom and did splendidly to pick up a point by drawing their game at Exeter.

SCOTTISH CUP.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The second round of the Scottish Cup was set for decision on Saturday, and excitement ran at fever heat throughout Scotland and elsewhere.

Queen's Park, who ousted Falkirk, the present holders of the cup, in the first round, again got through by beating Arthurlie, but Hearts of Midlothian succumbed to Raith Rovers after a fierce game.

The powerful Celtic could only draw with Clyde, but will no doubt easily win the replay.

TORONTOS BADLY BEATEN BY THE FAST CANADIANS

MONTREAL, Feb. 7.—While Wanderers were trouncing Ottawa at Ottawa, Canadiens were making a show of Torontos in their scheduled National Hockey Association fixture on Saturday, beating them by a score of 9 to 3. The match developed into more or less of a burlesque, the Torontos being so completely outplayed that they did not score until Manager Marshall sent out, in the final period, a line composed of substitutes. Cameron, the star of the Torontos' defence, was so closely watched and checked that he never got going.

The play was almost too one-sided to be rough, although numerous minor penalties were handed out and Wilson drew a major for deliberately striking Lalonde. There was no excuse to be offered by the beaten team, as they were played off their feet at all stages, the players showing lack of judgment in passing near their own nets, which afforded many opportunities of which the Canadiens were not slow to take advantage.

In a desperate effort to hold down the score Marshall took Holmes, who had played rather brilliantly behind poor support, out of the nets and sent Wilson in to replace him. But the Canadiens continued to add to their tally.

The attendance was equal to that at any of the matches this season, while the result brings about another three-cornered tie for the title with Quebec right up on the heels of the leaders.

McGiffen, who went through the match without a penalty and played clean, fast hockey, was used to alternate with Foyston and Wilson all through the game. He had his face badly cut in a scrimmage near the close of the second period for ten minutes. The teams:

Canadiens— Goal, Vezina; defence, Dubeau and Laviolette; centre, D. Smith; wing Lalonde and Gardner.

Torontos— Goal, Holmes; defence, Marshall and Cameron; centre, Foyston; wing, Davidson and Walker.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE MEETING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—On the twenty-second anniversary of its first organization the International baseball league, formerly the Eastern league, held its spring meeting in this city to-day to formally adopt the playing schedule and complete other arrangements in preparation for the opening of the season. President Barrow presided. Practically all of the officials and club owners are expected to remain over to-morrow to meet the major league magnates and confer on the general situation with regards to the opposition of the Federal league. The International is more directly concerned in the threatened baseball war than any of the other minor organizations, since three of the cities on its circuit, Buffalo, Baltimore and Toronto, will have to meet the opposition of the so-called outlaw league.

MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE

The adjourned meeting of the executive of this league (adjourned from Friday evening) was held in the offices of the Examiner last Saturday evening. The main question before the meeting was an application from the Tool Room to practically quash one of the articles of the constitution of the league, which reads to the effect that O.H.A. players who have played in two O.H.A. games be barred from playing in Mercantile League games.

This article was warmly debated frm every point of view, before being adopted as part of the constitution.

The application of the Tool Room team had for its object the reinstating of Kenneally, who was disqualified under the article. This suspension or squashing of regulations was strongly opposed by the Test Room team and as strongly advocated by a delegate from the Tool Room team, and Mr. Harris, one of the executive committee.

On Friday evening the proceedings ended in a dead lock; as a result the President adjourned the meeting until the next evening.

On this occasion considerable discussion arose, in which every member of the executive took part. The general concensus of opinion being that while no objection was made to Kenneally personally as an individual, it would be unwise to establish a precedent by altering the rules to suit individual requirements. It was pointed out that, if the article of the constitution were altered to suit the wishes of the Tool Room team, the "Examiner" and the Bankers' team would at once claim their right to play O. H.A. men who are at present ineligible.

On the motion to rescind the rule, a vote was taken, and the majority was in favour of upholding the constitution as it stands.

It is to be distinctly understood that as a matter of sentiment, the majority regretted their inability to vote for Kenneally becoming a player. The opposition was not in any way directed against him, but only against any loop hole for a precedent being established.

THE MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE.

The last of the games on this League schedule will be played at the Brock Street rink to-night in the following sequence:

8—9, Bankers v. De Laval.
9—10, Plumbers v. Test Room.
10—11, Tool Room v. Examiner.

There is a tie game between the Test and Tool Room teams; this will be played off at a later date, which will be duly announced.

Hockey--That's All

Thursday, 7 to 8—George Street vs. All Saints.

Lovers of hockey will have an opportunity of witnessing a hockey game next Thursday evening, that is bound to be a ding dong battle all the way. The pick of the Town League teams will go up against a team being gathered together by Peter Spratt at Peterborough. "Pete" has written that he will have some of the following well known players on the line-up: Bond, Bradshaw, Parks, Kelly, Spratt, Dwyer and Paton. Watch for further particulars regarding this game.—Lindsay Post.

The Intermediates will have their final work-out to-night at 7 o'clock at Brock Street Rink. The following are expected out: Dwyer, Jones, Bond, Denison, Halpin, Park, Bradshaw, Kelly, Kenneally, Rose, and Lansfield.

THREE CITY LEAGUE TEAMS IN RUNNING FOR PECK MEDALS

The Alerts will practice this evening between 7 and 8 o'clock at Parker's Rink, and every member of the Alerts are determined to trim the team is asked to be present. The Boston Exploits on Wednesday night, and state that they will make a better showing than they did against the Y.M.C.A. If the Alerts check back on the Exploits' forward line, if they stay on the ice as much as possible, and use a litle more head work in around the enemy's nets, they will make the Bostons extend themselves to the limit. A win for the Alerts will give the standing of the league an interesting turn. A win for the Bostons gives them a stronger position, but by no means assures them the championship.

The Y.M.C.A. are decidedly in the running; in fact, just now the three teams have almost equal chances of winning the Peck medals, which the officers have arranged for.

The medals donated by Mr. E. A. Peck will be of silver, showing a hockey player in uniform. On the reverse side they will be suitably engraved and will make a neat watch fob. They are being secured through Mr. Frank Clark, and will be on exhibition in a short time.

BASEBALL

Wilter Kenefick, a young Springfield (Mass.) catcher, will be taken south by the Boston Braves. "Rabbit" Maranville discovered the youngster.

Secretary Foster of the Giants announces that all of McGraw's men will be in line when the band starts the parade across the field on opening day.

ORILLIA WON FROM MIDLAND

And Will Be the Petes' Next Opponents in the Intermediate O. H. A. Race

COLDWATER, Feb. 7.—Coldwater witnessed this evening the best game of hockey ever played on local ice when Orillia and Midland met to decide the O. H. A. district championship. Orillia won by a score of 3 to 2, and the score is a correct indication of the merits of the respective teams. The game was fast from start to finish. Midland's centre, Drury, and Goaltender MacDonald were the stars for the smaller town. Orillia's best were Jupp and Harvie. A special train from Orillia brought 400, and nearly an equal number came from Midland. The line-up:

Orillia—Goal, Corbould; defence, Harvie and Percyman; rover, Carter; centre, Ross; wings, Jupp and MacNab.

Midland—Goal, W. MacDonald; defence, Drummond and Farrel; rover, Beatty; centre, Drury; wings, R. MacDonald and Grant.

Referee—Dr. Gilfillan of Uxbridge.

Petes Play Orillia To-morrow

Will Leave for the Northern Town on the 8.20 G.T.R. Train

Orillia beat Midland on Saturday night which means they are Peterborough's next opponents in the O. H. A. race, and the Petes will invade the northern Town to-morrow night for the first game, with the return fixture here on Friday night. The Orillia team has been going strong and will give the Petes an awful argument in both games. The teams have agreed to take either Chief Toms or Harvey Sproule as referee for to-morrow night's game and one of the two will officiate. The Peterborough team will be the same as in the game at Whitby last week, as follows:

Goal—Janes.
Right defence—Bond.
Rover—Halpin.
Centre—Park.
Left wing—Kelly.
Spare—Dwyer.

The Mercantile Hockey League is thep ossessor of an elegant challenge cup.

This cup, which will be known as the Meharry-Nelson Cup (so named from the donors) is to become the property of the team winning it three years in succession.

The team holding it for the year in which that particular team won will be required to put up a bond for the due return of the cup to the League in the event of its not being won by the same team a tthe second competition.

The cup, which was selected by a committee consisting of Secretary Horace Walkie and Vice-President Frank Russell, will be on view in the window of Mr. Ernest Waine's jewellery store, 32353 George Street, in the course of a few days.

TO ANNOUNCE THE SCHEDULE OF BIG LEAGUES

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Club owners and officials of the National League of Baseball Clubs are rounding up in this city preparatory to the adjourned annual meeting to be held to-morrow. The meeting will be little more than perfunctory. The only real business to be transacted is the adoption of the playing schedule already decided upon for the coming season. The American league schedule will be announced at the same time, although the joint meeting of the two leagues will not take place until the first week in March, or just before the arrival of the baseball tourists from Europe.

MANY "COMEBACKS" IN THE BIG LEAGUES

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—A big bunch of players are to return to the big league clubs this spring after sojourning for a time in the minor organizations. One of the most notable "comebacks" this year is Pitcher Harry Covaleskie. When he played with the Philadelphia Nationals a few years ago Covaleskie was a terror to the batsmen, especially the heavy artillery of the New York Giants. At that time the Giants were able to make about all of the National pitchers back up, with the exception of the Pole in the Philadelphia uniform. Covalskie beat the McGraw clan so easily and so often that he was dubbed the "Giant killer." Last season he starred with the Chattanooga team of the Southern League, and now he is to return to the big show as a member of the Detroit Tigers.

A number of other pitchers are scheduled to re-enter the big arena this spring. While these slabsters lack the reputation of a Covalskie to back them up, they all look good enough for one or more feeds at a big league hotel. Dode Criss, who joined the St. Louis Browns as a pitcher several years ago and later developed into the best pinch hitter in the American League, returns to the major league as a member of the Yankees. Elmer Koestner, who was tried out several years ago by the Cleveland Naps, will essay to put over the proper shoots and benders for the Chicago Cubs. Another Cleveland cast-off pitcher, Bill James, who did some remarkable twirling for the Portland Pacific Coast League team last season, will be taken South by the St. Louis Browns.

Pitcher "Toots" Schulz, formerly of the Philadelphia Nationals, will be given a trial by Manager Jennings of Detroit. "Casey" Hagerman, who led the Western League pitchers last season, is another flinger who will try to stick with the big circuit on his second trial. As a member of the Boston Red Sox a year or so ago "Casey" couldn't pitch, and "Casey" couldn't bat. But he caught on with the Denver club, made his mark as a slabster and now he has been signed by the St. Louis Cardinals.

The new Federal League also will try out a number of former big league pitchers, among them "King" Cole, once the leading mound artist of the Chicago Clubs and last season with Columbus in the American Association; George Mullin, for years the old stand-by in the box for the Detroit Tigers, and last year in the International League; "Lefty" Leifield, formerly with Pittsburg and Chicago and last season with the Pacific Coast League, and William Fieno, former White Sox hurler and last season with the Minneapolis team.

Infield and outfield artists as well as pitchers are numbered among the players who will try to show they are now able to hold up their end in the speedy set. "Lena" Blackburne, who is said to have cost the White Sox something like $15,000 in real money a few seasons back, is to get another trial with the Six. Blackburne first gained prominence in Providence, where he was hailed as the leading shortstop of the International League.

Another former big league infielder, Third Baseman Billy Purtell, has affixed his signature to a Detroit American League contract. Purtell once was with the Chicago White Sox and later with the Boston Red Sox. Last year he did brilliant work for Montreal, finishing the season with a batting average of .316 for 132 games.

Jimmy Johnston, former Cleveland Nap and last season a star in the Pacific Coast League, has been signed with the Chicago Cubs. Johnston holds the P.C.L. base-stealing record, with 123 pilfered sacks to his credit in 1913.

ARREST WOMEN FOR ACCOSTING MEN BUT HOW ABOUT REVERSE?

Mrs. Rose Henderson, of Montreal, Says Women's Value as Police Officers is Great.

A POLICEWOMAN

Mrs. Rose Henderson of Montreal recently discussed in the Juvenile Court the question of appointing policewomen to deal with female arrests in that city.

"A man is always a man," said Mrs. Henderson, "but when a woman takes a false step she is regarded as deserving of the treatment of a man, or that of a respectable woman, and frequently she does not get it either. She is indeed in a very peculiar position. We do not have this respect for women who are arrested."

"Suppose, for instance," Mrs. Henderson was asked, "a policewoman was submitted to the danger of rough handling, how would you propose to avoid that?"

"I should say they would work with the policemen, who would be ready to protect them."

"I believe," said Mrs. Henderson, "that in many cases a woman's instinct will search out danger so far as the pitfalls for girls are concerned more quickly than a man will discover it. As it is, girls are frequently arrested for accosting men, but you never see a man brought up for accosting a woman or at least, very rarely. The attendants at these dance halls could be sworn in as assistants to aid the policewomen, and if trouble arose, she could call on them for help.

"It is around such places as these that many girls commence their careers of vice. Men accost them, and then ask them to go to some apparently harmless place, and then one step leads to another, until the men have won their confidence, until they have accomplished their purpose. We are passing from the old theoretical school of crime into the positive school. Society should no longer, think of what they could do to these unfortunate women, but of what they can do for them."

Mrs. Henderson then related a story concerning a girl who was arrested and taken to Central Prison. There she telephoned to her protector, and joked with him over the 'phone regarding her fine, much to the amusement of the two policemen in charge of her. The money which was thus secured to pay her fine was thus the price of farther indulgence in a vicious life on the part of the girl.

DEATH OF DR. CALDWELL

Well Known Local Physician Passed Away on Sunday Morning

Death claimed a prominent local physician Sunday morning in the person of Dr. William Caldwell. Deceased, who had been ailing for about four months, passed away at his residence, 201 Brock Street, in his seventy-fifth year. The late Dr. Caldwell has resided in Peterborough for upwards of twenty-five years, during which time he established for himself an enviable record as a practicing physician. Prior to coming to Peterborough, deceased resided in Lakefield, where he built up an extensive practice, extending over a period of ten years.

The late Dr. Caldwell was born in Huntingdon, Quebec, and was the son of the late Alexander Caldwell. His boyhood days were spent in Huntingdon, after which he removed to Norwichville (now known as Norwich), Oxford County, where he attended the Public school. Later he taught school and eventually graduated in medicine at McGill University, Montreal. Deceased was also a graduate of St. Thomas Hospital, London, England, and subsequently took a special course in the eye, ear and nose, in well known New York hospital.

Was a Mason.

The late physician was a Mason, having associated himself with the Clementi Lodge during his residence in Lakefield. For many years he was gaol physician at the Peterborough County gaol, a position that he was forced to relinquish a few months ago owing to illness. He was also attached to the medical staff of Nicholls Hospital.

As a member of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, the late Dr. Caldwell was an enthusiastic player and could ever be relied upon to lend his support in anything that tended to promote the interests of the Club in the pursuit of their favourite pastime.

Deceased is survived by two sisters and two brothers, namely, Miss Annie Caldwell of Peterborough, and Mrs. Brodigan of Toronto, Mrs. J. C. Henderson of Rochester and Mr. S. Henderson of Toronto. The latter are half-brothers. Deceased was unmarried and lived with his sister at 201 Brock Street.

Funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock from the deceased's late residence. The service will be conducted by the Rev. R. Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, of which the deceased was a consistent member. Interment will take place at Little Lake Cemetery.

"A BUTTERFLY ON THE WHEEL"

Perhaps England and America were never in better accord theatrically than when they enthused over the production of the English Divorce play entitled "A Butterfly on the Wheel," which will appear at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, Feb. 14. Matinee and Night.

Immediately following its pronounced hit in London it was produced at the 39th Street Theatre, New York, with the same gratifying results and both countries enthusiastically endorsed it as one of the few great plays of the season. This proves that human truths are sounded in its story, for that always has a universal appeal, and human its characters are, and human their motives and actions. It holds and interests and follows it up with a grip that makes one "sit up and take notice." So when a play possesses these qualifications it cannot fail.

The main scene is the divorce trial—treated in a convincing manner that has a climax of great strength and power. It is a masterpiece of realism.

BRIBERY IN GIMLI

Sweeping Charged Made Against the Roblin Government

ONE HUNDRED CASES CITED

WINNIPEG, Feb. 9.—Charges of corruption and intimidation by Provincial Government workers in the Gimli bye-election of last May were made in the Provincial Legislature by T. H. Johnson, Liberal member for West Winnipeg, on Saturday morning, and created a sensation. Gimli was carried by L. E. Taylor for the Roblin Government. The charges will probably be probed after the Government has replied.

Mr. Johnson opened the matter by reading the following statement in the House:

"I, on my responsibility as a member of this House, charge: that public moneys were improperly and corruptly employed in influencing electors to vote for E. L. Taylor at the bye-election in the constituency of Gimli on the 12th day of May, 1913, clear evidence of which is to be found in items of the public accounts aggregating some ninety-three thousand dollars expended directly by the Government; that bribery was extensively practiced in this bye-election on behalf of E. L. Taylor; that corrupt treating was carried on throughout the constituency to a degree never before known; that liquor was dispensed freely by the agent of Taylor in local option territory and elsewhere; that intimidation was largely practiced; that employes of the Manitoba Government and officers of the law were personally guilty of acts of intimidation, bribery, corrupt treating and distribution of liquor; that violators of the law were protected by officers of the Government charged with enforcement of law and order; that prominent among the workers and agents of E. L. Taylor were owners, managers, employes and habitues of notorious drinking resorts in Winnipeg and 'clubs of that class'; that this campaign of corruption, intimidation, bribery and illegal use of liquor was directed and managed by prominent members of the Manitoba Legislature."

Johnson also cited over 100 special instances of alleged corrupt practices during the Gimli campaign.

The Government has not yet replied.

SOME ONE STOLE A QUARTER OF PORK

When a farmer called at a house on Perry Street on Saturday afternoon to deliver a quarter of pork he experienced something of the feelings of old Mother Hubbard. The pork was gone and the farmer scratched his head to figure out the how and when of the theft. During dinner hour he had left his sleigh unguarded, feeling that it was safe on the market. Apparently, some one picked up the ham as coolly as if he owned it and the farmer had one customer more than he could accommodate.

SPECIAL PRIZE TO CIVILIAN RIFLE CLUBS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—Members of the different civilian rifle clubs throughout the Dominion will in future have a new incentive for shooting straight. The Militia Council has decided to offer a special individual prize to be known as the Dominion of Canada prize. The prize will consist of a nickle silver ornamental salver ten inches in diameter, bearing the coats of arms of the Dominion. To be eligible for the prize it will be necessary for the association in question to hold four competitions during the season.

POLICE TO GET INCREASE

City Council to be Asked to Pass Expenditure of $762,000

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—If the City Council passes the estimates of the Police Commission it will mean that every policeman will get a raise in his pay. It may not be a very large one but the lowest will likely be $100 a year.

At the Commissioners' meeting the estimates were said by the Chief to be $736,000, exclusive of any amount that would mean an increase in salaries. The commissioners, however, decided that the men should get a slight raise in salary and $26,000 is the extra amount that the City will be asked to add to the sum already estimated.

Even with this added the estimates will be slightly lower than last year, when $776,483 had to be supplied the commission, as there were several items on the list.

Say Peach Crop Will Be Failure

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 9.—This is the season of the annual reports of the Niagara peach crop being destroyed and sometimes predictions do not prove correct. To-day, however, five of the most prominent peach growers here, whose word can be pretty well relied on, gave it as their positive convictions, that the nineteen fourteen peach crop has succumbed to the extremely cold dips this winter.

NAVIGATION OPENS EARLY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

FORT WILLIAM, Feb. 9.—An early opening of navigation is anticipated at the head of the lakes by local marine men. The ice in Thunder Bay at the present time is only ten or twelve inches thick and reached only to Welcome Island, a distance of six miles from shore. At this period of winter in other years the ice on the bay measured from two to three feet in thickness. The ice at the Soo is comparatively light.

A COMPLAINT ABOUT THEATRE PROGRAMME

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I wish to make a complaint through the column of your paper, of the manner in which the programme of the Royal Theatre is cut short on Saturday nights. This business of advertising six reels and four acts, and then showing about half, is to, my mind, a mild way of defrauding the public. In future I would advise the public to wait for the entire programme. Thanking you for valuable space.—Yours truly.

One Who's Been Stung.

TO THE CHURCH

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Having noticed of late several letters in the papers all more or less bearing on the social and moral condition of the working man, and tending to show a state of unrest and dissatisfaction on his part of the treatment and consideration he receives as a general rule. Also we hear the Church somewhat bemoaning the way attendance is falling off and asking why, and what can be done to stop it. I ask the Church as a whole what steps of interest is it taking in the matter of the social and moral condition of the working class. Ask some working men of to-day. Do you go to church? They will say, I do not. Churches are run to-day by magnates and company promoters, who can pay for the opening of the needle's eye; and should the minister dare to go against the wishes of the above mentioned, he would at least loose a stained glass window for his church. Ministers of the church, this is the opinion of a great many whose confidence the Church has lost. Unrest and dissatisfaction, like everything else, will not stand still, it is but the rumbling underneath. How is the Church going to meet it? Interest and kind thought is usually reciprocated. I am, etc.,

Progress.

REFERRING TO RETIRED FARMERS

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Allow me a small space in your valuable paper in regard to our worthy citizens who have troubles of life to solve. Now Dear Mr. Editor, did you ever take notice to how many retired farmers we have in our factories and driving our electric cars, and doing other kind of labour that would benefit many a man with a wife and five children, and give them the comforts of life which would do more good to these poor people than to some of these gentlemen that sell their farms and come into the city to live retired lives in comfort and joy. But they are after the big dollor. It is these people the Government wants to get after with their big banking account and taking the bread from some poor little children that need it most. We all want a living, but lots of these men don't need the work. It's the dollar they are after and if we had a Government to look after the people and see that the right party got the right job there would be less kicking in some of our cities in our large dominion.

Yours,

S. Keleo.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE ENGINEER

Mr. D. W. Dumble Writes in Regard to Downie Street Creek

Peterborough, Feb. 9th, 1914.

R. H. Parsons, Esq., City Engineer, City.

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your letter of the 5th of February, in which you say: "I note that owing to the accumulation of ice in the creek on your property the water is backing up under the new Dublin Street bridge. In case of any damage from flooding on this account you will be held responsible by the City, and I consider it to your interest to see that the channel is kept clear of any great accumulation of ice and snow."

Somewhat surprised I went at once to the Blodget Canal to see the flood, and was surprised to find no flood or appearance of flood, but I did see your canal filled within twelve inches of the top with drifted snow. When you were building that cement affair a lot of people of common sense warned you that it would fill full with snow; they also warned you that unless the walls were protected with straw that the action of frost would crumble them into the ditch; at this you laughed, but now it is full of snow and your walls will go unless protected by cross ties. Oh! by the way, I did notice two or three wretched bits of cedar stretched across the top. Now, my advice to you is to get that snow out of the people above will be heard from if they suffers from your neglect.

As to my land, I would enlighten you by telling you that I did not put ice or snow on my land, and I am under no obligation to take it off. I am 500 feet from your new bridge, and about ten feet lower in grade. If any flood affects me I will bear my loss as I always have. The town never put a spade inside my boundaries, and I never asked them to do so. May I remind you that the Downie Street Creek is a natural water course, which formerly flowed all over the adjacent lands at its own free will, and the people whose lands may suffer are under no obligation to the City to spend money on it, nor, if they choose to leave it in its natural shape, are they responsible to the City or any one else in damages.

Bear in mind that the City having adopted the Downie Street Creek as its own child will be required to care for it, and, if through bad construction or care, citizens suffer, you may have plenty to do in the future to defend yourself. To save your bluff letters till they are better appreciated, I am, sir, your obedient servant.

D. M. Dumble.

A STORMY PASSAGE

The Liner Teutonic Pays Her First Visit to St. John's—Lawrence Irving on Board

ST. JOHN, Feb. 6.—The White Star liner Teutonic arrived to-day on her first voyage to St. John. The voyage was a tempestuous one, occupying eight days. Among the passengers were Lawrence Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, and a company of thirty players, who are to tour Canada.

The invasion of English actors continues. Following Mr. Martin Harvey, another eminent London favourite is on his way to visit us. Mr Lawrence Irving will make a trip across Canada in a repertoire, the chief feature of which is to be "The Typhoon." This drama has been used for two seasons on the continent by Walker Whiteside, and was a big hit in London this spring.

The Knights Of Phthias Jubilee

BOSTON, Feb. 9—The programme of the golden jubilee celebration by the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, at Washington, Feb. 19, in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the fraternity, was announced yesterday by George W. Pennison of this city, Secretary of the Golden Jubilee Committee. The order was instituted in 1864 at Washington, where two of the organizers, Abram Van der Veer and Edward S. Kimball, still live.

The programme includes a reception by President Wilson at the White House and an address on "Fraternity" by Secretary of State Bryan, Past Chancellor of the Pythian Lodge at Lincoln, Neb.

A representative from Peterborough will attend the reception in Washington.

SUFFERING CAUSED BY BLIZZARD

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 9. — Four deaths, scores of injuries, two hundred fires and widespread suffering among the poor, was the total to-day of the worst blizzard this city has suffered for some years. While the temperature didn't get below zero, biting winds intensified the damage and suffering. Indications are that warmer weather will prevail all over this part of the United States and the neighbouring provinces of Canada during the rest of the week.

FISHERMEN ARE VICTIMS OF STORM

Special Wire to The Examiner:

GODERICH, Ont., Feb. 9. — Lake Huron fishermen, all down the coast from this town to Sarnia, suffered severe losses yesterday as a result of storms which struck their boat houses and wrecked their boats and destroyed nets. The loss is variously estimated from twenty to forty thousand dollars.

BRITAIN BEST CUSTOMER

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—The feature of the trade of Canada for the twelve months ended last November is the growth of the export of Canadian products to Great Britain. During the 12 months Canada sold to Great Britain goods to the value of $216,517,874, an increase of $44,250,000 over the previous year.

Goods to the value of $188,721,853 were sold to the United States, an increase of $40,280,000. Goods imported from Great Britain amounted to $141,428,651, an increase of about $11,000,000, and goods imported from the United States were valued at $438,459,955, an increase of $24,000,000.

Barrie Gives $50,000.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The reason Sir Ernest Shackleton has been able to announce that he has finally collected the necessary funds for his Antarctic expedition is that Sir J. M. Barrie, the novelist and playwright, has come forward with the remaining sum desired.

The Barrie contribution, without which the expedition would not have been possible, was made with the single stipulation that it should be kept private. The sum with which Barrie rounded out the funds deemed necessary for this newest dash to the South Pole is $50,000. The entire equipment needed can now be furnished according to the estimate of Sir Ernest Shackleton.

Robert Graves Papers Are Acknowledged To Be The Finest on The Continent

And they are Characterized by the Most Beautiful Designs and Colourings Known to the Printing Art.

TAKE FOR INSTANCE the pale green paper, that is decorated with a wide satin stripe, and surmounted by the new applique cut out frieze.

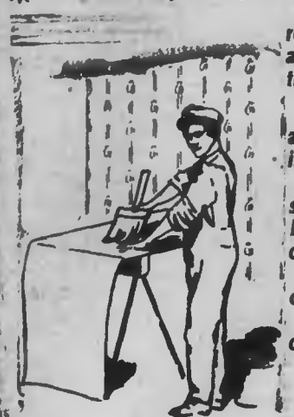
The quiet tone of the paper sets off the vigorous design of the frieze, which though bold in outline, harmonizes perfectly and produces a handsome result.



These Applique Friezes we should explain, are die embossed (or raised in high relief), and come in 18 inch segments, that are pasted directly on to the paper, and are self matching. There is probably no other method of paper decoration that can vie with these friezes in true artistic worth, or length of service.

Then a particularly suitable paper for dining-rooms, is a tapestry effect in brown and green foliage and landscape; while another novel design of the same type is is the New Japanese upper paper which is described as follows:—

The colouring is a quiet blending of Oriental tints, with decoration of lanterns, small figures, and the Kiokucho flowers, fruit and foliage; having here and there in the underprint, a suggestion of the old Willow Tree pattern, already so familiar on Chinaware. As one would imagine this is of both cheerful and decorative merit.

And following this brief list, is a whole section full of the finest papers that we could procure, the prices of which vary as greatly as do the designs.

A SYNOPSIS OF A FEW SUNDAY SERMONS

IF CHRIST CAME TO PETERBORO' HOW WOULD HE SPEND THE DAY?

Rev. Mr. Pogue in Discussing the Question Refers to the Action of the Police Commissioners in Regard to the Application for the Appointment of a Police Woman

"If Christ came to Peterborough," was the title which the Rev. R. Pogue took for his sermon on Sunday morning in St. Paul's church. He based his remarks on the familiar passage in the first chapter of Mark which describes the life of our Lord in a city for a single day. He said, I want to see how our Lord employed Himself during those 24 hours, and to find a probable answer to the question: How would Christ spend a day in Peterborough? Before dealing directly with his theme he said that every citizen should take a patriotic pride in the city which he has made his home. There may be things in it that are unworthy, that may be dark threads in the gold of its life; but just because it is his home city he should love it and should seek to promote its highest interests. This ought to be true more particularly of the Christian citizen. It is said that Augustus found Rome brick and left it marble. The Church of Christ is in the city to change its clay into marble, its dross into gold and to chase away its sin and make it pure.

A SANATORIUM

Christ was in the city as a Healer. We read, "He healed them that were sick of divers diseases." We are to be in the city as He was in it. We cannot work miracles and multiply loaves and fishes to feed hungry multitudes. We cannot heal the sick. But as Christian citizens, we can see that no one goes hungry while we have on everyhand to spare; we can see the sick are nursed, and that they receive the best hospital and medical attention. The speaker here made a plea for a sanatorium for tuberculosis patients, and expressed the hope that when a by-law would be submitted not a vote might be cast against it.

Christ was also in the city as a Fighter of its Evils. We read, "He cast out many demons.' He was manifested to destroy the works of the Devil. Behold Him thus at work! fighting its demons of uncleanness, and casting them out, and arraying Himself against the powers of evil. Behold the goodness and severity of God! Behold the severity of Jesus, as with a whip of cords He drove from the temple the men who had desecrated that sacred place by their unholy traffic. What would Christ do if He came to Peterborough? Would He not set Himself to fight its wrongs, cast out its demons, and cleanse its filthy places?

WOULD USE A WHIP.

Would He not take a whip of cords or of scorpions to its unclean men who walk its streets to seduce young and helpless girls and rob them of virtue and purity? Would He not use the same whip to drive from office the men whose duty it is to see that evil is detected and punished, innocence guarded, and womanhood honoured, if they proved recreant to their sacred trust. And what would He have us do? He would have us take our place by His side in this fight against the demons of impurity. He would have us feel as Paul felt as he saw Athens given wholly to idolatry. We read that he was in a paroxysm of rage. That is how a Christian man feels in the presence of discovered wrong; he is filled with a burning anger against it. He does not excuse it or speak of it as a necessary evil. He does not say the social evil has always been in the world, and must ever continue in it. He sees that it is never necessary to break the commandments, and that it is his duty to see that no one else breaks them; and if they do to invoke the law for their detection and punishment.

FOLLOWEDS OF THE MASTER

If this be fair deduction from the example of Christ and the teaching of the New estament then the committee of citizens who waited on our Police Commissioners were only performing their duty as followers of the Master when they told them of the existence of certain evils in our city and asked them to take action for the suppression of these evils. The law must be invoked in such cases. We do not underestimate the value of other agencies, the influences of the Christian home, of the Christian church, and institutions of reform; but where evil flaunts itself in public, when the seventh commandment is openly and flagrantly broken, then the first thing to do is to arrest and punish the offenders. And there is only one thing that self-respecting servants of the public ought to do in the circumstances. When a committee of citizens lays before them the facts, when they ask for a course of action, and their request is supported by nine-tenths of the best public sentiment of the city, they should at once reply: Certainly, ladies, if things are as you tell us we will give you what you want. We are but your servants and that of the public to do your bidding. Our duties as civic officials and protectors of the morals are to cast out the demons of impurity from the body politic, and to throw around the women and girls of our city the strong bulwark and protection of the law.

THE HOME AND THE CHURCH

The speaker also pointed out that Christ was in the city as the Defender of the Institutions which are the foundation of all civic and national righteousness—the Home and the Church. From the narrative we learn that during that day He spent in the city He visited the home of one of His disciples, thus doing honour to the family relationship; and He also found His way to the synagogue, thus showing His reverence for the things of religion. In speaking of the place of the home in its influence upon the moral life of the city, Mr. Pogue quoted Mr. W. T. Stead who tells us that in conversation with the keepers of two houses of ill-fame in the city of Chicago, both said that unhappy and unChristian home conditions are responsible for practically all those who have turned from a life of purity. There is nothing we need more than the multiplication of Christian homes.

Individual Responsibility

This Was the Subject of Rev. Mr. Conners' Sermon at Park St. Baptist Church

At Park Street Baptist Church, yesterday, Rev. Mr. Conners preached on the subject of "Individual Responsibility."

Taking as his text Rom., 14:12, "So then every one of us shall give an account of himself to God."

This is one of the most solemn declarations found anywhere in the Epistles of Paul. We have the fact of individual responsibility presented here in the most unbiased terms. Unreservedly, "Every one of us shall give account of himself to God." It is inevitable, universal and personal. Too many are wont to confess the other fellow's sin. This is an individual message, as Salvation is an individual matter. "To you is the word of this salvation sent."

Our text refers to a time when God will judge the judgments of men.

This question of "Individual Responsibility" very much needs to be emphasized to-day. It is altogether too easy for those in the Church and out of the Church to excuse themselves of their responsibility by saying "that is the business of the Church." Who is the Church, and what is her mission? These are two questions we do well to consider.

I. Who is the Church?

A variety of meanings are attached to this term, which are essential to be kept in mind to avoid confusion of thought in discussing this very important subject: First, there is the building dedicated for worship; second, a single organized Christian congregation; third, a particular Christian denomination; fourth, the aggregate of all ecclesiastical Communions professing faith in Jesus Christ.

It is in this last sense of the term that I wish to speak, as pertaining to the individual and his or her responsibility in this world for the salvation of men and women everywhere.

It must therefore be acknowledged that all who are so related to Jesus Christ through a saving knowledge of the truth and identified by the spirit in a consistent life, are part and parcel of the Church of Jesus Christ, regardless of colour, race or position. "God is no respector of persons, but in every nation he that believeth the Gospel, etc.

The Church of Christ.

To Thee, our God and Father,
Our joyful voices raise;
And for the hurch of Jesus,
We give Thee grateful praise;
Through it Thou art declaring,
The name, of names above,
And by it we are hearing
The glory of Thy love.

We praise Thee for descending
From Heaven's highest dome,
To show Thy love for sinners,
In the person of Thy Son;
Who shed His blood to free us,
From the curse and blight of sin.
And Thou didst crown with glory,
The work of Christ our King.

If all redeemed in Jesus,
Who bow before His feet,
Would waft it on the breezes,
And would talk it on the street,
The name of Christ the Saviour,
Then the angels would rejoice,
At the host of sinners turning,
Making Jesus Christ their choice.

Let us renounce the darkness,
That would our hearts enslave,
And now rejoice in Jesus,
The mighty one to save;
As we His grace inherit,
Let us His name confess,
That we His blessed Spirit,
In service may possess.

And O most gracious Father,
Wilt Thou now hear our plea,
And make the Church of Jesus,
What she really ought to be.
O, bless our feeble efforts,
Accept the praise we bring,
And glorify forever,
The Church of Christ, our King.

II. What is her mission? (Matt. 28:18-20. "The Church is therefore the "called-out" as the representative body of Jesus Christ in the world, for the spread of the Gospel to all nations of the earth, and the bringing of men and women into vital union with Himself as their personal Saviour. If as an individual I claim to be part and parcel of that blessed company, am I fulfilling my part of her mission at home and abroad? "Are you a Christian? In this O be true."

It is surprising to find many to-day who are making long prayers and fair speeches for the unsaved in general, who give no evidence of any particular interest in the unsaved of their own family, and those with whom they are associated in the home. How many fathers there are who are laying great claims to Christianity and who are filling prominent positions in the Church, who are not even endeavouring to bring their own children to preaching service or the Sunday School, but allow them to run the streets, desecrating the Lord's Day while they are dictating policies for their neighbours and the public in general, as to their duties relative to the hereafter.

True charity begins at home. People are not tired of true religion, but they are tired of this sham professionalism and policy religion that brings so much criticism and ridicule on the Church. Jude describes them in the following manner: "Clouded they are without water, carried about of winds, trees whose fruit withereth without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots; raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame; wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness forever, etc." And John, in the Revelation, speaking of this same class, says: "Having a name to live, they are dead."

To the Christian husband: "Is your wife a Christian, and if not have you ascertained the reason? Have you ever tried to point her to the Saviour? And are you living a consistent life before her, that will convince her that your religion is a reality with you and something to be desired?

To the Christian wife: are you exercising the same interest in their future welfare of your husband who is not a Christian, that he may become a believer in Jesus Christ, and unite his forces with you ot win the children and others in the household to bring them into right relationship with God?

Time and opportunity are passing, and death is on the track of all, and sooner or later the black crepe will hang on the door; some one will have been called away, but to what, and where? This will be separation for a time, will it be for eternity also?

Death will separate husband and wife, son and daughter from parents, friends and loved ones, lovers and sweethearts, but will this separation be for eternity, or will it be only incidental? To those in Jesus it will be but a farewell for a brief moment, only to meet in a brighter world where there will be no more separation, and where sorrow cannot enter, but where all the redeemed in Jesus shall be with the white-robed throng forever more.

Brethren, think of these things. This is the field of action and now is the time for service; labour while you may.

"What will it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" But think further, what will be the future of those who not only have lost their own soul, but by their influence have dragged others down to an endless hell?

To the sleeping bristians "awake thou that sleepest and arise from the dead, and Christ will give thee light.'

May God arouse men and women everywhere to a sense of their responsibility for the souls of them over whom they exert an influence in life, that they fail not to warn them of the awful doom of the unsaved, and point them to the "Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."

The salvation of Jesus Christ is the panacea. Not only is it the remedy for every ailment of man, but it is the solution of every problem of life. Therefore, play the game fair with Christ or quit the game.

Help Some One To-day.

Do you know of a heart that is weary,
That a word of love might cheer?
There are many such hearts about us,
And it may be one is near.
Look around and you may find one
Who needs just the help you can give;
Don't wait until men are dying,
To tell them of how they should live.

It may be that some one is waiting,
On Eternity's awful brink,
And a word from you might save them,
Or cause them on Jesus to think;
Look around you then my brother,
Speak to those you meet by the way,
Tell them of Jesus, the Saviour,
And try to help some one each day

Never think kind words are wasted,
If in Jesus' blest name they are said,
By casting your bread on the water,
The wrecked, on life's sea, may be fed;
Speak a word to the lost and the straying,
And tell tem of Jesus' great love,
Remember, in this you're obeying
The voice of your Master, above.

Our responsibility is according to our light and opportunity. "To him that knoweth to do right and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

"To whomsoever much is given, of him shall much be required."

Daniel Webser said: "The greatest thought I have ever had was that of my individual responsibility to God."

God expects of us as He has given to us. "There must first be the willing mind, and then it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not."

Evangelistic Services At Tabernacle

Rev. Mr. Long Delivered Inspiring Addresses Yestesday

The evangelistic meetings which are being held in Bethany Tabernacle have already proved a great blessing to many. There was a good attendance at both morning nd evening services yesterday. In the morning Mr. Long preached on the Crucifixion of Christ. There was a very deep and conscious presence of God's power throughout the service. Many were moved to tears, and at the close of the service knelt at the altar in humble confession, asking the Lord Jesus Christ to pardon their sins, and help them to lead a Christian life.

At the evening service Mr. Long took for his subject, "After Death the Judgment.' The message was indeed heart-searching. The speaker described many interesting things which take place in earthly courts and made it remarkably clear how in the great court of Heaven, the Eternal God will proceed with the judgment. He showed how the Bible revealed the fact that there would be no missing ones there, and that every unsaved person would be required to give an accurate account of all the deeds done in his body, whether good or bad.

His description of the scene of parting from God and heaven, was most pathetic, and at the same time startling in its revelation. So overwhelmingly convincing was the truth that a number of persons present responded to the invitation given, to accept salvation at once.

The meetings have marked a steady increase in spiritual power, and every indication points forward to a coming revival such as has long been prayed for.

Rev. Lucius B. Compton, who will speak on Monday night, is a preacher and revivalist of mighty power. His messages have brought thousands to the Saviour. He is one of the most consecrated men of our day. Let the ministers and members of our City Churches fail not to hear this remarkable man.

Spoke On The Commandments

Able and Forceful Address by Mrs. (Adjutant) McElhiney

One of the most able, straightforward and convincing tddresses ever given by a woman on any subject was given by Mrs. Adjutant McElhinney at the S. A. Temple last night. For the foundation of her remarks she took the Ten Commandments, dealing with each one as applied to present day living and social conditions.

Her observations on idol worship were timely indeed, saying that not all idolators were outside Christendom, but quite a few are in Peterborough. Women, young and old, could be found day and night at the shrine of Fashion, submitting themselves, body and soul, to its god. Reference was made to the places where these standards were set up. Paris and New York figured largely in the setting up of the ideals—two of the most licensious, adulterous, and wicked cities in the world, setting the pace for Christian communities and followers of the meek and lowly Jesus.

Men were idol worshippers also, both in dress and other matters, setting up in their hearts and lives that that took God's place, notwithstanding He has declared "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me."

A scathing and terrible denunciation of the taking of the name of God in vain, both by men and boys, followed. Men using obscene and dishonouring expressions about God and His Christ before boys and girls, either at work, at home, or on the street, was one of the worst crimes which could be committed.

Even women were not immune from the habit, and Mrs. McElhiney characterized it as very unwomanly and vicious, and they should be more thoughtful and careful about it.

The sacredness of the Sabbath day and all it meant to the home, the church, nd the labouring crowd was upheld. "Works of gain" have taken the place of work of necessity, and the foundation of one of the grandest heritages of mankind is being threatened by greedy corporations and selfish labour, who only seek their own gain.

She asked all to stand for what God asked, independent of loss or gain, believing that those who "honoured God He would honour."

The command to labour six days was quite as imperative as resting on the Sabbath day. Lying at the basis of most of the cause and effect of all earth's wrongs was the ignoring of the First Commandment with promise, "Honour thy father and thy mother." Here Mrs. McElhiney was really eloquent, pleading for fathers and mothers to demand the honour and respect of their children, being careful for their demand for implict obedience and not too much indulgence, careful as to their religious life, in their conversation, and in the habits, so that it might be "do as I do," and not "do as I tell you." The children honouring their fathers and mothers was one of the first essentials to true manhod and womanhod, not calling them the "old man" and the "old woman." The home was the place where all good or ill is bred; however, it may be helped or hindered outside, and would do more if properly managed and honoured than all the police women and men in the country.

Mrs. McElhiney remarked it was not necessary to shoot or stab anyone "to kill," and that all murderers were not doing penal servitude. Whoso hated his brother, etc., is the Bible standard, and many hated but had not courage to perform the deed. Murdering of innocence was charged to those who were otherwise thought well of, and some people went out and in the home with seemingly a calm and serene face and soul who were guilty of this heinous crime, and would be dealt with very summarily, both by nature and by God.

Adultery was passed over by a lot of people with a lot of mock modesty, and it is time someone was speaking out loud and straight on this subject. Married and single were guilty alike in this city. Anyone in the building last night guilty of breaking this commandment must have been terribly agitated indeed. Handling the subject "without gloves" and quoting instances where it existed in high as well as low grades of society, she pleaded with the young people present to be careful, for some day a bright-eyed boy or girl might climb upon their knee, thinking them heroes in purity and goodness, and conscience would lash and sting, and the awful consequences would reach on down to them with awful rebound.

Clean, pure, wholesome, useful lives were happiest here and hereafter.

Covetousness with neighbour and houses and goods was denounced generally as being most dangerous and cruel.

Married men and women falling in love (if, indeed, it could be called that name) with other wives and husbands, and younger people crowding into the home life of others, was by no means moral or decent, let alone womanly or manly.

In concluding Mrs. McElhiney made no apology for dealing straight on these lines, and pleaded with the guilty ones to find forgiveness and mercy in Jesus and power from God Himself to be and do right.

GREEKS BLAME BULGARIANS FOR THE POVERTY

That the recent appeal by Bulgaria for aid for the many people impoverished through the war, and the atrocities alleged to have been perpetrated, could be obviated to a considerable extent if the loot taken from the inhabitants by the Bulgarian soldiery were returned is the gist of a lengthy statement in Atlantis, Greek daily published in New York, and commented upon by M. Costuros of Calgary, cousin of Mr. W. Costuros of the Boston Cafe, Peterborough.

The article, in part, is as follows:

If the Bulgarian government would force its soldiery to disgorge its blood stained booty they would find ample means wherewith to meet the crisis of want and destitution now upon them.

The present campaign to arouse sympathy has a deeper significance thn the plea for alms. Bulgaria seeks to attract attention from her misdeeds to minimize the shuddering horror her very name now means to an enlightened world and if possible to blacken the adversaris who fought her bravely and fairly and who won not only the victory but the esteem of the nations.

"From the sad spectacle of a nation calling for material help to foreign lands we beg you to turn to the inspiring vision of a nation silently bearing her burdens and intelligently repairing her losses. We invite you to consider not only the self-denial of the Greeks of America, who gave thir savings, often their all, to aid their country, but also the patriotism of the young men who, even now, are leaving their lucrative employments and the safe home of their adoption to return to Greece and enlist in the army that will toil, not alone in its military apacity, but as the workmen who must slave to construct where destruction has passed and to bring prosperity once more to the waste places left desolate by massacre and pillage."

"Babies will be barred from the mail bags, so will dogs, in fact no living thing but bees and bad fish will be allowed to enter King George's new mail service in Canada."

To-night at midnight the long-expected and much-vaunted parcel post system will be put in operation.

Throughout Canada, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, machinery to compete with the express companies will be started, and what is expected to be the commencement of a rate war between the Government and the railroads will have started. It is expected that it will be several months before the service is working smoothly, and the rates, which at present are not as low as the public expected, are finally adjusted.

For the first three months only parcels of six pounds and under will be accepted, as it is expected considerable trouble will be experienced in obtaining the necessary train accommodation. After that the limit will be eleven pounds.

BIRTH.

PILLING—On Tuesday, February 3rd, to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pilling, 188 Stewart Street, a son.

Opportunity.

I used to think that she was plain,
I felt no thrill when she was near me.
The things she said were said in vain,
If she intended them to cheer me.
I used to think that I could well
Afford to live my life without her,
I saw no reason, truth to tell,
To be at all concerned about her.

Barbara Tennant A Great Favourite

The following extract from the Moving Picture Magazine refers to Miss Barbara Tennant (Mrs. Wadely), who formely resided in Peterborough and whose husband was for several years manager of the Brinton Carpet Company here. It will be read with interest by her many friends here:

Barbara Tennant is a delightfully charming leading woman, whose magnetic personality and grace of manner has made her beloved by thousands of photoplay fans. Miss Tennant's charm lies in her exquisitely beautiful features and in her large, dark and expressive eyes. Combined with her fascinating personal appearance, she is a capable, hard-working artist. In an interview given a short time ago she graciously imparted the following facts:

"I was born in London, England, and immediately after leaving school commenced training for the stage. My first lessons were given under the direction of Madame Cavallazzi, former ballet mistress of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. At the age of twenty I appeared as a solo dancer in one of the great London pantomimes. A London theatrical manager offered me an engagement as 'Premiere Danseuse' for his London pantomime. This piece enjoyed a long run. This was really the starting point of my career in legitimate theatrical work, and my ambition was fully aroused to pursue the work seriously and make a name for myself. After leaving school I played in rapid succession in 'The Private Secretary,' 'Charlie's Aunt,' 'The Rivals,' 'Romeo and Juliet,' 'His Majesty's Servants,' and a host of others. Four years ago, while visiting some friends in Canada it struck me that this would be an ideal country for a show road. I gathered together a small company of talented artists and gave a series of recitals throughout the principal cities of eastern Canada. My part of the performance embodied selections from classical and standard plays dramatic recitations, and occasionally I varied the programme with an original sketch. Shortly after my Canadian tour I was about to return to England when an accidental meeting with Daniel Frohman caused me to change my mind. He gave me a contract for the leading part in 'The Seven Sisters,' which role I played for three successive seasons. Toward the close of my third season with Mr. Frohman, the wonderful scope and breadth of Moving Pictures began to attract my attention. Previous to this I had never seen a Moving Picture but once in my life, and that was as a little girl, when I was taken by my nurse to a country fair in England. I remember well receiving a severe scolding from my aunt for having done such an indescribably undignified thing. Coming to New York before my return to England, I happened to meet an old friend on Broadway one day, who informed me with much pride that she was working in the pictures. She practically forced me into a picture house on Broadway to view some films, and my eyes were then really opened to a realization of what the Moving Picture really meant to both the artist and the public. I recollect that the picture I saw had for its leading lady little Mary Pickford, whose wonderful ability greatly moved me. The following day I visited the Eclair plant at Fort Lee, N.J., and here I am today, very happy in my work and extremely interested.

"I think the Moving Picture is one of the greatest inventions of the century, for this reason—because it places entertainment, recreation and the attraction within easy reach of every one. I honestly appreciate the kindly letters, of which I get very many from picture fans in various parts of the country.

"I have had many experiences since joining the ranks of Moving Picture artists, both pleasant and unpleasant and I think I can safely say that I have risked my life many times in the interest of art and the Photoplay. I recall vividly one experience we had while making pictures in the region around the Great Lakes. One scene called for a dash through the rapids and within close distance of the waterfalls below. We negotiated the first part of the journey without mishap but the swirl of the rapids had given us such a momentum that we were headed straight for the waterfalls and certain death below. One of the actors seated in the canoe took a desperate chance by casting a rope to the nearest bank, which was a throw of some distance, and luckily it caught hold. The sudden jerk overturned the frail boat and precipitated all of us into the water. Luckily we were all able to swim, and after a hard struggle reached the bank very wet extremely frightened, but unhurt."

BAD WEATHER REPORTED

Incoming Ocean Liners All Tell of Difficult Voyages.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Steamships arriving, overdue, from European ports yesterday, reported rough weather and the presence of icebergs at sea. The Megantic of the White Star Line, coming in from Liverpool after a nine-day voyage, passed through a northwesterly gale, which reached its climax of effect on this ship on Jan. 31, when a giant wave dashed over the starboard rail, awakening the 350 passengers, sweeping away a lifeboat, partly flooding the corridors, and entering the funnel, dampening the fires.

The Megantic saw no ice, but received reports of bergs, field ice and numerous "growlers," including one berg 150 feet high and a quarter of a mile long, in an area of broken ice, extending from 40 to 250 miles east of St. John's, Nfld.

ICE HARVESTING ON LITTLE LAKE AND THE TRENT CANAL

Local Companies Are Engaged in Storing Material for the Manufacture of Chocolate Soda's and Other Sundry Concoctions.

Frm othe first grey of the morning, till the dusk of the evening, men are harvesting ice on Little Lake and the Trent Valley Canal. Teams, sleighs and men are on the scene at seven o'clock or shortly after, when work for the day begins. A team of horses is hitched to the ice plough, and in an incredibly short time there is a "checkerboard" pattern slashed in the ice. The "squares" are a little over two feet square, surface measurement and whatever depth Jack Frost wills. The keen cutting blade of the ice plough does not entirely separate one marked block of ice from another, but bites down so deeply that a few moments work on the part of a man with a bar, suffices to cut clear a considerable section of the marked ice.

Men Toss 300 Pound Blocks.

Meanwhile a stage and skid has been erected. The first ice is lifted is in direct line with the skid, and its removal leaves a lane where the water shows black between the ice. A sleigh is backed up to the stage as the ice blocks are heaved along the skidway by means of a "jack" attached to a wire cable, which in turn is fastened to the whiffletree hung on a single horse (provider of the power for heaving the ice locks from the water) and as the great blocks rattle along the stage, men wield big tongs adroitly, tossing the 300-pound cakes of ice on the sleigh with as much apparent ease as a cook turns over a sizzling wheat cake.

After the first breach has been made in the ice field, the man with the saw sets to work each side of the lane of water. He cuts through the ice at each end of a half dozen marked blocks, and a man with an ice bar pries a great slab of the ice away from its weakened supports. Then the wise old man with the boat hook gets in his fine work. He has solved the secret of obtaining a maximum of result with a minimum of effort, and his deft light touches with the hook are as pleasurable to him as are the creative strokes of an artist's brush. He directs the floating cake to the newly opened lane in the ice, guides it along the channel till it has reached the point where another ice harvester stands on planks, which bridge the waterway.

He is the man with the spear, a three-pronged weapon which recalls the trident held by the figure symbolic of Britannia on the coins of the island kingdom. Nonchalantly, he stabs down at the slab of "criss crossed" ice. It breaks into sections at his touch, and he hastens the ice blocks along the way which leads to the skid.

The "jack," an implement of steel, is set in behind a number of the blocks. There is a signal to the driver of the horse ahead and beyond the stage, a "zip" as the dripping cubes are heaved out of the water and a repetition of the activity which marked the opening operations of the day.

"Blue Denotes Perfection.

The foreman on the job is pleased. He notes the blue gleam of the ice with keen satisfaction. "That denotes ice perfection," he remarks to one who watches the progress of ice harvesting. "The more blue one sees in new-lifted ice, the better, and it's as marked this year as at any time I have seen it."

Men and horses are now being worked with methodical precision No sooner does one sleigh pull away from the stage than another backs up to it, receives its load of about three tons of dripping, gleaming ice, and is hastily driven away to its destination.

In the ice-house ashore men are toiling as tirelessly as those in the ice field. An oscillating hoist heaves the ice blocks aloft to an aperture in the barn, where the jar of a stop block dislodges the load the twin lifts bear and sends the ice cakes slithering along a runway into the heart of the ice granary, where men as expert with tongs as are those out over the waters, pile the heavy blocks in place.

Discomforts Ignored.

Water gathers about the stage as the day's work draws to a close, but the men engaged in the work of securing a supply of the cooling material made by nature pay little heed to the resultant discomforts and work as cheerily and upwearied during the last hour of the day's work as they did early morning.

To date, the present winter has proved a good one for the harvester. The ice is not as thick as in many previous winters but it is of good quality and already they have much more ice cut and stored than they had at the close of the ice-getting period last year.

True Politeness.

Sydney Smith, the prince of diners-out, says in one of his letters to Jeffrey: "Tell Murray that I was much struck with the politeness of Miss Markham the other day after he went. In carving a partridge I splashed her with gravy from head to foot; and, though I saw three distinct brown rills of bird juice trickling down her cheek, she had complacence to swear that not a drop had reached her! Such circumstances are the triumphs of civilization!"

A REAL NERVE AND BODY-BUILDING MEDICINE

We believe Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is the best remedy made for toning the nerves, enriching the blood, building up wasted tissues, renewing health, strength and energy—the best medicine you can use if you are run-down, tired-out, nervous and debilitated, no matter what the cause. It doesn't depend for its good effect upon alcohol or habit-forming drugs, because it contains none. It may not make you feel better in a few hours, but it will make you feel better, we are sure, just as soon as the tonic and food properties it contains have a chance to get into the blood and, through the blood, into the rest of the system. Pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites have long been endorsed by successful physicians, but here, for the first time, they are combined into one preparation which, as a nerve-food and a builder of strength and health, we believe, has no equal.

If you don't feel well, begin taking Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion today, and build your health and strengthen your system against more serious illness. To convalescents, old people, puny children and all others who are weak, run-down or ailing, we offer Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion with our personal promise that, if it doesn't make you well and strong again, it will cost you nothing. If we didn't have the utmost faith in it, we wouldn't offer it with this guarantee, nor even recommend it to you. We are sure that once you have used it you will recommend it to your friends, and thank us for having recommended it to you. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. —McDermid & Jury, E. L. Payne, Peterborough, Ont.

National Corn Show In Dallas

Special Wire to The Examiner:

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 10.—East and West, North and South have joined in elaborate displays of their cereal and other farm crops at the sixth National Corn Exposition, which opened in this City to-day, and will continue for two weeks. The show is the largest and most representative affair of is kind ever given in the United States. More States are represented than ever before, while the exhibits are more numerous and more varied in their nature. While King Corn reigns supreme in the big exhibition palace, there are few branches of agriculture that are not represented by a display. One of the most notable sections is that devoted to the display of irrigation and dry-farming methods and products shown in the exhibits from Utah, Arizona, Colorado, Idaho and other States. During the two weeks of the show there will be a succession of national and State meetings of agricultural organizations. The programme provides also for a series of daily lectures on scientific agriculture and kindred topics to be delivered by representatives from the Department of Agriculture at Washington and experts from agricultural colleges and experiment stations in many States.

TO BRING IN A BILL

Redistribution Measure Makes Its Appearance To-day

MAIL PORTS ARE DISCUSSED

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—Premier Borden to-day will introduce his bill for redistributing the seats in the House of Commons, in accordance with the last census, and will make a brief statement as to the policy and position of the Government. No discussion is anticipated until the second reading of the bill, which will probably be moved on Thursday, when a special committee will be named. As already announced, the schedules of the bill will be in blank, so that no indication will be given as to the boundaries of the various ridings throughout the country.

Most of yesterday's sitting was taken up with a debate on the changes of winter ports made by the Canadian mail steamers. The discussion was adjourned to await a statement from Hon. Mr. Hazen.

Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Customs, has given notice of an important resolution which will be followed by a bill to amend the Export Act to prohibit the exportation of crude or partly manufactured petroleum obtained in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, the Northwest Territories, or the Yukon.

It is interesting to remember in connection with this proposed measure that the Government has arraigned with the British Admiralty that the navy will have the first call on the produce of the oil fields of Canada, should this be necessary for fuel for the ships of war of the British Empire.

Upon the orders of the day, several Opposition members claimed that what purported to be a list of the supplementary estimates of the Public Works Department for Victoria County, C.B., was being distributed in an effort to influence the pending by-election, and Hon. Mr. Rogers denied that anyone had any knowledge or authority on the subject.

A. K. Maclean (Halifax) addressed the House in support of his resolution calling upon the Government to produce a copy of all papers in connection with the adoption of the port of St. John, N.B., as the port of call of the mail subsidised transatlantic steamers, Royal George and Royal Edward, for the winter season for 1913-14.

Mr. Maclean said that the Government had made a contract with all the big steamship lines for the carriage of the transatlantic mails under which every company was free to choose either Halifax or St. John, N.B., as the winter port. This was followed by the announcement that the Royal Edward and the Royal George steamers, belonging to the Canadian Northern, would change their port from Halifax to St. John.

Mr. Maclean contended that the Canadian Northern had been compelled to remove the Royal steamers from Halifax by the Government. To meet us political exigency pressure had been brought to bear upon the Canadian Northern, which it was unable to resist, being "a suppliant for financial favors from the Government."

Mr. Carvell, who followed, said there had been some extraordinary juggling on the part of the Government, by which Canadian Pacific steamers had been transferred from St. John to Halifax and Canadian Northern steamers from Halifax to St. John. The sufferer had been the Intercolonial, which was now carrying traffic for the Canadian Pacific at a figure away below cost.

In order to induce the Empresses to go to Halifax the Canadian Pacific, according to Mr. Carvell, had been given great concessions by the Intercolonial under the Gutelius-Bosworth agreement.

It was to make up for this loss that the Intercolonial had advanced all freight rates to the general public between Montreal and Halifax about 20 per cent.

Postmaster-General Pelletier said the steamship companies were unwilling to call at both ports and had been given the choice of sailing either from Halifax or St. John. It had so happened that practically all the steamship lines except the Canadian Northern decided on St. John and so advertised. Then suddenly the Canadian Pacific and the Allan Line and the White Star all decided to remove to Halifax. It had created a bad situation and the Government would have been justified in trying to remedy it in any proper way. No undue pressure had been brought upon the Canadian Northern. He pointed out that Mr. Carvell and Mr. A. K. Maclean were riding in opposite directions. One claimed that Halifax had been discriminated against, the other St. John. They could not both be right.

Premier Borden said he did not claim to be a traffic expert, but he believed that the Gutelius-Bosworth agreement was fair and just to the Intercolonial. The Government had proposed submitting it to the Dominion Railway Commission if the citizens of St. John so desired, and were quite ready to submit it to any rail way authority.

It appeared that the two Canadian Pacific steamers had removed from St. John to Halifax and two Canadian Northern steamers from Halifax to St. John. Neither port, he thought had gained anything by the exchange.

Unfortunately, the facilities at both ports were inadequate, but when the great works now in progress at Halifax and St. John were completed by the Government, those ports would have facilities equal to any ports on this continent or indeed in the world.

The Prime Minister indignantly repudiated the suggestion that any undue favor had been shown the Canadian Pacific or that any undue pressure had been brought to bear upon the Canadian Northern.

W. F. Maclean, Hon. H. R. Emmerson, E. M. Macdonald and Mr. Turgeon also spoke and Hon. Robert Rogers moved the adjournment of the debate.

WAR OFFICE RECONSIDERS.

Special Officer Will Confer With Canadians Regarding Rifle.

LONDON, Jan. 10. — The pointed speech of Col. Hughes in the Dominion House last week apropos of the new regulation issued by the Army Council excluding the use of the aperture sight at Bisley, has proved effective. Though denial of the fact was made by home officials Monday, the Canadian Associated Press is able to state that the War Office are already moving in the matter, and yesterday consulted Col. Hughes as to the utility of sending a War Office official immediately to Canada to discuss the whole situation. They of course recognize that for Canadians to compete with sights they never used would be an unfair handicap on them. On the other hand, they argue it would be equally unfair to permit them to use a kind of sight which was forbidden to others. Although debarred from using the aperture sight in territorial competitions Canadians would probably derive a compensating advantage in "open to all comers" competitions. This and cognate questions will doubtless be fully threshed out at the forthcoming conference between the British and Dominion authorities.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By Elwell Lawrence

Such talk as this made a great impression on some of the rustlers and again opened up the subject of letting Larkin off. But the majority held firm and the sentence stood.

It was perhaps eight o'clock when the party of four approached Larkin and roused him up. This time his hands were bound behind his back and he noticed that the masked rustler was fastening them tightly but with a softer rawhide. This peculiar circumstance caused a wild thrill to flash all through Larkin's being. Perhaps, after all, here was the weak link in the rustler's chain. The surmise became a certainty when the man, unobserved by his companions, sawed Bud's arms back and forth, showing him the quickest and easiest way to work them loose.

Then came the greatest surprise of all. The man, who had spoken no word the whole time, thrust a heavy .45 revolver into his trouser-pocket. To permit this being done the eight-inch barrel had been sawed off five inches short, ruining the gun for ordinary use, but making it particularly handy and light for close work.

This action convinced Larkin that the man in the mask was not only willing that he should escape, but was actually determined that the event should occur. He also knew that he could count on the support of this ally in the final moment when the four men must fight it out two and two.

Whether this sudden change of aspect was the result of a determination by a minority of the rustlers not to let the execution take place, or whether by some miraculous means one of his own friends had succeeded in joining the organization, he could not determine, although he tried to sound the man in the mask, when the others were busy with their horses. His only reply was a low hiss commanding silence.

A quarter past the hour found them on their way, the ponies picking their path gingerly over the bad ground until they reached the range. Here the three rustlers drew up short, for in the distance could be seen the twinkling of a camp fire.

"One of the Bar T punchers," said Joe; "but I reckon he won't hear us."

For half a mile further they walked their horses, and then urged them to a trot in the direction of the river whose tree-lined banks they had seen late in the afternoon. They paused only once in this place, and then to cross a small stream that lay in their path.

As he rode, Larkin worked his arms cautiously back and forth until he felt the rotten rawhide give, and knew that a single violent motion would free him entirely. But he refrained from making that motion, feeling certain that the man in the mask would give the signal when the time was ripe.

At last they discerned the loom of the trees against the low northern sky and pulled their horses to a walk, until they arrived directly underneath a big cottonwood, which stood in sinister readiness.

"Here's your last chance," said Parker in a low voice. "If you swear as we have told you, you can go free. We take a man's word out here."

"Never!" replied Larkin firmly. "Don't waste time talking."

"Shore not," rejoined the other. "We always grant a man's last request. Come on, boys, let's finish this thing quick."

He had hardly spoken when from the distance came the sound of rapid revolver firing, mingled with the wild shouts of men. For a few moments the drama beneath the cottonwood came to an abrupt halt.

"By gum!" cried Joe, "he Bar T punchers have found the boys and there's the devil to pay back there. Lively, now."

One of the others took his lariat from the throng at the side of his saddle and heaved the coil over an outstretched limb of the cottonwood. He had hardly done so when another sound reached them, a low, menacing rumble that grew momentarily louder until it reached a dull roar.

"A stampede!" bawled one of the men; "and it's heading this way."

Joe and the man in the mask still on their horses led Pinte directly beneath the limb of the cottonwood, and the former reached down to take the noose of the rope from the one who had arranged it. Suddenly Larkin felt a hand fumbling with the rawhide about his arms, and a low voice in his ear whispered: "Now."

With the same motion Bud wrenched his hands free and dug his spurs into the sides of his horse. Pinte, startled, leaped forward just as Larkin drew the revolver from his pocket.

Joe, though caught by surprise, did not let go of the bridle that was wound about his right hand, but a blinding shot from the gun of the man in the mask did the work. With a groan Parker pitched forward out of his stddle and fell to the ground just as Larkin fired pointblank at the third man who appeared before him, still on foot.

The fellow went down, but not until a yellow stab of light flashed up from where he had been, and Bud felt the wind of a bullet as it sped past his cheek. The fourth man was nowhere to be seen.

The stranger in the mask and the man he had rescued were now alone, but their thoughts were fully occupied. The sound of the distant stampede had become a veritable rumbling roar that told of its nearing proximity. Aside from this drumming of many feet, there was no sound, for the animals of the range when in the grip of panic are silent.

With glazed eyes and muscles strained to the utmost they thundered into the dark, unconscious and heedless of the sure destruction in their path. It was as though thousands of creatures, with their brains removed, had been turned loose to run at will.

"To the river!" cried the masked man, suddenly panic-stricken, spurring his horse in the direction of the stream.

But Larkin was at his heels, and in a moment had seized the other's bridle and thrown the horse back on his haunches.

"No!" bawled he at the top of his voice. "The bank here is twenty feet high, and at the bottom are rocks."

"Better a jump and a chance than sure death in the stampede," yelled the stranger, but Bud would not yield and drew the horse back.

"We can divide the herd," he cried. "Come, we haven't a moment to lose!"

They wheeled as one and dashed out of the brush into the open of the range. The earth was now trembling beneath them and the pounding of feet sounded a low, steady note, ominous with warning. Occasionally there was a revolver shot, but this was the only other sound.

Straight toward the oncoming living avalanche the two men rode until they had left an open space a hundred yards wide behind them. Then they pulled up short and dismounted.

Now out of the threatening thunder sounded a single individual note, the rapid beating of a horse's feet—some horse that was bearing a desperate rider ahead of the stampede, but powerless to avoid it.

Instantly Larkin saw the picture of the yawning precipice toward which the frantic rider was hurrying at breakneck speed. He raised his revolver and fired into the air. The signal was instantly acted on, for in another moment a lathering, heaving pony dashed up to them, and the rider leaped to the ground.

"Oh, what shall I do? Hello! Who are you?" cried a female voice, and Larkin's heart leaped as though it had turned over in its place.

"Juliet!" he cried, seizing the girl with one arm and drawing her close.

"Bud!" For an instant she clung to him.

"Lead the horses together and shoot them!" he ordered, although the others could scarcely hear him.

Every instant was priceless now, for dimly at te edge of their vision the front wave of the living, leaping tide could be seen.

Larkin swung the girl's horse alongside Pinte, and without thought or pang shot them both. They fell one on top of the other. Then the stranger in the mask led his animal in front of the two had fallen and put a bullet through his brain. All now leaped behind this still throbbing barricade.

"Got a gun, Julie?" demanded Bud.

"Yes."

"Give it to me and load mine from your belt." They exchanged weapons and the girl with practiced hand slipped the cartridges into their chambers. The unknown had drawn two guns from some place in his equipment, and now the three peered over their shelter.

The advance line of animals was scarcely twenty-five yards away, and, with a clutch of horror at his heart, Bud recognized that they were not cattle as he had supposed, but sheep—his own two thousand.

In the instant that remained he remembered the shots and shouting of a quarter-hour before, and realized that the animals had been stampeded deliberately.

"Let 'er go," he screamed above the tumult, "and yell like blazes!"

On the word yellow fire streamed out from the four guns and, accompanying it, a perfect bedlam of cries and shrieks. The sheep were now upon them, and the hail of bullets dropped some in their headlong career, piling them up against the horses and adding to the barricade. But it could not stop all, and a stream of the animals made its way over the bodies up to the very mouths of the spitting guns.

Now others stumbled and fell, to be instantly engulfed by the swirling flood behind; small, sharp feet were caught between the limbs of the struggling mass that eddied about the dead horses. Still the yellow fire stabbed out into the faces of the middlers—for now the leaders were already piling up mangled and dying in the rocky river-bed—but, past each side of this island of expiring creatures, thundered a vast, heaving stream, turbulent, silent, irrevocable.

The man in the mask, with a revolver in each hand, was firing steadily, and Larkin, thrilled at the sight of his apparent coolness, turned to look at him.

To his amazement he found that the mask had fallen or been snatched away. Again the man fired, and Bud Larkin's jaw fell as he gazed on the queer, unmistakable features of the man who had saved his life that night.

It was Smithy Caldwell.

The sheep mind has the power of tenacity, but not that of change. There was scarcely a shot left in the guns, and still the fear-blinded animals battered at the growing wall of dead and dying that divided them. But at last they began to push to each side, and gradually the idea of splitting took full hold.

Then the prisoners behind the dead horses sank down in almost hysterical relief, for there was no danger that any more would attempt to mount the barricade. In fact, had the obstacle to their progress been suddenly removed, the stampeded herds would have continued to split for an indefinite period.

Now, listening, Larkin could hear the crash of the animals through the underbrush and the horrid, sickening sounds of the writhing, half-dead mass in the river-bed as more and more, following their predecessors blindly, took the leap.

At last the stream on each side thinned, the rumbling thunder of the pounding feet grew less, and the tail of the flock passed, leaving behind it a sudden, deathly silence. In the distance a faint murmur was heard, and Larkin found later that this was made by the two or three hundred which escaped death in the river.

As a matter of fact, the great number of the animals had filled the narrow gully, and the last few charged across the bodies of their fallen comrades to solid ground and safety beyond.

Now that the danger had passed, Larkin felt a certain miserable nausea in the pit of his stomach, and fought it down with all his might. Caldwell was not so successful, however, and stumbled from the shelter and his companions, furiously sick. Juliet began to weep softly, the tears of nervous reaction coming freely when neither pain nor fear could have brought them.

Bud passed his arm gently about her shoulders, and patted her with soft encouragement and praise for her bravery. Nor did the girl resent his action. Rather it seemed to steady her, and after a few minutes she looked up with an unsteady laugh.

"Isn't it funny for that other man to get seasick out here where we can't get enough water to drink?" she asked, with a sudden tangent of humour that made Bud laugh uproariously, and seemed to relieve the strain that oppressed them.

"Brave little girl!" he said, getting up. "That reminds me. I wonder where our friend is"

Lascelles Scott, the famous English analyst, have all personally tried Zam-Buk, and expressed themselves convinced of its great value as a healing balm. ECZEMA

Mrs. St. Denis, of Thompson St., Weston, Winnipeg, says:—"Eczema started on one side of my face and nose. At first my nose felt similar to what one feels when having a bad cold. I paid no attention to this, thinking it would pass away in a day or so, but instead it got worse. The nose became swollen and hard, and turned a purplish red; as well as part of the cheek on that side of my face. As the disease developed, pimples and ulcers broke out, then the skin cracked in places and peeled off in flakes, leaving my face and nose raw and sore. I could get no sleep because of the irritation and pain, and my face was in such a shocking condition that for two months I did not go out of the house. My doctor treated me, but without effect, until one day he said the only thing which would now be likely to cure me was Zam-Buk. Acting on his advice, I procured a supply and left off everything else in favour of this balm. To cut a long story short, I continued with the Zam-Buk treatment until my face was cleared completely of all traces of the troublesome and painful eczema."

Why Zam-Buk is so Superior

Zam-Buk differs from other salves in that while they contain animal fats and oils, and mineral coloring matter, Zam-Buk is purely herbal! It is compounded from herbal juices, extracts and essences. It is thus Nature's own healer. Pure in composition, Zam-Buk is suitable for the delicate skin of young children, and yet its healing power is so great that old sores and chronic wounds yield to its operation. It is a sure cure for cuts, scalds, burns, eczema, scalp sores, ulceration, inflammation, piles, etc.; also as an embrocation for rheumatism, sprains and sciatica.

All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post-free from Zam-Buk Co. Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

CURIOUS BREADS.

Made In Chains In the Balkans and Laundered In China.

Bread is made in different shapes and in different ways, according to the taste of the various nationalities. Mr L. Lodian in Forest and Stream says:

"The bread of the Balkans, curiously made in the form of chains, is sold from the arms and necks of itinerant peddlers. In tent life in Balkania the detached links are often used for fun at quoits or serve a more useful purpose in suspending temporary curtains and awnings. Then when the campers run out of provisions they literally eat their curtain rings. The Japanese bamboo bread, so named from its shape, is a somewhat similar product. It is sliced and sold in strings.

"The sun dried bread sheeting of central Asia looks much like chamois leather and is made up in pieces of bed sheet size. It is compounded from flour and raisin syrup and is highly esteemed by coffee drinkers. In the bazaars of the caliphates it is frequently seen hanging in place of awnings to shield the stalls from the sun.

"One of the strangest crackers comes from Russia. It is known as fit the mouth begat and, besides being much appreciated as a tea biscuit, is quite commonly used by merchants ignorant of the three R's as a makeshift abacus in counting money, a lower string of ten serving for kopecks and an upper string of the same number representing roubles. More picturesque still is its usage as an extempore ring for marrying poor peasants with whom the gold is lacking.

"Most singular of all, however, is the peculiar pith bread of China, which, instead of being baked, is laundered out in narrow strips with a hot iron, much in the manner that a collar receives its finishing. It is made from the central tissue of the fatsia trees and is valued highly by the citizens of the flowery republic as a dainty cracker to eat with their little cups of watery unsweetened tea."

PASTEUR'S PLAYTHINGS.

The great Pasteur gracefully accepted all decorations. While he had a passion for discipline, he never had any ironical criticism of the distinctions established by society. He attached a value to the glory that came to himself and discerned that men in the world of politics were his inferiors.

In Rue Dutot, in the salon of the apartment that the great Pasteur occupied, one saw in the place of honour a glass case in which brilliantly scintillating were hundreds of decorations. They came from all the countries of the world. There were lions, leopards, elephants, eagles with one and with two heads, roses, saints, angels, all the fauna, all the flora of the world and of paradise. There were diamonds, rubies, emeralds, and gold—enough to furnish a jeweller's shop.

Pasteur often gazed upon this case. His little granddaughter remarked the joy that brightened the countenance of the demigod when he contemplated this prodigious display.

And one day, pointing to the case, she said lispingly, "These are grandpa's playthings."

The new lingerie dresses are often entirely of shadow lace.

HUMANICS.

New System Promises to Bring Much Happiness.

Efficiency that professes to deal with the man instead of the machine is the newest attempt at general betterment of conditions in the industrial world. It is proclaimed as a departure from the original efficiency methods inasmuch as it takes into account the individuality of the workers.

Efficiency engineers of the ordinary school are expert in calculating curves, angles, cost units and production totals. They can look at a 30-ton trip hammer and tell to a nicety what its output ought to be, how much should be allowed for depreciation and how soon it will be profitable to replace it. They can size up a locomotive and make a fairly accurate estimate of the number of months that should elapse before it goes to the scrap heap. It is elementary for them to figure the number of motions made by a steam shovel, the rate at which trolley cars pass a given point, the durability of a typewriter, the quality of paper that ought to be used in follow-up correspondence, the number of lead pencils which an office force needs every week and the life length of an ink eraser.

But, according to the exponents of the new school, there they stop. They can tell what a man ought to do with machinery, but they are unable to say what machinery will do to the man.

"So accustomed have they become to regarding the machine as possessing personality," said one of the advocates of the new idea, "that they fall into the error of looking at persons as machines. Their efficiency may be effective, but it is a cut and dried, copper-riveted, bessemerized, cold-chisel science utterly out of sympathy with the myriad manifestations of human nature. It is in the application of scientific improvement methods to the human factor in industrial progress that the new efficiency system is valuable."

"Personal efficiency is the watchword of the most up-to-date business men," said another. "The heads of houses are willing to leave to engineers the computation of power and stress in connection with steel and concrete, but they demand more sympathetic study of the situation when it comes to dealing with the men and women in their employ. Their demand has created a science that may be called commercial humanics, which promises to do more for the happiness of the world of workers and the prosperity of their employers than any other industrial departure of the 20th century."

Explorer's Remarkable Feat.

Sir James Barrie's affection for explorers is no new thing. All who know his "Edinburgh Eleven" will remember the eulogy of Joseph Thomson, the Dumfriesshire Scot, who did pioneer work of the Livingstone kind in Africa. It is a fine pen picture of a dour, brave man, but it has flashes of the early Barrie. This, for example:

"Perhaps his most remarkable feat consisted in taking a bottle of brandy into the heart of Africa and bringing it back intact."—Glasgow News.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take two cups of granulated sugar, add one cup of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly. Any housewife can easily prepare it in five minutes.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe, if the genuine Pinex is used. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If you ask him. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Canal Hospital Service.

Conditions approaching those of a well equipped army will prevail in connection with the building of the new Welland Ship Canal at St. Catharines, Ont. Dr. McCoombs is in charge of the hospital and medical service which the Government is instituting, and says:

"The main hospital will be on the Havens farm on the Queenston and Grimsby road. This will be thoroughly equipped, and capable of providing accommodation for thirty patients, with small separate places for men suffering from infectious diseases. There will be a thoroughly competent staff of nurses and doctors, as well as good office and clerical staff. At Thorold we shall have a small branch hospital for about ten patients. This will be used as an emergency hospital, in case of bad accidents. There will be another such branch hospital at Fort Weller

"Along the line of the canal, dispensaries will be located, where the men who are sick will receive medicine. Three doctors will be constantly patrolling the canal, so that there will be no lack of attention. An ambulance will be established and small stretchers will be in every camp. It is my intention to have the clerks and time-keepers on the canal thoroughly drilled in first aid work. Each will have a medical and surgical case, and be taught how to handle it. We shall give a prize of $50 every six months to the man who proves most efficient."

The Cunning Foxes.

Mr. Mark Wilson built a fox corral last summer and has had in his possession nine or ten red foxes. These were in a wire enclosure covered over with wire, and a cement floor, the wire being embedded in the cement. Notwithstanding all these precautions, Mr. Wilson has but five foxes now left. Some time ago one got out in some mysterious manner, another broke its neck against the wire, and one night recently the cute little animals found a weak spot in the wire and three broke through to liberty. Since then some of the hen-roosts in town have suffered. B. Welton losing twelve fowl. These losses of fully $50 worth of foxes will be charged up to experience.—Flesherton Advance.

Interstellar Space.

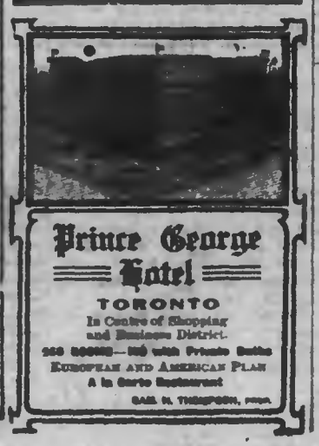
That interstellar space is not absolute void, but is partly filled with particles of matter, however small or invisible, is the theory that an American astronomer has evolved through the study of comets.

His theory is based upon the fact that all bodies fall at the same rate in a vacuum, but in the open air lighter bodies are retarded by friction and fall at a slower rate. If interstellar space were a vacuum all stars, comets and planets would keep the same relative position and speed. But if it were not a vacuum the lighter celestial bodies, such as comets, would tend to be retarded by friction and fall behind the larger and denser bodies.

This retarding would be most noticeable at the part of the comet's orbit which is farthest from the sun, and the comet would tend to change its movement at this point and assume an individual direction. This hypothesis seems to be borne out by his observations.—Popular Mechanics.

Rough Training at Eton.

Early in the last century many boys at Eton, England, had to undergo a rough training. An old Etonian who left the school in 1834 describes his experiences there as "worse than that of many inmates of a workhouse or jail. To get up at 5 on freezing winter mornings; to sweep their own floors and make their own beds; to go two by two to the pump for a scanty wash; to eat no mouthful of food until 9 a. m.; to live on an endless round of mutton, potatoes and beer, none of them too plentiful or too good; to sleep in a dismal cell without chair or table—such was the lot of boys whose parents could not afford to pay for a private room. Some of these underwent privations that might have broken down a cabin boy and would be thought inhuman if inflicted on a galley slave."



The Chemical Detective.

Great is the chemist. A glue factory, which was proud of the sticking qualities of its glue, received many complaints that its glue was not sticking, and the manager believed it was not his product that was at fault, but glue made by some other concern and falsely represented to be his.

The chemist was asked to find a remedy. He made a slight change in the process of manufacture, so that when a certain chemical was applied to the glue any time after it had left the factory the glue would immediately change to a certain color. Salesmen were then given bottles of this chemical. Whenever they were told that their glue had failed they asked to see the faulty work and then dropped some of the chemical on the dry glue. If the proper color appeared it was their glue, otherwise it was a competitor's.

If the customer doubted the test the salesman could prove the fairness of it by trying it on any of his firm's glue. This stopped the complaints.—Saturday Evening Post.

Some Sentence!

The champion speller of congress has on tap a great assortment of stories dealing with words and spelling.

One of his linguistic feats is to reel off a sentence of twenty-six words, each word beginning with the successive letters of the alphabet, like this:

"A boy cannot dig easily for gold; hence, if just keeping lead melted needs oxygen put quicksilver, rapidly saturated, timidly under vitriol, when xebecs yean zeolites."

Nervous Energy is Limited

There is only so much energy in the human body. A few people have an abundance, but more have not enough. Hence the necessity of conserving vitality.

If wasted by mode of living, disease or worry there must be a reckoning, and trouble is sure to come. It may be headaches and weak, aching eyes; it may be nervous indigestion, or it may be merely lack of energy and ambition, and feelings of fatigue or helplessness. Of course, sooner or later exhaustion of the nerves leads to prostration, paralysis or locomotor ataxia, but there is no need to let the trouble develop that far.

By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can restore to the feeble, wasted nerve cells the energy they have lost. It will take some effort on your part to give up worry and anxiety, but you should realize your serious condition. Rest and use this great food cure and you are bound to improve in health and vigour.

A Spoiled Scene.

E. H. Sothern once found his wit fail him in time of need. It was in the fourth act of "The Lady of Lyons." Sothern played Claude Melnotte, and Virginia Harned was cast as Pauline Beausant, the villain, was pursuing Pauline, and she cried loudly for help. Claude is supposed to dash to her rescue and catch the fainting Pauline in his arms. Sothern dashed on to the stage, but slipped and slid, sitting down near the footlights. Losing his presence of mind, he declaimed the line: "Look up, Pauline. There is no danger." As Virginia Harned was standing, this was, of course, an impossibility. By this time the audience was in an uproar, and when Arthur Lawrence, who played Beausant, scornfully said, "You are beneath me," the amusement of the audience knew no bounds.

Marksmen and Rifles.

No marksman ever holds a rifle "as solidly as a rock." He may think he does, but Arms and the Man insists that the best shot gives merely the "necessary impulse to the trigger while the rifle is moving in the right direction"—that is, when he takes deliberate aim. The snap shooter works apparently by a sort of instinct. Firing successfully at a running deer through the woods and over broken ground implies a knack like that of threating one's finger toward an indicated object.—New York Times.

Natural Inference.

A schoolteacher was reading a story to a class of very small folks and paused at the words "lay brother," to explain their meaning. "Does any one know what 'lay brother' means?" she asked.

For a moment a row of perplexed little faces looked up at her. Then one face brightened suddenly, and a small voice piped, "Yes, ma'am, it's a rooster!"—Youth's Companion.

He Was Sensitive.

Blobbs—You're pretty much stuck on Miss Gobbs, aren't you, old man? Hobbs—I was once, but after what she said to me last night I'm not going to pay any more attention to her. Blobbs—Gee! What did she say? Hobbs—"No!"—Cleveland Leader.

A VARIED CAREER.

Hon. Charles R. Devlin Has Been an Active Politician.

The Hon. Charles Ramsay Devlin, Minister of Mines, Game and Fisheries in the Quebec Government, reports as to whose recent sickness caused anxiety to his friends, has had perhaps a more varied Parliamentary career than any other man at present living in Canada, says Chesterfield in The Family Herald. He has been a member of both Dominion and United Kingdom Parliaments as well as of the Quebec Legislature, in which he still holds a seat. No one needs to be told that Hon. Mr. Devlin is of Irish descent or that he is a native of Aylmer, Que., a pretty place, and once a very important commercial and transportation centre, on the Ottawa river a few miles above the city of Ottawa. He was born in 1858, receiving his education at Montreal College and Laval University. For some years after leaving college he was engaged in mercantile and journalistic work, during which time he made his maiden speeches. As a boy he manifested somewhat of a precocity in the direction of oratory and elocution, and an old member of Parliament some time ago related to the writer that when "Charlie" Devlin was a stripling it used to be a practice when Parliament was in session for a party of members to drive each Sunday afternoon to Aylmer to visit the Devlin family; a feature of their hospitable entertainment each visit being the recitation of some classical oration or the delivery of an original speech by the youth who is now a member of the Quebec Cabinet. Not only did the embryo statesman have ambition as an orator, but he had ability. Some men's maiden speeches are hardly manly, but Mr. Devlin's were from the very first of a vigorous character. Moreover, he spoke English and French with equal eloquence and fluency. His attainments soon won recognition, and he was elected to the House of Commons for Ottawa County in 1891, being the first Liberal and last member ever returned for the old County of Ottawa, now divided into Wright and Labelle. In 1896 he was elected for Wright, one of the two new constituencies formed from the old one. He resigned the seat to accept the appointment of Canadian Commissioner for Ireland, holding the appointment until 1903, and making frequent speeches setting forth the advantages of Canada as a land for settlement.

These speeches established his reputation as a speaker in a country which is famous as a producer of orators, and his services were enlisted, readily enough we might easily believe, on behalf of the Irish Nationalist cause. In 1903 he was with the universal approval of the Irish party leaders, tendered the nomination for Galway City, accepted it, ran and was elected by acclamation, a similar result occurring at the general election three years later. While a member at Westminster, Mr. Devlin made several notable speeches and rendered good service to his party as Secretary of the United Irish League. In November, 1906, Mr. Devlin resigned his seat for Galway, returned to Canada, and was at a bye-election on Dec. 29, the same year, elected to the Canadian House of Commons for the County of Nicolet. The following year he resigned his seat in the House of Commons, having agreed to accept a portfolio in the Godin Government at Quebec as representative of the Irish people of the province. He was at once sworn in as Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries, and was elected to the Quebec Legislature for Nicolet at a bye-election Nov. 4, 1907; being re-elected at the general elections of 1908 and 1912, but electing to sit for the new northern county of Temiskaming.

Ancient Egyptians.

That the ancient Egyptians were not negroes is certain, and it is equally certain that they did not belong to the Semite or Jewish race. Said the late Professor Huxley: "I am not aware that there are any living people who resemble them, except the Dravidian tribes of central India and the Australians, and I have long been inclined to think that the latter are the lowest and the Egyptians the highest members of a race of mankind of great antiquity, distinct alike from Aryan and Turanian on the one side and from negro and negrite on the other." In a word, nobody can say with any degree of assurance what breed of men the builders of the pyramids were.—New York American.

Thought Nothing But Death Would End Her Misery.

WAS TROUBLED WITH Heart Disease.

Mrs. J. D. Talbut, Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from heart disease, and leaking valves. I have had resource to every kind of treatment I could think might help me, including the skill of several doctors. I suffered so for years that at times I have felt that nothing but death could end my misery. I was advised by a friend, who had suffered untold pain and misery, just as I had, and had been cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, to give them a trial, so I decided to do so. I am delighted with the result, as I am now completely cured, and can eat and sleep as I have not done for years.

You are at liberty to use my name at any time as I am convinced they are the best pills on the market for any form of heart disease."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FIRST AMERICAN WOMAN TO PLAY BEFORE KING AT WINDSOR CASTLE

Miss Marie Doro Receives Signal Honor in Being Commanded to Appear in "Diplomacy" at the Palace, Where Sovereigns Entertain Largely.

MISS MEYSEY-THOMPSON'S WEDDING IN LONDON

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

THE removal of the court to Windsor is the first herald of the coming season, and preparations are already beginning for much early entertaining. The King and Queen entertained lavishly at the command performance of "Diplomacy," this week, in which Miss Marie Doro appeared. She is the first American actress specially invited to play before King George and Queen Mary.

In addition to the large party now stopping at the castle for shooting, invitations have been despatched to many leading families in the neighborhood of Windsor, as all the accommodation of the Waterloo chamber will be required. Among others shortly expected at the castle are the Earl and Countess of Shaftesbury, both officially attached to the Queen's household, the Earl being her Lord Chamberlain, while Lady Shaftesbury is an extra lady of the bedchamber.

Lord Shaftesbury has a fine tenor voice and is fond of singing. A few years ago he was approached by a well known American concert manager, who offered almost any sum he liked to name to make a tour of the United States as head of a concert party. The proposal was declined.

A Picturesque Wedding.

Of course a great many came to town for the biggest and what proved the most picturesque wedding of the year thus far. It was that of Miss Helen Meysey-Thompson, second daughter of Lord and Lady Knaresborough, to Mr. Richard Legh, son and heir of Lord and Lady Newton, at St. Peter's, Eaton square. It was called a gold and white wedding.

Beautiful dresses of gold and white were worn by the bride and her ten bridesmaids. Lord Knaresborough gave away the bride, who wore a dress of white charmeuse, embroidered in gold and white, in a design of leaves, the skirt having a long pointed train. At the waist was a knot of orange blossoms, with tails of the same hanging from it. Gold and white brocade formed the court train, which had a huge bow of gold tissue and orange blossoms.

The orideemaids' dresses were of gold tissue, with tunics of white chiffon and bodices of the same, embroidered with gold. The edges of the tunics were prettily scalloped.

Lady Knaresborough herself looked handsome in a dress of pale cinnamon charmeuse, with an overdress of black gauze embroidered in gold, and a brown velvet hat trimmed with ostrich feathers to match.

Queen Alexandra's Afternoons.

Queen Alexandra has returned to Marlborough House. It is her intention to revive her musical afternoons there. She takes great delight in these gatherings. As a rule she brings two or three musicians to attend, and more than one young violinist and instrumentalist owes his subsequent success to playing before the Queen Mother, who is an exceedingly good judge of musical ability.

These afternoons, to which Queen Alexandra invites several personal friends, last about an hour and take place in her private drawing room, a handsome apartment on the garden front.

As it is, things are not at all dull in London. It looks as if the London season were about to begin in earnest considerably earlier this year than previously has been the case. The number of well known persons who have arranged to return to London during the course of the next fortnight probably constitutes a record for this time of the year.

Many town houses are preparing to throw open their doors for entertaining, and there will be a correspondingly early close of the country house season. Hostesses will quickly find dancing men deserting the hunting field for town.

Already a large number of balls have been arranged for London between now and Easter. The Savoy, the Ritz-Carlton and the Piccadilly hotels have been busy during the week with quiet luncheon and dinner parties given by well known persons, and the Four Hundred Club has been busy every night.

Duchess' Charitable Work.

The Duchess of Marlborough is in London busy with her work in connection with the Mary Curzon Hostel, a work of which she is very proud.

"I certainly never had an idea," she said, "that I would be proprietor of a common lodging house, but having got a license from the County Council I feel my responsibility of being a London landowner weighing heavily upon me. The Mary Curzon Hostel is now practically paying its own way."

Among the events of the coming week in which the American colony is interested is the farewell luncheon to be given by the Society of American Women to Mme. Grouitch, wife of the Servian Minister, who is leaving London to become Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs in Belgrade. Mme. Grouitch has been very popular in the American colony during her stop in London.

Scholarships for American Girls.

Great interest is being taken among society persons in the movement to commemorate the peace centenary by establishing a series of scholarships for women tenable at Girton, Nenham or Bedford College, London, instituted by a section of the League of Empire.

The proposal is explained by Mrs. Thayer, honorary secretary of the Women's Scholarship Committee, who, herself an American, is in favor of scholarships to be organized similar to the Rhodes scholarships, open in English speaking nations to women between twenty-one and twenty-six years old, of an annual value of $1,250.

"Tenable two years' scholarships," said Mrs. Thayer, "would be a living memorial to the hundred years of peace. The experiment has been already tried successfully, for in 1910 Miss Points, an American girl, was sent here for two years by the General Federation of Women's Clubs to complete her education.

"She is now in America acting as a lecturer. By coming to England and studying two years at either of the colleges of Oxford, Cambridge or London these girls from all parts of the British Empire or America would acquire the cachet of an A1 brand and the scholarships would also serve to strengthen the imperial bonds of friendship with the United States."

Arrivals from America.

Mr. Arthur Page, son of the United States Ambassador, and Mrs. Page have arrived from America to stop here part of the London season.

Mr. Brand Whitlock, the newly appointed United States Minister at Brussels, has been in London during the week and is leaving for his post to-morrow.

Mrs. James Burden, who came by the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, did not stop in London, but went straight to Melton Mowbray to join Mr. Henry Payne Whitney.

Mrs. A. S. Alexander and Mr. B. W. Mayer, of New York, have arrived from Paris and are stopping at the Carlton Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Rosenberg, of New York, have arrived at the Piccadilly Hotel from Paris.

Mr. F. Alstrom has arrived from the Continent and is stopping at the Piccadilly Hotel a few days.

Mrs. J. C. Osgood, of Redstone, Col., has arrived from Paris. She intends stopping some time in London.

Mr. Francis B. Shiving, of Cleveland, Ohio, who has been travelling in Europe the last four months, passing much of his time in Russia, has been stopping a week at the Dysart Hotel.

Mrs. James Sayre Frisbee has arrived at the Piccadilly Hotel from Philadelphia.

Mr. W. R. Wilner has arrived from New York. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Lembeke, Mrs. James A. Morris, Mrs. H. C. Gillan, Mr. N. J. Stern, Mr. Arthur Plant and Mr. Martin Serbing have arrived at the Carlton Hotel from New York, and Mr and Mrs. T. Phippitt from Washington.

Dog Is Used to Carry Messages

Intelligent Animal Takes Letters, Football Scores and Even Eggs to Their Destination.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

A STORY of canine sagacity comes from Mansfield, where a six-year-old fox terrier belonging to Mr. G. Woodward, fruiterer's carman, has earned for itself the title of champion letter carrier.

On the dog's collar the proud owner has had inscribed the words "Woodward's wireless telegraph," as a testimony to the animal's quickness in conveying written messages from his place of employment in Mansfield to his home at Sutton, three miles distant. Floss accompanies her master on all his journeys; in cases of mishap on the road he has frequently had occasion to write a note for her to carry away on her collar to Mansfield, and she has never failed him yet.

Floss' most notable performance was when her master sent her from Mansfield to Sutton with a note. A blinding snowstorm was raging at the time, but the dog brought an answer back, doing the journey of six miles in an hour.

The dog is also used by a football team to take half time and full time scores from the field to an inn, and at the subsequent supper Floss is always the principal guest. In cases of emergency the dog carries small articles. She has been known to convey an egg inclosed in an envelope to her collar, for three miles without breaking it, and also to take kippers home without dropping to taste them.

THE WATERLOO CHAMBER, ARRANGED FOR A PERFORMANCE.

Ambassador's Wife in Blaze of Jewels at Gala Opera on Kaiser's Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Occupy Seats in Proscenium Box Reserved for Representatives of the Great Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark Grew and Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Gherardi Also Attending.

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Feb. 7.

AT the gala opera which brought to a close the round of festivities occasioned by the birthday of the Emperor the United States Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard occupied seats in the proscenium box reserved for the representatives of great Powers. Mrs. Gerard, the latest comer of this group, was much remarked for her uncommonly fine jewels.

She was in a gown of pale green satin, embroidered in gold, the pièce de résistance being a necklace of diamonds, singly set, from which hung an emerald cabochon of great size.

From the United States Embassy there were further present Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark Grew, the latter in turquoise blue velvet, with silver embroideries; Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Walter Gherardi the latter in a toilette of pale pink satin and chiffon velours, and Major G. T. Langhorne. Mr. Allison V. Armour was seated in the first circle, close to the royal box.

The younger set of American society was entertained by Dr. Alice Luce, who gave a dancing party for the young ladies of the Willard School.

Her guests included Misses Mary McCulloch, Ruth Ostrander, Marie Trehy, Ruth Roberts, Virginia Hoge, Mary Faxon, Louise Waggener, Helen Peck, Aubrey Burton, Daphne Edwards, Katherine Cavalli, Charming von Wiegand, Dorothy Fisher, Anna Boultan, Dorothy Corley, Dorothy Mitchell, Helen McFadden, Elizabeth Anderson, Count Strachwitz, Mr. Alfred R. Thomson and Mr. Harold B. Quarton, of the American consulate; General Lucien Phillips, Mr. John Wachman and Mr. Roger M. Freeman.

Count and Countess Anton Sigray have returned from London to be guests of the United States Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard during the remainder of the season.

Chancellor Gives a Dance.

The palace of the Imperial Chancellor opposite the new home of the United States Embassy was the scene of one of the most brilliant functions of the week when Dr. von Bethman-Hollweg and his wife gave a large dinner and dance, at which were present many royal guests and leading personages in diplomatic and court society. The United States Embassy was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Grew. Mr. Armour also was present.

An approaching marriage of great interest to German aristocracy and society generally will be celebrated on February 10, when Countess Elizabeth von Plessen becomes the bride of Count Fugger von Babenhausen. The Count is twenty-four years old and a member of the crack Garde du Corps regiment. His fiancée is the eldest daughter of Count Karl von Scheel-Plessen, Chamberlain of the Prussian court, with a seat in the Prussian House of Lords.

There is great satisfaction in the German art world at the Kaiser's action in conferring a patent of nobility upon the general director of the Royal Museum, who will henceforth be known as Dr. Wilhelm von Bode. Dr. von Bode has many friends in America. He was a close personal friend of the late J. Pierpont Morgan.

A hundred members and their guests assembled in the Kaiserhal of the Hotel Adlon on Wednesday to participate in a welcome and breakfast to Mr. Robert Peet Skinner, the new United States Consul General. Among those present were the United States Ambassador; Señor Quesada, the Cuban Minister; Mr. Armour, Professors Shorey and Coolidge, Major Langhorne, Mr. F. W. Wile, Mr. Charles Ferguson, of the United States Treasury Department, and Mr. Frederick von Versen.

Washington's Birthday will be celebrated by the American colony of Berlin on Monday, February 23, at the Zoological Garden Restaurant. Mr. Gerard will preside.

For Afternoon Teas.

A movement is on foot to inaugurate a system of gratis afternoon teas in the Assembly Room of the American Church. Mrs. Moran Crump, of Chicago, is the initiator of the proposal and will bring it up at the next business meeting of the Ladies' Union and ask the co-operation of this organization.

MRS. JAMES W. GERARD

Mrs. George H. Watson has returned from a four months' sojourn in America.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Heitman have given up their Berlin apartment and returned to their home in Helena, Mont. Miss Leila Heitman is remaining here during the winter with Mrs. Anna B. McElwee.

Mrs. Arthur Claflin and her daughter, Beatrix, have left for Paris to join Mr. Claflin, who is about to arrive from America. They have been much entertained in American embassy circles here.

Mr. Thomas Alexander, of Kirksville, Mo., is leaving for Hanover to continue his studies of the elementary school system in the principal German cities. He has been sent out by the Teachers' College of Columbia University to make a report on actual conditions. He says:—

"Schools are much more efficiently and economically administered in Germany than in America. The teachers are well equipped for their work and receive on the whole higher salaries, but hygienic conditions are much better in America."

Señora de Quesada, wife of the Cuban Minister, held her first official reception for court and diplomatic society on Wednesday. She was assisted by her daughter, who has recovered from her recent illness.

This Is To Be a "Bead" Year, as the Neck Had To Be Finished

So Says Dame Fashion of London, in Explaining the Sudden Revival of This Kind of Ornamentation—Chalcedony, Carnelian, Lapis Lazuli Are Very Popular.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

"1914 is to be a "bead" year. At any rate, an extraordinary revival is springing up in the taste for beads. After a long time beads, however beautiful, have been relegated to the lumber drawer, but now they are being brought forth again to grace fair necks.

"Throughout the west end of London today there is a wonderful display of beads. The show windows are full of them. There are strings from a few cents to hundreds of dollars, and their variety is almost limitless.

"Amber has suddenly recovered its popularity. So great has been the demand that during the last three months the price has gone up more than twenty-five per cent," was the statement made to an inquirer at the Piccadilly Gem Box, where perhaps the biggest stock of beads reposes.

"The revival has been very marked," the manager added. "The Marchioness of Londonderry has been one of the very latest to add to her beautiful collection of beads."

"What are the favorites?"

"Chalcedony, carnelian, lapis lazuli, amethyst, chrysoprase and pink quartz are perhaps the most popular. Then, of course, there are the purely Oriental beads.

"At present it is difficult to say exactly what is going to be the most fashionable. There is more than a suggestion of the barbaric in the size and shape of some of the bead necklets now being worn. That they are very beautiful and effective no one can deny.

"With the barbaric necklet goes the 'slave' bangle. Some society ladies are wearing as many as six of these bangles on the arm."

"Something had to be done to finish the neck, and the revival of the bead is a very charming solution of the problem," was a remark by a well known modiste.

"It is quite interesting to observe how much individuality can be expressed in beads, and it is not always the most costly that are the most beautiful. There is no one who can regret a return of the popularity of the bead."

GREAT CHINESE BOOK.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

THE London Library has just obtained the loan of a fragment of what is considered the biggest literary enterprise in the world. This is a beautifully bound volume containing two sections of the renowned Chinese Encyclopaedia, the Yung Lo Ta Tien. The sections are numbered 19,885 and 19,886, so that they belong to somewhere about the end of the enormous compilation, which had 22,877 sections.

WE'RE NOT "IN IT" WITH THE ESKIMO FOR BACKBONE

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

MR. Charles Dawson, who found the famous Piltdown skull, has made another surprising discovery of profound interest to anthropologists. He has discovered that a certain Eskimo tribe have literally more backbone than the rest of humanity—that is to say, they have in their waists one extra joint (or vertebra), to which small ribs are attached.

Mr. Dawson has lately been making an examination of various skeletal remains brought from the Arctic regions and has made the remarkable discovery that both the men and women of one Eskimo tribe show this abnormal development of the waist, backbone.

Mr. Dawson is of opinion that what is an occasional abnormality in men and the higher apes has become thorough survival of the fittest a fixed and permanent character in the tribe in question.

The extra joint lends strength and suppleness to the waist, and thus enables the members of the tribe to be more dexterous in the management of the Eskimo canoe, or "kyak."

This canoe, which is only five or six inches deep, on which the Eskimos formerly depended almost entirely for their living, is mainly governed as to balance and righting powers by the muscle of the

King George to Hold Four Courts, Promising Very Brilliant Season

Two Will Take Place Before Easter, the Others in May and June, While There Are To Be Two State Balls at Buckingham Palace.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

THE arrangements for the forthcoming court season in London are now almost complete. On February 13 the first court will be held at Buckingham Palace for the reception of the official and diplomatic circles, and the following week the first court for the general circle will take place. The fact that the lists of those desiring to be presented at court this year have had to be closed already promises a very busy and perhaps brilliant season.

There are to be four courts in all—two before Easter and the others at the end of May and the beginning of June, respectively. It had been hoped that the King might see his way to hold a fifth, or "extra," court in June, but owing to the number of engagements that already confront him for that month it is not considered very likely. There are also to be four levees at St. James' Palace, and at one, at least, the Prince of Wales will be present. Prince Arthur of Connaught will also attend one levee, when he will wear for the first time the Order of a Knight of the Thistle that was bestowed upon him on the occasion of his wedding.

There are to be two state balls at Buckingham Palace, tentatively fixed for early in June. The number of those invited is rather smaller than was the case a few years ago, when it was found that even the spacious ballroom suite at the palace became rather inconveniently crowded.

That this will be essentially a "dancing year" is already quite apparent, and some very notable balls will take place. Probably the principal ball will be the one that the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire purpose to give at their London residence in honor of the "coming out" of their eldest daughter, Lady Maud Cavendish. Lady Maud is a goddaughter of both the Queen of Norway and the Princess Royal, and will be the leading débutante of the year. Another largely attended ball will be that for the formal début of Lady Mary Hamilton.

It is expected that the King will be seen on the race course frequently. Already he has arranged to be present each day of the grand military meeting at Sandown Park at the end of next month, when it is expected that the Queen will accompany him on at least one day. It is probable also that he will this year witness the race for the Jubilee Stakes at Kempton Park. There will be no great review of the troops in London such as took place twelve months ago; but about Whitsuntide the King and Queen will make their annual trip to Aldershot in order that the King may accompany his "Striking Force" at work in the field.

In March the King and Queen will once more be the guests of the Earl and Countess of Derby at Knowlesley Hall, near Prescot, in order to witness the Grand National, which the King is regarded as having a distinct chance of carrying off with Twelfth Lenore.

June will see the customary large party entertained by the King and Queen at Windsor for the "Ascot week," and it is just possible that here the Prince of Wales will make his formal debut upon an English race course. Should this be the case he will accompany his parents in their semi-state drive down the course on the two principal days of the meeting. The King and Queen will leave town almost immediately afterward for their projected tour of the great shipbuilding centres of the Tyne and the Tees.

ORGANIZING TRIP TO SOUTH POLE

Sir Ernest Shackleton Very Busy Preparing to Cross the Antarctic Continent.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

THE work of organising the great Imperial trans-Arctic expedition goes on apace. Indeed, Sir Ernest Shackleton is just now one of the busiest men in London. All day long he and his staff are working hard at the offices of the expedition, in New Burlington street, dealing with correspondence, considering the applications for volunteers who wish to share in the adventure and arranging the complicated business of stores and equipment. Sir Ernest is delighted at the widespread interest in the expedition. All sorts and conditions of people are showing their sympathy with his project, by which they hope to place Great Britain at the top of the Antarctic honor list, many of them in a practical manner.

London Is Talking and Dancing Tango in Ballroom and on Stage

The Tango in the Ballroom.

The Tango in the Argentine.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

THE great question with London society during the present winter months has been and is the propriety of the tango. But while many are talking more are dancing, and the question is being solved by the march of time. On the programmes of the bigger dancing events the tango has not appeared, but on the programmes of the smaller and more private functions which are taking place all over London we see the dance gaining a larger and larger place. The question is passing, or one might say has passed, from the stage of the professional exponent to the day of the actual dancer. Of course the graceful tango expert is still with us, but ballroom practice is setting a tango dance quite apart from what is seen on the public stage. The ballroom steps may have a more remote Argentine origin, but the dance is being judged on its own merits and it now has a host of capable followers.

What Buddhism Is and What It Is Not Is Explained by Author

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.

WHAT is Buddhism? The question is interestingly and intelligently answered in a book translated from the Pali by E. J. Thomas, M. A., and just published. In his introduction to his selection from the Buddhist Scriptures Mr. Thomas carefully explains what Buddhism is and what it is not.

"The chief ontological principle of Buddhism is that all compound things are impermanent, and it went on to assert that all things are compound except space and Nirvana. The self is compound, and hence impermanent. When the individual is analyzed into body and mind with its qualities and functions what is there remaining behind?

"The soul, atman, said the Vedantin, that permanent entity which is in reality identical with the absolute and eternal Brahma. But the Buddhist answer was that there is nothing remaining. The elements of the self are the self, just as the parts of the chariot are the chariot."

Buddhism rejects the doctrine of caste, and it is based on the belief that every action brings its fruit. Rebirth is the result of the thirst for life. Nirvana, "the freedom from the circle of birth and death," is attained by knowledge.

The Scriptures themselves are very beautiful and interesting. They inculcate a high morality and a very thorough agnosticism. Here, for example, are the ten commandments, the five first of which are binding on all laymen:—

"1. Abstinence from destroying life.

"2. Abstinence from taking what is not given.

"3. Abstinence from uncleanness.

"4. Abstinence from falsehood.

"5. Abstinence from spirituous liquors, strong drink, intoxicants, which are a cause of negligence.

"6. Abstinence from eating at the wrong time (i. e., after noon).

"7. Abstinence from looking at dancing, singing, music and plays.

"8. Abstinence from wearing garlands, scents, unguents, ornaments and adornments, which are a cause of negligence.

"9. Abstinence from a high or large bed.

"10. Abstinence from accepting gold and silver."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BEING STYLISH

"Ordinarily," began the little stenographer, "I'm very unassuming. I dislike to be conspicuous, and I'd much prefer not to be a personage and I'd rather listen than talk."

The bookkeeper looked around sceptically. However, he said nothing.

"Well?" inquired the little stenographer, disdainfully. She paused, defying him to speak his thoughts.

"When you look like that," she said, when he failed to accept her challenge, "you look exactly like my goldfish."

The bookkeeper hastened to change his expression.

"Well, and it all leads up to what?" he asked.

"As I said, I hate to be the cynosure of all eyes," declared the little stenographer.

"Are you?" asked the bookkeeper, mildly. "I didn't know."

"The other day," related the little stenographer, "I had about five minutes to spare, so I hurried over to get a coat. I wanted something warm and sensible, and I found the very thing right away. I told the saleswoman that I'd take it, but that I would have her put it away until I could bring mother down to examine it. The coat was one of the heavy, mannish things, that button up around your neck so that not a speck of draught can touch you. I was awfully pleased to have found it.

The next day mother came down to the store to pass judgment upon the coat. When the saleswoman brought out my purchase mother positively turned pale and seized hold of a chair for support.

"'What! That' she exclaimed, tragically.

"'Why, yes,' I said. 'Isn't it nice?'

"'Let me see something stylish,' requested mother of the saleswoman, without deigning to answer me. So I sat down and waited.

"They put every conceivable shape and colour on me, and each was a trifle worse than the last. Martyr-like I stood it, and tried them all on, feeling secure in the thought that even mother, with her stylish soul, would object to such garments.

"Finally I tried on a bright green coat—and it was shaped exactly like one of those clipped Lombardy poplar trees. It was gigantic across the shoulders, and suddenly, under the sleeves, it curved in until it had to be slit up about two feet in the back to give me room to walk! I smiled understandingly at mother, thinking she would see the joke of it. She smiled back—but it wasn't an understanding smile at all.

"She actually liked that thing!

"'You've had enough greys and blacks; now do, for pity's sake, wake up and put on something stylish!' mother exclaimed impatiently.

"Well, to cut short unnecessary verbiage, I have the coat.

"Then began my transformation. Nothing I owned matched that coat! My dresses were too full to match it and my hats were too severe. I spent all my money getting fixed up according to Hoyle and—"

"And what?" queried the bookkeeper, languidly.

"And there's not a more stylish person on the street than I am," said the little stenographer, sadly. "I'm a creature of style! I'm a butterfly of fashion.

"My perfectly good raincoat that I've had only five years that is consequently as good as new, won't fit over that coat, so I have to get a new one or ruin my costume!

"My nice comfortable shoes that I expected to duplicate all my life, are altogether impossible, so I have had to buy French heeled stilts! Oh, it's a sorry life, this being stylish!

"Now people turn to gaze at me as I pass, and when I enter the theatre I interfere with the performance. I demand attention!"

"Well," sighed the bookkeeper, wearily, "go out and capture a fairy prince."

WOMAN SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Other Women to Know How She was Finally Restored to Health.

Hammond, Ont. — "I am passing through the Change of Life and for two years had hot flushes very bad, headaches, soreness in the back of head, was constipated, and had weak, nervous feelings. The doctor who attended me for a number of years did not help me, but I have been entirely relieved of the above symptoms by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills, and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. Louis Beaucage, Sr., Hammond, Ont., Canada.

New Brunswick, Canada. — "I can highly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any suffering woman. I have taken it for female weakness and painful menstruation and it cured me." — Mrs. DeVere Barbour, Harvey Bank, New Brunswick, Canada.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

A YEAR INDOORS

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

King George's Relatives.

King George V. is a blood relative of four other ruling monarchs — the Czar of Russia, the German Emperor, and the Kings of Denmark and Greece.

The Czar is King George's first cousin, as his mother before her marriage to the late Czar Alexander III. was Princess Dagmar of Denmark, sister of the Dowager Queen Alexandra of Great Britain, King George's mother. King George, by the way, is also a first cousin of the Czarina of Russia, who is a daughter of Princess Alice of Great Britain, King George's aunt.

Kaiser Wilhelm II. of Germany is a first cousin of the British monarch as his mother was Princess Victoria of England, the "Princess Royal," eldest daughter of Queen Victoria and aunt of the present British ruler. She married the late Frederick William of Prussia, who was Emperor for only 100 days in 1888.

Another first cousin of King George is King Christian X. of Denmark. His father, the late King Frederick III. of Denmark, was a brother of George's mother, the Dawager Queen Alxandra.

King Constantine of Greece is also King George's first cousin. His father, the late King George of Greece, assassinated at Salonika, was a brother of the Dowager Queen Alexandra of Great Britain, the present British monarch's mother.

TO CROSS THE SAHARA.

Intrepid Russian Countess Courts Danger in Arabian Desert.

A little dare-devil of a woman, a widow hardly turned 30, with the uncounted wealth of a great Russian estate back of her, longs for excitement and proposes to lift the corner of the veil of the unknown world and cross the desert to Arabia, where no white person has trod.

She is Countess Molitor, whose late husband owned big estates near Moscow. Educated in England; speaking seven languages, including Arabic; cultured and rich; much sought in society, she cares naught for those things which usually attract women and seeks only adventure. She has been captured by the natives of South Africa, held prisoner and escaped with her life only because the native women protected her; she has made numerous aeroplane flights; has been held captive by Apaches in Paris, and has been through other perils unnumbered. Yet the young new year will find her en route to Port Said.

The most famous explorers in the world have been laboring with her to persuade her to desist from what they say will be certain death. While planning in London for her perilous trip she donned a nurse's uniform three times a week and presided at a baby clinic. For she is a qualified nurse, having pursued the course in a German hospital a year after her husband's death. She even at one time started to become a missionary, hoping that there would be enough in the life of an evangelist to satisfy her; but the training was too slow; she hungered for more strenuous things.

Henry Savage Landor and Harry De Windt, two of the most famous explorers in the world, who have been almost everywhere from the tropics to the frozen north, have tried in vain to dissuade her. They point to the bleached bones on the Arabian desert. They tell her that even if she could endure the heat and hunger and other discomforts, she will not be able to get past the hostile Arabian sheiks. The first of these nomadic chieftains may receive her cordially, they say, but he will send a runner before her to tell the next sheik to kill her.

"A man couldn't go there," she says, "but I'm a woman. I can wheedle my way; I know how."

It's 650 miles north and south across the great, unexplored sandy waste. Few travelers have even touched the fringe of the great sand plain. There are said to be ancient buried cities in its midst, with the relics of a prehistoric civilization. The countess plans to enlist her caravan at Jedda on the Red Sea, early in the year, while the she-camels are giving milk. The real start will be made from Bishah. Fifty miles a day she plans to course the camels until they reach Jalib-el-Takiahk, the last known town before one enters the unexplored waste. She expects to emerge at Muscat on the Gulf of Oman.

If — that big word "if" — she emerges she will be famous; for no white person is known to have crossed the Arabian desert. She expects to be able to tell the world about great cities and lost peoples. If she comes through; she has already planned enough exploration of the unknown parts of Persia and Mongolia to occupy many of the remaining years of her life.

WAS SUBJECT TO SEVERE BRONCHITIS.

Doctors Only Gave Temporary Relief.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup CURED HIM.

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes. Neglected bronchitis is one of the most general causes of consumption, so cure it at once by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. C. G. Dring, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"Our little boy has been subject to severe bronchitis ever since birth, and different doctors claimed to be only able to relieve him temporarily. A neighbor advised us to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle, and after the third dose noticed a decided change, so kept on with it, and a couple of bottles were enough to completely cure him. Now we always keep a bottle on hand, and give it to him as soon as we notice him troubled with a cold, after which it disappears as if by magic. We recommend it to all our friends who find it is just as good as I say."

Price, 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

Be sure and get the genuine "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

An Australian Courtship.

When William of Tree Fern made up to Kate Ryan the moon was bright and the weather was feeling good. He escorted her home over the two mile road, and never a word said he but "It's a bonzer night for possums Kate."

Next night he met her again and poured the same remark into her shell-like ear. This went on for a week, and Kate bore it patiently, in the belief that when the moon waned and darkness was upon the earth and the sins thereof, William would be more explicit.

So one dark night she encouraged him all she could, but without making her bashful lover loosen his tongue until the journey home was nearly completed. Then he blurted it out "Kate," he said, "er"— "Yes, William,' she murmured. "Er—a bloke wouldn't have a dorg's chance with the possums tonight!" That settled Bill.—Sydney Bulletin.

Child Had Bronchitis

Once people get acquainted with the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine exerts over bronchitis, whooping cough, croup and colds it is not easy to persuade them that anything else is "just as good." This is why the imitators never get very far.

In 1902 Mrs. Eugene Iler, King street, Truro, N.S., wrote as follows:

From an infant one of my children was troubled with bronchitis, and the least cold would aggravate the trouble. We could not get anything to help her, and were often greatly alarmed. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a treatment for bronchitis, we used it, and are glad to state that it effected a complete cure. If any of the children take a cold or cough I give this medicine, and have never known it to fail to bring relief."

Mrs. Iler now writes that she has since proved this medicine to be a cure for whooping cough, and would not be without it in the house.

How Frozen Insects Revive.

Experiments in reviving frozen insects by a naturalist show some surprising results. A large cecropia moth, frozen in the centre of a snowball until it was perfectly brittle, revived in twenty seconds when held near a stove. Several newly hatched to moths revived in a similar manner after being frozen stiff and then thawed out. Similar experiments with ants, butterflies and houseflies gave the same results. But the naturalist noticed that recently hatched insects resist cold better than older ones.

Fried Oysters.

When frying oysters roll in cracker dust and set them aside in a cool place for several hours if possible. Then just before frying dip the pated oysters in their own liquor, roll again in cracker dust and fry immediately. The oyster is increased in size, does not separate, and the use of an egg is unnecessary. When a frying basket is not used the oysters should be taken from the hot lard with a perforated skimmer.

Rain From a Tree.

On one of the Canary Islands there is said to be a tree which dispels from its branches actual rain to such an extent that a cistern placed at its base is never unfilled. This tree grows in one of the dryest islands, through which no water ever flows. The branches of the trees are a cloud that changes into moisture frequently and sheds clear water.

What Grieved Her.

PERILOUS HUGGING.

The Embrace of a Kangaroo Does Not Leave Pleasant Memories.

Notwithstanding the kangaroo's popular reputation for speed, he is easily overtaken in the bush by a good horse they say within half a mile. A capable kangaroo dog—a lean, swift beast, a cross between a greyhound and a mastiff, bred to course and kill—soon runs him to bay. Without dogs it is the custom to kill with a cudgel. This is often accomplished by the sportsman from the back of his horse. Dismounted, however, with the kangaroo waiting alertly for attack, it is sometimes a perilous venture to come to close quarters. A slip, and the sportsman finds himself at once in a desperate situation.

One of the lumberjacks with whom we rested in the shade of the blackbutt showed us the scars of an encounter. He had ridden the kangaroo down, said he, and, being in haste to make an end of the sport, he had caught up the first likely stick his eye could discover and he had stepped quickly and confidently in, and he had struck hard and accurately. And the next instant, caught off the ground, he was struggling breast to breast in the hug of the creature, frightfully aware that he must escape before the deadly hind foot had devastated him.

"My club broke," he exclaimed, "and the boomer got me!"

There were long scars on his back and shoulders, the which we were not very sorry to see, for we could not make out why any man should wish to kill a kangaroo for sport.—Norman Duncan in Harper's.

THE HANGMAN'S ROBE.

Dennis Didn't Like It, So He Sold It to "Old Cain."

James Berry was not so well paid for his services as his French confrere, M. Antoine Deibler, who drew £500 a year, while his four assistants have a similar amount to divide between them. Sanson, the first executioner to wield the guillotine, was originally paid £1,520 a year, but when executioners were appointed in each department this was reduced to £800.

Before the revolution the legal tariff in France was 25 shillings for a beheading, 16s. 8d. for a burning at the stake, and the same amount for a hanging, with allowances for the erection of a scaffold or the provision of fuel.

One of James Berry's predecessors for a brief period, donned a uniform when at work. In 1785, according to a contemporary chronicler, the sheriffs of London were "so pleased with the excellent mode in which Edward Dennis, their hangman, performed his duties that they presented him with a very elegant official robe—a khilaut, in fact, as eastern potentates term a similar garb of honor. Dennis found this inconvenient when at work on the scaffold and sold it to a well known character of those days, 'Old Cain,' who, having set up as a fortune teller wanted a robe to complete the costume in which he received dupes."—London Chronicle.

Strength in the Arms.

Equality of strength in both arms occurs almost twice as frequently with women as with men, more men than women being stronger in the right arm than in the left.

Five Buttons.

Chinese coats have five buttons, signifying the five Confucian virtues—humanity, justice, order, prudence and rectitude.

That Night Cough!

You know it! It begins with a tickling, irritating sensation in your throat. You cough to clear the throat. In a moment, there it is again!

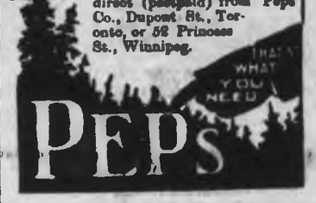
A minute's peace, then again you cough, and so on until you cough your throat sore, and by the time the cough is sufficiently allayed to permit you to sleep, you are thoroughly worn out. This kind of experience is particularly trying to old people.

Pepe make it quite unnecessary for you to have this kind of thing happening.

These night coughs are due to the formation of mucous in the air passages, or to a little inflammation in the bronchial tubes. As soon as you put a Pepe pastille on your tongue, and allow it to slowly dissolve, healing balsamic fumes are liberated, which are breathed down the air passages and bronchi. These healing essences allay all irritation, and so transform the hard phlegm and mucous that it is easily expelled. They impart, too, a feeling of warmth and a glow of comfort in the region where pain and irritation were before felt. Remember, also, Pepe contain no opiates—no poisonous compounds. This makes Pepe so suitable for the coughs and colds of children; and mothers should quickly grasp and appreciate this vast superiority.

Just as the out-door treatment for consumption—the "breathing" treatment—is now admitted to be the only rational treatment, so the "Pepe" treatment for colds and lung troubles is the only rational home treatment. Pepe treatment means the BREATHING down to the lungs, bronchial tubes, and chest cavity, of healing, strengthening, purifying medicinal ingredients. You can't SWALLOW medicine into your lungs. If a medicine can't be BREATHED, it can't get to the lungs and bronchial tubes. Pepe provide a medicine you breathe—not swallow. For all disorders or irritations of the lungs, or bronchial tubes, therefore, use Pepe. These include catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, sore throat, tightness or aching across the chest, difficulty in breathing, hoarseness, asthma, laryngitis, smoker's throat, etc.

All druggists and stores sell Pepe at 50c. box or 3 for $1.25. Should your dealer be out of stock, order direct (postpaid) from Pepe Co., Dupont St., Toronto, or 52 Princess St., Winnipeg.



Maude Adams was one day discussing with her negro "mammy" the approaching marriage of a friend.

"When is you gwine to git married, Miss Maudie?" asked the mammy, who took a deep interest in her talented young mistress.

"I dont' know, mammy," answered the star. "I dont' think I'll ever get married."

"Well," sighed mammy, in an attempt to be philosophical, "they do say ole maids is the happies' kind after they quits strugglin.'"—The Popular.

LIGHTING BY WIRELESS.

Marconi's "Machine" Will Run Lamp Six Miles Away.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Signor Marconi has furnished another illustration of the facility with which modern science can perform feats surpassing those of the legendary magicians of the middle ages. He announces that he can light a lamp by wireless power at a distance of six miles. The bulb of a lamp is attached to a wireless receiver, connected in its turn with a receiving aerial wire. At the other point of the experiment a transmitter in space was linked up with the power of one hundred horsepower. As soon as the power was applied, the bulb, six miles away, lighted up and remained alight as long as the power kept on. This experiment, Mr. Marconi hopes, may be the forerunner of the use of wireless power for lighting and heating houses.

THE FIRST PARCEL POST

System Inaugurated With Souvenir to Governor-General

MME. PELLETIER GETS GIFT

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—"First packet sent by Canadian parcel post, Feb. 10, 1914."

Such was the inscription in raised letters upon three brass bars affixed to the face of the handsome leather mail bag which was despatched as the first parcel post to His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught by Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, at 12 o'clock last midnight.

Without any ceremony or formality the Canadian system of parcels post was inaugurated and the first parcel forwarded to its destination. The mail bag will be used in future to convey His Royal Highness' mail to and from Government House and the postoffice here. Below the inscription is the royal coats of arms and the initials of H. R. H.

Mr. Pelletier did not wait until midnight to post the first parcel. He called at the Ottawa postoffice early in the evening, purchased the necessary stamps, affixed them to the parcel and mailed it. At midnight the Department automobile called at the postoffice, picked up a mail bag containing the parcel and carried it to Rideau Hall, where it was received by the secretary, who had been instructed to await its coming.

The officials and staff of the Ottawa postoffice mailed Madame Pelletier a beautiful bouquet of flowers as a souvenir of the inauguration of the system.

In the various postoffices of the Dominion the staffs have been busy for several months past digesting new rules and preparing for the inception of the system. The railway companies demanded something like four millions for the extra carriage, but eventually settled for an amount less than $800,000 above the present payment for carriage of the ordinary mails.

It will take some months for the system to emerge from the organization stage, but the Postmaster-General believes it will be a paying proposition.

NEW ULSTER SOLUTION.

Sir Horace Plunkett Makes Three Novel Proposals.

LONDON, Feb. 10. — Sir Horace Plunkett, noted for his advocacy of agricultural co-operation and technical education, whose opinion in Irish matters carries great weight with all parties, outlines in The Daily Mail a novel plan for settling the Ulster problem. He is firmly of the opinion that the passage of the home rule bill as it stands will lead to serious sectarian riots, perhaps to civil war in Ulster, and to avert such a disaster he proposes that the Ulster Unionists should accept the bill upon three conditions:

First, that a clause should be inserted enabling it to be decided by a plebiscite after a certain number of years, whether any section of Ulster desired to continue subject to the Irish Parliament.

Second, that both sections of Irishmen should be invited to suggest to the Government any amendments which could be incorporated in the bill by consent.

Third, that the Ulster volunteers should be given an opportunity to become organized as a territorial force, with the double object of adding a valuable body to the nation's defensive forces, and preserving intact for the Ulster Unionists an ultimate safeguard, on which, rightly or wrongly, they can rely for the preservation of their liberties.

Sir Horace contends that acceptance of this scheme would furnish a valuable experiment for the various sides in the home rule difficulty.

PERFORMS BEFORE CZAR.

Willy Ferrero the Boy Conductor Receives High Honors.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 10.—The Italian child conductor, Willy Ferrero, aged seven and a half years, who recently conducted the Imperial orchestra at a command performance before the Czar, also gave a performance before the Empress Marie and other members of the royal family. He was presented by the Czar wit a gold watch with the Imperial arms set in diamonds and pearls. The Empress was so delighted with the way he conducted the Imperial Orchestra that she gave him a large box of chocolates, and promised to send him toys.

Young Ferrero was born in America. His parents are on the stage, and listening to music became part of his daily life. At two he began to show signs of talent. Paris was the first scene of his appearance in public three and a half years ago.

Popular Young Farmer Talks

Tells What Dodd's Kidney Pills Did For Him

He's Back at Work Again, after Suffering from the Pains, Nervousness and Depression that only Kidney Disease Can Bring.

Point Alexander, Ont., Feby. 9th, (Special).—Mr. D. A. Froncare, a well-known and popular young farmer, living near here, who has been a sufferer from kidney disease for some time past, is back at work again, and he says without hesitation, that his cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was always tired and nervous," Mr. Froncare says, in speaking of his illness. "I suffered from backache and neuralgia, and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. My eyes were puffed and there were dark red circles around them.

"My muscles would cramp. I felt heavy and sleepy afterwards, and I was depressed and low-spirited, while shortness of breath and dizzy spells served to make life yet more miserable for me.

"I was always thirsty; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My symptoms led me to believe I had kidney disease, and I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have taken eight boxes in all, and I am very grateful for the benefit I have received from them."

If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it.

Urges Aldwych Site Scheme.

MONTREAL, Feb. 10. — Advocating the adoption of the Aldwych site as the Canadian centre in London, and part of the Imperial scheme which is backed by Earl Grey, Lord Chelmsford addressed the Canadian Club here yesterday. He pointed out the central advantages of the location, and said that the London County Council had broken their rule and offered to sell it on a freehold basis, besides granting other valuable concessions. People wanted the site for commercial uses, but as London homes of the Dominions it was of the highest importance, both for administrative and business reasons.

AGAINST IMPEACHMENT.

Archbishop of Canterbury Refuses To Arraign Bishops.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The Archbishop of Canterbury yesterday decided definitely against instituting impeachment proceedings against the Bishops of Uganda and Mombasa, Church of England prelates in Africa, on charges of heresy and schism arising out of their action at the Kikuyu conference, East Africa, last June. An attempt was then made to unite all Protestant denominations against the increasing power of the Roman Catholics in East Africa, and a general communion service was held.

The matter is now to be referred to the consultative body of bishops of the Church of England, which meets in July. The bishops will then be asked to decide whether the scheme for a federation of Protestant missionary societies proposed at the Kikuyu conference contravenes the principles of the church order, and whether the holy communion service which closed the conference, at which many of the communicants were not members of the Church of England, was consistent with the principles of the Church of England.

He then returned to his home in Edmonton. His bondsmen are Dr. James Wardlaw of Galt, Dr. James Anderson, Galt, and his brother, J. B. Hughes of Waterloo.

Cannot Disclaim Liability.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The Court of Appeal yesterday dismissed the appeal of the White Star Steamship Co. from a decision of the King's Bench Court on June 30, declaring illegal the condition printed on the steamship tickets exempting the company from liability for loss by a passenger, even through the negligence of the company's servants.

The question of legality of this exempting clause had been raised in a test case brought by an Irish farmer, claiming damages for the loss of his son in the Titanic disaster.

New Zealand Fears Influx.

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z., Feb. 10.—The Dominion Government is becoming alarmed at the great influx of Hindus that is taking place into New Zealand. Drug Clerk Tells How To Cure Indigestion Recommends to Sufferers the Best Stomach Remedy in Peterborough Today.

"It is a wonder some of us have stomachs left," remarked a well-known drug clerk recently. "While all drug stores sell a score or more of stomach remedies for which there is a wide demand, most of them are just guessing pills which digest the food that is in the stomach at the time. They have no curative or strengthening effect on the stomach at all, and of course do not reach or cure the cause. So the same people keep on coming here and buying and using them until they are real chronic dyspeptics. When anyone really asks my advice, I swear by and recommend ordinary bisurated magnesia, which doesn't digest the food at all but just acts as an antacid and sweetens the sour, fermenting contents of the stomach. That stops the pain, heart-burn, sour rising, wind, bloating, fullness, etc., in just a few minutes, and the stomach digests its food without help or trouble, which is the proper way."

"Doctors make mistakes sometimes, too," he continued. "My own aunt had all kinds of trouble with her stomach for years. She bought and used several styles of digestive pills but got worse right along, as naturally she would. Finally she went to a doctor, who nearly scared her to death by telling her she had cancer of the stomach. She came to me with his prescription and told me what he said. I thought it was nonsense. I sent her to another doctor whom I knew very well and he didn't tell her anything, but just gave her this same thing, bisurated magnesia. She took it two weeks and never has had any stomach trouble since and that's three years ago. She's my own aunt and I know this for a fact. Yes, a lot of bisurated magnesia is sold in Peterborough. All the druggists have it, I suppose, and all you take is a teaspoonful after every meal. It's all right."

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grap and lemon juice, combined wi lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogg kidneys; to neutralise the acids the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot in jure, makes a delightful effervescen lithia-water beverage, and belongs every home, because nobody can ma a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

"Isn't it too bad she is so u-g-l-y!"

"I may be u-g-l-y, auntie, but I'm s-m-a-r-t."

HEAVIEST TRAFFIC ON TRENT CANAL IN 1913 CENTERED AT PETERBOROUGH

Heavy Freight and Passenger Traffic From Local Dock—Report of Officials on This Section of the Trent Canal

COMPARISON WITH 1912

The annual reports of the lockmasters on the Rice Lake-Lake Simcoe section of the Trent Canal so filed with the Superintendent, Mr. J. Harris McClellan, convey an idea of the extent of the traffic which was carried on last year. A comparison with the figures for the preceding year is also afforded and some conception of what may be expected upon the completion of the entire water way may be formed.

It will be noticed that the George Street wharf shows a big increase in the total volume of business, and it may be concluded that with an open water way from Lake Simcoe to Lake Ontario the benefit to this City will be almost unlimited. Of course it is impossible to estimate what the results will be, but the present figures are decidedly encouraging.

The business of the past year may not appear from some of the figures to be appreciably ahead of 1912, but on totalling them it will be found that there has been an increase in the navigation over this section of the Trent Canal. The passenger traffic has been heavier than usual and the number of craft through the various locks indicates a larger number of boats, principally the small type.

PARCELS POST INAUGURATED THIS MORNING WITHOUT UNUSUAL RUSH

As was anticipated by Postmaster Edgar, there was no particular rush on the part of the public this morning to take advantage of the parcels post, into which life was officially breathed at one minute after midnight this morning.

The Postmaster received a telegram yesterday from the Deputy Postmaster-General, with instructions to receive no parcel until eight o'clock this morning.

There was scarcely any necessity for this regulation, for the morning's business gave no evidence of any unusual interest in the new system.

Miss Mowry, who has charge of the stamp-vending department, stated that the number of packages handled had not been in excess of the average every-morning business.

Postal officials regard the parcels post as a facility to which the public will have to be educated. A letter was received by the postmaster from the local office of the C.G.E. for instructions regarding the system, and it is expected that the company will make use of it for the expressing of packages of six pounds and under. Other inquiries were received from citizens, indicating that there is an interest in parcels post, but that it needs to be developed.

Parcels for delivery in Peterborough are hardly expected to-day. This evening's mail should bring in a number of them.

AN EARTHQUAKE GAVE CITY DECIDED SHOCK

Rocked Entire North Eastern Section of North America---Felt in Schools, Factories and Homes, of Peterboro'

Peterborough had a taste of a real earthquake whih rocked the entire north astern section of this continent this afternoon between 1.30 and 1.40 o'clock.

In Peterborough reports from schools, factories and private homes all emphasize the fact that the tremor was very distinct and in not a few instances considerable alarm was felt. A citizen called at this office to enquire about an explosion which was rumoured to have been felt, and at the same time a telegraph report was receivd conveying the intelligence of the general quake reported in different cities located in the north eastern part of America.

E. C. Braund staid to the Examiner that he and several of the clerks in his store, on the corner of Albert and Park Streets, felt a very distinct motion in the building, but they thought it was the result of some commotion in the C. G. E. works, across the street.

Shook King Edward School.

Mr. McLeod, Principal of the King Edward School, stated that the pupils in the rooms on the top floor of the school had just begun the afternoon studies when they and the teachers felt a decided motion to the building. For a few seconds there was a sense of alarm shown, but as the moveemnt passed no more attention was paid to it. At recess the teachers spoke of it to the principal and while an earthquake was not thought of, it was felt that something unusual had occurred. The tremor was decidedly emphatic, Mr. McLeod stated.

Felt in C. G. E. Warks.

One of the office employees felt his chair move and looked around, thinking some one behind him had moved it. He was unable to explain the experience and momentarily fancied there was something queer going on. Others in the office felt the quake, but throughout the shop it was unnoticed.

One of the operators of the Bell Telephone office stated that while at lunch she felt a decided rumble t the building, but fancied that it was a customary gasoline engine in a nearby building putting a little extra energy into its kicks. She mentioned it at the time, but none of her girl friends paid any serious attention to the matter.

FELT AT DE LAVAL

At one thirty o'clock this afternoon a decided trembling of the earth and bgwuildings in the south end of the City was felt. As shown in the appended telegram the disturbance was by no means a local one, but in the residences, schools and factories of the south end of this City the earthquake was felt very distinctly.

The office buifding of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company was noticeably shaken for a short duration, the trembling of the walls beginning about 1.30 o'clock. The office staff was startled to some extent, and when the shock had subsided it was found that in some places the plaster had been dislocated from the walls and ceilings.

The branch of the Union Bank in the south end of the City was severely shaken, and a door of the building was put out of alignment by the shock.

Mr. Wills, of 147 Park street felt the disturbance, and said that the effect upon his residence was quite perecptible. Plants on his window sills were disturbed and the walls shaken. Mr. Bradshaw, the Charlotte street grocer, also felt the shock, and in the residence of Rev. James Pryce, corner of Locke and Braidwood Avenue, the dishes were rattled on the sideboard and the walls trembled.

While the pulsation or convulsion of the earth was reported from a vast area, the local reports indicated that it was confined largely to the south end of the city.

The rarety of such a visitation was the reason for the fact that escaped considerable attention.

Mr. Denham, of the Quaker Oats Company, and Mr. Walker, at the Normal School, reported that they had neither felt nor heard of the tremour.

IN MILLBROOK.

Mr. L. S. Clarry, of Millbrook, on the long-distance 'phone, stated that at about twenty minutes to two this afternon, quite a severe shock was felt in that village.

Many residences actually swayed under the undulations of the earth, and brick dwellings swayed perceptibly.

Stories were told of stove pipes, dishes, and other loose articles moving under the tremor.

At the elevator, near the station, the employees rushed out of the building under the impression that it was going to collapse.

The motion lasted five or six seconds.

TORONTO FELT IT.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—An earthquake shock was felt all over North-Eastern America between 1.30 and 1.50 this afternoon. In Buffalo, buildings were rocked, and in Syracuse it is reported the people were panic stricken after the shocks.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—An earthquake shock was felt here and in Montreal at about 1.35 or 1.40 this afternoon. A woman was thrown off a couch in the west end of Toronto, and the big school badly shaken in the east end. Meteorological officials are examining the official seismograph this afternoon.

OTTAWA, Feb. 10. — Severe earthquake shock in Ottawa at 1.35 p.m. today. Your correspondent was in the press gallery of the House of Commons when it occurred. The tremor started with a slightly perceptible movement an dincreased in strength until the windows rattled loudly and whole building, foundationwed on solid rock, trembled and shook. The members rushed from their room[illegible]error. In the chamber of the Hou[illegible] Commons the disturbance caused a big picture of the late King Edward to hang back and forth on the wall, while the electric clocks swung drunkenly to and fro for the space of a minute.

THE CHARACTER OF THE GODLY

Subject of Address at Bethany Tabernacle Last Night

The mountaineer evangelist, Rev. Lucius B. Compton, reached the City last night and gave his first address in the Tabernacle.

Mr. Compton spoke on the subject of "The Character and Blessedness of the Godly," using as his text the first half of the first Psalm. He said there were certain things a Godly man would not do. He would not walk in the country of the ungodly. He would not sit in the seat of the scornful. You could not get him to sit around and listen to the smutty stories told in the circles of those who scorn God and do not reverence His name. Neither will the Godly man stand in the way of sinners.

He also said that there were certain things the Godly man would do. His delight would be be a delight in God's law. Every man has a delight. The thing a man delights iin is an index to his character. He practiced meditation day and night on the things of God. Whether he be a business man a labouring man, or whatever his station in life, he can find his full delight in God. He said he had travelled 23,000 miles in a single year, mingling with high and low, rich and poor, but the only man he had found who had a true, satisfying delight, was the man who really delighted himself in the Lord.

"He bringeth forth His fruit in His season." The test of every man's character is the fruit from his life. The Bible mentions several fruits of the Spirit. Every man's character will be tested by opposition. The storms of life will blow over every man's orchard and shake the trees, and the fruit that is picked up will be a test of his character. If your tree is shaken and your neighbours and your family pick up the fruit and find it is sour apples, your influence is largely gone. If they find sour apples they know it is not the fruit of the spirit which God says is "love, joy and peace."

Mr. Compton will speak every night this week at 8 o'clock. Come early for the inspiring Gospel song service.

SANITARY INSPECTOR SAYS THAT CHINESE LAUNDRIES ARE INSANITARY

According to the Report of Sanitary Inspector Spence, Four Should Be Burned—The Air Space is Insufficient.

THE BUSINESS SECTION

That some of the Chinese laundries in the City are anything but sanitary is the indictment upon which Sanitary Inspector Spence was given legal and moral authority to act and if possible remedy the alleged conditions.

The matter was brought up this morning at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health. The Inspector submitted a written report concerning his recent inspection of the ten shirt and collar emporiums that are being operated in the City at the present time, under Chinese management. About 25 men are employed.

FOUR SHOULD BE BURNED

Sanitary Inspector Spence reported that four of the laundries should be cremated. One of them is located in East City. In each case the occupants were found sleeping in the shop where the laundry work was carried on. The sleeping quarters in one of the laundries provided only two hundred and ten cubic feet of air space for each subject, whereas the law insists that at least six hundred feet be provided.

"You wouldn't allow cows to be housed under similar conditions," said the Inspector. He stated that bugs were in possession of many of the establishments that he inspected.

Inspector Spence was authorized to take action. The City Council will also be requested to pass a bylaw to regulate laundries and authorize the issuance of licenses.

THE BUSINESS SECTION

The Inspector also reported that he had completed his inspection of the business section of the city and found conditions anything but satisfactory. In many cases lavatory accommodation was lacking. This applied to a great many buildings situated on George street that Mr. Spence had inspected from garret to the cellar.

Dr. Amys, chairman of the Board of Health, commended the action of the Sanitary Inspector in reporting the matters referred to. He assured the Inspector that he would have the support of the Board in an endeavour to better conditions. He is also backed up by the Provincial Board of Health under whose act, the conditions spoken of, are subject.

KING REGRETS FAILURE OF EFFORTS TO SOLVE THE HOME-RULE QUESTION

LONDON, ENG., Feb. 10. — With all the picturesque ceremonies traditional of the Mother of Parliaments a momentous session of the Commons was opened to-day by King George, Accompanied by Queen Mary in the famous gold coach, driven by eight cream Hanoverian ponies, His Majesty proceeded to Parliament where the speech from the throne was read in the presence of Commoners and other notables. In the House of Lords there were gorgeous ceremonies, viewed only by special ticket holders.

In the speech from the throne His Majesty emphasized the grave seriousness of the situation in Ulster. He said he deeply regretted that all efforts to solve the problem had so far been unsuccessful. "Unless the Home Rule question is handled now with foresight and judgment," said the speech, "and with a spirit of mutual concession, it threatens grave difficulties." His Majesty referred to various international relations and conferences, which he said were highly satisfactory. Their Majesties were escorted by soldiers and closely guarded by private detectives. The militant suffragettes did not make their threatened assault.

Two Months in Jail For Mr. Kimberley

Man Who Said He Had Helped to Murder a Woman, Disposed of

In this morning's Police Court, Alfred Kimberley, the Englishman who gave himself up to the police last week saying that he helped to murder a woman in England seven years ago, was charged with vagrancy. He pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to two months in the County Gaol.

While he is incarcerated, the police will investigate his story to see if he was connected with the murder. He now denies the story he first told the police, and says he told it to secure deportation to England.

Examined by Dr. Morgan, Kimberley has been pronounced sane.

In the Police Court this morning he looked well, and appeared to be expecting a sentence of two or three months.

Meeting of Water Coms.

Was Held Yesterday Afternoon

A meeting of the Water Commissioners was held yesterday afternoon. Messrs. T. F. Matthews chairman, and R. Hicks, were in attendance. The absent member was Mr. W. H. Moore, who was unable to be present owing to an injury that he sustained to his leg some time ago.

The application of the Peter Hamilton Company for the remission of the rate charged to 263 Water Street was granted.

A similar application was granted in the case of Mr. W. A. Hall, 376-80 Water Street.

The Commissioners signified their willingness to sell the meter in use at the Armouries for $200.

A letter was read from Mr. A. H. Parsons, City Engineer, asking to be informed upon what streets mains would be laid this year.

Not Liable.

A communication was read from the Canadian Pacific Company to their agent regarding an account for $4.00 for time of section men when the main was laid under the track on the Monaghan road. It was resolved that the secretary reply that under the order of the Railway Board the Commissioners were not liable for the account.

KELLY BROS. NOT IMPLICATED IN ROBBERY

Some time ago the Examiner published a story from Saskatoon to the effect that a Peterborough boy named Kelly, hailing from East City, was implicated in a robbery in Saskatoon. It was undoubtedly a case of mistaken identity and the publication of the story was an injustice to Jack and James Kelly, sons of Mr. B. Kelly, East City, who are absent from the City. As one, however, is living in Vancouver, and the other in Superior, Wis., it was impossible that they could be in any way connected with the case.

THE NEW HOUSE OF LORDS.

The British House of Lords is taking a new role. Existing without regard to the will of the people, and generally acting contrary to the will and welfare of the people, one would not think of that venerable body recognising the people as a factor in the government of the kingdom, or for one moment taking thought of recognising the right of the people to have a voice in determining the policy and course of legislation. In despair of defeating the progressive measures of the Asquith government by any other means, the Lords propose an amendment to the address, demanding appeal to the people at a general election.

ONE COMFORT ANYWAY

Sir Donald Mann, the other of the Canadian Northern heavenly twins, says that that railway is making no application to Parliament r money this session. This official assurance, on the word of a Knight, is very comforting, for we can be certain that if Mackenzie & Mann had asked or were to ask, Parliament for fifteen or twenty millions the Borden Governmen would see that they got it. One cannot see, however, how the Government is to keep up the pace—to "dash away and spend the people's money so that the national expenditure will be doubled in the second two years of its lease of power, as has been done in the first two years, unless some extraordinarily large leak is sprung upon the country. Sir Donald gives us one little comfort anyway.

WHITE STAR LINE LIABLE.

The lawyers will now begin to reap the harvest of the Titanic disaster. The British Court of Appeal yesterday affirmed the damages verdict obtained in a lower court in a test case brought by relatives of steerage passengers. This decision forms a precedent that will encourage with hopes of success the bringing of other actions, involving claims for damages to the amount of millions. Justice Sir Roland Vaughan-Williams, in delivering judgment, said he was of the opinion that the accident to the Titanic was one that could have been prevented by the taking of precautions, suggested by the warnings of danger such as the Titanic officers had for their guidance. He declared void and invalid the warning on the reverse of tickeets to the effect that the Company did not accept liability for negligence. The effect of this judgment and of the resulting actions for damages will be a lesson to not only steamship companies, but to all other public carrying concerns, that human life must not be sacrificed, nor subjected to danger, for the sake of speed or any other consideration that involves risk to human life.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The resignation of Dr. McPherson as City Medical Health Officer calls attention to the Board of Health in its relation to the highest interests of our citizens. While Dr. McPherson's resignation is getting consideration by the Council it is not advisable to discuss the merits of the matter; but the occasion warrants an appeal to the authorities to take a larger view of the importance of the Board of Health, which importance is directly related to the efficiency with which its functions are administered by its executive and advisory officers, the Medical Health Officer, and the Sanitary Inspector. Their efficiency, according to the principles that obtain in the industrial and commercial world, and in the world of service generally, is more or less directly proportional to the adequacy of remuneration. In almost everything, as a rule, the best service cannot be got for the lowest salary. It must be confessed that the attitude of the authorities towards the Board of Health is not quite so broad as the modern development of the importance of the Board of Health and what it stands for, demands. Economy in civic administration is a good thing, but economy that suggests inferior service is not economy, it is waste. It is perhaps superfluous to insist upon the importance of health; and insistence upon this point is only suggested when its importance is forgotten or ignored. Health is the sole capital of a large majority of our citizens. With a very large number of our citizens, a day's illness means cessation of the bread supply, while conditions of ill health, short of absolute disability, are a detriment to earning, related to efficient service, to giving full value for wages paid. Boards of health and the agencies associated with them have done a great deal to improve the public health. The work of the Provincial Board of Health has raised the level of the sanitary efficiency of the people. Contagious diseases have been robbd of their frequency as well as their virulence of attack, and the whole condition of the public health has been vastly improved by its work and the work of subordinate Boards of Health. These latter are important, educative and valuable. They impress upon the people the importance of observances of the laws of health, and give object lessons by way of the application of regulations designed to, and, more than that, effective in, promoting good sanitary conditions. A Board of Health is not only obligatory by the laws of the Province, but it has the sanction of the best knowledge and most instructed thought. Therefore the better and more effective its working is made, the more intelligent ly and seriously its importance is taken by the authorities, the better for the community. A god, well-officered Board of Health, in addition to its direct benefits, has an important function in dispelling ignorance, popular and official, of the supreme value of good sanitary conditions, public and private; and any economy that weakens its efficiency and imperils the public health is not economy, but waste—in paying the penalty of inefficiency—impaired public health, sickness in the home and loss of employment.

SEPARATIST SAM.

If the jingoists and revenue imperialists are true to label they will label Col the Hon. Sam Hughes "Separatist Sam" They saw the Empire split and fissured by the "separatist" navy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier—a Canadian navy built in Canada, manned by Canadians, maintained by Canada for her own protection, yet freely at the disposal of the Admiralty and the service of the Empire, in case of imperial need. Nothing was too bad to say of such a manifestation of, and virtual declaration of Canadian autonomy. Nothing was not truly imperial that did not declare the infinite superiority of of everything British, and the utter suppression of Canadian self-dependence and self-respect. Now, Col. the Hon. Sam has had the temerity to lecture the British War Department, and has even had the audacity to declare that a Canadian-made rifle—the Ross rifle—is "the best rifle in the world," infinitely better than the obsolete, out-of-date British weapon. Surely this is high treason, not only to the Empire and to the doctrine of Imperial snobbery, but to he opinions of Churchill and Borden. They declared that Canada could not build warships, and now the Minister of Militia has the impudence and disloyalty to assert that Canada makes the best military rifle in the world. To be consistent, the jingoes and imperialist lickspittles should discipline Col. the Hon Sam, and the worst punishment they can inflict is to bracket him with the Laurier Navy, and dub him "Separatist Sam." Seriously, Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes is a better imperialist and, what is better, a better Canadian than any man Jack of them. He has had the courage of his convictions, and when his whole party colleagues in Parliament were decrying the Ross rifle and belittling and scoffing at Canadian skill and enterprise, he stood all alone amongst his fellows in loyal and staunch advocacy of the Ross Rifle, a triumph of Canadian skill He stands loyally by the Canadian riflemen and does not want them to be deprived of the use of the best rifle in the world. Sam Hughes, in opposition as in office, has, in this regard, showed himself a true Canadian and, therefore a true Imperialist, for fidelity to the respective dominions, to their interests, and to their autonomy is to be true in the highest and most effective sense to the collective body called the Empire. The attitude of Col. the Hon Sam Hughes is another form of expression of the truth of Shakspere's saying:

> To thine own self be true,
> And it must follow as, the night the day,
> Thou canst not then be false to any man.

The Canadian that is true to Canada cannot be false to the Empire.

TO ENCOURAGE SHOOTING.

Militia Council Will Give a New Individual Prize.

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—Members of the various civilian rifle clubs throughout the Dominion will in future have a new incentive for shooting straight.

The militia council has decided to offer a special individual prize to be known as the Dominion of Canada prize.

The prize will consist of a nickel-silver ornamental salver ten inches diameter, bearing the coat of arms of the Dominion.

To be eligible for the prize it will be necessary for the association in question to hold four competitions during the season in which at least forty per cent. of the members must take part. The ranges over which the competition will be shot will be 200, 500 and 600 yards, seven scoring shots at each range to count.

WE HAVE FAITH IN THIS STOMACH REMEDY

A woman customer said to us the other day, "Say, you ought to tell everyone in town about Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. I would myself if I could." That set us to thinking. So many people have used them and have so enthusiastically sounded their praises both to us and their friends, that we had an idea you all knew about them. But, in the chance that some of you who suffer from indigestion, heartburn, dyspepsia, or some other stomach complaint, don't know about them—we are writing this.

They contain Bismuth and Pepsin, two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science. They soothe and comfort the stomach, promote the secretion of gastric juice, help to quickly digest the food and convert it into rich, red blood, and improve the action of the bowels. We believe them to be the best remedy made for indigestion and dyspepsia. We certainly wouldn't offer them to you entirely at our risk unless we felt sure they would do you a lot of good. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets do not relieve your indigestion, check the heartburn, and make it possible for you to eat what you like whenever you like, come back and get your money.

Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only at our store Three sizes, 25c, 50c, and $1.00.

A Good Run Made By G.T.R.

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra Company who played an engagement in Toronto recently returned to Chicago via the Grand Trunk Railway and were handled on a special train consisting of one baggage car, one coach four sleeping cars and a dining car, leaving Toronto, February 5th at 11.13 p.m., and arriving at Chicago at 9.55 a.m. the following day, a run of 516.15 miles being made in eleven hours and forty-two minutes, a remarkable run, deducting the loss of time for stops and other operating purposes.

"Why, Tommy," exclaimed the Sunday-school teacher, "don't you say your prayers every night before you go to bed?" "Not any more," replied Tommy, "I uster when I slept in a folding bed, though."

STRAY TOPICS FROM LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—As Abe Martin might say, "What has become of the old-fashioned woman who used to stay home and 'tend to her knitting?" She certainly is hard to find in these days, when women are making their influence felt in every line of human activity. A generation ago it would created something of a sensation for a woman to speak at a banquet of business men. Now little or no attention is attracted by the announcement that Mrs. J. Borden Harriman is to be a leading speaker at the dinner of the National Retail Dry Goods Association at the Hotel Astor next Tuesday night. Few persons, either men or women, are better informed than Mrs. Harriman on the broad subject of the relations between employer and employe. President Wilson recognized this fact when he appointed her as a member of the National Committee on Industrial Relations.

It is to be regretted that the State cannot have the services of Frank Moss in the present graft investigation and in any prosecutions that may follow. Mr. Moss, who has just resigned his position on District Attorney Whitman's staff to return to his private practice, is the ablest graft prosecutor in New York, William Travers Jerome not excepted. His experience along this line dates back to the days of the old Lexow committee, when he was the right-hand man of the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst. It was Mr. Moss who collected the evidence to prove that vice was protected by the police. He also led many gambling raids under the auspices of the Committee of Fifteen, which led to the overthrow of Tammany and the election of Seth Low and District Attorney Jerome in 1901. During the past few years, as Mr. Whotman's assistant, Mr. Moss has prosecuted some of the most important criminal trials in the history of the country. Among these was the trial of Lieut. Charles Becker and the four gunmen for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

In New York City there are between 60,000 and 100,000 homeless men and women who find shelter on winter nights either in the rear rooms of saloons or in lodging houses where liquors are sold, according to a report on the conditions for the care of the homeless in this city that has just been made public by State Excise Commissioner Farley. Whether the accommodation provided by public charity or by private enterprise is a matter of speculation, says the report, but when there is an unusually bitter cold night in winter, actual conditions confront theory with the fact that the homeless overflow the places of refuge provided and crowd the saloons of the congested districts. Superintendents in charge of several missions on the lower East Side told the agents of the Excise Department that they believed the saloons did a great deal of good in allowing the homeless to occupy their rear rooms, because, as one of the superintendents explained, on nights in bad weather it was practically impossible to obtain lodging at the cheap lodging houses, which were filled early. The Committee of Fifty, headed by Seth Low, which investigated these conditions, reported as follows: "As yet, adequate substitutes for the social benefits which thousands of people actually derive daily from the saloons have not yet been developed. It is to this problem that the experience, the wisdom, and the wealth of those interested in social progress must be directed."

The serious illness of Marcus Mayer has brought forth many expressions of sympathy from members of the theatrical profession, particularly the old ex members. Mr. Mayer is the last survivor of a famous group of theatrical managers and impresarios that flourished along in the early 80s and which included Henry E. Abbey, Augustin Daly, A. M. Palmer and the Grau. Mr. Mayer's first venture as a manager was the starring of Julia Dean Hayne, which was a success. Then followed a season with the younger Kean, after which he successively directed the tours of the world renowned celebrities, Lady Don, wife of Sir William Don, said to be the most beautiful woman of her time; Edwin Booth, the great tragedian; Lawrence Barrett, Edwin Adams, Adelaide Neilson, Rose Etynge, Jane Hading, Charlotte Cushman, Sarah Bernhardt, Sir Henry Irving, M. Coquelin, Monet-Sully, Mary Anderson and Adelina Patti, for whom he managed three tours one to South America nad Mexico. While in South America Mme. Patti was paid $5,000 in gold by Mr. Mayer for each appearance. Then came a tour of the Far East with Sarah Bernhardt playing engagements in Egypt and India, followed by tours of the principal cities of Europe. He was with Mme. Bernhardt when she played before the Czar and imperial family at St. Petersburg, and has a magnificent diamond ring as a souvenir of the occasion. Mr. Mayer in later years brought many European artists to America, also introducing many Americans to the European public and holds the record for trans-atlantic voyages, having crossed the Atlantic Ocean probably 150 times, which, with several trips to Australia, South Africa, Japan and China, and two round-the-world journeys, ranks him well up with the most famous globe trotters.

IMPROVEMENTS DURING 1913.

During the past year considerable work was carried on in improving the canal and in renovating certain parts of it. All the steel work at the Lift Lock was scraped and repainted at a cost of about $3,000. The Kirkfield Lock was also given some attention.

New pavilions were erected at Whitfield's Landing, Trent Bridge, Smithson's, Hale's Bridge and at the Peterborough Dock. The dredge Auburn was engaged at the mouth of the Otonabee, cutting a new nine-foot channel into Rice Lake. It is understood that this will be continued up the river.

The channel in the Keene River has been buoyed and a new dock was built at Keene. New range lights were erected at Southwood, near Orillia, and at Atherley. The Omemee River was buoyed out, and the Lindsay river was dredged. The canal banks were riprapped between Balsover and Lock No. 1, and other sections of the canal were similarly treated. A new wing was added to the dam at Bobcaygeon. The Lakefield dam was repaired and new piers put in.

During the season the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, sailed over the system from Peterborough north. The entire system has been kept in good repair, and during the fall the canal was opened as far as Healey's Falls. This is a new section, the previous limit being to Hastings.

Appropriations have been made for the completion of the canal, but it is not expected that there will be a complete passage within a couple of years.

DR. AMYS WOULD SELL THE ISOLATION HOSPITAL TO THE PETERBORO' HEALTH ASSN.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health, which was held this morning, His Worship Mayor Buller again expressed his exception to a recommendation compelling milk vendors to deliver milk in bottles only. He would not deny or affirm the suggestion that he received bottled milk at his own house, but asserted that he did not know how the milk was delivered. He delivered summary judgment in regard to the proposal to make the bottling of milk compulsory, chaarcterizing the bottling of milk as a "humbug." The Mayor was also opposed to a recommendation to appoint an assistant to the Sanitary Inspector; neither would he agree to have a motion put before the meeting as suggested by Dr. Amys, who was desirous of obtaining the feeling of the Board on the matter. Other recommendations which His Worship Mayor Buller disapproved of, was the advisability of issuing a monthly bulletin from the Health Department to the public through the medium of the press, and the erection of a smallpox hospital.

Those present at the meeting were Dr. Amys, chairman, Mayor Buller, Ald. G. H. Duncan, James Murty, Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., and Sanitary Inspector Spence.

Appointment Was Necessary.

Dr. McPherson said that the appointment of an assistant to the Sanitary Inspector would enable Mr. Spence to remain in his office for a certain portion of each day. In that way he would be of greater service to the public. The work of the department was accumulating very rapidly and represented more work than one man could accomplish.

Mayor Buller—"I refuse to support any such recommendation. We are paying Mr. Spence for performing work outside of the City buildings. If there are any 'phone calls to answer, we can arrange to have someone inside look after it. We do not want to be burdened down with a whole lot of City officials. I supported both the Sanitary Inspector and the Medical Health Officer when they secured their positions, and I am willing to support them to-day. I am willing to support an economical arrangement whereby the office of Plumbing Inspector would be combined, and arrange matters so that when one inspector was out the other would remain in."

Dr. Amys—"I dont think this is the proper way to get at it. If we would pass a motion, then we will have something to speak to."

The Mayor would not agree to this, however, and as the other members of the Board showed no inclination to take the initiative, the matter was dropped.

Will Extend the Area.

In reference to the extension of the garbage collecting area, Dr. Amys said it would be better to extend it over the entire City.

Dr. McPherson moved that the garbage area be extended over a certain prescribed area.

"You wouldn't extend it over the whole City?" inquired Mayor Buller.

Dr. McPherson—"No. I don't think it would be advisable."

Mayor Buller—"I agree with you."

The matter will be dealt with at a meeting of the Property committee that will be held this evening. In the meantime Dr. McPherson and Sanitary Inspector Spence will prepare a plan of the proposed extended area.

May be Licensed.

Speaking to the question of licensing the night soil men and scavengers, Dr. McPherson said that it was in the interest of the public, to have these men under the control of the Sanitary Inspector's department. A nominal fee would be charged.

The recommendation was referred to the Board of Police Commissioners, with the suggestion that power be given to revoke the licenses whenever circumstances demand.

Fumigation.

Dr. McMPherson moved that the Health authorities be given power to disinfect all premises at the expense of the department when deemed advisable by the Medical Health Officer. "If our duty to the public means anything at all," said Dr. McPherson, "it is important as to this point."

Dr. Amys—"It would be a benefit to the general public."

Dr. McPherson explained the process of fumigation.

He also suggested that a monthly bulletin be issued to the press. Such a course had been adopted in other cities. The bulletin would contain aids to health; what to do before going on a summer vacation and other matters pertaining to the Health Department.

Mayor Buller— "I don't think the public would read them." No action was taken in regard to the matter.

The Bottling of Milk.

The Mayor again reiterated his objetcion to the compulsory bottling of milk.

"Don't you get your milk delivered in bottles?" inquired Dr. McPherson.

Mayor Buller—"I don't know. I think its humburg, anyway. He offered to pay half the expense of taking a vote for the purpose of ascertaining the opinion of the public in respect to the question.

"I think you would win out," interjected Mr. Murty.

Dr. McPherson moved that milk vendors be allowed to sell milk to private houses only in bottles. There was no seconder.

A Smallpox Hospital.

The Medical Health Officer was of the opinion that it would be in the interests of the City to build a smallpox hospital. The City must supply a place of treatment for smallpox.

Dr. Amys asked if it would be possible to dispose of the present Isolation Hospital to the Peterborough Health Association, and substitute a cottage system for infectious diseases. He characterized the Queen Mary hospital as a "white elephant."

Dr. Amys moved that no action be taken in regard to the smallpox hospital, and that the Council be recommended to dispose of the Queen Mary Hospital.

"You will never get the Health Association to buy the Isolation Hospital for a sanatorium," interposed Dr. McPherson.

Dr. Amys declared that he felt that an isolation hospital was necessary, but preferred the cottage system, rather than one large building.

It was decided to construct a sewer on Bethune Street, between Dalhousie and Sherbrooke Streets.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKET

To-morrow may see some further settling in the general list, especially where there is vulnerability. The market as a whole is in a period of readjustment to the advanced level, according to our judgment. The selling has ben largely professional since profit-taking occurred. It should not be overlooked that the listh as been settling for several days. Many big operators expect to see a sudden drop, which they believe will wind up the retreat. We still feel that the present fluctuation is a reaction of a temporary character in a market which is exhibiting an undercurrent that means high prices.

GO is well bought; the same may be said of St. Paul.

On reactions S. P., Norfolk, and Western Aachison, and stock of that class, will find excellent absorption.

The professional element continues to sell New York Central and United States Stock.

Buy C.P.R. on any reaction.

FEW CITY MEN MAN STREET CARS

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The shoe must be pinching the man who took a fling at the street railway employees in a letter to the Examiner last night. Possibly he has sufficient time to notice now that the street railway men are working as usual these days, and as an afterthought he notes that the most of the men have come from the country. And he is correct. I believe that there is not a city-born employee manning the cars. The motormen and conductors were all born on the farm or spent many years there.

Your correspondent grouches over this fact. But there are reasons that explain the whole situation. In the first place, the employees are sober. They may not all be teetotallers, but in any case they are not the workmen who swell the coffers of the manufacturers of whisky and beer.

Again, they must be on the job every day in the year. They are working on days when most other men are fishing, sleping, or enjoying an outing. The demand for steadiness has killed off more employees of the city stamp than any other cause. They couldn't stand the gaff. To them the job was not worth working for every dayi n the year.

The men have long hours and have to rise early. Both of these conditions are inborn with farm life, but they are the stumbling-block to the average man from the city. However, the complaint of the director was aimed particularly at "retired farmers." There may be two or three who need not work for a living, but possibly they need to work to live, and the second is the more important aspect. Idleness has killed off many a farmer when he retired, but it does not seem to materially affect the city man, many of whom do not know what a day's work is. The writer of the letter apparently, fancies that it would be a cinch to hold down a position with the street railway company.

I am inclined to believe that your correspondent would no last long as a motorman or conductor. However, the street railway company has a manager, and as long as he is satisfied with the work of his employees, I fail to see where other individuals have any concern in the matter. I know of a number of men who flitted for a time as street car employees and then took the count because of some of the conditions not meeting with their approval. The wage is now 20c an hour to the first string men. I know many who would not work for less than $3.50 or $3.75 a day, but they do not work every day in the year. One man of this type is now depending upon his grocer to see him through the winter. Probably, the time to enjoy holidays eats into earnings and is not the boon that some declare it. However, this is aside from the grouch of the writer. To me, the personnel of the street car employees looks like an example of the survival of the fittest, and not of the richest.—Yours, etc.,

British House Opens To-Day

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 10 — With the opening of the British House of Commons to-day, the Times comes out with an appeal to the extremists in the Unionist party not to use disturbing methors at the present juncture, as such methods would not be effective for the cause of anti-Home Rule. It is generally considered that the King's Speech will not outline concessions to be granted in the matter of Home Rule, as Irish members have impressed upon Asquith the opinion that it would not be advisable at this time to make statements along that line. There is a vigorous rumour on the streets to-day that King George suggested to Asquith that a general election would be acceptable before the Home Rule Bill pressed further, but Asquith declined to accede to His Majesty's suggestion.

DEVELOPMENT OF PRINCE RUPERT

General business conditions and the developments in and around Prince Rupert, B.C., the Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, are healthy and good.

Latest reports show Customs returns for the month of December amount to $36,836, an increase over the same period last year of over $25,000. For the year 1913 th total Customs receipts were $23,326.70, an increase over the previous year of $100,0000.00. These customs figures reflect the general growth and prosperity of the City.

Excavation for the new Grand Trunk Pacific Hotel, the Prince Rupert, is proceeding rapidly, a large force of men being engaged.

The work on the $2,000,000 dry dock is also proceeding very satisfactorily.

A large apartment block is being erected in the City and several other permanent and substantial buildings ar being constructed with all possible speed, and the citizens are looking forward to mid-summer, when the Grand Trunk Pacific, the all Canadian Transcontinental Railway will be linked up from Coast to Coast, and at which time it is prophecied that a great impetus will be given to this coming metropolis.

OUR TRADE WITH U. S. EFFECTS BRITAIN

Has Helped to Prevent Decrease in Old Country's Cost of Living

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 10.—At the anual meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, the president attributed the fact of these being little chance of ad ecrease in the cost of living here to Canada's increased trade with the United States.

In three short months, he said, all the surplus cattle in Canada had been sold to American buyers. Canadian cream and milk has been sold to such a large extent that there is practically no Canadian butter for export, and the quantity of cheese available for the market will rapidly diminish.

M'GIBBON IS NEXT

He Will Testify in Quebec Scandal Investigation

HON. MR. LEMIEUX ON WAY

MONTREAL, Feb. 10.—All investigations in connection with further enquiries of the investigation committees of both Houses appointed to look into the charges made by The Montreal Daily Mail against J. O. Mousseau, Achille Bergevin and L. P. Berard were postponed until to-day on decision of the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon.

Important witnesses, when the enquiry is resumed, are likely to be D. Lorne McGibbon and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. Mr. Lavergne, in the lower House yesterday afternoon, requested Mr. Taschereau, chairman of the investigating committee, to summon D. Lorne McGibbon, and Mr. Taschereau promised that he would. The summoning of Hon. Mr. Rodolphe Lemieux is a direct result of the statement of C. P. K. Carpenter of Gaspe, to the effect that Mr. Lemieux had given him a letter introducing him to the promoters of the Montreal Fair Association bill. Mr. Lemieux has expressed his desire to be heard before the committee, and he will therefore be called.

On the understanding that the investigating committee of the lower House would proceed yesterday afternoon, M. E. Nichols, president and managing director of The Daily Mail, and L. T. Marechal, K.C., counsel for The Daily Mail, arrived last night. They were surprised when they heard the investigation had been postponed until to-day. B. A. Macnab, editor of The Daily Mail, will arrive in Quebec to-day.

"From present indications," said Mr. Taschereau yesterday, "I should say that the main evidence is completed. Although it is impossible to state definitely, I do not think that the investigation of the lower House committee will take more than a couple of days or so." As for the presentation of the report to the House he could not be sure, but it would be before the end of the present session.

MERELY A PROTEST.

Suffragette Gave Four or Five Shouts When Fed, Says Bishop.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Another surprise visit to Holloway jail to investigate the conditions under which two militant suffragettes, Miss Kitty Marion and Miss Phyllis Brady, who are incarcerated there, was made by the Bishop of London in response to a request from the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant organization, yesterday.

Miss Marion is serving a sentence of three years' penal servitude for arson, and Miss Brady is awaiting trial on a similar charge. The bishop says Miss Marion, as a protest against her continued imprisonment, always gave four or five shouts or screams when subjected to the operation of forcible feeding, but she did not look ill as a result. She made no complaint of harshness.

THE "WILD MAN" SUICIDED.

He Had Secured Carbolic Acid in Some Mysterious Manner.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 10. — Hyalmer Moilanen, long known as Kenora's wild man, who roamed at large in the Lake of the Woods country for months, subsisting precariously, and who was recently captured by strategy, committed suicide shortly after he was released by the authorities, and placed with his people. He came from Aurora, Minn.

They were certain that his condition could be remedied if he were placed with his compatriots and properly fed, and accordingly he was released and placed with a farmer named Rounikos. He acted in a perfectly natural manner for some time and suddenly made a sudden dash from the house and into the woods, where he eluded pursuit again until too late to save his life. Rounikos and others came upon him just as he was in the act of swallowing poison, and took him back to the farmhouse, where he expired within an hour. The poison was carbolic acid. The way he secured it is at present a mystery. An inquest will be held.

Music & Drama

PRIMROSE AND DOCKSTADER.

The famous Minstrels, Geo. H. Primrose and Low Dockstader, with their large and capable corps of burnt cork entertainers delighted a large audience at the Grand last night. Minstrelsy when it is good never seems to pall upon the appetite of the play-goer, and although last evening's entertainment was on almost identnically the same lines as the programme given last year by the same company, the audience seemed to enjoy the numbers more than ever. Mr. Primrose dances with his old time skill, and Mr. Dockstader is funny as usual, his droll stories of his "Uncle George," bringing down the house, while he introduced some local hits that brought an appreciative chuckle from his hearers. The company is strong vocally, the solos and choruses of the first part being splendidly sung, while Raymond Wylie, the male soprano, scored a terrific hit in his operatic selections. The four meteors, a clever quartette, sang splendidly and were very funny in an imitation of a country band. Foley and Murphy contributed a dance duet that way away above the average, and the six Brown brothers in a musical act were repeatedly encored. The saxophone sextette was recalled half a dozen times.

A lively melange of music and dancing entitled, "Down Home," was the climax to a merry evening.

Intermediate Team Ready For To-Night's Battle With Orillia

From a Staff Reporter:

ORILLIA, Ot., Feb. 10.—The Peterborough team arrived here shortly after 12 o'clock and are registered at the Orillia House. The boys are all in good shape for to-night's big game except Captain Maurice Park, who is suffering from a bad cold. But he will be on the line-up to-night. The Orillia team will be the same as that which defeated Midland, except for the left wing position, which was filled on Saturday night by McNabb of the juniors. It is expected that Macdonald, who has been out of the game with a bad ankle, will start to-night and will be dropped in the event of the injured member being too painful in which case there is a prospect of the greater part of the game being played six men a side. There is a beautiful sheet of keen, hard ice ready for the game, and the conditions are to the liking of both teams. Peterborough supporters are offering even money on the round and are asking for three or four goals on to-night's battle. So far there has been little wagered. With two teams in the running, Orillia is hockey crazy and the rink will be packed to-night. The Orillia team will line-up as follows: Goal, Corbould; defence Harvie and Perman; rover, Carter; centre, Ross; right wing, Jupp; left wing, McDonald. The locals: Goal, Jane; defence, Bond and Denison; rover, Halpin; centre, Park; wings, Kelly and Bradshaw.

It will be the most finished local production ever seen upon the local stage. Thursday and Friday nights.

WHITE SOX LEADER TAKEN ILL ON TRAIN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ROME, Feb. 9.—Charles A. Comiskey, president of the Chicago Club of the American League, was taken seriously ill to-day on the train on which the members of the Chicago and New York baseball teams were travelling from Naples to Rome. Mr. Comiskey was indisposed before leaving Naples for Rome, and shortly after the train passed Caserta he was seized with a chill, and grew worse so rapidly that his wife, son and daughter-in-law were greatly alarmed.

It happened that Dr. John Edward Jones, the American consular-general at Genoa was returning on the same train from an inspection of the consulate at Naples. He hurried to Mr. Comiskey's apartment and found that he was suffering from an acute attack of indigestion with marked cardiac symptoms. [illegible] assistance he was able and remained beside the Chicago magnate until Rome was reached, and Mr. Comiskey was removed to an hotel. Late to-day Mr. Comiskey was reported to be in an improved condition and resting comfortably. It is likely that a noted specialist will be called into consultation to-morrow.

The journey of the players from Naples was somewhat marred by the illness of President Comiskey, but was nevertheless lively and interesting. On their arrival they were greeted by a representative sent by the American ambassador, Thomas Nelson Page, and great crowds which gathered at the station. To-morrow the Americans will go sight-seeing and on Wednesday will be received in audience by the Pope. The same afternoon the teams will play at the stadium, and on Friday there will be a second game at the stadium. The players will leave for Nice on Saturday.

NO PARCEL POST RUSH IN TORONTO

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Extensive preparations were made here for the handling of the new parcel post business on inauguration to-day, but there was no great rush at this end. Big mail order houses used the new system extensively. At the head office of the express companies it was stated their business was not visibly affected.

RAN A DISORDERLY HOUSE.

Tom Sharkey, Ex-Prize Fighter, is to be Sentenced Next Week.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Thomas J. Sharkey, former heavyweight prize fighter, was committed to the Tombs without bail to-night for sentence on 16th February for maintaining a disorderly resort in East Fourteenth Street, near Third Avenue.

With him went Andrew Osborne, who has managed Sharkey's saloon for twelve years. Three justices in the Court of Special Sessions to-day found the two men guilty after a trial of a few hours. A waiter in Sharkey's place, accused with them, was discharged.

A Catholic priest, the secretary of a neighbourhood association, and a member of an anti-vice committee, testified for the prosecution. Merchants, business men and others testified as character witnesses for Sharkey and Osborne, who took the stand in their own defence. Sharkey, testifying, said he ran "the most respectable place in New York."

BASEBALL

John Castle who managed the Atlantic City Tri-State League team, last season, has been signed to pilot the Allentown team, in the same organization.

Al Hummell of the Knoxville Appalachian League team, has signed with the Pittsburgh Federals. He is a brother of "Silent John" Hummell of the Superbas.

Under the term of his contract with the Washington Club, Harry Harper, a young southpaw pitcher, is permitted to remain out of the game on Sundays.

The Georgia-Alabama League has been reorganized on an eight-club basis, William Halligan, Hugh Forty, G. W. Miller, Peter Harrison and Robert Hare compose the 1914 umpiring staff of the International League.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have signed 26 men, with Honus Wagner and Claude Hendrix the only prominent members of last year's team unsigned. Hendrix has jumped to the Feds, but Honus will line up with the Pirates later on.

Manager Joe Cantillion of the Minneapolis Club, says if any player on his team can better himself he can hop to it. Wise Joseph. He knows that his "Old Home Week" team couldn't jump. They would have to be carried into the new League.

Outfielder Lester Channell is to don a New York American League uniform for the second time. He was purchased from Indianapolis by the Yankees three years ago, but broke his leg early in the season and was out of the game for a year.

Catcher "Hickory" Johnson, formerly of the St. Louis Cardinals, is slated for an opportunity to show his wares to Manager McGraw of the Giants. "Hickory" was strong with the bat in the Western League last season, being the leading long-distance walloper of the league.

Test Room Seven Still Leading The Teams In The Mercantile League

Tie Game Between the Tool Room and Test Seven Will Be Played Off on Monday Next---A Loss for Test Seven Will Result in Three-cornered Tie.

SCORES LAST NIGHT.

Bankers, 4	De Laval, 1
Test Room, 4	Plumbers, 0
Tool Room, 11	Examiner, 1

The first of the Mercantile League games last night resulted in a win for the Bankers from the De Laval seven, with a 4 to 1 score. The half-time count was 3 to 1. The De Laval team played the best hockey they have shown this season, and the game was a grand battle all the way. The Bankers' speed and combination proved more effective than the fierce checking of their opponents, but the losers looked dangerous all the way, and gave McCrimon a good chance to pull off some spectacular stops. Spratt, as usual, came through with lightning rushes and the whole De Laval team looked good. The Bankers missed Corkery on the defence, but Brown played a good game. Minorgan and Phelan showed up well.

The teams were:

Bankers		De Laval
McCrimmon	Goal	Denne
Brown	Right Defence	Spratt
Phelan	Left Defence	Riuter
Paton	Rover	Fitzgerald
Minorgan	Centre	Todd
Moore	Left Wing	Byers
Smith	Right Wing	Hill

The last game was a one-sided contest between the Examiner and the Tool Room seven. The final score was 10 to 1 for the C. G. E. brigade, who gave Cook, their opponents' net guardian, a very busy evening. Cook played a good game and got a number of hot shots. At times he was bombarded unmerifully, but stood the gruelling well. Heard, Rose, and Clancy all worked hard to keep the Tool Room out, but the Garnet and White seven did not check back, and were rather easy picking for their opponents. The fact that the score was piled up to such an extent was due in a great measure to the fact that the Examiner seven did not have their regular seven. O'Brien and Primeau, on the wings, were new on the team, and the losers did not show their usual spirit in combination or checking.

Barrie was the only one of the forwards of the Tool Room who could be said to play a little faster than the rest. The whole Tool Room team was well balanced with fast, reliable men at every position. Combining in good team work they piled up a 7 to 0 score during the first half and a 3 to 1 in the second, making the total count 10 to 1.

Len Dobson handled the bell very satisfactorily. There were no penalties given.

The teams were:

Tool Room		Examiner
Cassidy	Goal	Cook
Hillier	Right Defence	Rose
Bobson	Left Defence	Clancy
Barrie	Rover	Heard
Jackson	Centre	Armstrong
A. Primeau	Right Wing	O'Brien
Hemming	Left Wing	F. Primeau

The league leaders defeated the Plumbers 4—0 in the second game last night, after a lively clash, in which both teams showed some good speed.

The opening stages of the engagement were interesting in the extreme, the Bankers bombarding Cook, who was lent by the Examiner team, defended the nets for the Plumbers in a fierce manner, and it was due to his stellar work that the figures were not much larger. The Test combination repeatedly brought the puck down the ice, and the result was a good deal of skirmishing at the Plumbers' goal, marked by fierce checking on the part of the losers.

Cook stood the fire well, but finally the Bankers managed to slip one by him, a few minutes before the rest. At half-time the score was still 1—0.

In the second half the Plumbers again failed to find the nets, while the busy forward line of the Test banged in three goals, making the final count 4—0.

The teams lined up as follow:

Test Room.		Plumbers.
Dwyer	Goal	Cook
Brackenreed	Right Defence	Millette
McKean	Left Defence	Reynolds
McDougall	Rover	Logan
Carter	Centre	Nelson
Boone	Left Wing	Clarke
Munro	Right Wing	Dunford

Of Ottawa College, who will play goal for the Old Boys, a week from Saturday.

Benefit Game Will Be Played February 21st Strong Team Coming

Saturday, February 21st has been arranged as the date of the big benefit hockey game between the Peterborough O.H.A. team and a picked team of Peterborough old boys, the entire proceeds being given to Charley Ray, one of the most popular players who ever wore a Peterborough uniform, and the son of one who has for many years been a prominent, loved and respected figure in Peterborough sports, Mr. Sam Ray.

Pete Campbell has charge of the All Star old boys and the line-up will include Leo Derocher of Ottawa College, Frank Heffernan of T. R. and A. A., Harold Parker, captain of the Hamilton Junior O.H.A. team, Harold Matthews of R. M. C., Ken Crane and Hugh Burritt of the Argonauts, Harold Morrow and Harry Clancy of the Toronto Bank League, and Pete Campbell of Varsity. Frequently substitution will be allowed, and all the old boys will get a chance in the game. Jack Maynard, the former 'Varsity Rugby player, will referee the game, and a large number of old boys will be down from Toronto for the game.

Tickets will be placed on sale immediately and no doubt there will be a reedy response.

The committee selected to arrange for the game with the Old Boys is composed of the following:

R. Neill (chairman), W. H. Denham, Dr. McPherson, R. Dobie, H. R. Kenner, P. Campbell, F. M. DelaFosse, L. J. Picard, J. J. Thompson, George Lynch, F. D. Craig, C. E. Curtis, C. H. Clementi, W. H. Walker, J. P. Bond (secy.-treas.), W. M. Lang.

HUGH BURRITT,

Rover of the Argonaut Seniors, and formerly of the local Seniors, who will be on the forward line of the star Old Boys in the benefit game.

CHARLEY RAY

For whose benefit the game between the Peterborough Old Boys and the present team is being staged.

A FEW OF THE LEADING TEAMS WERE FORCED TO RETIRE

A Battle Royal Was Fought at Newcastle, Where the United Won Out by an Odd Goal Decision--Comment From the Football Camps

A few of the leading teams in the First Division had to retire defeated on Saturday, though the actual leaders (Blackburn Rovers) downed Derby County, at Derby. Sunderland, who are in second place, lost to Sheffield United, at Sheffield, while Manchester United were beaten by the "Spurs" at Tottenham. A battle royal was fought at Newcastle, where the "United" just got an odd goal decision over Bolton Wanderers. Burnley took the "Athletics" from Oldham into camp, and whitewashed them 3 goals to 0. Hyde Road was the scene of a battle of the roses and the Red Rose boys defeated their White Rose rivals from the neighburing County by 1 goal to 0. Manchester City are now beginning to creep up the table, and this victory over Bradford will help to save them from relegation to the Second Division. The "Villans" had the "Albions" from West Bromwich as visitors, and administered a 3 to 0 defeat on them. The tail-enders of the league, Preston North End, played a 3 to 3 tie with Chelsea at Preston.

Notts County still lead the Second Division while their town mates, the "Forest" grace the cellar position. The former team defeated Clapton Saturday by 3 goals to 0, and the latter tied with the "Babes," at Huddersfield, each team scoring one. The "Peacocks" got a bad beating by the hand of "Fosse," at Leicester and had to return to Leeds with a 5 to 1 chalked up against them. Four tie games were played in the division on Saturday.

Miscellaneous.

When the Queen's Park (Glasgow played in the English Cup they reached the semi-final four times, but made no money out of it. What a financial difference they would find if they could repeat the performance.

Up to their victory over Newcastle had not survived the first round of the cup-ties for seven seasons. United lost large of their goals, however, after their forces had been reduced to eight. Talk about the "slings and arrows" etc., Newcastle know what misfortune is.

There is no more popular man in the Swindon side than Harold Fleming, and none more dangerous. We read of him being smothered with carcasses while the spectators shouted themselves hoarse on the scoring of the goal that dismissed Manchester United from the cup competition. It was different at Bolton, however.

It is ten years since Everton failed to emerge successfully from the first round. Their last cropper at the opening stage was on February 6th, 1904, when they fell to Tottenham Hotspur.

Shaw, of Glasgow Celtic, has faced three penalty kicks this season, and has saved them all.

Only two clubs have accomplished the double feat of winning both the League championship and the F. A. Cup in the same season, Preston North End in 1888-9, and Aston Villa in 1896-7.

Probably the least-known fact in the history of the Football Association Cup is that a semi-final has been played in Scotland. Twenty-nine seasons ago Notts Forest and Queen's Park drew at Derby, and the second meeting took place at Mcrchiston Park, Edinburgh.

It is reported in Scotland that an English club is quite prepared to give $10,000 for Reid of Airdrienonians.

It is said that Forfar Athletic received a cheque for $1,500 from Sheffield Wednesday for David McLean's Association papers.

Orillia Rinks Defeated by 43 Shots Yesterday---Four Local Rinks Played in Northern Town, and Four Orillia Rinks Invaded the Local Rink.

Defeating the eight Orillia rinks at home in the asylum town yesterday by 43 shots, the local curlers carried off the Neill-Sheppard trophy, the handsomest silver cup battled for in this district. Emerging from the games here with a majority of 23 shots, and from the battles in Orillia with a lead of 20 shots, the local curlers may well feel satisfied with the result of the games. The Neill-Sheppard cup is the fourth annexed by the local curlers this season. They have not been defeated in any series of cup games thus far this winter. Four local rinks played in Orillia, and four Orillia rinks in this City:

May Irwin is said to be considering a dramatization of one of Charles Dickens' stories, in which one of his humorous women characters will be adapted for the stage.

It is said a musical version of one of America's most widely read stories, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," has been completed by Arthur Pryor, a well known Chicago bandmaster.

Harrison Grey Fiske has signed contracts for a new play in which Mrs. Fiske will be seen next autumn. It is an eighteenth century costume comedy by John Luther Long and Frank Staunton.

William A. Brady has entered the moving picture field as a film producer. Among his plays which will be seen in the "movies" are "Way Down East," "Bought and Paid For," "Trilby," "The Man of the Hour," "Little Women" and "The Pit."

Word has been received in New York from Haddon Chambers that he has arranged for the immediate production of "The Tyranny of Tears" at the Comedy Theatre, London, with Ethel Irving, Evelyn Daleroy, Robert Loraine and Alfred Bishop in the cast.

Edgar Selwyn, the author of "The Country Boy" and a number of other pieces that have been more than ordinarily successful, has written a new play called "Rolling Stones." It depicts the adventures of two wanderers living by their wits.

To-day I cannot pass her by
Without a sad regretful feeling;
There are some solemn facts that I
Shall make no effort at concealing:
The confidence that once was mine
Has been reduced somewhat and shaken;
Her look is proud, her raiment fine;
I scorned her once—but was mistaken.

What foolish things we do in youth,
How oft we miss the splendid chances;
Blind to our interests, in truth,
We pass Good Luck with cold, proud glances.
She scorns (my praise for other men's,
She cares not what I may be saying;
Her father has a hundred hens,
And cash of them in heavy lagging.

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 11.—Two men killed and six others injured by jumping about 18 feet from a bridge to the frozen river below, was the result of an accident in the town of Trenton. The westbound C. N. LARGE ADDITION PROPOSED FOR GARBAGE COLLECTION AREA

Central Section of East City, Most of the South Ward and as Far North as Smith Street—Property Committee Ask for Estimate of Cost.

MEETING LAST NIGHT

The Property Committee of the City Council met last night, with Ald. Langford and Mayor Buller, Ald. Duncan, Ald. Stratton and Ald. Saunders present.

The first question introduced was the recommendation from the Board of Health that the area from which garbage is collected be extended.

Sanitary Inspector Spence was present and outlined a section of East City, which was finally adopted, as follows: Bounded on the north by Douro Street, on the east by Concession Street, on the south by Sophia to Burnham to Maria, to the River.

The addition to the section of the City west of the River is proposed as follows: From London Street, north to Smith Street, west to Reid Street, down Reid to London. The present northern boundary is London Street.

The southern boundary west of Park Street is Sherbrooke Street. By the proposed addition this is to be extended to Wolfe Street (the new street secured from the C.G.E. Co.). The rest of the boundaries in the south end are as follows: The east side of Park from Wolfe to Albert Street, south side of Albert to Alfred, Alfred to Chamberlain street, Chamberlain Street from Boundary Road to Park Street, south to Romaine, east to Lock, and north on Lock to Crescent.

With these additions the boundaries of the entire section will be as follows: On the east by the River, part of Crescent Street, Lock Street to Romaine; on the south and west by Romaine to Park, up Park to Chamberlain, to the boundary, returning on a short section of Chamberlain to Alfred, to Albert, up Park to Wolfe to the Boundary Road, north to Elm, east to Reid, north to Smith.

The northern limit will be Smith Street.

Mr. Spence stated that this would increase the number of houses served by 600.

The Committee considered the district with exceeding care. Some sections which it was thought would neither require nor desire the collections were omitted.

Ald. Langford—"If we were to take in the entire south ward the extension would not be much more than now proposed.

Mr. Spence—"You might take in Prince and Princess Streets.

Parnell Street is not included in the addition.

The Method of Collection.

The queston was raised as to how the cost of the work should be met. Last year there was a schedule of charges for residences, restaurants, factories, fruit stores, stores, etc. City Clerk Armstrong stated that the Act had been amended, and it was now required that the necessary money be raised by a tax on the assessed value of the property served, or of the entire property in the City.

It also requires that all the residnces, institutions, etc., in the prescribed area must be served, and must pay for the work. This applies to churches and all other buildings. Church property is already taxed for sewers, sidewalks and other local improvements.

Residents in the section to be added this year will have to pay only 7-12 of the cost of the work during 1914, owing to the fact that the present contract does not terminate until May 31.

What About Factories?

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Stratton expressed the opinion that those who are directly benefitted should pay for the work.

Ald. Langford pointed out that in the case of factories the rate would apply to their assessments and the cost to them would amount to an appreciable sum.

The City Clerk stated that the factories are left out at present. But under the amendment to the law this cannot be done henceforth.

This was one of the considerations in avoiding the C. G. E. plant.

Ald. Duncan stated that the Matthews-Laing Co. wanted to send garbage to the incinerator. It consisted mostly of livers and lights and was refused by the caretaker because of its wetness.

Ald. Langford—"I suppose we will have to take it under the amendment, if the plant is included in the area for collection.

Ald. Duncan—"It seems a hardship that we would have to carry away the burnt sand from the G. Walter Green and Wm. Hamilton foundries.

Ald. Saunders regarded it as garbage.

Ald. Duncan asked if these factories could be left out.

Ald. Langford—"We could leave them out in the same way as the C. G. E.

Mayor Buller—"Can't we go on collecting so much per house?

City Clerk Armstrong—"No."

Mayor Buller — "What about the Lock Works?"

Ald. Langford stated that it might be possible to exclude it. However, the Act aims especially at anything like special favours to manufacturers in this respect.

Leave it to the Board of Works.

Mayor Buller said he felt that the garbage collecting system and the plumbing inspector should be under the Board of Works. The present garbage collectors are not employed all day, and if the City took over the work it might be that the teams would be through by 10.30 a.m. After that they could be turned to other work. The Board of Works is trucking pipe, drawing gravel and engaged in similar activities, and there might be an economical arrangement arrived at if the matter were turned over to the Board.

Ald. Langford—"The garbage collection pertains to the health of the City and is a matter for this committee to deal with."

Ald. Stratton—"Had we not better decide whether we want to do the work by contract or by the City itself.

Mayor Buller moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that the garbage collecting system be handed over to the Board of Works.—Carried.

Ald. Stratton—"I think it would be just as well to wait until we decide what we are going to do."

Mayor Buller—"We can do that on the Board of Works."

Ald. Stratton—Where is the necessity for it?"

Mayor Buller—"I don't see why it was ever given over to the Property Committee."

Ald. Langford — "It seems to me you are loading a lot of work on the Chairman of the Board (Ald. Duncan).

It was suggested that Mr. Spence be asked to make an estimate of the collection in the district as now outlined. The rate has to be struck in a short time, and the cost must be known.

Meanwhile the City Solicitor will be interviewed in regard to factories and other points in the proposed new limits for garbage collection.

Ald. Langford then looked down his list, reading municipal milk depot, public abattoir, small pox hospital, etc. This is hardly in conformity with the idea of economy, he said.

The proposal to license boarding houses was summarily dealt with. The Mayor, Ald. Stratton and Ald. Langford, in fact the whole committee said they did not think this proposal was necessary.

SITUATION IS TENSE.

Expectancy Reigns at Opening of British Commons.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—King George, with the customary state ceremonial, yesterday opened the momentous and historic session of Parliament, which, according to all reasonable probability will see the victorious conclusion of the thirty years' struggle of the Liberal party to give self-government to Ireland. The home rule bill, which is now to be presented in the House of Commons for the third time, will, if carried, receive the royal assent with or without the consent of the House of Lords.

The King's speech, in a grave passage, expressed the earnest desire of His Majesty to attain a settlement by consent, and this desire was fervently echoed by Premier Asquith, in the House of Commons, and Viscount Morley in the House of Lords, in their opening speeches.

Despite the conciliatory tone of both Premier Asquith and Lord Morley, small hope was felt in the lobbies of Parliament last night that the settlement of the home rule question would be reached by consent. The Ministers' attitude clearly shows that the Government will neither consent to appeal to the country nor accept a solution based on the exclusion of Ulster from the operation of the bill.

The Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain just as clearly indicated that the Opposition will accept nothing less than the exclusion of Ulster, unless the Government agrees to an appeal to the country.

Premier Asquith declines to divulge the proposed concessions at the present stage, on the ground that the Opposition would only use the knowledge as a lever to secure still greater concessions.

In the House of Lords Baron Middleton moved an amendment to the the address similar to that moved by Walter Long in the House of Commons. Lord Morley, in replying, followed the same lines as the Premier.

CABINET SHAKE-UP?

British Ministers May Be Moved Around Say Papers.

LONDON, Feb. 11. — Several changes in the Cabinet are foreshadowed to-day, both by The Chronicle and The Daily News. John Burns is to be transferred to the Board of Trade in succession to Sydney Buxton, who has been chosen, though not officially, for the Governor-Generalship of South Africa. Herbert Samuel will retire from the postoffice to succeed John Burns at the Local Government Board Department, which is increasing in importance year by year. Mr. Samuel will be succeeded by Charles E. H. Hobhouse, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. It is uncertain whether Charles Masterman will be appointed to the Duchy.

By leaving the Board of Trade, Sydney Buxton will exchange a salary of £5,000 for one of £10,000. Burns, by succeeding Buxton, receives no financial benefit, but Mr. Samuel, by stepping into the vacancy at the Local Government Board, will get £5,000, instead of £2,500.

Ottawa To Extend Franchise.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—The capital will join in the movement initiated in Toronto to give married women property owners the ballot in municipal elections. An amendment is being sought to the municipal act, and the Board of Control yesterday decided to add the city's request to those already in.

WHAT IS VINOL?

About Which We Hear so Much? Our Druggist Tells You.

After twenty years of study two eminent French chemists discovered a method by which the alkaloids or medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver could be separated from the useless oil or grease. The oil which has no medicinal value is thrown away, but the healing, curative properties are blended with tonic iron and a mild medicinal wine which makes Vinol, thus combining in one medicine the two most world famed tonics.

Vinol is not a secret medicine as its ingredients are printed on every bottle, and in all cases where the healing, curative influence of cod liver oil, or the blood building, strengthening influence of tonic iron is needed, Vinol gives immediate benefit, for it is easily assimilated and acceptable to weakest stomach.

For all run-down, weakened conditions, and to cure chronic coughs, colds and bronchial trouble, Vinol is unexcelled. We will return your money if it fails.

Accused Councillors Refuse to Testify Regarding Corruption

HON. MR. LEMIEUX ON STAND

QUEBEC, Feb. 11.—Face to face with accusation that they sold their votes and influence as members of the Legislative Council of the Province of Quebec, in connection with the famous bill 158, L. P. Berard and Achille Bergevin, ex-members of the council, told yesterday afternoon in unmistakeable language, a committee of their former colleagues, charged with investigating state [illegible] against the honor of their House, that they would make no answer. Both, when summoned, gave the same answer, namely, that they refuse to say anything for fear it might incriminate them.

Counsel asked the former members of the council whether they had been paid money for their votes and their influence in the passage of the bill. They were both discharged without having made any answers.

L. P. Berard was the first of the two accused men to be summoned. Seated at the witness table, with head bowed low, his replies could be heard only a few feet away. Mr. Bergevin adopted the same attitude in regard to questions as Mr. Berard.

The committee of the Legislative Assembly, late last night concluded its inquiry.

In his closing argument, L. T. Marechal, counsel for The Daily Mail, submitted that the charges of bribary had been proved up to the hilt.

N. K. Laflamme, counsel for Mr. Mousseau, who has been unable to appear before the committee on account of illness, claimed that neither the committee nor the assembly could punish the guilty inasmuch as immunity had been voted by the Assembly to the corrupters, therefore, he urged that the same immunity must in equity be accorded to the corrupted.

Mr. Marechal, on the opening of the committee, stated that he had a declaration to make in regard to the position of Messrs. Riddinger and Maloney. He explained that they had left Quebec on receipt of a telephone message, of which neither he nor his clients knew anything. As far as these detectives were concerned, said Mr. Marechal, The Daily Mail's evidence was complete. Every effort had been made to bring them back, but they would not do so under $75 a day and expenses. Therefore he had been asked to say that, if the Government was reluctant to compensate the detectives, The Montreal Daily Mail would guarantee payment of the necessary amounts in order to bring them again before the committee."

In the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon the new charges made by Mr. Edward Beck aroused the graft question to a high pitch of excitement.

These charges, as stated by Mr. Beck before the Assembly committee, were as follows: That he recalled giving to Mr. Maloney a copy of Judge Cannon's report made in 1909 and explained to him its relation to the city government, and also that some men who had been found guilty of malversation in office had crept back into the City Council, and that he thought they were a detriment to the City of Montreal. He gave him in addition a large scrap book compiled from various newspaper clippings concerning legislation attempted and carried through in Quebec and the City of Montreal with reference to the Montreal Tramways Company. Beck says he told Maloney that it was a very common report in Montreal that legislation could be purchased in Quebec, that lawyers whom he named had told him they had themselves in their safes receipted bills from members of this Legislature for efforts that the members had put forth to put through private bills.

Mr. Lavergne said he considered this statement of Mr. Beck's was far worse than the direct accusations of The Daily Mail, because Mr. Beck's statement threw a cloud upon the whole Legislature. He asked the Premier to force Mr. Beck to give the names of the lawyers he referred to and make those lawyers take the responsibility for the statements.

Sir Lomer Gouin said that if somebody would make direct accusations on this subject the situation would be clearer and then they might get down to facts. No action was taken.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux was on the stand before the lower House committee and explained that he had introduced C. P. Carpenter of Gaspe to J. O. Mousseau on the former's request and in the ordinary course of politeness. He knew nothing of the Montreal Fair Bill, and didn't want to, he said.

D. Lorne McGibbon of Montreal testified that it was he who initiated Editor Beck's investigation in the public interest. It had cost him $50,000, with no aid from anyone and no hope of remuneration.

FOR PEACE PROPAGANDA.

Andrew Carnegie Gives Two Millions For Church Campaign.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Andrew Carnegie yesterday gave $2,000,000 to be used through the churches for the promotion of international peace. The income of the fund, about $100,000 a year, will be expended by a board of 26 trustees, representing all the leading religious denominations in the United States.

This gift is in addition to the $10,000,000 foundation established by Mr. Carnegie Dec. 14, 1910, "to hasten the abolition of international war." The announcement was made at the close of a luncheon at Mr. Carnegie's home, attended by the trustees of the new foundation. The trustees organized "The Church Peace Union," which will be incorporated under the laws of New York State.

The income of the fund will be used to organize the moral power of the churches on critical international questions, to circulate peace literature among the clergy, and to bring the annual observance of a "peace Sunday." Conferences of America and Europe will be called to discuss the promotion of peace. When the leading nations abolish war and the fund has fulfilled its purpose the trustees may devote the income to other philanthropic uses.

Glorious Colors For Men Ushered In By Haberdashers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—At the first annual banquet of the Haberdashers' League, held in the Waldorf-Astoria, several of the diners wore blue, green and pink dress waistcoats, declared to be the latest Parisian creations. One member wore a shirt with two rows of fancy ruffles, something after the style of the fichus worn by Beau Brummel. The new peacock and bird of paradise clothes for men are said to echo the prevailing tendency among women of the smart set, who are wearing wigs of pink, green and purple. Conventional black and white for men is expected to disappear within the next two years.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By Elwell Lawrence

SERIAL—CALL ONE . . . . . .

He walked out in the direction Caldwell had taken and expected to find the other recovering from his attack. But he could see or hear nothing to indicate that the man was within a dozen miles. He called, and his voice sounded puny and hollow against the vastness of the sky. He heard no hails in answer, except the long, shrill one which the coyotes gave from a neighbouring rise of ground.

Smithy Caldwell had disappeared.

Larkin returned to Juliet Bissell perplexed, mystified, and disturbed. What possible reason could there be for the quixotic actions of the man he hated more than any other in the world? How did he happen to be received and at perfect ease among a band of desperate rustlers?

How and why? Caldwell presented so many variations on those two themes that Larkin's head fairly swam, and he turned gladly to relieve the situation in which Juliet Bissell now found herself.

CHAPTER X.
WAR WITHOUT QUARTER.

He found her where he had left her, but now she was standing and looking out over the silent prairies, as though searching for someone.

"What are you trying to see" Bud asked.

"I thought father and some of the cowboys would probably follow the sheep once they had started them. Oh, what have I said?"

"I imagined it was they who had done it," said Bud quietly, the full enormity of the thing not yet having sunk deep into his mind. "How did you get mixed up in it?"

"Simply enough," replied Julie. "Late in the afternoon Chuck, one of the men on the eastern range, came riding in and said that your sheep were directly east of the ranch house. Father and Mike Stelton talked a lot about it at supper, and figured up then that the easiest way—well, to teach you a lesson, they called it—was to run them over the bank of the Little River.

"I don't like sheep, Bud, as you know; but that was going too far for me, and I protested, with the result that father took Mike outside with him, quite upset that I said anything at all. Both of them looked black as a silk hat."

"Good little girl!" cried Bud gratefully, and she turned her face directly toward him and smiled; just such a smile, Larkin remembered, as he had seen her use on other soft nights years before, in circumstances so totally different.

"After supper," she continued, "there was a great bustle of getting away, and I grew curious to see what they would do and how. So as soon as they left I saddled by calico and set out after them, keeping about abreast but a couple of miles to the north. The next thing I heard was a terrific lot of shooting and yelling, and the business was done. I don't wonder the sheep were in a panic!

"Then I heard the sound of the stampede, but I did not realize it was driving straight at me. I must have been confused in my idea of where the Little River was. Anyway, before I had time to think about it I realized I was directly in their path and with a very small advantage. I could escape neither to right nor left, for the wings of the running flock were wide, and all I could do was to run my pony as hard as he could go.

"He seemd to know the danger; all cow ponies do, I guess, for I never saw him travel like that in all my life; he stretched so flat along the ground that it almost seemed as though I could reach down and touch it with my hand. You know what such speed as that is at night with the gopher-holes and other ankle-breakers! Well, we took the chance, and Billy actually drew away from the sheep, panicky as they were.

"But I couldn't gain enough to dare to turn to right or left, and I had just about given up hope because the trees were ahead, when I saw the flash and heard the report of your gun. Thank God it was you, Bud. I've never known you to be a coward or to fail in any situation. I can't say how grateful I am for what you have done to-night."

"I assure you I didn't do it, Julie; it was that man who got sick and left us. He's disappeared now."

"Who was he? One of the Bar T punchers?"

"No, it was that fellow Caldwell. Perhaps you don't remember him—he came to the Bar T for supper the same night I did."

"Yes, I remember him," said Julie in a tone out of which all the impetuous warmth had gone. Suddenly in this strange situation she found herself face to face with another chapter in the mystery that baffled her.

"Well, he saved my life to-night, and, though I can't say I admire the fellow very much, I am mighty grateful to him."

"It is strange you two should be together out here when your sheep were somewhere else," hazarded Juliet, looking full at Larkin and expecting some action or word to betray his fear of her suspicions.

"Not at all strange when you know the circumstances," he replied. "Just listen to this tale of adventure. But first I think we had better start walking toward the Bar T ranch house. We ought to meet some of the cowboys. Br-r—it's cold!" and Bud shivered in the piercing chill of the spring night.

To the plainsman walking is the most refined form of punishment. Your real cowboy slouches miserably along in his tight-fitting, uncomfortable, high-heeled boots, looking about as much in his element as a stranded whale. In cowboy parlance his "feet done track," his backbone wilts, and his knees bow naturally as a result of early horseback riding. On solid earth the cowboy is a crestfallen and dejected object.

As the two trudged along beneath the calm stars that had seen a thousand stampedes since the millions of buffalo roared up and down its length, Larkin told Juliet of the events that had occurred since they had said farewell at the fork of Grassy Creek. At the mention of the rustlers and the activities they were carrying on the girl gave a little, low cry.

"Father must hear that," she said. "He would give a lot to have descriptions of those men."

"He couldn't give me back two thousand sheep and lambs," rejoined Bud bitterly.

"No, but I think he would give you their value."

"Yes, and stampede it into another gully when I brought it across his range. Juliet, I'm not done with this thing. I'll fight your father or any other man that ever heard a calf bawl for milk, until I get my rights on the free range."

Larkin's voice was deep and full-throated with the righteous anger that surged through him over the outrage that had been wrought that night.

As for the girl, she did not recognize this Bud Larkin. The man she had known had been one of gay pleasantries, but rather ineffectual endeavours: this man who spoke was one to whom his will was his law, and obstacles merely helps because of their strengthening of his determination. For the first time she saw the Bud Larkin that had developed in the last year, and a kind of admiring thrill at the mental stature of the man went through her.

And yet she knew that war—hard, tenacious, ugly war—war without quarter, mercy, or respite, was irrevocably declared between Larkin and her father; and, even in her instinctive loyalty to her house, she had to admit that Bud was justified.

"Oh, I wish you would give the whole thing up!" she said plaintively. "It will only result in ruin to everybody."

Larkin laughed harshly.

"I'll never give it up until I am either dead or haven't a dollar left," he replied. "I'm determined to have my rights in this matter, and I shall have them whatever the cost."

For a time there was silence between them, each realizing that further discussion could only prove unhappy.

They had gone about two miles from the scene of the stampede when suddenly a man appeared close in front of them and commanded them to halt.

"Hello, Sims!" cried Larkin joyfully, recognizing the other's voice, but at the same time hoisting his hands above his head.

"Well, chief," said the herder imperturbably, returning his revolver to its holster, "I allow your vacation has cost you a lot of money."

Bud then outlined his experiences briefly, concluding with his story of the stampede, and Sims whistled in amazement, his one method of expressing astonishment.

"Well, what's the story now?" Bud asked.

Juliet had walked ahead when the two men met, and now Larkin dropped far enough behind to be out of earshot and yet keep the girl dimly in sight.

Hurriedly, for him, Sims related the story of the ill-fated expedition up to the time of the stampede. He and the herders had put up what defence they could, he said, and, as a result, two of his men were dead and the others scattered. However, he expected they would return to the now deserted camp.

"I want you to take them back south to the Badwater River," ordered Larkin. "The second flock ought to be there by this time, but I want you to hold them there. In two days the boys from Montana ought to be down, and when you're ready to start north you will have force enough to fight any bunch of cowboys old Bissell can scrape together."

"But if we don't move that flock out right away the others will come and pile up there, and then we shore will have our hands full."

"All right, let 'em pile up. We'll get 'em through just the same. Now, Sims, we are in this thing for blood from now on, and don't you forget it for a minute."

"Trust me, boss," drawled the herder. "Are you comin' down to join us?"

"Yes, if I can. As soon as I get Miss Bissell into safe hands I'll come. But don't count on me; I may never get there. Do whatever you think best, but bring those sheep through. And tell the herders and the boys from the north that while this trouble is on I'll pay them five dollars a day apiece."

"Shore, they'd rassle the devil himself for that," commented Sims.

"And you get ten," supplemented Larkin. "Now go ahead and make all preparations the way you think best. Everything is in your hands."

Sims faded from sight noiselessly, and Larkin hurried forward to overtake Juliet. They had not been together five minutes when the rapid trotting of horses was heard ahead, and Larkin, taking the chance of falling into evil hands, called out to the travellers.

"Who's there?" came a gruff voice, accompanied by the click of hammers drawn back.

"Oh, father, it's I—Juliet!" cried the girl, recognizing the speaker and running toward him.

There was a surprised exclamation out of the darkness and the sound of a man vaulting from the saddle. The next moment and he had clasped his daughter in his arms.

Larkin, his mission completed, started to back away from the scene, but the girl herself wrecked this intention.

"It was Mr. Larkin who called out," she said, evidently in answer to a question. "He saved my life, father, and he has brought me safely back. He is standing right over there."

At this Bud turned and ran, but the sound of a pony closing in on him brought him to a stop.

"Well, what do you want?" he demanded angrily.

"Bissell wants to see you," said the rider, whose voice the sheepman recognized as that of Shelton.

Not deigning to enter an argument with the foreman, Bud walked back to where Bissell stood beside his horse.

"Now the sheep are out of the way, if you want to learn anything about rustlers I guess our friend here can tell you," remarked Stelton suddenly, in a voice exultant as it was ugly.

"Oh, yes, father," added Juliet, "he's been with them for almost two days."

"Is this so, Mr. Larkin?" asked Bissell.

"Yes."

"Well, we won't discuss it now," said the cowman. "Let's go back to the ranch house and get something to eat. I have an extra horse here, Larkin, if you care to ride."

"I don't care to, thanks," answered Bud dryly. "Since you have ruined me, you will do me a favour by letting me go."

"I allow I'd like to do you a favor," rejoined Bissell with equal courtesy, "but I've got to find out about them rustlers. We won't keep yuh long."

"Come on, get up on that horse," said the voice of Stelton close beside him, and Bud turned to look into the long barrel of the foreman's gun that was stuck under his nose.

Trembling with suppressed fury, he did as he was told, but on the ten-mile ride to the Bar T ranch said nothing, and only revolved in his mind one question: How did Stelton know he had been with the rustlers before Julie had said anything about them

TORPOR OF THE TURK.

Shown In a Quaint Reason For Not Delivering a Message.

An interview in the New York Sun between one of its reporters and Mr Bedros Keljik bears humorously on the Turkish situation and seems to indicate that what is needed is not increased political activity, but more attention to business. As an illustration of the everyday torpor one of the experiences of Dr Riza Tewfik, member of parliament for Adrianople, with a Turkish official may be cited.

Dr. Tewfik was visiting a friend at Kade Kouy, across the Bosporus. About 10 o'clock at night he heard the watchman call, "Yangin var, Galata yangin var!" ("There is fire, there is fire in Galata"). The usual alarm given when fire breaks out in any quarter.

It happened that Dr Tewfik's own home was in Galata and he rushed to the nearest telegraph office to inquire concerning the safety of his family. He received no answer to his telegram, and his fears were raised. But as no boats cross the Bosporus at night he was obliged to wait till morning.

He got home at last to find everything safe. When he asked why his family had not answered the telegram he was told that they had not received any. So Dr Tewfik went to the telegraph office and demanded an explanation.

One Osman Agha, to whom Dr. Tewfik's telegram had been given for delivery, was called.

"Where is the effendi's telegram?"

Osman Agha fumbled in his pockets and drew forth the message.

"Why did you not deliver it?" demanded Dr Tewfik angrily.

"Oh, effendi," answered the imperturbable Osman Agha, who had evidently perused the telegram to his own satisfaction, "it was needless. I knew that your house was not on fire."

Breathing Impure Air Poisoning the System

Particularly during the winter season the blood becomes loaded with poisonous waste matter as the result of artificial foods and the breathing of impure air in stuffy, overheated rooms.

Elimination of poisons from the blood depends entirely on the condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels, and by awakening and invigorating these filtering organs, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are of inestimable value as a means of purifying the blood and thereby removing the cause of much pain and serious disease.

By curing constipation of the bowels and sluggish, torpid condition of the liver and kidneys this treatment removes the cause of indigestion, headaches, biliousness, backache, kidney derangements and liver complaint. Besides being a cure for the most complicated disorders of this kind Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are invaluable as a family regulator to overcome the annoying everyday ills which if neglected are sure to bring serious disorders such as appendicitis, rheumatism, and Bright's Disease.

Curbing Oil Promoters.

For the first time in the history of the west, the civic bodies of a city have taken a stand to restrain the advent of capital to the district. In every other case it has been a question of using every endeavor to attract investment. Calgary has taken the step. The purpose of this seemingly strange move was to curtail the activities of a horde of irresponsible promoters who were preparing to take advantage of the rich oil indications and flood the country with worthless stocks. A policy has been adopted to develop the oil resources on a sane and conservative basis and to prevent as far as possible sensational reports gaining circulation that are not warranted by conditions.

A Source of Glory.

All Scotsmen take a pride in their native land, but none more than the old gardener of Duddingston, of whom the New York Tribune tells the following story:

The gardener was showing to a tourist the beauties of the loch and of the little village. It was evening, and as he expiated on the lovely scene and on the glories of his country, the moon rose over a hill.

The old man stopped short in the middle of a speech and gazed at the moon in admiration.

After a moment he turned to the tourist and said: "There's a moon for ye! I tell ye, mon, we're a grand nation!"

Sharks and Divers.

The fully equipped modern diver does not dread sharks in the depths, though there are cases on record where these monsters have bitten savagely at the air pipe, causing a serious leak and almost drowning the man before he could be hauled up. Sharks are, however, notoriously timid, and all the experienced diver has to do to frighten them away is to open one of the air valves in his dress and cause a stream of bubbles to rise up all around him, whereupon the "tiger of the deep" will make off in abject terror.

Their Hope.

"I shouldn't think there would be any difficulty in renting haunted houses to actors."

"Why not?"

"Because actors like to see the ghost walk."

Cause and Effect.

A man may weigh his words and yet
May find they have no weight.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE TALISMAN

Young Mrs. Holt was in bad humour as she walked down the street. Every little while she had to take out her handkerchief to wipe away the stupid tears that filled her eyes.

How could Richard ever have the heart to talk to her as he had done? They had been married only a year and now he already behaved as if he were the master and she the slave. She had never thought that they would be unkind to one another, but of course, she would not remain silent when he came home from the office in bad humour, so her replies were sharp and biting.

Again she wiped her tears away, for coming toward her at the next corner she saw her late mother's friend, her own godmother, Mrs. Berner.

Mrs. Berner immediately noticed Julie's red eyes and made up her mind to find out what was the matter, not from curiosity, but because she was fond of her goddaughter and wanted to help her if she could.

"Come home and have a cup of coffee," she said. "Mary has just baked some cakes."

Julie accepted, and a moment later they were sitting in Mrs. Berner's cosy flat, enjoying Mary's home-made cakes.

"Mary is a jewel," she said. "I wonder if Richard would find fault with this coffee and cakes, too."

"So he is not satisfied with your servant's cooking?" Mrs. Berner asked, with a smile.

"He is not satisfied with anything any more," Julie answered, and burst into tears.

"But what has happened, my dear girl?"

"Oh, I am so unhappy. Richard does not love me any more."

"What do you say?" Doesn't he love you any more?"

"No, I am sure he doesn't, or he would not talk to me as he does." And she told about several of their latest quarrels.

"But are you quite sure that you are not to blame a little bit yourself?"

"I know I am not," said Julie, with determination. "but, of course, I cannot always be gay and jolly when he sulks and is unreasonable. There will be no happiness for me in life any more."

"Now, that is nonsense, my dear. I am sure your husband loves you as much as ever, but you are ruining your own happiness quarrelling over trifles."

"But what do you want me to do?"

"I will help you, dear," said Mrs. Berner. "I will lend you a talisman."

"A talisman?"

"Yes," here it is," said Mrs. Berner, and handed Julie an old-fashioned bracelet.

"What do you mean when you say it is a talisman?"

"I will tell you. When I had been married about a year I, too, imagined that my husband did not love me, because we sometimes quarrelled. Then my mother gave me this bracelet and told me to wear it always. She told me that when we were about to quarrel I must turn it three times before I answered my husband and then my answer would be such that there would be no quarrel. It has helped me many times and I hope it will help you, too."

Julie thanked her very much, but put no faith in the bracelet.

When she came home there was a strange smell of something burning. With trembling heart she went out into the kitchen. Her fears were realised. The roast had been burnt and the servant was talking to a friend on the kitchen stairs.

When Richard came home for dinner he had unfortunately brought a friend, and as the dinner was rather spoiled his humour was not the best when he was alone with his wife afterward.

"It was disgraceful to offer Miller a dinner like the one you served to-night," he said angrily.

Julie came very near losing her temper and was about to give him a hot answer, but at the last moment she remembered the talisman, and while she turned the bracelet thrice she thought how annoying it must be to Richard to have his friend discover what a bad housekeeper his wife was, and she answered very gently:

"I am very sorry, Dick, but I shall be very careful not to let it happen again."

Richard looked up in surprise, and then came over and kissed her and said that of course it was wrong of him to get cross.

One morning a few days later when Julie entered the dressing room she found her husband standing at the closet looking very much annoyed.

"You have not had my grey suit sent to the tailor to be pressed," he growled. "Why have you not done so?"

"Because I am not your slave," Julie was about to answer, but again she remembered the bracelet and also that Richard had several times asked her to send out the suit, but she had thoughtlessly forgotten it.

"Do not be angry, Dick dear," she said. "I know it's a shame that I have forgotten it, but I shall send it to the tailor to-day."

Richard again looked at her, greatly surprised, but she pretended not to notice it.

"Well, it really does not matter so very much, dear. To-day will do just as well."

* * * * *

A week later Julie visited her godmother. She looked as happy as during her honeymoon, and Mrs. Berner told her so.

"Well, godmother, I do feel as if I were having a second honeymoon. I know that Dick loves me as much as he ever did."

"And how did you discover that?"

"It was the talisman you gave me."

"Then it has brought you luck?"

"Indeed it has. I have brought it back, as I do not need it any more."

"Are you quite sure?"

"Quite. I have discovered its secret." Julie laughed. "One of my own bracelets will do just as well now that I know the truth of the old word 'A soft answer turneth away wrath,' but I thank you all the same.

Darken Grey Hair, Look Young, Pretty

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens so Naturally That Nobody Can Tell

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or grey; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay grey! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

Some sensible Facts For the Guidance of Teamsters

Lead lightly and drive slowly.

Stop in the shade, if possible.

Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working water in moderate quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still.

When he comes in after work sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet, but not his legs.

If the thermometer is seventy-five degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a wet sponge. Use vinegar water, if possible. Do not turn the hose on him.

Saturday night, give a bran mash, cold; and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.

Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is a canopy top hat. The ordinary bell shaped hat does more harm than good.

A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry, it is worse than nothing.

If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him four ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirit of nitre, in a pint of water, or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or if necessary, chopped ice wrapped in cloth.

If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats, mixed with bran, and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

How to Shed a Rough, Chapped or Blotchy Skin

(From Beauty's Mirror)

This is what you should do to shed a bad complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax. Let this stay on over night, washing it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how soiled or withered the complexion. The wax literally absorbs the filmy surface skin, exposing the lovely young skin beneath. The process is entirely harmless, so little of the old skin coming off at a time. Mercolized wax is obtainable at any drug store; one ounce usually suffices. It's a veritable wonder-worker for rough, chapped, reddened, blotchy, pimpled, freckled or sallow skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for a wrinkled skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half-pint witch hazel makes a refreshing wash-lotion. This renders the skin quite firm and smooth; indeed, the very first application erases the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.

CREED FOR A FARMER

I believe in a permanent agriculture, a soil that shall grow richer rather than poorer from year to year.

I believe in 100-bushel corn and 50-bushel wheat, and I shall not be satisfied with anything else.

I believe that the only good weed is a dead weed, and that a clean farm is as important as a clean conscience.

I believe in the farm boy and in the farm girl, the farmer's best crops and the future's best hope.

I believe in the farm woman, and will do all in my power to make her life easier and happier.

I believe in a country school that prepares for country life, and a country church that teaches its people to love deeply and live honorably.

I believe in community spirit, a pride in home and neighbors, and I will do my part to make my community the best in the province.

I believe in the farmer, I believe in farm life, I believe in the inspiration of the open country.

I am proud to be a farmer, and I will try earnestly to be worthy of the name.—Frank I. Mann.

Some Hog Pointers

A dry pen and a dry bed are essential to thrift in pigs.

Leaves make good bedding, but straw is much better.

Don't keep the breeding sows or the growing pigs on a plank floor all winter.

Give them a yard in which to exercise on the sunny side of the pig house.

Bank the pig house well so there will be no drafts under or on the floors.

Drafts are fatal to hogs, causing rheumatism, pneumonia and other ills.

Hogs often have sore throat, quinsy, etc., from exposure to drafts and cold.

If your pigs squeal they are either cold, hungry or uncomfortable in some way.

Find the cause and remove it, if you wish to prevent loss.

Satisfied profitable pigs will grunt but they do not squeal.

Keep the pigs clean and they will be healthy.

Did you ever study economy in feeding hogs? Good work for the winter season. May be made very profitable, too.

WEATHER PROPHETS

Cat's fur is full of electricity, and before a thunderstorm a cat is always extremely lively and playful, probably on account of its electrical condition. Before rain is expected you will see a cat assiduously washing its face.

Donkeys will bray loudly and continuously at the approach of a storm. If cows lie down in the early morning instead of feeding, or huddle together with their tails to windward, then there is rain about. Like cats, the approach of a thunderstorm makes cows extremely frisky. They run up and down the field and butt imaginary obstacles at such times.

Sheep turn their heads to the wind when the day is going to be fine. But if they graze with their tails to windward it is a sure sign of rain, so experienced shepherds say. Like cows, too, they show an unusual liveliness at the approach of a storm. Even the sedate pig is watched by country weather prophets, for it is always uneasy when rain is coming.

Most birds are restless when a change is expected. Rain is indicated by guinea-fowls and peacocks squalling, by parrots whistling, and by pigeons returning home unusually early.

6 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Mercer, Cameron, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and hands and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Remarkable Headgear

This lady has trimmed her bonnet with the costliest trimming in the world—trimmed with her baby!

Strictly speaking, however, the contrivance on her head is not a bonnet. It's the baby's basket.

This custom of carrying baby, basket and all on the head, is a custom of the Baralong tribe in South Africa. The basket is made of reeds, bound around with goat's skin. The inside, however, is thickly laid with downy feathers, so that baby has a beautifully soft nest.

Turning the Point.

In describing his own wedding, the author of "A Retrospect of Forty Years" records the remark of a guest, of which he well says: "For genuine Quaker wit, this will be found hard to match."

I must relate a striking salutation that the bridal couple received from a Quaker client of mine, a shrewd dry-goods merchant. Presented by an usher, he surveyed the bride, whom he had never seen before, and then, with the utmost deliberation, proceeded to say:

"William, I think thy bride has shown more judgment in her choice than thou hast."

Fortunately, before I could turn to resent this strange salutation, he continued as follows:

"Because it takes some penetration to discover thy good qualities, but hers can be seen at a glance."

Participating vs. Non-Participating LIFE ASSURANCE

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a prominent Merchant on George St. took out a 10 pay 15 year Endowment Policy No. 69979, for $2000 on his life at age 45 in the Sun Life of Canada, premium $189.50.

Had this man taken a Non-Par Policy his Premium would have been $172.50 or $17.00 per year less.

Participating Results		Non-Par Results
$2637.75	Total Cash 1st Dec. last	$2000.00
1895.00	Total premiums paid	1726.00
742.75	Amount received over that pd. in	275.00
Almost 40 p.c.	Percentage returned over Premium paid	almost 16 p.c.
1299.70	or, Cash returned and a paid up Policy of $2000	661.25

Now this man paid $17.00 per year for 10 years only, or $170.00 all told and it yielded him $637.75 in profits. Just figure out what rate of interest that is on the $17.00 per year, paid extra for profits, and see if you would not like to invest a few dollars at the same rate. If so, Call at or 'Phone the Sun Life Office, 402 Water Street.

The above Policy-holder thinks he had a splendid result. Don't you?

The STRANGE "SUPPLY"

By Clara Morris

(Copyright, 1914, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

ALTHOUGH she has long been incapacitated and unable to pursue the profession which originally yielded her fame and fortune, Clara Morris continues to follow her later vocation of authorship with fortitude that defies severest adversity. The following story is the latest piece of fiction bearing her name. It gains added interest from the fact that the writer not only is bedridden, but has been afflicted with partial blindness. Miss Morris dictated the tale to her husband, Mr. F. C. Marriott.

THE Rev. John Merling was away on his vacation. He was not a man of many holidays, for this was his first in four years of almost ceaseless labor. Even so, he had raised objections, made arguments against leaving his church, until Dr. Woodward had in curt, authoritative words declared:—"You may just choose between a vacation or a complete breakdown, sir. Now, not an 'if' nor a 'but' in the matter." And after that the reverend gentleman had been overwhelmed with calls, goodbys, good wishes and many bethboned gifts, that were as nameless as they were useless to their embarrassed recipient, who shortly turned his back upon the church for which he had done so much.

When John Merling had entered upon his pastorate he had found everything at sixes and sevens, the church, reeling under a load of debt, was in a veritable state of disintegration, its membership cruelly shrunken, its young people drawn away to other more attractive places of worship, but there was an old guard of loyal members to back his efforts, and so, full of love and faith and determination, he had stripped off his coat and gone to work.

From the first success attended his efforts. He won back the young people, whose affection and enthusiasm he had need of; his pulpit work was most satisfactory to his congregation, and almost as soon as he was warm in his place he had with a sort of furious energy attacked the debt. It had been a long pull and a hard pull, but inasmuch as they had all pulled together they finally dragged the crushing load from the overburdened church and now it stood secure, without a financial stain.

The increasing membership—at no time sensational—had been moderate but continuous, seeming to show the church in a natural and healthy condition. And yet the eyes of John Merling were sad eyes—the heart of John Merling was bitter within him.

The satisfaction of his people was utter and complete. They liked him; they were proud of the church. Well to do, well clothed, well fed, well warmed, yet some Sunday mornings as they spread out before him with empty eyes and absent minds, but wearing a faint, fixed smile meant as an assurance of attention, they seemed to him to be sunk into an almost bovine contentment. And when elderly men cautiously consulted corpulent gold watches—dinner being still safe—John Merling felt at times a passionate resentment at his failure to hold them. He longed to cry out upon his people:—

"You are church members, but you are not Christians! Which of you really loves Christ—exalts His name or follows His sacred footsteps?"

So sorely did these doubts weigh upon him that he was seized with a desire to arouse, to awaken, to shake these men and women from their contented ignorance of higher, holier, more divinely beautiful things. Then when on the Sabbath before his departure he had escaped from the crowded vestibule and the smiles and the compliments and congratulations upon the sermon, he sought refuge in his dusky study, buried his face in his hands, and, with pale lips, exclaimed:—"My God and my Father, I have not known how to knock at the doors of their hearts forcefully and skilfully enough! I am come from the pulpit and have left it cold as the grave! Oh, how have I missed the way? Show me the light before it is too late, and I be proved an unworthy servant!" And that was why the Rev. John Merling had gone so heavily upon his vacation.

Meantime—though he had been gone but three weeks—his people were fretting and grumbling, and beyond all else complaining of the quality of the 'supplies' provided by the main office to fill the absent pastor's place.

"Three ministers in three weeks!" groaned Sister Hanlon. "What will Brother Merling think of us?"

"By the way, Mrs. Hanlon," asked Miss Connie Roberts, "whom will to-morrow's 'supply' dine with, do you know?"

"I can only guess, my dear. If he seems a valiant trencherman who may enjoy his food, Dr. and Mrs. Woodward will entertain him, for they certainly have the best cook in town. But if our visitor is faddy, a diety sort of person, of course Mrs. Wilson will take him in tow."

"But," objected Miss Roberts, "how will they know that he diets?"

"They won't," smiled Mrs. Hanlon, "but Mrs. Wilson will; she has had fifteen years' experience with her husband, who is in that way."

"Poor Mrs. Wilson! Oh, Mrs. Lewis ran in to see mamma an hour ago. She said the dear old elder had gone to the city, in all this heat, to invite the new 'supply' to come up and pass the night at his house, and so save himself a blazing train ride in the morning before service."

"Is he not the dearest old man?" exclaimed Mrs. Hanlon. "And our church is the very apple of his eye. Well, I must run!" Then, as they reached the porch, "Oh, that late white rose of yours is just in bloom! How exquisite it is! The only perfectly stainless white to the heart rose I ever saw! You dedicated it to the church, didn't you not, dear?"

"Yes, and if Mr. Merling were home there would be white roses on the pulpit's desk to-morrow morning."

"But, my dear, you meant the beauty and fragrance of your roses to be an expression of your love for God, not for this creature, however dear? Remember, 'the servant is not greater than the master.'"

Little Miss Roberts hung her head like a reproved child, but made no answer, and Mrs. Hanlon took her leave.

Early next morning the Woodwards and the Roberts people heard that the "supply" had not passed the night at the elder's house, but would come directly to the church from the depot. The name of the expected minister was the Rev. Mr. Brewster, and he was said to be aggressive, very modern and up to date. That was all that was known of him, since Elder Lewis had not succeeded in seeing him at the city office.

The heat was great, but the church was full. The outer doors stood wide open, as did the windows. The congregation was growing restless as it sat staring at the empty pulpit, where the tightly closed Bible and hymn book created an impression inhospitable and stern, softened not by the presence of a single flower.

Mrs. Woodward whispered to a front pew, "There won't be an unspoiled dinner in the parish if this goes on much longer"—and then the organ suddenly took command, and soft and sweet the opening notes of a voluntary came throbbing through the silence.

Meanwhile two or three of the church officials had stolen out to the vestibule, where they compared timepieces, and eagerly watched all male passersby. One old gentleman, all hatless as he was, descended the church steps to question a boy as to whether he had heard of any railroad accident that morning.

"No, boss, not between here and the city. They say there's a freight wreck beyant."

The music ended, the following silence was nerve straining. Then Elder Lewis opened the inner swinging door and moved slowly up to the aisle, and every one saw by his face that he was about to dismiss them. But before he reached the pulpit some one touched his arm, calling his attention to a beckoning hand at the door, and he hastily returned to the vestibule, expecting a message, but this was what had happened.

The two anxious old watchers outside suddenly noticed a rapidly moving young man, who, though wearing a battered straw hat, had on a suit of black. As he came in line with the church, seeing the doors wide open, he paused and looked inside. In that moment one of the watchers noticed a high straight cut waistcoat, the other discovered a roman collar. It was enough. They grasped and dragged the stranger up the steps; one took off the disreputable hat, and after a stammering and vain effort to recall the name of Brewster, he baldly proceeded:—"Make haste, sir; make haste! Your congregation is waiting for you!" Meanwhile the other official was mopping back Elder Lewis.

"My—er—my congregation?" stammered the stranger. "I—I—er—have no charge. I—er"——

"I understand—you are our 'supply,' and we have been waiting long."

Next moment Elder Lewis had grasped the stranger's hand and dragging him to the door he held aside. "Look," he said, "there is the empty pulpit waiting for you."

"Waiting for me?" stammered the new comer. "For—for me?"

At that he threw back his shoulders and with head high he moved swiftly forward, mounted the steps, stood a moment in silent prayer, then holding out both hands in a gesture of invitation, said clearly, "Let us pray."

All knelt or bowed themselves forward, and presently were agreeably surprised at the mild invocation. He did not assume that shocking air of familiarity with the Deity so much too common in pulpits. His attitude toward his Lord seemed combined of tenderest love and profoundest awe. His prayer was brief and earnest, and afterward people recalled how he had implored for himself grace of speech, a touch of divine fire that he might move closed hearts to open and receive the sacred message of the day.

As soon as he was on his feet he took the hymn book briskly, opened it, ruffled the pages, bent close to them; then suddenly he cast the book from him and turning his head sharply away closed his lids after the manner of a man who has suffered from his eyes. Before the flush had faded from his face he said:—"Let us sing hymn number six—hymn six hundred and sixteen," and then, as if fearing the hymn might not bear the same number in all books, smiled brightly and clearly sang the line, "I need Thee every hour," and instantly the organ responded.

People exchanged surprised glances as they sang and thought this is the strangest "supply" yet, as they noted the tall, boyish figure, the close cropped, wavy brown hair, the beardless face, in which the blood rose and sank sensitively, and the blue-gray eyes that seemed sternly penetrating in looking from so young a face.

The hymn ended, the young preached advanced to the desk, and with quick, practised hand opened the great Bible, turned the leaves, paused, passed his hand across his forehead, bent down close to the book, then slammed it shut, and again with closed lids turned his face away, while a pained red spread over it.

A moment's halt, then he faced his hearers and calmly announced:—"The service to-day may necessarily be somewhat abbreviated, but if our thoughts are on things divine, our hearts with our God, the altered form of service will matter little. You will not hear the Word read to-day, but you will not miss it much. Ah, you think you will, but you are in error! If Bibles were rare and difficult to obtain, if you came here trembling with eagerness to hear the sacred Word, to be amazed by its wisdom, impressed by its sternness, charmed by its beauty and thrilled to the heart by its glorious promises—then, indeed, this would be a deprivation. But you are so familiar with Holy Writ: you learned verses by heart as children, you attended Bible classes later on, and finally for some promised reward you raced the great Book through—God forgive you!—and the result is that when the chapter and book are given out you say to yourselves, 'Oh, yes; that's the Parable of the Sower,' or if one announces Psalm 137 you say, 'I know, "By the waters of Babylon we sat down and wept,"' and you sink back and your mind slips away to household matters, and you wonder if you left the key in the front door, or if the new white curtains may be flapping through the open windows; and the sacred words are slipping into one ear and out of the other, so you really cannot be missing the lessons so very much this morning.

Contented and Prosperous.

"I have never seen this church before, but it is beautiful and it bears all the earmarks of loving care and lavish expenditure. Figuratively speaking, I see upon this entire building as upon the figures of this congregation clearly and legibly stamped the word prosperity. On every face there is contentment, so utter and complete as to verge upon self-satisfaction. Health is here—yes, and beauty rare and unblemished; and here, too [His roving glance halted a moment, a smile touched his lips and beamed in his steady eyes] and here is love—young, ardent, pure! The love blessed of God and honored by the Church, and every face, be it old or young, looks—looks so kind.

"But"—he spoke now in a doubting, anxious tone—"are you justified in this self-satisfaction? Are you [almost he whispered the words], "are you Christians?" He threw up his hand quickly as if repelling an answer. "Oh, church members—yes! Yes, loyal church members! Obedient to the precepts of your sect, faithful in your attendance upon services, generous in the matter of tithes, regular in approaching the communion table, yet even all that is not enough!

"There is one little word that seems to be the key that unlocks for us not only all the joys of this life but all the glory of heaven hereafter and that word is love! From almost any page of the Testament the wonderful word glows and beams at us. But it is the Master's own longing cry that stirs the heart to wildest tumult, 'Love Me!' [here the passion in the lad's voice rose higher and higher; thrilled along the nerves of every hearer]—Love Me!—Love Me, and keep my commandments!

"Go back a bit in your memories, you grave faced men. Did you never as a boy have an unpopular schoolmaster, or perhaps an overstern, overstrict father, whose rule read, 'Obey me!'—figuratively, 'Obey me you must, and love me if you can! Keep my commandments and love me! It was with them, and you kept them after some sharp reminders, but your love was more like a fearful sort of respect, or an awed admiration—for that was the rule of fear.

"But how is it with mother? The tender love between you made obedience easy, generally speaking; but now and then you found your feet in slippery places—perhaps it was a mere dare—but you in a twinkling had fallen from grace; a promise was broken. All the way home you planned your alibi, and mother was deceived—that was an easy matter; she was such a trustful woman. All went well till bedtime came; then with leaden feet you slowly crept up the stairs and to bed, sheepishly neglecting to say your usual brief prayer. How you tossed and tumbled, first hot, then cold, and your throat grew dry and tight. Then at last came the creaking of that loose board at the head of the stairs—and mother was there. Your eyes were closed, but you knew she was curving her hand about the candle flame to protect you from its glare.

"Then she softly straightened the tumbled quilts, smoothed the pillow, bent and touched your hot cheek with her dear lips. You could bear no more! Your sturdy little arms went about her neck and all the shame, deceit, sorrow and remorse rushed forth pell-mell, beginning with inevitable boyish cry, 'I didn't go to do it, mother! I—I plumb forgot!'—and your pardon came almost before it was asked, for words of forgiveness ever lie close and waiting at a mother's lips. Not that her boy's lapses do not cause her pain and terrible anxiety, but because her unfailing, immeasurable love makes it possible to forgive 'seventy times seven' falls from grace—and you were happy, so happy, purged from your wrongdoing, strong in your determination never to fall her again!

"If complete forgiveness, if obedience through love to a dear finite human being meant such joy to you, compare it if you can to the pure beatitude that can come from Jesus' love—whose height and depth, whose breath and breadth have never yet been told. Surely the one return that we can make is to give ourselves to Him!

"'Come unto me.' He pleads, and when at last you heed the gentle voice, how do you come? Alas, too many by way of hurried deathbed repentance, or bringing your broken heats, your suffering bodies crushed with sorrow, oppressed with sin, you creep to the Divine knee, slip off your burdens, and in those tender arms find pity, pardon, peace! Are you afraid that by loving Christ your human happiness may be dimmed? Oh, not so! With Jesus in your heart the pleasures of the world will take on a bloom and glory beyond all words to tell!"

A sudden and emphatic "Amen!" came from the rear of the church.

"You look so kind," went on the speaker. "Nay, you are kind whenever grim want touches you with his bony hand and arouses you from a too great contentment. There is not one among you who could sit comfortably in your warm, cosey home while through the window you saw shivering on the porch a human derelict whose emaciated body shuddered at the piercing outdoor blast that found with cruel certainty each rip and rent in his sodden rags, whose face bore marks of dissipation and of sin, whose timidly pleading eye would make it impossible to draw the bolt against him. You could not give a cold denial to such a wanderer from the nether world! But there is another wanderer, who, holding in abeyance His glorious and stupendous power, stands as the 'Man of Sorrows' outside your close barred hearts. With weary feet and fainting soul and heavy, tired eyes He waits! Divinely hopeful, He gently knocks! Oh, have you not felt the thrill of that faint knocking at your heart are now?"

Tragedy of the Crucifixion.

At that moment the young preacher leaned out over the pulpit, a black frown on his brow, an accusing light in his eyes, as he sharply asked.—

"Do you know the chapters that are the least often read in this Holy Testament? Ah, some of you do! I see that in drooping eyes and flushing cheeks. You will not read Matthew 27th, Mark 15th, Luke 23d, and, above all, St. John 19th, because they picture with too photographic exactness the crucifixion of our blessed Lord! The awful tragedy jars upon your sensibilities, strains your nerves, hurries the beating of your hearts. I know the justification you offer to yourselves.—'Why need we dwell upon that painful episode? We know the price our Lord Jesus paid for our redemption; we know His passion and His agony! Why dwell upon it now? It is all passed and gone forever! For Him there remains only the glorious rainbow throne, and never a grief or pain again for all eternity!' That you say—and you lie! Unconsciously perhaps—but yet, you lie, I say! For He suffers still!"

Strangely no angry glances were exchanged, but every eye was fixed upon the speaker's working, pallid face and the twisting hands that wrung each other in piteous plea. In the slight pause that followed soft sobbing was plainly heard, while a heavy groan broke some man's lips.

"Shall our sweet Lord find closed hearts here today?" And a weeping girl impulsively cried, "No, no! Oh, no!"

"Then draw the bolts, open wide your hearts and receive your glorious Guest!"

And in that moment of tensest feeling there was a commotion at the swinging door. A group of men entered, preceded by a stocky man, red faced, gray haired, and evidently from his garb a minister. Behind him loomed two sturdy fellows in brass buttoned, blue suits. With a gesture the man in black checked the other's advance, though one whispered loudly, "That's him all right."

Meantime there was silence in the pulpit, the occupant standing rigidly erect. From the eyes, fixed on the intruding men, the light of exaltation had faded, while a wave of dull, dark red swept over his face from chin to brow for a long moment. Then, suddenly, the pained discomfiture disappeared, and, regaining his self-possession, he moved quickly to the pulpit steps, and, with modest dignity, greeted the approaching stranger in the clearly spoken words:—

"You are welcome, sir; perhaps you will lead us in the closing prayer?"

Ignoring the offered hand the elder man pushed past the lad, and, taking his place at the desk, in a voice of distinct irritation said, "Let us pray."

So soon as heads were bowed and prayer began [illegible] watchful eyes saw a slender figure, with low bent head and painfully flushed face, tiptoe down the aisle. Two men advanced to meet him, each with a hand extended, at sight of which he drew back, saying, in a whisper—"Not that, please; it was purely accidental, not an intended escape. Come, Carter, I'll walk with you." And so passed droopingly out of sight the strange "supply," followed closely by one guard, while the other, in answer to a sign from Deacon White, loitered behind.

After the singing of a brief doxology and a comprehensive curt benediction the congregation began to disperse, with a marked absence of the usual greetings and short chats. Friends bowed gravely to one another and passed out, while many women drew down their veils to hide their tear streaked faces.

Drawn a bit to one side Deacon White stood speaking with the man in blue, and those passing near caught such illuminating sentences as "Theological student; overstudy; complete breakdown. Slow—very slow recovery—but getting along now. Sight restored partly; in fact, right as a trivet unless some one says church or sermon—then he's off. This is the second time he has given us the slip. The other time was of a Sunday, too. But he'll come out all right."

The Rev. Mr. Brewster, who had hastened out to meet the members, found them not over eager to profit by their opportunity. The demand of conventional courtesy drew some half dozen prominent people about him, and to these he fumed over the morning faux pas. Flourishing his handkerchief about his heated face and neck, he fairly groaned as he recalled his ride on the hand car, which had been the sole way of covering the distance between the freight wreck and his place of destination.

"And after all my efforts I was not able to spare you from what you must have thought a strange supply. I scarcely recall a greater piece of presumption."

"Pardon me, Brother Brewster," interrupted Deacon White, "the young man was in nowise to blame for what occurred. Anxious and excited, in our confusion we mistook him for yourself, seized upon and rushed him into the pulpit, and if the sermon was a trifle unconventional you must remember he was unprepared."

"Huh!" ejaculated Mr. Brewster, "he gave you a rather frothy production, no doubt. Poor souls! You must have thought you had a strange supply. But never mind, I have a good, strong, doctrinal sermon ready for you to-night that will, I hope, console you for this morning's disappointment and make you forget the vaporings of this crazy boy."

"Forgive me, Mr. Brewster," broke in the sweet young voice of Connie Roberts, "but we have not been the victims of a crazy man's vaporings, but we have been the witnesses of an answered prayer!" And looking about her she added:—"You remember—oh, you must always remember his prayer!"

"Yes, indeed," gravely answered Elder Lewis, "that prayer was surely answered, for no heart in this morning's gathering resisted that young man's earnest pleading in his Master's cause."

That night the white roses, no longer withheld, stood upon the pulpit's desk, expressing in their beauty and fragrance the renewed love of a young girl's deeply moved heart.

Return of Mr. Merling.

The Rev. John Merling had returned, to the great joy of his people, and at his first visit to the Roberts home Miss Connie had given him a true and unabridged story of their morning with the strange "supply." When Mr. Merling heard how the young stranger had openly rebuked his people for their satisfaction his face flushed darkly. "For it was to think that this youth had done in one morning's work what he himself had failed to do in years of earnest endeavor, that his own people had been successfully aroused from their apathy by an earnest pleading. Still, whatever of pain or mortification he felt, his lips remained silent. He listened intently to the end, then rose to go.

Distressed by the sudden departure, Connie cried:—"Are you going to be like Mr. Brewster, and treat with contempt this nameless one, who moved all our hearts so deeply?"

And the Rev. John Merling turned quickly and, taking both of her hands, fervently answered:—"No, child, I have but this to say, and it comes straight from my heart:—May God bless and soon restore to full health our strange supply!"

"Look," He Said, "There is the Empty Pulpit Waiting for You."

WHEAT CONSUMPTION

The Average Canadian Leads the World in This Regard

The consumption of wheat has been estimated for various countries, with results as given in the accompanying tabulation. The estimates are based upon the average production for 5 years, exports or imports of wheat, including wheat flour reduced to wheat equivalent and exclusive of that used for seed. Canada is easily in the lead, an average Canadian using nineteen times as much wheat as a Japanese in his native country. The figures in bushels are.

WOMEN DOCTORS

Dr. Emily Stowe Was the First Woman to Practice in Canada

The distinction of being the first woman graduate in medicine in Canada belongs to Dr. Augusta Stowe-Gullen, a leading physician of Toronto, who was born in Norwich, Ontario. She studied at the Toronto School of Medicine, graduating from Victoria and Trinity Universities. Her mother, the late Dr. Emily Howard Stowe, was the first woman to practice medicine in Canada. Dr. Stowe graduated from the New York Medical College for Women in 1868, and was an untiring worker in the fight to secure the admission of women to the university.

In this day of enlightenment, when women doctors are many in Canada, it is not easy for one to recognize fully the difficulties that lay in the path of this pioneer. Dr. Stowe's struggle to practise in Toronto was filled with difficulties, but she surmounted them, and won as well, for the women of this country, the opening to many spheres of activity.

Her daughter, moreover, did not find her path pleasant when she was studying for her life work, for there were many before she graduated in 1883, bitterly opposed to women entering the higher professions. But her perseverance made the way easier for the women who followed, and, for this, as well as her brilliancy in her profession and in other lines of endeavor, Dr. Stowe-Gullen is eminent among Canadian women just as her mother was revered for her fine qualities.

Fortunes in Trifles

The trite expression, "It is the little things in life that count," is aptly illustrated by noting the fortunes that have been made out of the small inventions. Fifteen thousand dollars was the magnificent sum received by De Quilfeldt, a New Jersey inventor, for a rubber bottle-stopper which he invented. A lead-pencil rubber eraser increased the fortunes of Hyman L. Lipman, of Philadelphia, by the snug sum of $200,000; George Heaton, of Providence, R.I., used a metal staple to fasten a button on his shoe, conceived the idea of patenting the same, and now writes his cheque for six figures.

The oldest national flag in the world is that of Denmark, which dates from 1210.

There are fewer suicides among miners than among any other class of workmen.

"BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WATER"

Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nerves. Thinness of the blood, or anaemia, is common in young folks as well as old. Especially is it the case with those who work in ill-ventilated factories—or those who are shut up indoors in winter time with a coal stove burning up the oxygen or emitting carbonic (oxide) gas. This blood, or blood which lacks the red blood corpuscles, in anaemic people may have been caused by lack of good fresh air breathed into lungs, or by poor digestion or dyspepsia. Sometimes people suffer intense pain over the heart which is not heart disease at all, but caused by indigestion. Whatever the cause, there's just one remedy that you can turn to—knowing that it has given satisfaction for over 40 years.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

is a blood cleanser and alterative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action. It thus assists the body to manufacture rich red blood which feeds the heart—nerves—brain and organs of the body. The organs work smoothly like machinery running in oil. You feel clean, strong and strenuous instead of tired, weak and faint. Nowadays you can obtain Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery Tablets, as well as the liquid form from all medicine dealers, or tablets by mail, prepaid in $1 or 50c size. Adress R. V. Pierce, M. LOT OF THE TRAMP

Severe New Laws Put Into Force Throughout France

Every tramp and vagabond found wandering in France is taken into the police stations to be measured and photographed, and sent out with a document giving all particulars regarding their persons and past record. This paper they must produce at any moment for verification. All this is in accordance with a law making it compulsory for three classes who habitually use the roads to so register themselves. These classes are itinerant dealers and pedlars at fairs and markets and tramps and vagabonds. Regarding the first two classes the new law is more protective than vexatious. Though they have to declare themselves, the mere production of their papers will at once show their bona fides, and a number which all must carry will allow headquarters to learn at once the history of all the wandering family. These two classes have to obtain official books containing proofs of their identity, photographs, name, nationality, date and place of birth, last residence, and profession.

Of late years the number of undetected crimes and robberies, presumably committed by nomads, has increased to an alarming extent in France, and as this class has no fixed abode it has been extremely difficult for the police to lay hold of the culprits. As to the number of tramps in France, it is impossible to give the exact figure. It is estimated that the total will reach over 10,000.

It will be extremely interesting to see what effect this strict surveillance will have on the genus tramp in France. One authority suggests that the probable result will be an exodus into neighboring countries, and that no doubt England, where tramps can wander unmolested and free, will possibly find before long on its highways Weary Willies who, instead of asking for the traditional "copper," will whine out a request for "un petit sou, s'il vous plait!"

ANIMALS AND SLEEP

Most people sleep on their sides, with their knees drawn up.

Elephants always and horses commonly sleep standing up.

Bats sleep head downward, hanging by their hind legs.

Birds, with the exception of owls and the hanging parrots of India, sleep with their heads turned tailward over the back and the beak thrust among the feathers between the wing and body.

Storks, gulls and other long-legged birds, sleep standing on one leg.

Ducks sleep on open water. To avoid drifting shoreward, they keep paddling with one foot, thus making them move in a circle.

Sloths sleep hanging by their four feet, the head tucked in between their forelegs.

Foxes and wolves sleep curled up, their noses and the soles of their feet close together and blanketed by their bushy tails.

Hares, snakes and fish sleep with their eyes wide open.

Owls, in addition to their eyelids have a screen that they draw sideways across their eyes to shut out the light, for they sleep in the daytime.

Keeping Racing Straight

When an English racing man—owner or trainer—is "warned off the Newmarket Heath," it means that he is not allowed to attend a recognised race meeting in the British Isles; that any horse trained by him cannot compete in any recognised race, and that he cannot be even part owner of any horse eligible to compete. Apart from taking the trainer's life from him it is difficult to imagine any more drastic punishment.

WAS TROUBLED WITH BOILS AND CARBUNCLES.

There is no more frequent source of illness than that arising from bad blood, for when the blood becomes impure, it is only natural that boils, pimples or some other indication of bad blood should break out of the system.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still at the same time are very painful, and the only way to get rid of them is to cleanse the blood of the impurities. Cleanse it thoroughly by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and reliable blood medicine that has been on the market for nearly forty years.

Mr. James Wilds, Plaster Rock, N.B., writes:—"I was greatly troubled, a few years ago, with boils and carbuncles, and the doctor told me I was in a bad condition. My appetite failed me, I began to lose strength, and was pretty well run down when one of my friends recommended Burdock Blood Bitters. After using three bottles I began to feel like another man. My troubles soon left me, and to-day I can certainly give Burdock Blood Bitters a high recommendation to my friends."

The largest library is the National in Paris, which contains 3,000,000 books.

The tallest monument is in Washington, D.C. It is 550 feet high.

The highest chimney is in Glasgow, Scotland, and is 474 feet.

The deepest coal mine is near Lambert, Belgium, and is 3,500 feet deep.

The largest monolith is in Egypt—206 feet.

The biggest dock is at Cardiff, Wales.

The greatest bank is the Bank of England, London.

The oldest college is University College, Oxford. It was established in the year 1656.

The largest college is in Cairo, Egypt. It has on its register each year over 10,000 students and 310 teachers.

The largest bronze statue is that of Peter the Great, in St. Petersburg, Russia. It weighs some 1,100 tons.

Damascus is claimed to be the oldest city in the world.

The most costly book is a Hebrew Bible, which is owned by the German government, and which the Pope offered $125,000 for, but which the government of Germany would not give up.

Until recently the most costly medicine was supposed to be metallic gallium, $150,000 a pound. But lately radium has far outstripped it in price, bringing about $200,000 an ounce.

Steel Railroad Cars

Steel is rapidly displacing wood in the construction of railroad cars—not only in passenger cars where the safety of the passenger is an important consideration, but in freight cars as well. The entire end is made of a single piece of steel compressed with concentric annular corrugations, making a very strong and durable end wall. No posts, braces or rivets are required in this end piece.

GOOD ROADS

Always an Inducement to Clean up the Neighborhood

Given a good highway, the farmer sets to work to rebuild tumble-down fences, to clean out ditches, to get a new coat and hat, to shave a little oftener, to carry himself straighter, and to take more pride in his house and wife and horse. Presently he is worrying about the appearance of his farm. For the first time he notices that the old home looks run down and painfully like a shack. Nothing will suit him but to change to better quarters before the year is out. Meantime a grand-new coat of paint won't be amiss, for he is now somewhat ashamed of the home which he had built with his own hands. Everybody in the neighborhood catches the improvement fever. Neighbors set to work making their collective surroundings better. The schoolhouse is the first thing that comes in for general attention. The church no longer looks so aloof in its spotlessness. In short, the good road has reformed the man, reformed the housewife, transformed the children. It has made better husbands and wives and citizens; it has cleaned out the stables and the ballot, and changed the ways of living and thinking and dealing; it has put more money into the farmer's pocket, and more pride of the genuine sort into his heart. It has been a preacher and a lecturer. It has fitted the neighborhood for citizenship, and paved the way for the world to follow. In a word, it has regenerated the community.—Thomas W. Wilby, in "A Motor Tour Through Canada."

The Reversible Falls

The notion of water falling uphill is against our preconceived ideas of gravity. It may, it is true, be induced to climb with the aid of a pump or water-tower; but, short of these aids, it always finds the descent easier. Yet it certainly falls uphill, in full view of the suspension bridge just over the St. John River, New Brunswick, twice in twenty-four hours. A visitor who goes on the bridge just before low water, after a short interval of slack tide, will actually see the falls going the wrong way! The Bay of Fundy drives the proud St. John, famed for its lumber and its salmon, back into the forest of New Brunswick, and the spectator has no difficulty in realising the simple principle of force majeure which brings about this seemingly unnatural result.

Radway's Ready Relief

Chas. H. Billings, of 240 W. 17th St., writes: "For years I have been suffering from asthma and bronchitis. A week ago I purchased a bottle of Radway's Ready Relief and have taken a teaspoonful in water before retiring each night. The relief I have experienced is marvellous. I most heartily indorse R. R. R."

CURES ASTHMA

The specifics for this disease are the Ready Relief, the Resolvent and Radway's Pills. The Relief must be rubbed on the chest and throat until a burning sensation is produced, and the Pills must be taken frequently, to keep the bowels thoroughly open. The Resolvent must be given at short intervals, in small doses, and is desirable at retiring to rest. Give a teaspoonful of the Resolvent whenever a paroxysm occurs. RADWAY & CO.,

"STICK TO DE BENCH."

Many an advertising man would like to tell some ambitious people, who insist on meddling with publicity problems about which they know less than nothing, what the coloured man said to the judge.

A coloured man was brought before a police judge charged with stealing chickens. He pleaded guilty and received sentence, when the judge asked how it was he managed to lift those chickens right under the window of the owner's house when there was a dog loose in the owner's yard.

"Hit wouldn't be no use, Judge," said the man, "to try to 'splain this think to yo' all. Ef you was to try it you like as not would get yer hide full of shot an' get no chickens, nuther. Ef yo' want to engage in any rascality, Judge, yo' better stick to de bench, whar yo' am familiar."

WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

My Meals Don't Hurt A Bit

A Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Will Aid Your Exhausted Stomach to Digest Any Meal.

Isn't it a real joy to see children eat? There is almost a ridiculous humour about it. The same joy that a child feels at meal time should be experienced by "grown ups" and would be if they would only do as children do.

The work, worries and woes of adult life exhaust the digestive apparatus and nature very often is not allowed time or opportunity to renew or repair the exhausted organs and depleted digestive juices.

"Well Whats You Think o' a Six Meal Without Pain?"

A Stuart's tablet goes into the stomach like food. It contains nothing but natural digestive elements and when at work in a weak stomach it aids the worn-out gastric glands, supplies the right mixture of stomach juices and under the action of the stomach it thoroughly permeates all the food. Thus when the stomach work is done the meal goes into the small intestines in better shape to be assimilated by the system.

One element of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is so strong and efficient that one grain of it will digest 3,000 grains of mixed food such as meats, vegetables, grains, fluids, etc.

The simple habit of eating a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after each meal will readjust your digestion in a very short time so that you will not longer need assistance.

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in Five Minutes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach prepare'on, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

MAMMA, DADDY AND THE CHILDREN CAN ALL TAKE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Harmless "fruit laxative" cleanses stomach, liver and bowels

A delicious cure for constipation, biliousness, sick headache, sour stomach, indigestion, coated tongue, sallowness—take "California Syrup of Figs." For the cause of all this distress lies in a torpid liver and sluggish bowels.

A tablespoonful to-night means all constipation, poison, waste matter, fermenting food and sour bile gently moved out of your system by morning without griping. Please don't think of "California Syrup of Figs" as a physic. Don't think you are drugging yourself or your children, because this delicious fruit laxative can not cause injury. Even a delicate child can take it as safely as a robust man. It is the most harmless, effective stomach, liver and bowel regulator and tonic ever devised.

Your own difficulty may be in getting the genuine; so ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Say to your druggist, "I want only that made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." This city has many counterfeit "fig syrups," so watch out.

VENUS IS NOW AN EVENING STAR

Appears as a Half Moon—Stars For the Week

Yesterday the moon was at first quarter.

To-day the planet Venus will be at its farthest from the sun in its orbit.

Venus is now an evening star, but too close to the sun as yet to be readily seen. In the telescope Venus now appears as a half-moon. It is now distant from us about 100 million miles, and is rapidly approaching us until next October, when it will be at its nearest—al ittle less than 30 million miles.

To-morrow Saturn and the moon will appear to bew ithin seven degrees of each other. Saturn is still to be seen at night about 10 degrees north and a little to the east of the bright star Aldebaran, whilst Mars is about 15 degrees further to the east.

The Belt Stars of Orion.

The three "Belt Stars" of Orion are all of the second magnitude, and because of their peculiar arangement they have made the constellation conspicuous and excited the attention of all ages, and many have been the titles bestowed upon them. They are now known as "Delta," "Epsilon" and "Zeta." Delta, the uppermost one, is a double; Epsilon, the centre star, is apparently a much hoter body than our sun, is also a double, one of the components being white, and the other blue. Zeta, the lower star, is a triple star of varying tints.

The natives of Africa regarded these three stars with wonder, and called them the "Three Pigs." In Britain they were known as the "Ell" and "Yard"; in Germany "Jacobstaff"; in China, "The Weighing Beam"; in Greenland, "The Seal Hunters"; in India the "Arrow." In 1827, when Napoleon's fame was at its highest, a French astronomer endeavoured to immortalise the conqueror by calling these stars "Napoleon," but an Englishman retaliated by calling them "Nelson," but these names were not taken seriously by the astronomical world, and so they remain with Greek letters for their names in the "Belt" of the mighty hunter "Orion."

MAGISTRATE ON CARPET.

Four Days Not Enough For Bigamy, Think Quebec Folk.

MONTREAL, Feb. 11. — Police Magistrate Leet was summoned to Quebec yesterday by Sir Lomer Gouin, it is stated, to explain the brevity of a sentence which he recently imposed on a youth convicted of bigamy. The defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four days in jail.

Judge Leet, in giving sentence, said that the evidence showed that the young man had been married in the United States when both he and his first wife were under the legal age and subsequently the woman left him. Later he came to Montreal and married a young woman here. The latter, considering that the first marriage was not legal, pleaded to be allowed to remain with her husband.

Le Nationaliste, a Sunday paper, made a vigorous attack upon the magistrate's judgment, describing it as a menace to the sacredness of the marriage tie.

FAMOUS FOR BEAUTY OF HER HAIR

Mrs. Esther Emery Tells Hair Which Remains to Her Keeps Was Once Threatened With Baldness. Tells How She Made New Hair Grow.

"People say I have the most beautiful hair in the world," says Mrs. Esther Emery, now visiting in the City. "I don't know about that, but certainly I am proud of my hair, for it has grown so in just twelve short months 'til now it reaches my knees. Last year it was anything but beautiful. I thought I was growing bald. A year ago my hair was thin and scraggly and coming out at an alarming rate. Little bald spots appeared all over my scalp, which was covered with dandruff and itched like fury all the time. I cannot tell you how many hair tonics I tried to save my hair and make it grow again. Some of them helped by taking out the dandruff for a while, but it came right back again and my hair grew thinner than ever.

"My success is no secret. I think that any man or woman can do the same with their hair if they will persevere as I have done. A friend, knowing my condition, sent me a clipping from the New York Herald which advised people who were growing bald to use a prescription consisting of 6 oz. Bay Rum, 2 oz. Lavona (de Composee) and ½ dr. of Menthol Crystals. I got these things from my druggist and mixed them myself. I allowed the preparation to stand several hours before using. Then I applied it each night and morning, rubbing right into my scalp with the finger tips till the skin fairly glowed. The results were immediate. When I combed my hair next morning only a few straggling hairs came away instead of the handful I was accustomed to gather. The dandruff left me this time for good, for I have never seen a speck on my head since. In less than a week tiny little hairs appeared all over my scalp, and these grew so rapidly that soon I looked like a different woman. They have kept right on growing until they are as you see them now. A physician has told me that Lavona contains the pure juice of a rare South American shrub that possesses marvellous qualities for forcing a growth of hair and certainly after my own experience I can well believe it. Did I use more than the first treatment? Oh, certainly I am using it to-day. I go to any drug store and have 7 oz. put up at a time. It lasts about a month and costs very little. I'm not going to stop anyway until my hair reaches the floor."

Militants Molest Bishop.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Two militant suffragettes made a strong effort yesterday to prevent the Bishop of London from attending the opening session of the House of Lords, of which he is a member. They made him the first victim of their threatened campaign of molesting public men as an act of vengeance for his alleged "white-washing" of the Government in his report on the prison treatment of suffragettes.

The bishop's residence in St. James' Square was picketed early in the day by the women, two of whom acted as sentinels on the doorstep.

Skin Smooth and Hairless After This Treatment

(Beauty Notes)

Any woman can easily and quickly banish objectionable hairy growths, without pain or inconvenience if she will simply mix a little water with some powdered delatone and then cover the hairy surface with this paste. After 2 or 3 minutes the paste should be removed and the skin washed to take off the remaining delatone and it will be entirely free from hair and as soft as velvet. Buying the delatone in an original package is the only way to insure its full strength and purity.

T. C. Stephenson Struck by Flying Steel When Grinding Plate Burst on Tuesday Afternoon—One of the Most Prominent Men in the Village.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OMEMEE, Ont., Feb. 11.—T. C. Stephenson, the most prominent resident of this village met deth yesterday in his grain mill here, when a grinding plate burst inflicting injuries that resuleted in his death two hours later.

Mr. Stephenson was engaged in his usual occupation of operating one of the machines in the flour mill, when the grinding plate flew to pieces. Fragments of the steel struck the unfortunate man on the head, inflicting fatal injuries. Medical examination showed that the metal had fractured the skull. The injured man was rushed to his home where he was attended by Dr. Earle. The accident occurred at four o'clock, and at six Mr. Stephenson succumbed to the injuries without regaining consciousness. Dr. Sutton, of Peterborough, was summoned for consultation, but arrived a few minutes after Mr. Stephenson died.

He was chairmn of the Library Board, captain of the Rifle Association, and warden of the Anglican Church. He was in fact the pivot around which the great majority of the activities of this village resolved, and his death has caused a great deal of sorrow here.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS ON COUNTRY ROADS

Gordon Wilson, of Wentworth, Suggests Wide Discussion of Electricity on the Farm and Looks to Big Things

WILL BE DISCUSSED

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Cheap power as a means of cheapening the cost of production to the Ontario farmer and thereby reducing the cost of living, was advertised strongly in the Agricultural and Colonization committee of the Commons this morning by Gordon Wilson of Wentworth, who suggested that the committee ask the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission to send an engineer to Ottawa to discuss with rural members the whole question of electricity on the farm. He believed that the day was coming when all the provines of the Dominion would undertake Hydro-Electric work for the use of the people. He would like to see "Beck circuits" in every county. He expected to see the day when concession lines would be marked out by electric lights. Dr. Steel of Perth, endorsed the position taken by Wilson and said anything which contributed to the farm help problem to-day was well worth the consideration of the committee. The matter will be discussed again later.

Careful Tests Of U.S. Coinage

Commission Began Work To-day on Examination of Weight and Fineness of Metal

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 11. — In pursuance of a custom inaugurated nearly a century ago, the assay commission, which tests the coins of the United States to determine whether they are up to the required standard of fineness and weight, met at the United States Mint in this city to-day and began their annual task.

It was the first duty of the commissioners to examine the scales which were to be used by them in weighing the coins. The standard of weight, which is specified in the statutes regulating the work of the commission, is brass troy pound weight, the Government being in possession of a duplicate of the original troy pound of 5760 grains made in London in 1827. The duplicate is kept with great formality in the dual charge of the Director of the Mints and the superintendent of the Philadelphia Mint. Each official has a key to one of the two locks of the box, making it impossible to open it unless both act in conjunction. Inside of this box is still another one containing a third, in which the standard pound is securely screwed.

After the members of the commission have ascertained that their means for weighing are in first-class order the work of testing the gold coins begins. The tests are applied to coins from all of the mint, bags of which are forwarded to the Philadelphia mint for testing. The test coins are picked indiscriminately from the shipments. In the examination of coins the commissioners make use of what is known as "tolerance," or allowing difference of weights above and below the standard set for coins. The limit of divergency allowed by law is one and a half grains for silver and half a grain for gold. It is one of the principal duties of the commission to see that these limits have not been exceeded.

Tomorrow the commussioners will investigate the fineness of the gold and silver found in the coins. It is expected that the tests will continue until the end of the week.

The history of the assay commission dates back to the establishment of the first United States mint in this city in 1833. Its ex-officio officers were the judge and the district attorney for the eastern district of Pennsylvania, the collector of the port of Philadelphia and the appointees of the President.

"How are you getting along with your neighbours?" "Fine! They don't seem to care what our children do to theirs."

SMOKERS RUSH TO TAKE THE NEW NITRATE CURE IN HOBOKEN, N.J.—Cigarette Fiends Anxious to Give Up Smoking of Coffin Nails.—The Cigarete Cure Clinic, instituted a week ago by Recorder Joseph John McGovern (left) in his Hoboken Court Room, has attracted such attention throughout the country that the little clinic is now doing a capacity business. Letters pour in by the bushel from all over the country, asking for the cure, and hundreds of boys, young men, and men of families crowd the little court room to try, asking for the cure, and hundreds of boys, young men, and men of families crowd the little court room to suffocation, in an effort to avail themselves of the free cure offered. The photo was made at one of the night clinics in the court room. The patients after having their throats swabbed are given a solution of the nitrate of silver for use as a mouth wash, and are also supplied with gentian roots which they chew. Secretary Donald Gun (seated) writing up the "histories" of the cases.

LATEST JEWISH CENSUS.

Year Book Records 2,194,061 In America, 9,960,175 in Europe.

According to the Jewish Year Book, which is just out, the number of Jews in the world now exceeds 13,000,000, distributed as follows:

Europe, 9,960,175; Asia, 484,359; Africa 408,836; America, 2,194,061; Australia, 19,415; total, $3,052,846.

Previous estimates had been considerably below the actual figures, owing to the adoption of the 1897 Russian Census figures, which estimated the Jews in Russia as 5,215,805, while the latest Russian census shows there are 6,064,415.

The vast exodus of Jews in recent times from the Czar's dominions has been more than offset by the internal growth of Russian Jewery. —London cablegram to Philadelphia Ledger.

ONE'S OWN COMPANY.

One of the tests of character is the ability of a man to find a satisfaction —without egotism—in his own society. One who cannot be alone without a miserable restlessness must be the victim of structural defect in his personality. The well stored mind provides company enough for an occasional interval of solitude. He who has read well and thought much and carefully observed has introduced himself to a society which will afford him entertainment when bone, in the flesh, is present. If a man is afraid to be alone it must be because he is afraid of his own thoughts or because his thoughts are few and scattered and cannot fill the vacuity. Some of us cannot afford to think, when, as the poet puts it, "but to think is to be full of sorrow." At such a time we catch eagerly at any diversion that puts to route the shadows.

TWENTY-FOUR DEGREES BELOW

Mercury Takes a Sudden Slump Through the Night—The Plumbers Benefit

MILDER TO-DAY

Twenty-four degrees below zero. This shows how close the mercury came to taking another plunge into oblivion, through the night. The figures are official, and might be regarded as the by-product of the cold wave that was reported from the west a few days ago. Scientists say that yesterday's seismic shock may be due to the extremely cold weather contracting the earth's surface. At White River, where the thermometer registered 59 degrees below zero, such a thory might find favour among the natives.

THE CONSEQUENCES.

There were numerous cases of frozen water pipes, which created a few hurry calls among the plumbing fraternity. The householder made a few extra trips to the coal crematorium in the cellar, while the coal dealers dissipated visions of an extra dividend. Many of the citizens were unaware that the temperature had taken a sudden slump through the night, consequently were unprepared. This resulted in a few personal discomforts and probably a few more broken pipes than would otherwise have been the case.

To-day's probabilities give promise of a rise in temperature, with prospects of a few snow flurries.

TONS OF FISH LOST TO ERIE FISHERMEN

Complaint Made to the Government, That Gill Nets Are Extremely Destructive

MAKES THE PRICE HIGHER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 11.— Extravagance and wastefulness in the fishing industry in the western end of Lake Erie, which is partly responsible for the high price of that grade of foodstuffs to the consumer, was pointed out to the Minister of Public Works to-day when a deputation of fishermen from Elgin and Kent counties waited upon him to ask for redress. Their main complaint was against gill net fishermen whom, they declared, were in the habit of annually destroying tons of which should ordinarily find its way to market. The gill net fishermen were not properly looked after by the government inspectors.

NO REST FOR EDISON ON 67th BIRTHDAY

Examiner Special.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.— Thomas A. Edison, the greatest inventor of his century, celebrated his sixty-seventh birthday to-day by commencing a new rule of life, to eat not more than nine or ten ounces per day. He refused to take a holiday and spent fourteen hours in his laboratory as usual.

MORE PARCELS LEFT THE CITY

Than Have Been Received at Local Post Offices From Outside Places

DELIVERED IN TWO HOURS

"We must have had a busier day than some other post offices," was Postmaster Edgar's statement to The Examiner to-day when questioned in regard to the parcel post system, which was inaugurated here Monday at midnight. Mr. Edgar had reached this conclusion because a larger number of parcels were sent out of the city, than were received at the local post office.

Although there were quite a number of parcels received yesterday, there were not as many as had been anticipated by the postal authorities, and consequently they were easily handled. It took the delivery rig a couple of hours yesterday to deliver the parcels received, and it is expected that two or three hours will be occupied in the same wy this afternoon. The expected deluge of parcels via Toronto did not materialize last night, although a number of them were received. To any place in Ontario a six-pound parcel can be mailed for 30 cents.

G.N.W. GAVE "GRAND" GOOD SERVICE

The reports of last night's game in Orillia as bulletined at the Grand Opera House were secured through the G.N. W.Telegraph Co. Mr. Jas. L. Murphy, who is in charge of the local office quickly arranged for the service with fine results. The game began at 8:15 and the score of the first goal was reported at the Grand at 8:22. The other scores were forwarded with equal despatch.

WEATHER BRINGS MUCH SUFFERING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 11.—A cold wave grips Ontario to-day in a temperature from five to twenty below zero. Meteorological officials say indications are that the extreme cold will last until Thursday. There is much suffering in the larger cities.

8 SUFFRAGETTES WILL DO TIME

From a Staff Reporter:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 11.—Bow Street Magistrates to-day sentenced to four days' imprisonment, each, eight suffragettes, who took part in disorders attendant upon the Emeline Pankhurst demonstration yesterday afternoon in connection with the opening of Parliament. All prisoners declined to furnish bonds for future good behaviour.

COLD CONTRACTS THE EARTH'S SURFACE AND CAUSED THE QUAKE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 11.—Another slight tremor was recorded at the observatory here to-day. Scientists say it is the extremely cold weather contracting the earth's surface, or a big slide in the interior of the globe. So far no great damage has been reported from any quarter of the earth, although the quake was felt yesterday in most parts of the world.

THE WEATHER

The temperature has taken another decidedly downward dip. This morning the thermometer marked 24 degrees below; no lower during the night. At noon to-day it stood at 12 below, and the prospects are for another low reading to-night.—W.P.

GOES TO A COMMITTEE

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—The Prime Minister yesterday introduced his bill for the readjustment of the Parliamentary representation of the various provinces in accordance with the census of 1911. The bill leaves the schedules in blank and it is still a moot question whether Prince Edward Island will have its representation reduced from four to three. If no such reduction is made the next House will consist of 235 members.

Mr. Borden announced that the work of making a new Parliamentary map would be entrusted to a special committee of seven members. The aim of the Government would be to preserve municipal boundaries as far as possible, having regard to equality of representation and community of interest. Personally, he believed that the city constituencies should be larger than the rural constituencies.

The unit of representation will be 20,819. There was no debate upon the first reading, but some discussion will no doubt take place upon the second reading of the bill.

Mr. Borden, in moving for leave to bring down the redistribution bill, explained the theory of the constitution respecting Parliamentary representation, and its application under various redistributions.

Proceeding upon the basis laid down by law the provinces in the next Parliament would be entitled to the following representation: Nova Scotia 16, a loss of two; New Brunswick 11, a loss of two; Prince Edward Island 3, a loss of one; Ontario 82, a loss of four; Manitoba 15, a gain of five; Saskatchewan 16, a gain of six; Alberta 12, a gain of five; British Columbia 13, a gain of six; Quebec 65, and Yukon 1. In short, there will be a gain of thirteen members. Ontario and the Maritime revinces lose nine, and the provinces west of Lake Superior gain 22. This is upon the assumption that Prince Edward Island will lose a member. But if her representation is not reduced, and remains at four, the next House will contain 235.

The Prime Minister then discussed the case of the Maritime Provinces, and the particular case of Prince Edward Island. He said the B. N. A. Act had been construed by the Privy Council, and that, as a matter of law, the Maritime Provinces must lose five members. Parliament could not amend the B. N. A. Act, nor would it ask the British Parliament to do so, except upon the request of the four provinces which formed the original confederation.

In the case of Prince Edward Island, Mr. Borden submitted that Parliament act, and he strongly intimated that the Government desired to have Prince Edward Island retain her present representation.

The Prime Minister said that as soon as the redistribution bill had received its second reading it would be sent to a committee consisting of four Conservatives and three Liberals.

It might be well, he said, upon the second reading of the bill for the House to discuss and determine the basic principles which should guide the committee in its deliberations. It was pretty well agreed that municipal boundaries should not be disturbed and that equality of representation and community of interest were no less importan.. He thought, however, that the unit of representation should be larger for city constituencies than for rural constituencies. The reasons were obvious. There was greater solidarity among city people, more uniformity of interest and ability to work quickly and harmoniously together for a common end. Many members representing county ridings lived in the cities and were well acquainted with the views of the city people, and were more or less in sympathy with them. Again, people tilling the soil upon which they were born and upon which their forefathers had lived for generations, had a more stable interest in the community than the city dwellers, who included a large floating population.

The criticism of Hon. T. W. Crothers, arising out of the Vancouver Island strike, was continued at the evening session when the labor estimates were dealt with.

Alphonse Verville led the attack, condemning the appointment of Mr. Price as investigator, condemning the report presented, and finally condemned the appointment of Mr. Crothers as Labor Minister.

Hon. Mr. Crothers, in reply, said that the United Mine Workers of the United States had invaded British Columbia, not for the purpose of benefiting Canadian workmen, but for the sole purpose of protecting the mine owners and mine workers of the United States from Canadian competition.

The big strike in Nanaimo and the neighborhood, is the Minister's opinion, had been instigated and financed by the coal barons of the United States, who desired to retard the mining and marketing of B. C. coal.

"They say Mars is inhabited, do they? Well, he has nothing on me." "Why, what do you mean, it has nothing on you" "I mean I have three sons, two brothers, and seven aunts living on me."

THE LONDON LIFE.

Elsewhere in this issue appears the annual report of the London Life Insurance Company; and it is a story of unusual prosperity during the past year, which is declared to have been the best in the history of the company; a cause of congratulation in view of the untoward financial conditions that obtained the greater part of 1913. Business has been stronger and the lapse rate—affected by financial stringency—less. The large increase in new business is referable to increasing confidence of the public, and its growing strength and the excellent plans of insurance offered the public. The splendid profit results, are due to increased interest rates, and lessened mortality rates. The profits, one-third greater than estimated, are evidence of first rate business methods and management. A conservative policy in valuing policy liabilities, indicates the desire of the company to establish its business upon a solid basis. Seventy-two per cent. of the whole business, including the industrial branch, is being valued on a 3 per cent. interest basis and the balance upon a 3 1-2 per cent. basis, a circumstance that tends to place the affairs of the company in this respect, in a stronger position than those of any other company of its kind on the continent. The whole report shows that the London Life has adopted and is applying to its managempent and methods the increasingly popular slogan, "Safety First," a potent commendation to public confidence.

Mr. E. Walton, 339 1-2 George Street, is the local Superintendent of the Industrial Branch.

PROTECT THE BIRDS.

The Ottawa Naturalists' Club is adopting a scheme for the protection nd encouragement of native birds in the vicinity of Ottawa. It is proposed, we are not told how, to establish local bird sanctuaries in which birds will be jealously and zealously protected. Nesting boxes will be provided for them, and food and their general welfare looked after. This might seem a great preparation about a small matter. It is not a small matter, but has to do with the problem of human subsistence. Birds follow the rule of nature that in large part animal life is sustained by feeding on other animal life. A large part of the food of birds consists of insects, and of their larval forms, injurious to fruits and grains. If this were not so; if this insect life were to have full play apart from the activities of birds we should soon starve to death; fruits and grains would soon meet the ultimate fate of all flesh, be devoured by worms. From such considerations alone, not to speak of the joy of birds, their blithesome song, their flashing passage from tree to tree, their glad note in the harmony of daily life, we should unite to protect them from needless slaughter, and encourage propagation. We need a good deal of moral reform in the regard of general sentiment upon the sanctity and usefulnoss of bird life. We have laws to protect them, but the ubiquitous boy "gets in" his deadly work during the long winks of the authorities that should enforce the laws. Boys have keen eyes for birds. When the spring comes and the nesting season begins, they can be seen cocking their eyes up into the trees looking for birds and birds' nests, intent on distruction, to satisfy the primitive barbaric human impulse to slaughter. This is largely helped by lack of education as to the value of bird life; to thoughtlessness, and to ignorance of the exceeding cruelty of bird killing. They do not think, for instance, that if the parent bird or birds are killed, nests of helpless fledglings birds have to sufffer the agony of starvation, not to speak of the loss of bird life in the protection of our fruits and its contribution to the joy of living. We need a good deal of education in regard to bird life, both in its utilitarian aspect and in relation to the development of the higher phases of human consideration. Things like these should be insistently taught in our public schools, our Sunday schools, and preached from our pulpits. Our bird life should be protected and fostered; the public good and common humanity demand it.

THE TRUSTS AND GUARANTEE COMPANY, LIMITED.

The financial statement of the Trusts and Guarantee Company, Limited, which was submitted to the shareholders on the 30th January, was one with which they must feel satisfied.

From a Company doing a business such as that of the Trusts and Guarantee Company, one would not expect that during such a year as 1913 there would be any great increase in profits, as many lines of business have been practically at a standstill, and money has been hard to secure. Notwithstanding all these adverse conditions, the net profits for the year, after edducting costs of management and all other expenses in connection with the business, amounted to $125,,088.44. This, with $304,540.80 at the credit of profit and loss, makes $429,623.24, which was disposed of as follows: Dividends paid during the year amounted to $80,928.19, and the balance, $348,-695.05, was carried forward to profit and loss. The Guaranteed Trusts Fund, on the 31st December, amounted to $3,821,687.62, while the estates, trust funds, etc. being administered by the Company, amounted to $6,-198,498.39. The total assets were $12,-411,991.55, an increase during the year of $1,265,974.68. The report of the President and Directors, while it is short, gives some interesting matter, showing, as it does, the growth of the Company for the past eight years. In 1905, the total assets amounted to $2,880,906.16, while today they are almost $12,500,000. Year after year the Company has shown an increase in business, not only in the amount of trust estates which it has received, but also in its profits. The shareholders have every right to look forward to still better results in the years to come.

Trusts companies are recognised as being the safest and most economical for handling estates. In years gone by private trustees generally performed the functions which trust companies are now doing, and losses, in many cases, were inadvertently made not only from want of time, but from lack of skill in looking after the financial transactions. To-day, this has been overcome. Trust companies with skilled men at the head of the various departments not only devote all their time, but the knowledge gained by years of experience to the affairs of their clients. In this way the public is better served and at less expense than could possibly be the case with private trustees. Private administration of trust estates will soon be a thing of the past.

A LESSON.

An election scandal in Manitoba has developed from the same causes that warranted the Senate in "killing" the Highways Bill of the Dominion government—the improper use by governments of appropriations of public money. The public accounts of Manitoba, upon examination, show that during the year over $93,000 was expended on the roads in the one sparsely settled riding of Gimili. They also show that in all the other forty odd constituencies the expenditure was about $40,000, so that Gimili monopolised from two-thirds to three-fourths of the entire expenditure for highway improvement. How is this to be explained? The fact that one constituency was supposed to need two-thirds more money for road improvement than the whole province of Manitoba is explainable by the further fact that there was a by-election in Gimli that the government was bound to carry in its own interests. That is, $93,000 of public money out of $133,000 devoted to roads, was spent in one constituency to bribe the electors to vote for the government candidate. It was to guard against the Dominion government by order in council, using the money granted under the Highways Bill, to influence by-elections in a similar way, that the Senate insisted on an amendment to provide that the government should not have the power to use public money voted for good roads to bribe individual constituencies. If the Borden government had consented that the money granted under the Highways Bill should have been distributed in the same way as the moneys voted under the Bill to Aid Agriculture, the bill would have passed the Senate and would now have been law, with the provinces getting the advantages to be derived from the money to be expended under it. Money under the Agricultural Aid Act, is to be "allotted and paid to the governments of the respective provinces in proportion to the population of the said provinces as determined by the latest decennial censusu." That is right; that is fair; that is according to constitution. But the government refused to apply the same principle to the Highways Bill. The government insisted on retaining the power to personally, so to speak, distribute the money by order-in-Council. This would permit the government, as has been done in the case of Gimili, to distribute the money when and where it would do the most good in case of, say, a by-election. It was giving the government this fatal power that the Senate objected to. If the Borden government had consented to the distribution of the money voted to good roads, upon the same principle as applies to the Agricultural Aid Act, the Highways Bill would have been endorsed. So that it was the Borden government, by its insistency on retaining the power to do evil, contrary to the constitution that killed the Highways Bill, and not the Senate, whose action was solely in the public interest—to prevent scandals such as that of Manitoba in the Gimili election case.

THE PARCEL POST SYSTEM.

Now that the parcel post system has been inaugurated in Canada, the people of this country will be interested in knowing how it has worked in the United States. That the people as a whole are pleased with it is shown by the rapidity which which it has grown and the demand that it should be still further extended. But what about its effect on business?

Before it was introduced many retailers were fearful that it would increase the mail order business of the departmental stores. How it has worked out in this regard has been made the subject of a country-wide enquiry by the Dry Goods Economist: The results show that the great majority of the retail merchants, in small as in large centres, find the parcel post a benefit to them, rather than an injury. Some of these retailers find that the number of orders they receive by mail has been increased. And even where this is not the case the parcel post is commended for its convenience and cheapness in receiving and forwarding small quantities of merchandise. The parcel post is also credited with having exerted a powerful influence on the express companies in the direction of inducing them to reduce their rates.

In Canada the adoption of the zone system is calculated to protect the retail merchants of the smaller cities against the rapacity of the big departmental stores in Toronto and elsewhere, while there ought to be n opportunity afforded all classes of merchants of benefitting from the rapid and cheap transportation of goods of all kinds, such as the parcel post system is intended to afford.—Brantford Expositor.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Nothing can take the place of the home, provided one has a home, and even the hall bedroom may be made homelike, for home is not wholly dependent upon physical conditions. Home is not, and should not be, merely a place in which to sleep and eat. It should be the fountain-head of social life.

It is obvious, however, that the miser's home and the closed-door home are selfish and unproductive of progress.

Contact with one's fellows, at home or abroad, is necessary for the rounding out of character and for the development of proficiency.

The club frequenter, who places his club above all else, loses most of the sweets of life, and is likely to allow dissipation, mild or strenuous, to interfere with his health and prospects.

The Club or Association, nevertheless, has its place, and is of tremendous importance and value, if used intelligently.

The fact that many city towns maintain bars, and the fact that their members are too frequent users of both liquor and the weed, should not be considered as conclusive evidence against them.

Club association, if rightly used, is to be encouraged.

The perpetual stay-at-home is narrow and likely to be morose. On the other hand, one who places his club ahead of his home or his business makes a grave and almost criminal mistake.

Every one who can should be a member of some respectable club or association and attend its meetings with regularity.

Especially valuable are those associations, the members of which debate on current events and take up other matters of public moment. One is likely to learn more by attending a discussion, or a debate, than he is by spending the same amount of time reading the subject under consideration; but reading should not be neglected.

The personal touch, the contact with one's fellows, is not only restful and pleasant, but it enables one to absorb without effort that which it might be difficult to obtain from books or from study. Information comes to one in a social way. One learns without knowing it and without great mental effort.

I should further recommend affiliation with the Masons, or other high class fraternal order, where fellowship is personified; but more especially I should recommend membership in some organization which has a public betterment object, where one will meet thos having a common intrest and discuss affairs to mutual benefit.

The gymnasium to an extent may be considered a club, and attendance is to be recommended, provided one does not over-exercise, and needs more exercise than he naturally obtains in his work and social life. One may over-exercise to his mental and physical detriment.

Athletics have done harm, as well as good. The athlete is usually overtrained at a sacrifice of his future strength and health. I should not, therefore, advise one to take up gymnasium exercise without the advice of a reputable physician.

Don't live alone, whether you occupy a boarding-house room or have a family. Get out into the world, without neglecting your immediate duties.

The best game to play is the game of conversation, with all sides winning.

EVADES ARREST.

Mrs. Pankhurst's Ruse Deludes the London Police.

LONDON, Feb. 11. — Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who Monday returned to London from Switzerland beguiled the police last night into a false arrest. She addressed a crowd from the window of her temporary residence in Campden Hill Square. She taunted the Government with cowardice and announced that she was coming into the street and challenged the police to re-arrest her.

Forthwith a woman emerged from the house; the crowd surged around to protect her, and a lively scuffle ensued. The woman was arrested and, with seven others, was taken to a police station. There the police discovered they had been tricked. The woman was attired to represent Mrs. Pankhurst.

All those arrested were armed with clubs. They refused to give their names. They will be charged with obstruction and assault.

WHY THE C. P. R. PAYS MONTHLY

Pay day on the C.P.R. is an eagerly anticipated event; and each month the Company pays out over $6,000,000 in cheques, distributed over the system.

By actual count the cheques reach a total of 120,000, and this number with the growth of the system and the consequent need of more men, ever grows.

"We do everything in our power to accommodate the employees," says Mr. H. E. Suckling, the treasurer of the C.P.R. There is a great of time and work associated with the monthly pay day; and if we had to live it twice a month, as is the case in certain of the States—well, it would mean a lot more trouble, a double staff, and considerable more expense. We have to do it in Vermont and Maine, which we pass through and which have the bi-monthly payments, and I can tell you it is work. In several of the States it is the same; but wherever it is found it is because State legislators pander to the so-called labour vote.' Our people have not sought for short term payments; and in fact, seeing that they know for a certainty that on a certain date, without fail, they will get their money, they are perfectly satisfied to have it once a month. Think of a job of sending out twice a month 120,000 cheques. There was some talk at Ottawa some years ago of initiating bi-monthly payments; but the matter was not pursued.

"The single monthly payment works well; it is a certain fixed date which does not vary; there is a fixedness which gives security; and it suits all the people with whom they deal. Branch banks will be found all over the system, close to the place of work and payment, so that there is no trouble in getting the cheques cashed anywhere."

The average list is constantly increasing on the C.P.R.

A decade ago the total number of employees was something like 65,000. To-day it is over 120,000 in all grades of activity. It might be said that over 500,000 persons are directly interested in, and look forward to, the monthly pay day, while, if we consider the allied interests, the indirect relations sustained one way or another, the commercial and industrial affiliations of the company outside the regular list of employees, we get over 1,000,000 people more or less directly concerned in the issuance, once a month of those seemingly innumerable bits of paper which are so eagerly transmuted into bread and butter. If, however, we get beyond all those who are more or less directly interested in the company, and reach out to the various activities which depend on the company—each industrial organism with its own army of employees; if we consider every allied or affected interest, we find that the entire population is, remotely, it may be, but, nevertheless, certainly affected in their lives and outlook by the operations of the C.P.R., and, with measurable closeness, concerned for the pay envelope.

He Got Out of It.

A tailor with more ingenuity than education had occasion recently to order two large flat-irons of the variety known as the "tailor's goose." He scratched his head in some perplexity over the proper plural form to use.

"Two tailors' gooses!" he muttered. "That doesn't sound right at all. Two tailors' geese—that sounds worse yet!"

He pondered over the question till it began to worry him, but suddenly a bright idea popped into his head. He sat down and wrote:

"Messrs. —— Please send me one tailor's goose. P.S.—You may send two instead of one."

STRAY TOPICS FROM LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

In publishing circles in this city the present week has been recalled as the centenary of the birth of George P. Putnam, who probably is entitled to be called the first great American book publisher. Mr. Putnam was born in Brunswick, Me. He was a boy of 14 when he came to New York and obtained a position as a clerk in a book store. He began at that time a compilation of dates, at first for his own benefit. As time went on he found that this collection might be published and it was issued as a "Chronology" when he was 19 years old. The title afterward, under which it became well known, was "The World's Progress." After several years Putnam entered the employ of the publisher and bookseller, John Wiley, and at the age of 26 he became a partner in the house. Meanwhile he had travelled in England for his employer and again he went to London, where he established a branch of the firm. While he was in London he published the "American Bookseller," and he compiled a work called "American Facts," which was published as an answer to Charles Dickens' "American Notes." At 34 Putnam returned to America and went into business for himself in New York. His most important enterprise was undertaken soon afterward, namely, the publication of Washington Irving's works. It proved a very successful venture and he subsequently published the works of James Fenimore Cooper, Edgar Allen Poe, Bayard Taylor, James Russell Lowell, William Cullen Bryant and others.

Improvements in the braking of heavy passenger cars, the importance of which can scarcely be overestimated, will be described at a meeting to be held by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at its headquarters in this city next Tuesday evening. The tests to be described were conducted recently by Pennsylvania Railroad Company in co-operation with the Westinghouse Air Brake Company. A train of 18 steel cars running at 60 miles an hour stores up 224,000,000 foot pounds of energy. This is sufficient to raise the entire train 130 feet. With prevailing brake equipment such a train would be stopped by an emergency application in a distance of 1600 to 2200 feet, according to the truck rigging and brake shoe design. The recent tests showed that this distance has actually been reduced to 1000 feet, or to within the length of the train. This was the result of improvements in the truck brake design involving the clasp brake, having two shoes per wheel, and the location of the brake shoes with reference to the horizontal centre line of the wheels, in addition to improved methods of applying the air brakes quickly and simultaneously and at a high pressure. Trains of 15 years ago were stopped in about half the distance prevailing in the practice of to-day. Increased size and weight of equipment brought an entirely new brake problem. The recent tests seemingly have gone a long way toward solving this problem and at the same time have contributed materially to the safety of the travelling public.

WOMAN POLICE A FAILURE.

Portsmouth, N.H., after experimenting with a woman police officer, has come to the conclusion that this arm of the law—and which subject is causing so much controversy in Peterborough at the present time—is a failure.

HUSBAND IN CELLS WOMAN IS BURIED

Dying Woman Told to Exonerate the Man

NEWARK, N.J., Feb. 10.—Accused as an accessory to Miss Hazel Herdman, the mother of his eighteen-months-old boy, who on Friday shot and killed his wife, and then ended her own life the following day after confessing her crime, Charles I. Manning to-day was held in custody while funeral services were held over the body of the two victims of the love drama of the actors of which he alone remains.

From his cell Manning made the arrangements for the funeral of his wife, while Arthur J. Herdman, the Pompton Turnpike innkeeper, claimed the body of his daughter and arranged for its burial.

Arrested Manning's Sister.

Early to-day the police detained Mrs. Sadie E. Garrabrants, sister of Manning, with whom he has lived since his separation from his wife, and she is being held as a material witness in the case.

The charge of murder against Manning, the police gave out in a statement, was decided upon early to-day after the accused man had been questioned off and on since late on Saturday and all of yesterday.

Statements made by two women and a young man, who were also brought to police headquarters, influenced the police to make the charge of murder against Manning.

One of thes witnesses was Mrs. Garabrants. The identity of the other witnesses was kept a secret by the police.

Took Murderss to Newark.

Miss Herdman, in her dying statement, attempted to exonerate Manning, but Chief Long says that evidence had been obtained tending to show that he was an accessory and that he took Miss Herdman in his automobile to Newark before the murder was committed.

Manning made no effort to escape. On Saturday morning he drove with Miss Herdman to Newark and viewed the body of his wife in a morgue.

After Miss Herdman had taken poison he carried her in his machine from Bloomfield to the hospital in Montclair, and later drove with the girl's mother and sister to the hospital, where he was taken into custody by Chief Long.

Sweet.

Oh, father's face is gloomy now
As he beholds the toys
Which caused the wrinkles from his brow
Amid the Christmas joys.
The Noah's ark has gone to smash;
The locomotive's broke;
The jumping-jack, so blithely rash,
Has had a fatal stroke.

The mills and trolley cars that ran
At such a jolly pace
No more pursue their merry plan
As laughter fills the place.
The children do not seem to care.
But father's far from gay
To see the toys all shattered there
With which he liked to play.

After Busiest Year In History Of Institution Local Y.M.C.A. Has Substantial Surplus

Enthusiasm Displayed at Annual Meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Parlours Last Night, When Reports Were Presented From Officials.

The annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A. was held in the parlours of the local branch of that institution last night. The meeting was largely attended by members and directors, nd reports were presented by Mr. A. A. Hainsworth, Mr. J. J. Thompson and Mr. Barnet Galley, that were received with the greatest interest. The election of officers will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 24.

The reports from these efficient officials went to show that the past year has been the most successful in the history of the local institution..

Messrs. Thos. Barrie, Morley W. Lyle and Dr. A. Moir, were elected to the vacant positions on the Board of Directors. The retiring members of the Directorate are Messrs. J. J. Hartley and Dr. W. D. Scott.

Mr. Jas. Connal, president of the Board, presided, and addressed the meeting as follows:

"It affords me great pleasure to refer to the season just closed as the most progressive year in the history of our association, and this we attribute to the Blessing of Our Heavenly Father and the able staff which has manned the office this year.

"Our General Secretary, Mr. Hainsworth, deserves great credit for his able management of the affairs of the association and his general supervision of the activities carried on in connection with the work, also the active interest he has taken in the general welfare of our members is deserving of their hearty appreciation. The Board of Directors take this opportunity of thanking Mr. Hainsworth for the efficient manner in which he has performed his duties in his business relations with the Board.

Mr. Thompson and Mr. Galley have very ably assisted the General Secretary in carrying out the work to a succesful completion. In their departments they have done excellent work. Mr. Thompson, our Physical Director, is second to none in carrying out the work of his department. His work is thorough and that our members appreciate his instruction is shown by the interest taken in the Gym classes conducted by him, and also the enthusiasm with which the members enter into all his plans for their entertainment and building up of a more efficitnt manhood, among the young men of our city.

Mr. Galley's work in the Boys' Department is deserving of special mention. He has worked hard and has shown wonderful progress in this department as the result of his efforts. His personal interest in each boy has gathered around him a band of loyal supporters. His plan of a course of Educational addresses for the boys on Friday night of each week has proven a great success. These talks are given by business and professional men of the city. He has also organized a number of classes for Bible Study amongst the boys, which are well attended, and we trust his work will prove to be a great blessing and help to the members.

We particularly appreciate the very systematic way in which Mr. Galley has carried out the work of his department.

Our financial year in some ways was better, but in others not so good as last year. We did not raise so much money by subscription this year, but revenue from membership and other sources within the association was greater, than last.

Yet when conditions are considered the results of the association have been creditable

The interest of our members in the work and their attendance at the building this year, particularly during the summer months, has been the greatest on record, a fact which is very gratifying to your Board of Directors.

J. H. CONNAL,
President.

REVIVAL AT TABERNACLE

The large audience which gathered in Bethany Tabernacle last night were privileged to hear a wonderful address delivered by the mountaineer evangelist, Rev. Lucius B. Compton, on the striking subject of the three fold manifestation of Christ. Christ manifested to take away our sins; Christ manifested to destroy the works of the devil, and Christ manifested within the believer. One of the many experiences which he related was that fo a gospel service in a Chicago beer garden and drinking saloon. He was passing one of these places when the thought occurred to him that this would be a good chance to lift up Jesus to the large company of men, numbering about 400. He approached the proprietor of the place, who reminded him that he was not in a church. When Mr. Compton requested the privilege of holding a short gospel service, consent was given, however, with the result that several men were found kneeling in prayer when the gospel preached had lifted up Christ as the remedy for sin.

These meetings are already taking on the nature of a union revival, several of the ministers and Christian workers of the City being present at the service last night and taking part.

The meeting begins to-night at 8 o'clock. Don't miss the song service.

ONTARIO IS SHAKEN

Well Marked Earthquake Causes Widespread Alarm

IT LASTED FOUR MINUTES

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—A severe earthquake was felt in the capital yesterday at 1.31 p.m. and considerable damage resulted.

Dr. Otto Klotz, assistant astronomer at the Dominion Observatory issued the following official report on the quake:

"A fairly severe local earthquake was recorded to-day at 1.31 p.m. The disturbance lasted about four minutes, that is, the earth oscillated during that time, although it would not be noticeable to person for the length of time. It was far more severe than the one which occurred on April 28, 1913, and which was felt over an area of 25,000 square miles.

"The distance from the epi-centre (the point on the earth's surface vertically above the point where the quake had its origin) is about seventy miles. The earthquake simply means that there has been an adjustment of the stresses of the crust of the earth so that the earth's coat fits a little more snugly now since comparative equilibrium has been restored."

Despatches reporting the tremors have been received from Omemee, Burk's Falls, Prescott, Smith's Falls, Uxbridge, Belleville, Gravenhurst, Port Hope, Owen Sound, Brantford, Meaford, and othe, places.

Articles Scattered to the Floor.

MONTREAL, Feb. 11.—The entire St. Lawrence Valley around Montreal was swept by a severe series of earthquake shocks at 1.30 yesterday afternoon.

Two distinct shocks were felt, one of about twenty seconds, and the second less sharp, but lasting longer. The occupants of the upper stories of the taller buildings of the city felt the shocks most distinctly.

No damage has been reported in the city thus far.

In restaurants and offices tables and desks were rocked to such an extent that articles were scattered about the floor.

Verdun, suburb of Montreal, felt the shock to such an extent that residents left their houses in fright and ran into the streets.

At St. Madeleine the record of the shock was obtained by Jacques Cartier, wireless expert, who was listening at his instruments. Mr. Cartier got a duration of fifty seconds over his instruments, which corresponds closely with the McGill seismograph record of one minute.

Arthur Rainville, a farmer, was injured while driving along Notre Dame street during the earthquakes. The shock loosened a board from the roof of a building recently burned. The board struck his horses, and Mr. Rainville was thrown from his wagon and badly hurt.

Balls Rolled Around on Tables.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 11.—The earthquake was quite distinct here, particularly in the upper stories of buildings. In the billiard rooms unracked balls rolled around promiscuously on the tables, while on No. 3 section of the Welland ship canal two shocks were plainly perceptible.

Telephone Knocked From Wall.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 11. — Yesterday afternoon at 1.32 a distinct shock of earthquake, lasting between thirty and forty seconds, was felt here. The quake was unusually severe, and while buildings shook badly no local damage is reported. At North Augusta, ten miles north of here, a telephone in the residence of John McCrimmon was knocked from the wall.

Wall Moved Ten or Twelve Inches.

CORNWALL, Feb. 11.—The worst earthquake in the history of the oldest inhabitant of the town passed over here yesterday afternoon at 1.31. In drug stores the bottles on shelves were moved over two inches out of their regular position. At the separate school the wall on the second floor was moved a distance of from ten to twelve inches.

PRIVILEGE CLAIM BY NEWSPAPER MAN

DETROIT, Feb. 10— What may result in a court ruling throughout the country received its initial impetus here on Saturday in the Court of Domestic Relations, when Louis Goodnow, a reporter, refused to give testimony on the ground of privilege.

Mr. Goodnow was called to testify in a divorce action. A year ago he interviewed both husband and wife in conconnection with a domestic happening, and both gave his information under his promise of confidence. Goodnow told Judge Lacy that he believed a newspaperman was in the class of privileged persons that include doctors, lawyers and the clergy, whose profession requires the seal of silence. By testifying he held that he would violate a confidence that would not have been given except for his profession.

Judge Lacy declared he would give him seven days to show authority for his stand and to prepare arguments. If a proper showing could be made the judge intimated that he would uphold the newspaperman and thus establish a precedent that will go far to protect the newspaperman in the future from being forced by the courts to disclose information received in confidence.

A DOUBLE KILLING

Cat Killed Pet Canary and Owner Killed the Cat—Gloom in the Family.

IT USED TO PERCH ON HIS SHOULDERS AND HEAD

A certain young bachelor, who carries considerable weight with him, and moreover whose domestic propensities are so pronounced that he has had a canary and a cat about his quarters for many months is now minus both of them. The cat played second fiddle to the canary's lead. The bird was the pet of the aforementioned gentleman. Sunday mornings he would open the cage door and out would come the canary, perch on his shoulder and warble in his ear. It was very affectionate and had no nagging weakness. The cat was supposed to hold itself very much aloof from the inner sanctum. It could snoop around the door step, and when no one was looking could steal a snooze on the lounge, but when the canary was called forth, Thomas Cat was suppose to vanish like a film.

But Sunday morning the happy family was thrown into a turmoil and in a twinkling was decimated. First of all, the lone master of the quarters had become a tribe careless. The canary had nestled on his shoulder as he read the Saturday paper which was printed across the line on Wednesday or Thursday. Then the bird began to flit here and there with as much freedom as a wife would have. But the cat responded to the innate impulses. He leaped from somewhere and made a mouthful of the song bird. Then in a second it was all over. The "bach" kicked the cat so forcibly that its hold on the canary was loosened. But a mere boot could not deter the cat. It grabbed up the canary again. "Bach" chased it around the room, grabbed it, and with a last hope of rescuing the canary, choked the life out of his cat. The bird dropped to the floor, its trills were hushed forever. The cat was deposited oin the garbage can, but the records do not state what was done with the bird.

WOLVES ARE VERY NUMEROUS

Mr. N. Nichols, 161 Simcoe Street, has returned from a trout fishing trip to Eagle Lake. With him was Messrs. P. Nichols and S. Nichols, of Smith Township. Mr. Nichols reports a very successful trip. The fishing was good and was carried on through the ice. He states that the wolves are numerous in the north country. They are slaughtering a large number of deer. Mr. Nichols believes that the wolves are killing more deer than the hunters would during the hunting season.

MR. SPENCE MUST BE A "CRUEL" MAN

The following letter was read by Alderman Langford at last night's meeting of the Property Committee:

Sir,—Mr. Buller, don't you think it is a great shame to see the garbagemen lifting these biy barrels full of ashes and almost some of the boxes are too big. I see one of the men trying to lift one and he slip and I thought he had hurt himself. I don't think our Inspector Spence takes much notice of it, and this occurred off Rubidge street one day this week, but I think it can be stopped a little bit. Will you mind taking this in hand, and oblige yours,

High Ratepayer.

PARCEL POST LOOK GOOD TO THESE TWO

Dear Editor,—I was reading in one of your local papers of a child being sent by parcel post. I was very pleased, and the thought struck me that it would be an ideal plan for myself. We are two chaps, young and good looking, and Scotch by birth, and realizing Canada is O.K. for Jack Frost, and work not very bright, we are greeting for Dear Old Scotland. Believe me, we're ready for parcel at anytime. Good Old Parcel Post.

THE DEATH OF MISS GREENSHIELDS

PORT HOPE, FEB. 11.—Miss Julia Greenshields, who has been identified with the work of Dr. Grenfell in the capacity of Honorary Seiretary of the Grenfell Association of Canada, passed away Monday at her residence in Port Hope. Miss Greenshields was a warm personal friend of Dr. Grenfell and always took a great interest in his work among the deep sea fishermen on the Labrador Coast.

Miss Greenshields' energies were not all expended upon the one object, she having been identified with a numbr of charitable societies in Toronto. Yet Miss Greenshields did not make the least bit of ostentation, and because of this, was not so widely known as some others whose work is less deserving of recognition. The Old Folks' Home on University Avenue, is in existence mainly because of her efforts and she was convener of the Hospital Visiting Committee of the Church of England Women's Auxiliary.

A cousin of the deceased, Miss M Gillespie of 96 St. Joseph Street, has gone to Port Hope to bring the remains to Toronto for burial.

PINNED BY TREE IN ZERO WEATHER LEG WAS BROKEN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 11.—Fred Wilkinson, aged 22, of Moore Township, was found dying under a heavy log which had fallen on his when the chain snapped as he was loading it. He lay for hours with the mercury at ten below zero and his leg broken, and when found by a neighbour had pneumonia and blood poisoning.

Felt Quake In Lindsay

This afternoon aout 2.15 o'clock certain residents of the North Ward experienced rather unnatural sensations when they felt their houses shake and saw the electric light fixtures quiver and the furniture do the hesitation waltz on the hardwood floors. Just what happened they do not know, but as a result they will, no doubt, rush to the first book store and purchase a work on seismology.

As Mr. G. H. Matthie, Sussex Street, was sitting in an upstairs room he suddenly felt his chair wabble, and surprised and perplexed, he looked up, only to see the electric fixtures swaying. Apparently no person else in the house noticed the slight vibration and nothing more was thought of the incident.

However, when Mr. J. W. Anderson, of Anderson & Nugent Co., walked out of his house a few minutes later, and inquired of his neighbour, Mr. Matthie, if he felt his domicile shaking earlier in the day, the two stories corroborated. Mr. Anderson stated that he was coming downstairs when he suddenly noticed a chiffonier perceptibly wobbling, and saw the library door moving as if by a strong wind. The electric light fixtures were also shaking. —Lindsay Warder.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL

Expenditures For the Past Month—Operating Costs of the Hospital

The expenditures in connection with the operation of the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital for the month ending January 31st are under the three hundred dollar mark. At the regular meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, Dr. McPherson, superintendent of the Institution, stated that it was altogether possible that the operating costs of the hospital would be less this year than last. This, of course, depends on the amount of infectious diseases that have to be treated. Last year, the number of patients treated at the hospital were double that of the previous year, consequently the expenditures were proportionately higher. It would be difficult to foreshadow what the present year will bring forth.

DOUBLE WEDDING IN OTONABEE HOME

Daughters of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Deyell Were Wedded This Afternoon

A double wedding was celebrated this afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Deyell, Otonabee, when their daughter, Elsie, was united in matrimony to Mr. William Handbidge, of Otonabee, and Ethel, to Mr. Albert Tennyson Mawhinny of Frobisher, Alta. The interesting ceremonies was performed by Rev. Mr. Cragg.

HOUSE SEEMED TO SWAY FOR SEVERAL SECONDS

Mrs. Foley of 616 Water street, felt the disturbance of yesterday's earthquake quite distinctly. The house seemed to sway for a second or two. The tremor was very distinct and everything in the room shook.

A gentleman in the north end happening to take a look at a picture hanging on the wall of his residence last night noticed that it had a decided tilt downwards at the eastern end. What was his surprise when examining others in that room, and in other rooms of the house, to find the same peculiarity. Was it the effect of the earthquake. He thinks so.

The majority of the citizens knew nothing of yesterday's earthquake until they read last night's Examiner's account of the visitation. Then they began to recall their whereabouts between 1.30 and 1.40 p.m., and with the asistance of that their memories proved fairly faithful. In the south end the unusual tremor was regarded as the result of a heavy C.P.R. train in motion. One woman heard the windows of her dining room rattle, and fancied there was a heavy wind blowing. On looking out, however, she saw no signs of a big wind, and was at a loss to explain the occurrence.

An employee of the C. G. E. stated that the machine at which he was working behaved queerly. It was stationary, and there was no moving apparatus in that department, yet the big iron frame quivered momentarily.

Mr. Jos. Green resides immediately north of Knox Church. It is stated that the commotion to the church building was very apparent.

The fact that Peterborough is outside the earthquake belt, or at least has been so regarded, explains the scant attention that was paid to the pulsation at the time.

OUR CONFUSION OF THOUGHT.

If there is one way more than another in which the twentieth century has gone mad it is in this, that it has transferred the tests of good and evil from judgment of the moral actions of personal beings to judgment of physical and impersonal things. Time was when an act was esteemed good if it furthered some good end. It was bad if it hindered that good end. Nowadays, however, we have got ourselves twisted up in such a sorry state that we esteem things good in themselves, or bad in themselves, entirely apart from their use by moral agents. There was a time when people said that using alcohol was good. Now we discover a considerable portion of the people of the earth declaring that alcohol is in itself bad. Once, ambition employed to the furtherance of a noble end was considered good; ambition merely selfish to succeed, an evil. Now we teach our children that ambition itself is a good thing. When our boys and girls read Shakespeare they are commonly at a loss to discover why Brutus justified his killing of Caesar by stating that Caesar had been ambitious. Once upon a time actions were said to be good or evil according as they helped or hindered the good of men and the glory of God. Nowadays impersonal things are said to be in themselves good or bad, no matter how they may be used.

DUCKS AS A SIDE LINE

Don't put all of your eggs in one basket. This applies in poultry keeping as in every other business. Make more of them duck eggs.

The Pekin is one of the most desirable varieties of ducks and very widely kept.

Ducks are gluttons, and if fed with chickens will always get more than their share. Pen them away from the other poultry.

Ducks need bulky food. They will subsist almost entirely on green stuff if they can get meat scrap to supplement. In the laying season it is well to feed grain also.

Green onions, peas and rape make cheap feed for ducks. The trouble of feeding it to them may be avoided by allowing them to roam over the growing plots.

In providing drinking vessels have them deep enough that the ducks may bury their bills, thus keeping the nostrils clean.

Ducks eat ravenously and need water handy to wash down every mouthful. In feeding grain put it in a trough of water so they will have to fish for it and eat more slowly.

These fowls can be housed very inexpensively in a dry goods box, with the open end protected with a curtain of burlap.

Clean straw should be provided for litter each night and dampness avoided in any case.

Do not waste time trying to set ducks. They are good layers, but poor mothers. Let hens or incubators do the work.

WHO WILL SUCCEED WHITNEY?

Special to The Examiner.

Toronto,, Feb. 10.—Although officially all is quiet, rumours as to the "succession" in the Conservative party in Ontario are still flying about. There is general delight in the improvement in Sir James Whitney's health, but it is still a widespread belief that he will not again be able to lead the House. The latest name mentioned for the position is that of W. F. Maclean, M.P., of the Toronto World, who, it is said, would be willing to come in as an upholder of the Hydro-Electric, which, according to the Toronto Telegram and other Conservative sources, is apparently in danger from the attacks of men, Hon. Mr. Hanna among them, within the Cabinet itself.

More and more stress is being laid on the unsuitability of Mr. Hanna for Prime Minister. Not only is there the effect of the Proudfoot charges, but there is the additional and powerful obstacle that Mr. Hanna is Counsel for the Standard Oil interests in Ontario. Such a position does not lead to the confidence of the public. A man holding a similar office in the United States with the Standard Oil Company would scarcely be considered for any high office, directly or indirectly in the gift of the people.

Thoughtful Conservatives are quite frankly worried over the situation. They, themselves, realize the similarity between the present state of affairs and that which followed the retirement of Sir John A. Macdonald in the Federal field. The party was able to hold itself together in a weak sort of way for a few years, but the charm was broken and it was not long before the Liberal Government was in power. The passing of Sir James Whitney from the active field of politics, they fear, may well be followed by a similar result here, especially in view of the widening breach between members of the present Cabinet.

FOX FARMING

No longer is fox farming confined to Prince Edward Island, according to a Sherbrooke correspondent. The Eastern Townships can now boast of several fur farms and farmers. Two are located in Stanstead County, and although not in the black fox line, are raising valuable fur-bearing animals. Near Stanstead Plain is an old beaver meadow, which has been developed into a muskrat farm, and a large number of rats are being raised. This farm is controlled by a Stanstead syndicate.

At North Hatley fox and skunk breeding has been established by local promoters. The foxes are "cross" greys and some have decided tendency towards black. This experiment is proving very successful. The skunk ranch, however, is the most interesting. A large number of these highly-perfumed animals have been captured alive and breeding has begun. The farm-bred skunk is said to be as docile as a cat.

A strong syndicate of Sherbrooke capitalists is now being formed tor capitalists is now being organized to go into the black fox industry in this neighbourhood.

Near Stukely a coon farm is now in full swing, and soon every one in that place will be wearing seal overcoats.

Success does not always follow the establishment of a fur farm, as a certain citizen of Massawippi can bear witness. Starting out with five skunks he soon found that his flock diminished in number instead of increasing. Battle royals were of daily occurrence on the ranch, and the air was highly saturated with the "dernier cie" of the skunk. Soon his pupils began to eat one another and now he has only one. "I expect this one will eat itself and then I am out of the skunk business," said the farmer. All his skunks were males, however, and hence the failure in increase.

When Hearts Are Trump

For those who are planning to entertain on St. Valentine's Day, and are racking their brains to think of ways old and new, to amuse their guests, why not try a heart party or sentimental evening? The invitations are written on red paper or card board cut in heart shape, or white card board and decorated with hearts or cupids. Besides the request for the pleasure of their company, have some couplet that refers to the day.

A HEART BAG

Make a bag of two large hearts, either of red pasteboard or red sateen, laced together. Put in the bag a valentine, either comic or sentimental, for every guest, hang the bag in the doorway which leads into the parlor. As every guest enters they pull out a valentine. This will put every one at ease and start conversation at once.

WRITING VALENTINES

A great deal of amusement is derived from writing valentines, or ideal proposals. At a valentine party which the writer attended, the guests were all supplied with a pad and pencil. Every man had to write a proposal and each lady had to receive one and then write her answer, a refusal or acceptance. These were read out aloud, the name only being withheld. A prize was awarded to the best proposal and the best answer.

HEART SHOOTING

A "heart shooting" contest was also indulged in. A large wastepaper basket was placed in the middle of the room. The company was divided into two sides and hearts of two colors were provided, gold and red being the colors used that night. Each side had an equal number of hearts, and the idea was for each side to try and throw their hearts into the basket. When all were thrown, the side which had the most hearts in the basket won the game.

THE HEART ON THE WALL

That old "donkey game" was revived with a different form. A large red heart was pasted on a sheet which hung on the wall. We were all blindfolded, and one by one given a white arrow (on a pin), which we were to place as near the centre of the heart as we could. This game caused a great deal of merriment, especially amongst the couples that were special friends.

AN AUCTION OF HEARTS

An auction of hearts will create a good deal of fun. Make or buy small hearts with a valentine couplet on each, these being read aloud. Each heart is to be sold to the person who first completes the couplet. For instance, "'Tis better to have loved and lost," he person finishing it says, "than never to have loved at all." Unknown to the guests, place the names of some of the company on the back of the hearts. This will add immensely to the sport.

A HEART-GUESSING CONTEST

The following sentences are written on heart-shaped cards and with pencils passed to the guests, who are told to supply the missing word, with a word whose first five letters spell "heart."

1. Cupid's symbol—Hearts.
2. Cupid greets you—Heartily.
3. Sitting on the—Hearth.
4. He is never—Heartless.
5. Sometimes he is—Heartsick.
6. If he has caused a—Heartache.
7. If he were ill with—Heartburn.
8. It would be—Heartrending.
9. His favorite flower is—Heartsease.
10. Thoughts of love to touch the —Heartstrings.

SERVING THE REFRESHMENTS

Of course the tables will be very pretty with hearts and tiny cupids, and the refreshments should be suggestive of St. Valentine. They may consist of heart-shaped sandwiches, tied with red baby ribbon, cherry ice-cream, Lady fingers, Kisses, and small heart-shaped candies. A menu card in heart shape, with these items on, would be very pretty: Heart bread, sandwiches, Love's caresses, Lady fingers, Lovers' sweets, Kisses, Love's sweet compound, candies.

Matching valentine puzzles is a happy way of choosing partners for supper. Close the party by passing a tray containing as many numbers as there are guests. Somewhere in the room have hidden a heart-shaped envelope with a corresponding number and containing a fortune. As each guest finds their fortune, let them be read out loud. This will be a pleasant diversion and afford an opportunity for partners to be selected for the walk or ride home.

AND SO THEY WAITED

The story is told of two city men who hired a horse and buggy for a little outing recently. Upon reaching their destination, the horse was unharnessed and permitted to graze peacefully, while the men fished for an hour or two.

When they were ready to go home, a difficulty at once presented itself, inasmuch as neither of them knew how to reharness the horse. Every effort in this direction met with dire failure, and the worst problem was to adjust the bit properly. The horse himself seemed to resent the idea of going into harness again.

Finally, one of the friends, in great disgust, sat down in the road. "There's only one thing we can do Bill," said he.

"What's that?" asked Bill.

"Wait for the blamed animal to yawn."

FROST BITES

Many are cold, but few are frozen.

Dan Cupid is in the "I'll-get-you-yet" class. Well, almost anyway.

Poorly clad children who prefer the winter street to what serves for home give some objective support to the socialistic idea of the care of children. Little ones of that kind are to be found right here, too.

The wind whipped that 9 below zero until it felt 49.

The example of the ladies was probably a spur to the men at the Charlotte Street rink.

The church is blamed for almost any and every ill, social, economic and otherwise, these days. Is it probable that the critics are non-church-goers?

For those enquiring about Mutt and Jeff, Bud Fisher promises to produce them to-morrow.

True, this is winter, but February has a little individuality all its own.

If the earthquake had occurred on Council meeting night it might have been more generally recognized.

A BAD ADVERTISEMENT.

Druggist (to his stout wife)—"Don't come in just this minute. I am about to sell six bottles of my fat reducing mixture."

A RATTLE BOX.

"What an awful cold your husband has! He coughs and sneezes all the time."

"He does, but it amuses the baby splendidly."

THINGS TO REMEMBER

Give the breeders ample exercise.

Strong chicks imply strong germs, and strong germs come only from vigorous breeding-stock.

Do not force the breeders, but provide nourishing food with ample green stuff.

Always have spare breeding-birds in case of accident, and where the breeding season is prolonged a change of male bird is desirable.

Do not cut off the whole of the wing-feathers of hens intended for the breeding-pen. If you do, poor fertility will probably result.

During the early breeding season it is necessary to have a dry place in the breeding-pen if a high percentage of fertile eggs is to be secured.

Hockey—That's All

St. Paul's Church will line up against Knox Thursday night at ten o'clock as follows: McBride, McCrimmon, Panter, Loucks, Breckenridge, Hill, M. Turner and S. Taylor.

King Edward—Goal, Ed. Jackson; defence, Cunningham and Fuller; rover, Cranfield; centre, Martin; right wing, Stevenson; left wing, Wm Jackson.

IN THE WORLD OF PORT

ORILLIA HAS A LEAD OF FOUR GOALS PETES WERE BEATEN 8-4 LAST NIGHT

After Holding Northerners to a Tie at Half Time the Blue and White Team Let Their Rivals Away in the Second Period--Return Game Here Friday.

BOYS ARE CONFIDENT

Peterbrough will go into the game with Orillia at Brock Street Rink, on Friday night, facing a deficit of four goals. They were beaten 8 to 4 at Orillia, last night, after holding the Purple and White team to a 3 to 3 draw at half-time. To win the round the Petes will have to do their prettiest, but the boys are confident they can turn the trick. They did not show the hockey they are capable of in last night's game, and, as a whole, were off colour, especially in the second half. At half-time the Petes looked like winners. Orillia opened the game with three goals in a row, but the Petes rallied and tied it up before the rest period, and with Orillia apparently tiring and the blue and white team coming strong the chances for a Peterborough victory were of a most rosy hue. The Northerners, however, sprung a surprise by coming back like wild men and before the Petes got their bearings again the 'Rillians had swept three counters past Janes, and were once more three in the lead. The Petes managed to find the nets once after this avalanche, but Orillia wound up with two more.

In the second half the Petes did not check back consistently or cover up their checks and the result was the Orillia line were given frequent opportunities to shoot and they did some pretty pegging, too. Five got away from Janes, but he blocked some beauties and others just missed by inches. Meanwhile the Petes were rushing spasmodically and had hard luck in their shooting. As in the first half they were stronger in the dying stages of the period, but they could not find the nets and sew up the score again.

Orillia have a fast, clever team, and will take a lot of stopping here on Friday. Lovering Jupp of last year's junior champions is the speed merhant of the line-up, but Ross, who wore a Peterborough uniform last year, and Carter, are fast and effective, and they have a hard-checking defence, and also a good goal-keeper in Corbould. Jupp is a wonder. He is perpetual motion personified. He was up with every Orillia rush and back with every Peterborough dash and skated more than any man on the ice. He doesn't bother about the boards at all, but circles out into centre and darts down like an arrow. Ross was the surprise of the evening to the Peterborough squad. He played some good games for the local intermediates last year, but never showed the form he displayed last night. He was always on the job and his shooting was quick and deadly, his good marksmanship being responsible for six goals. Corbould played a grand game in the nets, making some beautiful stops.

The Petes have played better hockey this season than they showed last night. They never seemed to get going until Orillia had shot into the lead, Janes made some beautiful stops, but was beaten by several long shots of the variety he generally eats up. Denison tore off some dazzling rushes in the first half, but could not work loose in the second period. In the forward line Halpin's work was probably the most consistent and effective. The Junior rover never let up and his fast back-checking was of much assistance. Park was ill and in no shape to play hockey, but he gave a good account of himself under the circumstances.

Orillia were more lucky in the matter of penalties than the Petes. The latter had seven men on the fence, and the majority of the Orillia goals were scored with the Petes playing a man short. Only one Orillia man drew a penalty.

The line-ups:

Orillia		Peterborough
Corbould	Goal.	Janes
Perryman Harvie	Defence.	Bond Denison
Carter	Rover	Halpin
Ross	Centre	Park
Jupp	Right Wing	Bradshaw
Nealon	Left Wing	Kelly

Referee—Chad Thoms.

The rink was crowded when Referee Chad Thoms started the teams away on a glassy surface. Park rushed from the start, but the Orillia defence broke up the rush and carried the rubber down. From a pass from the side Ross banged one past Janes, in 45 seconds. The Orillia team were going strong and the Petes were on the defensive. The situation was not improved when Park was penalized. The Petes fought hard, however, and there was no score while the Captain was off. Ross put the Northerners two to the good when he slipped a long one past Janes. A minute later he added another to his string with a neat rush. He shot from outside the defence, and Janes blocked the shot. Before he had a chance to clear, however, Ross flashed in and banged through the rebound.

Three goals behind the Petes rallied and chased the Northerns back. Denison tore off one of his old-time rushes and although he was skated to the side he passed the rubber out to Park who slid it past Corbould for the first Peterborough goal.

"Dennie" came back with another spectacular rush and nearly scored. The Petes were having decidedly the best of the argument. The Orillia team seemed to be tiring and Halpin's tireless back checking bothered them so much that they could not get away while the blue and white team were steaming in nicely. Bradshaw took a pass from Kelly and hammered a beauty past Corbould, and it was 3 to 2.

Corbould saved two or three goals by neat stops of hard shots, and Janes also looked after several sizzlers at this stage. The Petes looked the better team at this period and they made things interesting. Kelly evened the score after a nice rush by Denison. The latter's shot rebounded out in front to "Kel," who did the needful.

There was no further scoring in the half, although the Petes were short two men at one stage. Kelly and Bond decorating the fence, the former's penalty being a case of mistaken identity.

Bond had part of his penalty to serve when the second half opened, and was just back on the ice when he was dropped with Harvie, who had his nose cut. Ross put Orillia in the lead with a nice dodging rush.

Then Halpin was chased for tripping and, playing six men to five, Orillia scored again, Ross once more doing the trick on a pretty shot.

Perryman made it 6 to 3 by a dash up the side and a shot from the boards, which Janes did not completely block.

The Petes had been back on the defensive most of this period, but they started to come again and Bradshaw closed up the gap by banging one through on a pass from the side. The Petes claimed another goal a minute later and had the Orillia goal umpire removed. Kelly was chased for loafing. Nealon scored for Orillia when a pass from Jupp found him uncovered in front of the Peterborough nets. The Northerners were going strong now and Janes had his work cut out. He went out twice and blocked Ross when the latter was right inside and on one occasion nailed three shots in rapid succession. Finally, however, Ross made it 8 to 4 on a shot from the side.

The Petes forced the play back from their nets, but could not cut down the lead, although they had the better of the closing moments of the play. The summary:

1—Orillia, Ross, 45 secs.
2—Orillia, Ross, 10 mins.
3—Orillia, Ross, 2 mins.
4—Peterborough, Park, 3 mins.
5—Peterborough, Kelly, 3 mins.
6—Bradshaw, Peterborough, 2 mins.

Half-time.

7—Orillia, Ross, 3 mins.

A CHALLENGE

The Bell Telephone seven challenge the Examiner team to a game of hockey to be played on the Brock Street rink as soon as possible.

EXCITEMENT OVER THE BIG ORILLIA GAME HERE

The game at Brock Street rink on Friday night between Orillia and Peterborough in the second round of the O.H.A. series promises to be the biggest hockey attraction of the season, and will draw a monster crowd. Orillia will be down with a special train load of rooters and the home fans will be out en masse. With the Petes four goals behind it will be an exciting struggle and the crowd will get its money's worth in fast hockey. The Petes say they were off colour last night and claim they will look a different team when they sail into the northerners on Friday night. It will be one of the old time battles, with the crowd hanging from the rafters.

LEEDS HAVE SCORED THIRTY-SEVEN GOALS THIS SEASON

J. Hughes, a centre half back of the Halifax Town, has been transferred to Bradford City Football club.

The form of the "Wolves" last week was quite a revelation—to themselves as well as others.

Southampton expressed a wish that the best team would win last week at Molineux. They did.

Triers, all, were Southampton, but it needs more than this to beat "Wolves" at their best form.

Warrington Football club committee decided on Monday to suspend all players who failed to turn out for Saturday's fixture.

The picturesque cognomen of Leeds City is the "Peacocks." Albion say it is appropriate that the game should follow the fish.

A. Hall, the Gloucester Rugby union F.C. half back, has been definitely ordered by his medical man to take a prolonged rest.

Newcastle United F.C., in view of their precarious position in the league, are to continue in special training at Whitley Bay.

Nicholls, the reserve outside left, cannot play for Albion in the cup ties, having already assisted Hednesford in the competition.

That was a capital goal Morris scored against Grimsby, and a few more of the some sort are overdue from this usually safe shot.

Leeds have scored thirty-seven goals at home this season, an average of nearly four a match, so Albion defence can prepare to be tested.

Albion are hoping to have Pailot in active service again before next cup tie, and that will improve their prospect of getting through.

Another good display was given by Barton, the latest acquisition to the Birmingham ranks, and he did very well against a strong wing.

Will history repeat itself, and Albion's visit to Leeds be the prelude to another appearance in the final? They are hopping so at the Hawthorns.

Pennington has not been showing his best form in the last few games but Albion shipper will not doubt come up smiling for his international caps.

Andy Aitken, the former Newcastle, Middlesborough and Scotland player, who has acted as player-manager for Gateshead this season, has finally retired from football owing to recent games having developed old injuries. He has also retired from the managership of the Gateshead club.

A London contemporary published the following comment regarding Birmingham's opponents in the second round: "Huddersfield have bitter memories of the October second league match between the clubs in the Yorkshire town where the wool is milled, as Birmingham won by seven goals to none." We wish the result had been so flattering to Birmingham, instead of being the opposite.

Seldom has there been so much excitement at St. Andrew's as when Duncan scored the winning goal over Southend. And no wonder, for the supporters had waited eight seasons for that performance.

Southend United sent practically a reserve team to Brentford on Monday for a Southern alliance game. They were outplayed in every department, but only two clear goals marked the superiority of Brentford.

St. Andrew's And Y.M.C.A. Sevens Play Tie Game

Those who did not see the Church League hockey match at the Brock Street Rink, last night, missed an engagement between St. Andrew's and the Y. M. C. A. that was an interesting one at every stage. The score at half-time was 3-3, and at full time 5 to 5. The St. Andrew's team started in by scoring three goals before the "Y" boys put on steam and tied the score before the half-time bell sounded.

The last half was a battle royal, the checking being close, th rushing was lightning fast and the pace set by bth teams was a fast one. Both eams punctured the fancy work twice in this half, leaving the final score 5 to 5.

Stewart and Austen looked good for the "Y" boys, while Gibson and Lees, in goal, held up their end of the play for St. Andrew's.

The teams lined up as follows:

St. Andrews—Goal, Lees; right defence, Evans; left defence, Gibson; rover, Minorgan; centre, Lees; right wing, Harper, left wing, McWilliams.

The League standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Tied.
St. Paul's	2	0	0
Y.M.C.A.	2	0	1
St. Andrew's	1	0	1
Knox	1	1	0
All Saints	1	2	0
George Street	0	2	0
Murray Street	0	2	0

Next Games.

George Street vs. All Saints, 7 to 8, Thursday.

St. Paul's vs. Knox, 10 to 11, on Thursday.

BASEBALL

The Memphis Club has signed a player named Pat Moses. Manager Mique Finn caught only the first name and signed him.

Pitcher Ray Collins says the Boston Red Sox will have to come across with more money or he will stick to his Vermont farm.

Ben Tincup, the Phillies' pitcher, has been sent to the Lowell New England League club. A case of the Phillies losing a Tincup as well as a pitcher.

Manager Clark Griffith of the Washington team says the signing of Doc Gessler to manage the Pittsburg Federal League team shows the class of the Feds. Whaddyeyu mean?

Arthur Irwin went to Chicago, grabbed "King" Cole, who had previously signed with the Feds, and took him to New York, where the "King" signed to pitch for the Yankees. When it comes to kidnapping 'em Arthur is one fearless guy.

The Giants have sent Pitcher Goullat to Memphis. This youngster is clever and all that, but we're glad he has gone South. His name reminded us of "goulash" and every time he trotted out we had to buy a hot dog to satisfy our hunger.

For the first time in y'ars and y'ars Ty Cobb has condescended to do a little training with his fellow team-mates this spring. Falling down in batting from .410 in 1912 to a percentage of .390 in 1913, shows that he needs training.

Why not add Brainerd to the title of the Athletics? Something like "Philadelphia - Brainerd World's Champions." Chief Bender and Joe Graves, Connie Mack's youngest pitcher, were born in Brainerd, Minn., and Leslie Bush makes his home there in the off-season.

BOXING

Winnipeg Jack O'Brien defeated Jack Morris in four rounds in London the other night.

Jim Buckley, who manages Gunboat Smith and Tommy Murphy, is going to England with his two fighters in April.

The way Ad Wolgast has been trimming 'em of late makes it look as though Ad was in line for a return match with Willie Ritchie.

Jack Ward, the English lightweight who was in America for a while, has been meeting with considrable success since he returned home.

George Chip has called off his bouts with Leo Houck and Johnny Howard because his hand was broken in his recent bout with Joe Borrell.

Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane and Tommy Brenahan, the Omaha featherweight, are to engage in a ten-round bout in Syracuse next week.

Johnny Dundee is a busy boxer these days. He will tie up with Joe Shugrue at Waterbury on Feb. 19 and a week later will battle Pal Moore in New York.

Tom Cowler, an English heavyweight, is to meet Joe Bonde at Vancouver, next week. Bond is a protege of Denver Ed. Martin, the retired coloured heavyweight.

"A MATCH FOR THE GODS." ENGLAND'S RUGBY VICTORY OVER WALES AT TWICKENHAM—The struggle for supremacy in the rugby international match was a thrilling sight to witness. It has been described as "a match for the Gods." It was a wonderful contest and a thrilling finish. Wales led, England led, Wales led again, and then victory for England was secured at the last moment, the final result being 10 points to 9. The incident shown here is the scoring of England's second try from which a goal was kicked, giving England the victory. The ball bounced over the head of Bancroft, the Welsh full-back, seen on the right, and Pillman, his mop of brown hair blown back dashing past at full speed had a terrific race with another of the Welsh team, Watts, for the ball, and won.

ALERTS WILL MAKE A BIG ATTEMPT TO STOP THE BOSTONS TO-NIGHT

Probably the feature game in the Junior City Hockey League events tonight will be the Alert-Exploit contest. To stay in the running Alerts must win it. A win for the Bostons makes them all the stronger for first position, but if the "Y" defeat the Wanderers they will be practically on the same footing as the Exploits. These games have been unusually good this year, but only a handful of fans have shown an interest in the youngsters, some of whom will be called upon to make good for next year's juniors. The Alerts are a big, strong team, considerably heavier than the Bostons, but the latter have neat combination and the necessary determination that accounted largely for their string of wins.

CIVIC SKATING RINKS OPENED IN LINDSAY

"The civic skating rink on Victoria Park will be opened this evening," said Ald. Clark to a Post reporter this afternoon. This will be good news to the youngsters, who will, no doubt, take advantage of the free skating in goodly numbers.—Lindsay Post.

ARCHITECT'S PRELIMINARY SKETCH OF THE PROPOSED DOMINION HOUSE IN ALDWYCH — Although Lord Grey has gone, on his doctor's advice, on a holiday voyage to Australia and New Zealand, the Duke of Norfolk has consented to take his place during his absence, as Chairman of Directors of the Dominion Site, Limited, the syndicate which has obtained an option on the Aldwych site from the London County Council. Lord Chelmsford and Sir Edward Ward have joined the board. Lord Chelmsford left England on the Olympic on Wednesday, at Lord Grey's request in order to lay detailed plans of the scheme before Mr. Borden, the Prime Minister of the Dominion.

The scheme in its present stage has three primary objects. It would enable the Governments of the self-governing Dominions and of the various States and Provinces to concentrate on one central site their offices, now widely distributed in different parts of London. It would cause the attention of the home consumer to be focussed effectively and impressively on the products of the Dominions. It would give the manufacturers of the United Kingdom an opportunity of ascertaining and meeting the requirements of Greater Britain.

BROUGHT CANARY FROM GREECE FOR THE BOSTON CHORUS

Mr. Nick Douros, who recently returned from Greece, brought with him an Athenian canary. Those who dine at the Boston Cafe have remarked the canary bird chorus. There are three or four of them in gilded cages, but they are Belgians or Canadian species. Mr. Douros brought a young bird all the way from the shores of the Aegean. It is only six months old and is just developing; besides, the cold weather has contracted its chords, with the result that it does not produce the delicate cadenzas and flutings of the finished songster that keeps it company. But it gives promise of future abilities. Its tone is deep and mellow. It has an alto, rather than a soprano, ring in its lutings. Mr. Douros states that he expects it to sing in English after about six or eight weeks.

OBJECT TO VACCINATION

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 11. — Two hundred factory employees who are anti-vaccinationists, paraded the streets of Niagara Falls, N.Y., this morning to Mayor Laughlin's office, singing the U. S. national anthem, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," but omitting the word "liberty." A proclamation ordering compulsory vaccination by Mayor Laughlin for the State Board of Health in connection with the smallpox epidemic on the U. S. side, was the cause of the demonstration.

DEAD HOMESTEADER WAS GOING TO NORWOOD

Special Wire to The Examiner:

The following is taken from the Moose Jaw Times:

The sudden death of an old homesteader from this district occurred at the C. P. R. depot, Winnipeg, on Saturday night. Gillian Cooper, who was a homesteader, 26 miles south of Moose Jaw, and who was 76 years of age, recently sold his farm which was the southwest quarter of 33-12-25, for $2,000.

Some five weeks ago he turned up at the home of Charles Glover, a well known farmer south of the city, and asked to stay the night, but eventually stayed there for five weeks. He was anxious to get to a sister in Norwood, Ont., and has already had some of his money transferred there, and last Friday morning Mr. Glover brought the old fellow into town and secured his ticket, and made arrangements for him to leave for the east on the night train.

Apparently he was robbed or lost his ticket and money between here and Winnipeg, for the next thing Mr. Glover heard was an inquiry about him from Winnipeg and he came in and secured fresh transportation for him, but late on Saturday night word was received that the old man had dropped dead suddenly in the depot, where he was about to take the train for Toronto.

WEDDING BELLS

SMITH—DONELL.

A wedding of unusual interest took place this afternoon at 3.45, at All Saints' Church, when Miss Alice Rea Donell, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Donell, 332 Rubidge Street, was married to Mr. Joseph H. Smith, of Rosetown, Sask. The ceremony was performed by the Rector, the Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., the wedding march having been played by Miss M. Flowers, the organist. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her brother, Mr. Rupert S. Donell, of Detroit.

After the ceremony the wedding party proceeded to the C.P.R. station, where, amid showers of confetti, the happy couple left on the afternoon express for Chicago, in which city they will spend their honeymoon.

The large number of beautiful and costly presents testified to the popularity of the bride and groom. Their many friends will wish them a long and happy life.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside in Rosetown, Saskatchewan.

WOMEN OF INFLUENCE

We are all of us, whether young or old, famous or obscure, women of influence. We cannot live a day without affecting the world somewhat for good or ill, whether we will or no. We are all a part of life's forces whether we know it or not. Be as humble as you like, you are still a person of influence, if not by your own choice, then often by God's decree. It may be only a smile or a simple kindness that you have given to a little child, but it starts agencies you little dream of: or it may be some selfishness and lack of honour, some weakness in you that sets in motion a long train of hurtful and sad influences or circumstances. For all life is connected, and whether you wish it or not your life affects other lives.—Woman's Home Companion.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

The market to-day showed early strength. The list became reactionary, with weakness in spots.

Friday may see some further bullish operations against the shorts in connection with the favourable steel statement. We think the market, however, is in a trading area, and that neither rallies nor declines will amount to much, taking the market as a whole, for a time at least. Sentiment has been very favourably impressed with the steel tonnage statement, especially so because it follows a good copper report. Steel is being strongly recommended now as a purchase to hold. We find information more favourable for a rally in the market for Union Pacific.

Low-priced rails are being well taken on reactions.

Thursday being Lincoln's birthday, the stock market will be closed until Friday.

A Softer Snap.

A couple of coloured boys were discussing plans for a coming county fair.

"I got a job working for a cigar man," said one. "All I have to do is to stick my head through a canvas and dodge baseballs."

"Huh!" sinffed the other. "I got a softer snap than that."

"Whatta you gotta do?"

"My job is just like yours, only I don't have to run de risk of gettin' hit by no baseballs. All I has to dodge is tomaters."

MAKE SMALL CHEESE REPLACE MEAT

Advocating the manufacture of small cheese for local consumption, Mr. D. James, of Thornhill, opened his address at the Farmers' Institute meeting in the Temperance Hall, 4th Line of Smith, yesterday afternoon. He stated that small cheese would permit a more extensive local sale, and it would help replace meat.

Mr. James urged farmers to raise their own stock in preference to purchasing them. He emphasized the necessity of comfortable, well ventilated stables, with plenty of light. Mr. Chas. E. Moore presided. Mr. Robt. Murphy, of Thornhill, spoke on soil cultivation and drainage.

FIRST CASE OF ITS KIND IN CANADA—Jury awards verdict of five hundred dollars damages against Ontario farmer who married a second time when his first wife was living. Miss Maria Fisher and Henry Jones, pictured above, were the principals in a peculiar case at the Toronto Assizes. Jones, who is a prosperous farmer, was married 26 years ago, but according to his own statements had not seen her for twenty-six years and had received an anonymous telegram some years ago that she was dead. In February, 1912, Miss Fisher answered Jones' advertisement for a housekeeper, and after a short courtship they went through a form of marriage and lived together for nearly a year. Then the first wife turned up and Jones was arrested for bigamy, but acquitted by a jury. Miss Fisher sued for ten thousand dollars' damages for loss of character and social standing, and was given five hundred dollars. The presiding judge said it was the first case of its kind in Canada.

ASQUITH IS UPHELD

Proposal to Refer Home Rule to Country is Voted Down

REDMOND IS CONCILIATORY

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Home rule for Ireland was again the subject of paramount interest in the House of Commons yesterday. Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader; David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Sir John Simon, the Attorney-General; John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalist, and Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, all made fervent speeches, and at the conclusion of the debate, the amendment to the reply to the speech from the throne, moved on Tuesday by the Unionist, Walter Hume Long, "that it would be disastrous for the House to proceed further with the Government for Ireland bill until the measure had been submitted to the judgment of the country," was defeated by a vote of 333 to 255, a majority of 78.

The announcement of the figures was received with loud Opposition cheers and shouts of "Resign."

John Redmond spoke in a conciliatory tone and appeared anxious to meet the question from a broad viewpoint, with an earnest desire for a peaceful settlement.

Bonar Law predicted civil war the moment home rule passed, but urged that the danger of civil war could be averted by leaving Ulster out of the home rule bill, or by submitting the bill to the judgment of the people.

In winding up the debate for the Opposition, he said that upon the shoulders of the Prime Minister was a responsibility as great as ever was borne by any statesman. The time for hesitation had gone. It was the clear duty of the Premier to tell the House without further delay what the Government proposed to do. He had admitted that the loyalists of Ulster were in a position which entitled them to special treatment; therefore, to impose upon them by force a system of government which they opposed was to treat them as slaves. To make any offer of home rule within home rule, of which much had been heard recently, would do great harm. If the offer were made it would be for the purpose, not of securing acceptance, but rejection, with the single object of improving the Government's political or strategical position.

Sir John Simon, Attorney-General, the first speaker leading, said that should the Liberal regain power at a general election, it would be a new Parliament, and the House of Lords could block home rule for another three years.

Sir Edward Carson, who followed, said the words put into the King's mouth by the Cabinet Ministers were a confession that the bill had utterly failed to furnish a solution of the Irish question. If the exclusion of Ulster should be proposed he would consult with the people there.

In conclusion, Sir Edward Carson declined to pledge himself as to what he would do as the result of a general election.

Augustin Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, at the start of his speech paid Sir Edward Carson a marked compliment by telling him his speech had been marvellously forceful and had proved that however much he hated home rule he loved his country more.

The Chief Secretary said that only on that high plane could they approximate to peace. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that there was a case for the rest of Ireland as well as for Ulster, and also for the cessation of the abuse of the respective sections as well as of himself.

David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, referring to the question asked by the Opposition as to why the Government did not table proposals before the House at once, said it was because the Government was convinced that to do so at the stage would not promote the desire for peaceful settlement, but hinder its attainment.

The Government was prepared, said the Chancellor, to go to the extreme of concession compatible with the principles of the bill, but could not betray the majority of Irishmen who had put their trust in it.

John Redmond, after repudiating the charge that he wanted Ulster's taxes, said any concessions made must be consistent with the bill's main principles. He thought the Government had gone further than necessary in offering terms of settlement, but accepted Premier Asquith's suggestion.

The Irish national leader concluded by saying he was deeply anxious to remove all fears. He said he would meet the proposals in the broadest and most friendly spirit in the earnest hope that the aspirations of the royal speech might be realized and a peaceful settlement reached in the great problem on which the well-being of Ireland and the unity and the strength of the Empire depended.

Clung To Car Door.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 12. — Conductor George Knox, coming east in charge of the Grand Trunk International Limited, boarded a Pullman coach at Gananoque as the train was moving out. After going some distance, the Pullman conductor noticed his predicament and let him in. Knox was somewhat benumbed but not seriously affected.

Old Resident Passes Away

Death of Mrs. James Moore of Asphodel Last Week

Examiner Special:

HASTINGS, Feb. 11.— Another old resident of Asphodel passed away in the person of Mrs. Jas. Moore, relict of the late Jas. Moore, who predeceased her some years ago. Mrs. Moore has been in failing health for a number of years, and about a week before her death, was seized with paralysis, from which she never recovered. The funeral was held from the residence of her son, James, on Wednesday last, and was largely attended, the place of interment being the Trent Valley Cemetery.

A game of hockey was played on Wednesday last between Healy Falls and the locals, resulting in favour of the home team.

Dr. and Mrs. Hess took a trip to Toronto last week.

An epidemic of whooping cough is raging in some of the rural schools, and in consequence a number of children have to be kept out of school.

Quite a number of the young people accompanied the boys to Keene on Tuesday night last to play a return game of hockey, but the locals suffered defeat. However, a pleasant evening was spent.

We are sorry to report the illness of Mrs. L. T. Hayeke, who has been confined to her home for the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould of Colborne, are guests at the home of their son, Mr. Wm. Gould, druggist, here.

Mr. S. A. McBride, travelling agent for the P. Hamilton Co., Peterborough, spent a few days in this vicinity in the interests of the firm.

Mr. Thos. Hill of Peterborough Business College, spent the week end at his home here.

Miss Annie Sargent of Westwood, gave us a call on Sunday.

Miss Warner of Percy, spent Sunday with her uncle, Mr. Fred Warner.

Mr. Sanderson, representative of the J. Deere Co., Toronto, was in town on Monday, en route to Campbellford and surrounding towns, spending a short time with the local agents and looking after the interests of the firm.

February is not disappointing one's expectations, but is treating us to good winter weather, which reached a culminating point on Saturday last, when a severe blizzard passed over this section, when only important business could entice people to leave their homes.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church have bills out for their concert, "An Old-time Ladies' Aid Meeting at Mohawk Crossroads," which will be given in the Town Hall on Wednesday the 18th of February. The ladies are to be costumed in garments modelled after the Victorian era, and it is expected to be quite entertaining.

WORST YET TO COME.

Cold Snap Not Nearly Over Yet Says Weather Man.

TORONTO, Feb. 12. — Whatever cold weather the people of Eastern Canada have been experiencing during the past few days they have only been preparing for the worst, which is yet to come. The predictions and probabilities are that even colder weather conditions will prevail for a day or so. The extremes of temperature in Ontario yesterday were: White River, 62 below, and Toronto 12 below. All the rest of the province lay between these two figures.

Records have been going by the board in other parts of the Dominion. Every point east of the Rockies is now feeling the effects of a pronounce of high pressure. A widespread cold wave dominates the weather of the continent. It continues fair and cold throughout the Dominion.

A despatch from Montreal late last night declared that with one exception the registration of the thermometer at the observatory at McGill University was the lowest yesterday morning for thirty-seven years. The official temperature recorded was 25.9 below zero, which is about a degree warmer than the coldest, on Jan. 13 of this year. Reports from the southern counties and eastern townships of Quebec are to the effect that early yesterday morning the mercury went as low as 36 below, constituting a record.

The experiences of the northerners are amplified from North Bay at a late hour. It reads: "Tuesday night was the coldest of the season, the mercury dropping to 46 below at North Bay, 48 at Cobalt, and 50 at Cochrane.

The highest temperature experienced east of the Rockies yesterday was zero, in portions of Southern Alberta and Nova Scotia. In all other places the mercury was below that mark.

CHAPTER XI.

MADE PRISONER.

At three o'clock the next afternoon Beef Bissell felt better than he had for some time, this condition being a result of his vindictive triumph over Bud Larkin, and the fact that that young man was in his hands. He felt that the back of the sheep business had been broken as far as his range and his county were concerned.

I have put the opening of this chapter at three o'clock, because that was the hour at which life began to be manifest at the Bar T ranch after the stirring events of night before. Bud Larkin himself, worn out with his nights and days of vigil, had gone to sleep on his bed almost in the act of taking his boots off. Vague ideas of escape had coursed through his mind only to be overtaken and killed by the slumber he had evaded for so long.

His window faced south-west, and when he awoke it was to find the dazzling gold of the sun warming his face. For a moment he did not realize where he was, staring thus into the blinding radiance; but memory is only a few seconds sleepier than its master, and shortly everything came back to him.

A sinking sensation came over him as he remembered the wanton slaughter of his sheep, more because of the helpless agony of the poor dumb brutes than because of the monetary loss, although the latter was no trifling consideration, since nearly eight thousand dollars had been wiped out in less than half an hour.

Added to this sickening sensation was one of dull, choking rage that Bissell, a man of wealth and certain prominence in the State, should suggest and pursue a course that the most despised sheep herder would never countenance. That, Larkin told himself, showed the real man; the rough, crude product of a rough and bitter country.

For the slogan of the earlier West was selfishness.

"All this is mine and don't you come a-nigh me!" bawled the cowman when the nesters or grangers began to make their appearance.

The cowboy himself was the chief exponent of this philosophy. Restraint was unknown to him—his will was his law, and he tried to make it everyone else's. When thousands of men have the same idea the result is trouble; hence the practice of cluttering up one's person with artillery.

The one person for whom the cowpuncher had no respect and for whom the cow country was no fit abiding place was the man who allowed himself to be domineered. For that man convict-labour on a coral road would have been paradise compared to his ordinary existence.

Thus was the West the supreme abode at that time of the selfists or anarchists who have no thought or consideration outside their own narrow motives and desires.

Though Bud Larkin could not have analyzed his feelings in words, perhaps, yet he felt this keenly, and knew that now or never must he take his stand and keep it. He laboured under the double handicap, in this country, of having gone in for sheep and having been beaten at it the very first thing. Consequently, if he ever expected to gain any caste, or at least a hearing, he must turn the tables and that as soon as possible.

At the present moment, as he washed his face in the thick white wash-bowl that made the guest-room of the Bar T celebrated for leagues around, he had nothing but the remotest ideas of how this might be done. The fact, in brief, was that his sheep were and would continue piling up in the hills north of the Badwater, ready to enter the hazardous stretch of dry territory that had so nearly been disastrous to his first flock.

Until he should be free and could reconnoitre his chances and resources he would hesitate to order trem sent north. And yet they could not stay for ever near the Badwater. Neither could they be halted on their march north, because they were crossing the range of Wyoming sheepmen at the time and common plains courtesy demanded that they be removed as fast as possible.

But for the fact that Sims was in personal charge Bud Larkin would have been in utter despair. Such was his confidence in his indolent herdsman that he felt that though ultimate failure attended their efforts no blame could ever be attached to Sims.

Leaving the guest-chamber, Larkin immediately stepped into the dining-room and the gloomy thoughts fled, for there sat Juliet near the window, sewing. She greeted him with a smile and immediately rose.

"Well, Mr. Man, I thought you would never wake up," she remarked in mock reproof. "I've been waiting here since dinner to see that you had something to eat when you came out. You must be wild hungry."

"I could eat a saddle," said Larkin.

"Sorry, but the saddles are all out," she replied with a smile. "However, we have some nice fresh broiled quirts garnished with rawhide."

"Bring me a double order," said Bud, laughing, as he seated himself.

When he was almost through with his meal Juliet remarked:

"Father asked me to say that he would like to have a talk with you on the verandah when you were ready."

"I'll go right out," he answered, thanking her for the trouble she had taken.

He found Bissell seated in one of the big chairs outside, and took the other. Both men rolled a cigarette and then Bissell spoke.

"I owe you a great deal ,Larkin, for saving my daughter last night," he said with genuine emotion in his voice. "Under the circumstances I am sorry for what I did, and I wish I had it to do over again."

"As for the first, I don't deserve much credit. Juliet really saved her own life by coming to us when I fired the warning shot. As to the sheep, it's too late to think about them now; we'll come to another reckoning in that matter later on. I'd hardly expect a horse-thief to do a trick like that."

Bissell's tanned face turned a deep mahogany hue under the sting of this remark, and his eyes lost the soft look they had held when he spoke of Juliet.

"I'm willing to pay you the money loss," he replied, still anxious to make amends.

"On guarantee, I suppose, that I don't try to bring the rest of my sheep north."

"Yes."

"That's impossible, as you might know."

"I allow you're right foolish, Mr. Larkin; better think it over."

"I did that last night when the sheep went into the river," said Bud dryly.

"I suppose so, but a night's sleep sometimes changes a man's mind."

"Not mine. The first night I was here I told you that I would bring my sheep north, and I still intend to do it. I am always willing to meet a man half-way, but you wouldn't meet me. Instead of that you started in to ruin me. I have no objection to that, but you'd better take care that your schemes don't work two ways."

Bissell shrugged his shoulders. He still had the upper hand of the situation, and his temper in that case was not hard to control.

"I allow I can look out for myself," he said.

"No doubt, but you had better look out for me," was the retort.

"I reckon I'll manage," remarked Bissell contemptuously. "But all this isn't what I wanted to ask you. I'd be some pleased if you'd tell me about them rustlers you were with."

"Why do you want to know about them?" countered Bud.

"Because they're ruining the cattle business. I dunno how many head they run off last year, but I do know that profits were cut in half by 'em. You was with 'em long enough to know some of 'em again, I allow?"

"Yes. I would know nearly all of them. What's left of three is out there near the cottonwoods along the Little River, but I don't believe there's enough to bury."

"How is that?" inquired Bissell, who had evidently not heard of Larkin's narrow escape from death at the rustlers' hands.

Bud told him briefly.

"You shore were lucky," remarked the cowman with a Westerner's appreciation of the situation. "Now, I'm the head of the cattlemen's association in this part of the State, and o' course it's our business to clear the country of those devils. You're just the man we want, because you've seen 'em and know who they are. You tell me what yuh know and there'll be the biggest hangin' bee this State ever seen."

As has been said, Bud Larkin had the legitimate owner's hatred of these thieves who preyed on the work of honest men, and had sworn to help run them out of the country as soon as his own business was finished. Now, in the flash of an eye he saw where he could turn the knowledge he had gained to good account.

In a hurry time—

A Cube to a Cup

"You have rather queer ideas of me, Mr. Bissell," he said. "First, you fight me until I am nearly ruined, then you expect I will turn around and help you just as though nothing had happened."

"But in this,' 'cried the cowman, "you've got to help us. This is all outside of a war between the cows and the sheep. This is a matter of right and justice."

"So is the matter of my sheep. The range is free and you won't let me use it. Do you call that right or justice, either one "

Bissell choked down his own reply, and grew red with anger. Sudden, without exactly knowing how, the tables had been turned on him. Now, instead of being the mighty baron with the high hand, he was the seeker for help and this despised sheepman held the trump cards.

Furthermore, Larkin's direct question was capable of a damaging reply. Bissell sought desperately for a means of escape from the trap in which he found himself.

"Do you mean, young feller, that you won't tell me about them rustlers?"

"That's about it. But I might on one condition."

"What's that?"

"That your cattlemen's association give the rest of my sheep undisturbed passage north across the range to Montana."

"By gosh!" yelled the cowman, beside himself, springing out of his chair and glaring at the other with clenched hands on his hips. "That's your game, is it? Yuh pull our teeth an' then offer us grub, eh? Why, tan my hide—" he gagged with wrath and stood speechless, a picture of impotent fury.

Larkin laughed quietly.

"The shoe's on the other foot, but it doesn't seem to feel any too good," he sneered. "Better be reasonable now, hadn't you?"

"Reasonable? Sure, I'll be reasonable!" cried the other vindictively, almost suffocated with his emotion. "Let me ask yuh something. Do you absolutely refuse to tell about them rustlers if I don't do as you want and let your sheep through?"

"Well, not exactly," replied Bud, grinning. "I'll tell you this: They're going to run off a hundred head or so of your stock yet this week for the railroad camps up the State. I think it's fair to give you warning beforehand."

"Darn you and your warning! What I want is the names and descriptions of them men. Will yuh give 'em to me?"

"No, not unless we can strike a bargain. You talk about right and justice. Now let's see a little of it," answered Larkin.

"All right, young feller, you've said your say. Now listen to me. I'm a deputy-sheriff in this county"—he ripped open his vest and showed the badge pinned to the inside lining—"an' I hereby arrest yuh for bein' a party to them rustlers. Yer either a criminal or yuh ain't, accordin' to our notions out here, an' if yuh won't help us catch yer friends there ain't nothin' more to be said. Now roll into a cigarette an' eat it alive if yuh want to."

He glared defiantly down on Larkin, whose brows had drawn together as he went into executive session with himself.

In five seconds the situation between these men was once more reversed. It was not that Larkin had overreached himself; he simply had encountered a circumstance of which he was unaware. The possibility of Bissell being a deputy-sheriff had not occurred to him, and now he sat balked and perplexed, balancing his chances on either hand.

It was not in the man to yield supinely to this new danger. He could not even think of hte possibility without shame. He was right, he told himself over and over again, and, listen as he would, he could detect no contradictory reply from the still, small voice we are all credited with possessing.

His mission in life was to get his sheep through. In that circumstance the rustlers were unexpected allies, and he hoped they would put burs under the tails of every steer on the range and drive them to the Gulf of Mexico. Once his merinos and angoras were safe across the line Bud would gladly return and help round them up.

The idea that he, clipped, helpless, and harmless as he was, should now turn in and assist his despoilers to better their own fortunes was so maddening that he grinned with fury as he thought of it. No, the thing was impossible!

Bissell had not changed his menacing position during all of Bud Larkin's ponderings and was waiting patiently for some outbreak from his victim. But at last he could stand it no more.

"Well," he snarled, "say something! What's your answer?"

"That bargain goes as she stands," said Bud, after a moment's thought. "You help me and I'll help you. Otherwise you won't get a word out of me, and you can do whatever you like."

"You're under arrest," snapped Bissell. "Give me your gun!" and he covered Bud with a single swift motion of his hand'

The younger man did as commanded and rose.

"Now go into that room; you're a prisoner," ordered Bissell.

Two Doctors Said He Had Consumption.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP CURED HIM.

Mrs. John Elliff, St. John's West, Ont., writes:—"My little boy was very bad with whooping cough and severe cold. I went to two doctors with him, and they said he had Consumption. I could get no relief for him, he would cough all night long, with a dry hacking cough.

I was persuaded to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and was surprised to see the first bottle did him good. I have had five bottles, and they cured him, he rests well at night now, and is well and hearty. If he gets a cold we always give him Pine Syrup and he is soon better. I did not think I could raise him, but I am thankful to say Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup saved him from being a consumptive."

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the admonition to all persons affected by the earlier stages of throat and lung trouble, as failure to take hold at once will cause many years of suffering, and in the end that terrible scourge "Consumption."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is without an equal for all affections of the Throat and Lungs.

For the Children

A Gay Young Lad and His Dog on Wheels.

Almost every boy and many girls are fond of dogs. Dogs are very faithful and affectionate friends and when kindly treated never fail to respond a hundredfold. The young gentleman in the picture has a dog that doesn't mind what kind of treatment it gets, because it is only the stuffed skin mounted on wheels, a kind of bobby-horse sort of dog. Almost any boy would be glad to own such a steed. He would also like to have a really, truly dog to go with it. Then what sport, riding a big stuffed dog with another one barking alongside! The boy in the picture probably got the dog on which he so proudly rides last Christmas, because Santa Claus doesn't let people know what he intends giving until the proper time comes. And everybody knows that is Christmas eve. Probably Santa will give a present like this dog —or perhaps a pony—to some of his numerous young friends. He keeps lots of nice things in stock up in the polar regions, where he lives and makes toys. All year long he has been toiling, and just before Christmas he starts out to make his rounds. Let us hope that he won't skip anybody this Christmas.

An Old Bottle Piano.

You can probably find sixteen or eighteen empty bottles, and I am going to tell you how to make a bottle piano on which you can play real tunes, and which will give you any amount of fun, says a writer in Cassel's Little Folks.

You will require two poles—broom handles will do—a couple of chairs, the bottles and some water.

Place the two poles across the chairs and suspend the bottles from them, using pieces of string with double loops. If the bottles are all the same size you obtain different notes by pouring water into them; the more water you pour into a bottle, the lower the note will be. But if the bottles are of different shapes—and there is no reason why you should not hang up all the empty bottles you can lay your hands on—upon striking them with a stick you will find that each bottle gives forth a different note and can be tuned by pouring in a little or a lot of water, according to the note required. If the bottles are all alike you will pour a little water in the first bottle, a little more in the second, still more in the third and so on until the eighth is almost full. On the second pole you can get in the sharps and flats, and if you wish you can add a third pole and go an octave higher by using smaller bottles.

For playing the bottle piano use a wooden stick or cane; for quick tunes, use two sticks, one in each hand, and for still faster work, two performers are required, one on each side of the piano.

FASHION REVIEW.

If you are including in your wardrobe the one piece dress the separate wrap is a necessity.

The separate skirt contrasting with the jacket is a godsend to the woman who must be economical.

The smart corsage bouquet is now surrounded by a frill of tulle harmonizing with the color of the gown.

White ermine stoles are finished with chenille fringe formed of lengths of chenille cord that is about four inches long.

Braided belts are used on many of the latest suits, and sometimes the braiding is combined with heavy embroidery.

Some of the new long sleeves have small buckles at the wrist to hold the fullness of the frill snugly in place about the wrist.

Thumbs of the Apes.

The gorilla and chimpanzee, which belong to the higher order of apes, have many points of resemblance to man, but there is one thing they cannot do—that is, twiddle their thumbs. In the gorilla the thumb is short and does not reach much beyond the bottom of the first joint of the forefinger. It is very much restricted in its movements, and the animal can neither twiddle his thumbs nor turn them round so that the tips describe a circle. There are the same number of bones in the hand of a gorilla as in the hand of a man, but the thumbs of the monkey have no separate flexor or bending muscle. This is why a monkey always keeps the thumb on the same side as the fingers and never bends it round any object that may be grasped. In the gorilla the web between the fingers extends to the second joint, the fingers taper to the tips, and there is a callosity on the knuckles on which the animal rests when walking on all fours.

History in July.

In at least four countries perhaps the most important event in their histories was recorded in July—namely, the establishment of their independence. In our own history we have the memorable Fourth of July, while the patriotic efforts of the liberator Simon Bolivar for the independence of Venezuela were consummated on July 5. Colombia ridding herself of the Spanish yoke on July 20. Then there is France, with her July 14, marking the date when the suffering French people stormed the famed and fearsome Bastille. The Spanish forces at Santiago, Cuba, capitulated on July 16.

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Honsberger, 16 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and now feel better than I did for 20 years."

Suspicious of Bankers.

In a remote farming district in which I once passed a few days I was told of a wealthy farmer whose friends, fearing he would be murdered, succeeded after an infinity of trouble in persuading him to take his money to a bank. When he interviewed the manager he asked how much the bank would charge for taking care of his cash. The manager replied that it would charge nothing, but would pay him something. "I always knew you were rascals!" he retorted, and marched off, money and all.—London Citizen.

Very Thoughtful.

"The clocks," said the bride, "are simply beautiful, and it was lovely of you to give them to us. But—you won't think me inquisitive?—may I ask why you gave us a pair of them? Of course it was perfectly"—

"I gave you two of them," interrupts the friend, "because I'm very fond of both of you, and if you ever get divorced you will each have something to remember me by."—Chicago Post.

Avoiding Comparison.

"What is your objection to me as a son-in-law? My character is beyond reproach."

"That's just it," said Mr. Olsport. "You don't suppose I want to go through the rest of my life having you held up to me as a shining example!" —Washington Star.

Leaving Earth.

She—My husband has just left earth. He—How's that—is he dead? She—No: he's just gone up in an aeroplane.—Puck Mels.

Points for Mothers

Novel Amusement a Help.

The little weary face and the fretful cry of "I don't know what to do" that so often delay the sick child's convalescence can easily be avoided by a few ingenious thoughts for his amusement.

Very often Teddy bears and expensive toys that have been sent to him by sympathetic relatives will lie neglected at the foot of the bed, and the invalid's interest can be aroused only by some novel form of entertainment that has never amused him before.

Children are never happier than when cutting up paper. Snip, snip they go, clipping out shapeless pieces from old magazines and making a mess while they waste their time. There are so many ways in which paper cutting can train little fingers to be clever and active. For a few cents one of those colored paper "pantomimes" can be bought whose "cast" and scenery will take some hours to finish neatly. Little girls love to cut out paper dolls and create fashionable wardrobes for them. Very often they prefer to draw the outlines themselves, and then they can color them with crayons. Flowers, model houses, brightly hued chains —all these can be made from paper.

Rag Dolls and Beads.

The average child loves to make those rag animals and dolls that are now sold at every toy shop. The shapes are easily cut, and then they are stuffed with rags and sewn up again. This is another opportunity to humor a child's artistic bent because the animals can really be made from plain pieces of calico, provided somebody cuts it out in the right shape, and this can be painted by the youngster.

Stringing beads is a favorite pastime with the sick child. Rings, bracelets and necklaces can be made for relatives "on order," and there is nothing that children enjoy so much as making things for grownups.

Scrap book making is another task which a child enjoys. Give him a blank book, a paste pot and a few old illustrated magazines and he will amuse himself for hours.

An imaginative child finds great joy in seashells. He loves to feel the different shapes and by putting them to his ear thinks he can hear the sounds of the waves. This sometimes entertains him for hours.

The Bran Pie.

Children love any excitement, and a novel way of keeping their unfailing interest is to make a bran pie. A few penny toys should be wrapped in separate pieces of paper and hidden in a cardboard box that has been filled with sawdust. Every hour or so the child can pause a minute from his other amusements and have a "dip." Great will be his speculation as to what he is going to pick out of the bran pie.

Care of Young Children.

It is curious to notice how few women realize the possibilities of comprehension in children between the ages of two and five years. They will discuss the most impossible subjects before the little ones and very often discuss the children themselves in a way that seems to indicate that the little brains are blanks. So they are at first, but they are blanks upon which any passing hand can write what very few hands can erase.

The average child of these years is quicker to comprehend than at any other period. He is more sensitive to impressions than grownups can possibly realize. An angrily raised voice leaves a blot on the young mind which it will take weeks to remove.

Think, then, mothers, of the responsibility of writing on these quickly covered blanks. Think of the care which should be spent on the writing, for, remember, as the child is trained now so will he be in adolescence. If kindness, courtesy and generosity are the lessons impressed on the young mind as he grows so will the knowledge of these traits develop. If he is raised on other principles he will reflect their impressions in after years.

Train your little one in ideas of big heartedness and compassion toward others. It is very easy to do. When the child bumps his head do not encourage him in ideas of revenge by spanking the offending obstacle and saying "Bad door" (or bad floor or whatever the object may be). "How could it hurt baby! There! Take that!" It is this method which will train the child in entirely wrong ideas of revenge.

If instead of this treatment the child is taught compassion and self forgetfulness the mother will reap the reward in after years. Teach the little one by saying: "Poor door! There; did baby hurt it? Baby didn't mean to." In this way the little one will forget his own hurt in thinking of the other.

Teach the little one, also, to be unselfish toward other children. When he has been the recipient of a present of candies, cakes or toys teach him to divide his goodies with others in the family or, if he is the only child, then with his friends. If the little mind is impressed with the fact that "it is more blessed to give than to receive" it is quite certain that the child of such teaching will not grow into a selfish, self centered man or woman.

"It pays to be polite."

TRAPPING ON FARMS

Chances For an Observant Country Boy to Earn Money

Over one hundred thousand dollars is paid to the farmer boys of Canada each year for raw furs," said Mr. John Hallam, a large Toronto fur dealer, "and many of these boys earn their first real money by setting out a line of traps and capturing the valuable fur-bearing animals."

Contrary to the popular impression, it is not necessary to go into the wilds in order to trap, as muskrats, mink, skunk, raccoon, ermine or white weasel and other valuable fur-bearing animals abound throughout the farming communities of the Dominion, and it only remains for the observant, active trapper to capture the same and turn their pelts into the big money that they bring on the market to-day.

Not only does the following of the trap line well repay the boy for the time and energy expended, but it leads him to enjoy the healthful life in the open, and to become a lover of nature. It causes him to become observant and sharpens his wits, when he attempts to match his skill against the natural instinct and wariness of the wild animals, and offers an innocent safety valve to the natural exuberance inherent in every boy having good red blood coursing through his veins.

AIDING CUPID

How an Apple Barrel Began a Romantic Story

When William Brooks, an English man, and the owner of a large orchard in British Columbia, came to Canada, he secured a position packing apples. Into one of the apple barrels he put a letter which secured him a charming wife.

Miss Gretchen Van Durfer, a pretty flaxen-haired Dutch girl, the daughter of a rich fruit merchant in Rotterdam was standing near a barrel of apples when it was being opened by one of her father's workmen to get one of the apples out to show to a prospective customer. A letter fell to the ground from the blade of the axe. The man in opening the barrel had pierced the letter.

Miss Van Durfer picked it up and found it was from far-off Canada, asking whoever opened the letter to answer it for the writer who was William Brooks, was lonesome. Miss Van Durfer could write very little English but she managed to put a letter together and send it to Mr. Brooks. In return he sent her his photograph.

It was another case of "love at first sight." After that they corresponded until Miss Van Durfer left her home for Canada to become Mrs. William Brooks.

Sawdust Bread

There is a bakery in Germany that turns out 20,000 loaves of sawdust bread daily and finds a ready market for this output. Although this "wooden bread" is intended for consumption for horses only, it is claimed by the manufacturer that in case of famine it would furnish a nutritious and highly satisfactory food for human beings. The sawdust is first subjected to a process of fermentation and various chemical manipulation, and is mixed with one-third part of rye flour. It is then formed into loaves and baked in an oven like any other bread.

SMART VELVET COAT.

The backs of costumes this season, from a modish standpoint, must be like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. And unless the figure is straight, slender and youthful looking the advantage of good tailoring is lost. When the back is inclined to curve in at the waist line padding is used to give the correct silhouette.

In the smart little coat of green velvet seen in the illustration a long tasseled streamer of velvet matching the coat is attached at the neck and hangs to below the waist line. This heavily weighted ornament gives the desirable straight line at the back and increases the smartness of the wrap.

Wall Papers and Light.

"The good lighting of a room depends not only on the disposition of the lights so as to produce an adequate illumination and on the proper shielding of the lamps so as to avoid needless glare, but on the nature of the wall surface on which the light falls," said Professor Silvanus Thompson of London. "Even when the illumination that is received by the walls is ample the room may be badly lit if the walls absorb too much of that illumination instead of giving it back by diffuse reflection. Few people are aware how much light is thus wasted and thrown away.

"The deep scarlet and crimson wall papers now fashionable for dining rooms waste from 70 to 75 per cent; brown paper wastes about 85 to 88 per cent; even an ordinary yellow or buff wall paper wastes 50 to 60 per cent. On the other hand, white cartridge paper absorbs and wastes only about 20 per cent of the light, while a whitewashed wall absorbs from 30 to 40 per cent."

True Tales of Adventure

In Unrecorded Naval Battle British "Dreadnought" Vanquished Three French and Two American Vessels

FOR more than a century and a quarter it has generally been accepted by historians that the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown in October, 1780, terminated the important military operations in the struggle for American independence, but recent researches have brought to light a squadron action off the Spanish port of Ferrol in which two American war ships took part on December 12, 1782, or more than two years after the surrender at Yorktown. In no American records, official or historical, has any mention ever been made of this naval battle of the Revolution.

In many respects the battle off Ferrol rivals the extraordinary performance of John Paul Jones, when he, in command of the Bonhomme Richard, fought the English frigate Serapis off Flamborough Head, on the east coast of England, September 23, 1779, and illustrates the value of the "dreadnaughts" of those days. In both instances it was a moonlight action, the combined forces of the Bonhomme Richard and the Serapis being ninety-two guns and six hundred and twenty-four men, while the combined American, English and French forces in the battle off Ferrol was one hundred and eighty cannon and eight hundred and ninety-seven men.

The discovery of this important sea fight was brought about by the persistent following up of a clew given at a private sale of old books and engravings held some time ago in London, England. Among the engravings was one which represented the British forty four gun frigate Mediator, Captain James Luttrell, R. N., attacking the combined American and French squadrons off the bold headlands forming the harbor of Ferrol. The engraving, which is a superb specimen of the art, was made by Mr. R. Pollard from a painting made more than a century ago by D. Serres, Esq., fellow of the Royal Academy and "Marine Painter to His Majesty."

It was customary toward the close of the Revolution for American and French war ships to cruise in company, and, when attacked by their common foe, the English, to join forces for mutual defence. Evidently this was the case in the newly discovered naval battle off Ferrol. The two American vessels were the twenty-four gun ship Alexander, commissioned as a privateer by the State of New York, commanded by Captain Gregory and manned by 102 men, and the fourteen gun brig Amiable Eunice, commissioned as a privateer by the State of Massachusetts, commanded by Captain W. Pearson and manned by seventy men.

Cruising in company with the Alexander and Amiable Eunice were the French war ships l'Eugeue, Captain Le Baudin, carrying thirty-six guns and 133 men; the corvette Dauphin Royal, carrying 28 guns and 120 men, and the frigate Ménagerie, Captain de Tolignc, carrying or pierced for thirty-four guns and manned by 212 men, making the total force of the allied American-French squadrons 130 guns and 637 men. According to the French records, however, the Ménagerie was armed "en flute," which means that she had been transformed into transport, with her guns taken out so as to make room for the transportation of troops. But even with the Ménagerie's guns eliminated, the allied squadron had a force greatly superior to the attacking English. The Mediator was a formidable craft for her day, and, singly, was superior to any of her antagonists. Captain Luttrell, her commander, availed himself to the utmost of his great advantage in having a compact force, for he speedily broke through the hostile line of battle, and by attacking his foes separately won a brilliant victory, notwithstanding the fact that the ship carried only forty-four guns. The Americans and French had the further disadvantage of not being able to act in complete harmony due, no doubt, to the old time difficulty of understanding each other's language and signals.

Just as dawn was beginning to break December 12, 1782, when the Mediator was cruising in the Bay of Biscay, her scouts reported two sails directly ahead, and soon afterward three other ships. On making the Mediator out to be an English war ship the American and French war ships immediately shortened sail, formed in line of battle and awaited the attack. The Alexander, headed by l'Eugene, having the Amiable Eunice just astern, then came the Ménagerie, Alexander and Dauphin Royal in the order named, Captain Le Baudin of l'Eugene acting as commodore of the allied squadrons.

Having made out the force of his opponents and the disposition for defence Captain Luttrell made straight for the centre of the American-French line. The Alexander, exposed to a raking fire from the whole line of battle, for only half a minute the Mediator endured this exposure, sending to it finally sufficient to deliver her broadside in return. Fortunately for the English, however, the Americans and French fired too high, scarcely striking the Mediator's hull once, but severely injuring her sails and rigging.

It was ten A. M. when Captain Luttrell made his turn for the hostile line, and by half-past ten A. M. he had broken through it, fire and devoted all his attention to the Alexander. Apparently the American ship was not properly supported by her consorts for, notwithstanding the stubborn resistance the Yankees made, they were compelled to surrender at eleven A. M. Their main topgallant mast had been shot away and six of the crew had been killed and nine wounded.

A panic now seems to have taken possession of the remaining crews in the allied squadron, for the English records state that the "other vessels fled." After spending an hour and a half in transferring Captain Gregory and the crew of the Alexander to the Mediator Captain Luttrell gave chase to the remaining vessels, whereupon they separated and took up different courses to escape.

Singling out the Ménagerie, Captain Luttrell overtook her by five P. M., just as she was endeavoring to gain the harbor of Ferrol. A running fight, which was greatly protracted by the lightness of the breeze, was maintained between the Mediator and the Ménagerie until ten o'clock that night, when the Frenchman surrendered.

On the following morning, December 13, he discovered the Amiable Eunice and the Dauphin Royal in the offing endeavoring to gain the protection of the port, it having been calm during most of the night, none of the vessels had made much headway. Having placed a number of his own men aboard the Ménagerie and Alexander as prize crews, Captain Luttrell found that now he had only 180 of his crew left with which to guard 340 American and French prisoners. He accordingly gave over further thought of chasing the fugitive craft and made sail for England. That the Americans in the Amiable Eunice had made a good resistance is shown by the fact that their craft was partly dismasted before the close of the battle.

Captain Gregory, of the Alexander, hatched a conspiracy to capture the Mediator almost as soon as that frigate shaped her course for England. The conditions were most auspicious, for the frigate's complement had been reduced to one hundred and ninety men and the American and French prisoners aboard numbered three hundred and forty.

Captain Gregory had laid his plans with remarkable skill. By some means not revealed in the unearthed records he managed to have the hatchway gratings—the usual means of covering the hatchways which led to the prisoners' quarters below—secreted, and on the discharge of the cannon at midnight of December 14 the prisoners were to rush up from the deck below, raise the cry, "The ship is on fire!" and in the consequent confusion overpower the officers and crew, Gregory himself, as being the commander of the captured Alexander, was not confined with the other prisoners, but had a cot to himself on the main gun deck.

How well this skilfully managed plan worked is told in the British official records as follows:—"On the night of December 14 Captain Luttrell was alarmed by a violent explosion and the cry of fire. Gregory had fired one of the lower deck guns as a signal in a plot for the prisoners to rise and take the Mediator. Captain Luttrell immediately sent what remained of his crew to quarters and placed extra sentinels over the hatchways. It was then found that the gratings had mysteriously disappeared. To remedy this defect capstan bars were hastily procured and were lashed over the hatchways, thus preventing the prisoners from gaining the deck. This desperate scheme was prevented without bloodshed. Upon examination some powder and a pistol were found in Gregory's cot, which, with other corroborative circumstances, led to prove that he was the principal conferred. Gregory and some others were confined in irons during the remainder of the passage to England."

HOW many battle ships does the United States need? The General Board of the Navy was appointed as a board of experts to answer this question. They declare that to maintain American policies and protect the nation the United States should possess by 1920 forty-eight first class battle ships, with the necessary auxiliary vessels of a well balanced navy.

This policy was laid down ten years ago by the nation's official advisers and, accompanied with full explanation, recommended to the Navy Department. Similar recommendations have been decided on unanimously by successive General Boards and have been made to successive Secretaries of the Navy each year since 1903.

The Naval Board as at present constituted is a notable body. It includes the Admiral of the Navy, George Dewey, ranking officer of the United States Navy; Rear Admiral C. E. Vreeland; Rear Admiral W. H. H. Southerland, Rear Admiral Bradley M. Fiske and Rear Admiral A. M. Knight. All of these men are of the highest rank, men of long and noted service, and the latter is the president of the Navy War College. In addition to these are five captains, all men who have won for themselves places of distinction. They are Captain H. S. Winterhalter, Captain T. S. Rodgers, Captain John Hood and aptain W. S. Shoemaker.

Together with the laying down of a policy that would result in the desired number of ships in 1920 was a programme for appropriations that would have provided them. The General Board recommended that Congress be asked for two capital ships each year, with an additional ship each three years. This programme if adhered to would have produced an adequate navy in 1920. But since the plans of the General Board were not even given to Congress they were not, of course, followed. The appropriations for the few years that followed 1903 were for less than two a year and three in the third year. So it soon came to pass that the General Board was regularly recommending appropriations for four ships. It never meant to be placed in the position of favoring a policy of four battle ships a year under normal conditions, but was asking for additional ships to make up for the years of inadequate appropriations. However, only its request for four battle ships was known by the public, without its reasons, and it gained a reputation for asking overmuch.

The General Board, for instance, asks for four battle ships this year. It does so because their keeping up the programme of Four first class ships are ready for replacement. These are the Indiana, the last in 1895. Unless provision is made appropriations for four ships a year for Massachusetts, the Oregon and the Iowa, the first four ships that will have to be replaced, the first [illegible] authorized in 1890 and the capital ships next year than last. The to lose strength instead of to gain, while for an emergency, how naval officers should be advanced to command rank at an age sufficiently young to get experience in that rank, and many other vital needs of the navy that need fitting legislation.

The Navy League vouches for the foregoing statements.

The organization and growth of the Navy League came about from a conviction on the part of certain civilians that the welfare of the country demanded that the American people should take an active interest in the navy. From the start naval officers have not been permitted to assume leadership or hold office in the organization.

The league is supported by membership fees and subscriptions from its members. From those sources it has an income of about $10,000 a year, maintains an office in Washington, holds meetings and conventions, has a speaking bureau and circulates a vast amount of printed matter.

Among the booklets published by the league that have attracted wide attention is a pamphlet which quotes from President Wilson's "History of the American People" the statement that the War of 1812 was a "war of arms brought on by a programme of peace." It brings out that although the American people had in the field during the War of 1812 235,000 untrained men, the British, with but 16,500 trained soldiers (the size of their force in 1814), were able to march to Washington and burn the Capitol.

The league also refers to the conditions prevailing in the year 1860, but six months before the civil war, when another group of would-be peace makers, whose programme was disarmament, went to the extreme of introducing in Congress a bill to entirely abolish the navy.

The navy is the only form of insurance against war. The cost of the navy has been thirty per cent less than the cost of pensions since the Revolution.

The navy is a splendid national public school—the modern battle ship is a perfect manual training establishment. Enlisted men in the navy are trained to be patriotic and to respect the law, they are developed physically and are employed in a dozen useful trades which improve them as men and prepare them all the better for civil pursuits.

the European tendency is for appropriations to increase rapidly the size of its navies.

But this recommendation of the General Board has gone by default, although adhered to by the nation's experts appointed for the very purpose of determining the naval protection needed.

Had the programme proposed by the General Board of the Navy been adhered to the ideal fleet of 1920 would have been created and would have been constituted as follows: Capital ships, forty-eight; destroyers, 192; submarines, ninety-two; ammunition ships, six; destroyer tenders, twelve; fuel ships, twenty-four; hospital ships, six; repair ships, six; submarine tenders, twelve; supply ships, six; transports, six. This would have been the navy of model proportions as a fighting force that should have been able to meet any enemy, and have given such an account of itself as to make Americans proud. To have manned it in time of war would have required 100,000 men. The General Board has also definite and

Nerves Were So Bad

THOUGHT SHE WOULD GO OUT OF HER MIND.

Diseases of the nervous system are very common. All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and worn out by household cares and duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with the nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy, or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the nerves, strengthen the heart and build up the entire system.

Mrs. Archie Goodine, Tilley, N.B., writes:—"When I was troubled with my heart two years ago, I was very bad. My nerves were so unstrung that sometimes I would almost go out of my mind. I doctored myself with everything I could get, until at last I got four boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and they have cured me. I cannot speak too highly of this wonderful remedy, and will recommend it to all sufferers."

WHEN YOU MEET KINGS

ETIQUETTE WITH ROYALTY IS A TICKLISH BUSINESS.

For Instance You Must Remove Your Hat and Stand Up Until Invited to Sit Down—Similarly You Must Never Ask a Princess to Dance With You Nor Yet Turn Down a Prince.

The King himself has many royal privileges, for as "the fountain of honor and justice" he alone can create title or grant pardons, and it is he who in the name of the nation is supposed to make all treaties with foreign powers, or to declare war. In his own person he is beyond the reach of the bailiff or the power of the policeman, for he pays no taxes and is answerable for no debts, and is above all laws, as, theoretically, "the King can do no wrong."

Nowadays, however, the King exercises his public prerogative almost entirely by the advice of his Ministers, and it is chiefly in private and social life that the personal privileges of the sovereign and the members of the royal family are most noticeable.

In the presence of royalty, with the exception of a few well-known individuals, in whose cases special privileges have been made by royal grant in return for notable services, no gentleman, unless he is an officer on duty may remain with his head covered, nor may anyone sit down until royalty is seated, and requests them to be seated.

No one may address a member of the royal family unless first spoken to, nor enter a room where any royal person is present, unless invited to do so, nor leave it without their permission.

Perhaps nowhere more than in the ballroom are the privileges of princes and princesses so rigidly observed. No one may commence dancing until the royal party have opened the ball, and at one time there was a rule, now seldom enforced, that no other person could dance in a round dance when any royalty had taken the floor.

A prince can invite any lady to be his partner, and his invitation is a command which cannot be refused, but no one except a prince can ask a princess to dance, as she chooses her own partners.

At an impromptu dance given at a big house in the South of England, which had been hurriedly arranged to amuse a royal duke and his daughters, some of the guests, who had very little experience of court etiquette, had rather an anxious time.

It was no easy matter to stop dancing without committing a dreadful breach of etiquette in standing with one's back to one of the royal party who might be seated behind you.

The duke was a vigorous dancer, and in the middle of a dance collided violently with a youthful gentleman in a pink coat, who was dancing with his mother, who was a singularly attractive lady and a well-known beauty in the neighborhood.

The young sportsman so far forgot himself as to ejaculate a very audible and explosive expression of disgust, and, when at the end of the dance, he saw the duke advancing towards him, he began to think he would be called on to make a very humble apology.

The duke, however, began by apologizing most handsomely for his own clumsiness, and then requested that he would introduce him to the lady he had been dancing with, so that he might apologize to her, too. The request was a command, and the duke spent most of the rest of the evening dancing with her, so his apologies must have been ample.

He was more fortunate than a royal prince who, at a Yeomanry ball in the Midlands paid so much attention to the pretty wife of a fox-hunting squire that the husband became seriously annoyed, and took advantage of his royal highness being down to supper, to order his carriage and to remove his wife from the ball at an early hour.

Half-way down the avenue, the carriage was overtaken by one of the royal suite, who had galloped after them with the prince's imperious request that the lady should return.

But the choleric squire had no regard for royal etiquette or for the privileges of princes, for, shoving his head out of the carriage window, he shouted to the astonished equerry, who awaited his reply:

"Give my compliments to the prince, and tell him my wife is going home with her husband—and that he can go to the dickens!" and promptly drove off as fast as his horses could go.

On another occasion one guest committed a dreadful "faux pas." He was a young gentleman, dressed in the blue coat and brass buttons of the Beaufort Hunt, and was evidently staying in the house, and apparently on very friendly terms with the royal party.

He noticed the princess sitting out a dance, talking to another lady, and, after some hesitation walked up to her in her retired corner, where he made a low bow and, evidently said something to the princess. For a moment the princess seemed to be taken by surprise, then, drawing herself up rather stiffly, she made some reply to the gentleman which caused him to retreat hurriedly, blushing to the roots of his hair.

He had committed the indiscretion of asking a princess to dance. But shortly afterwards, he was seen wreathed in smiles and dancing with the princess, who, with her usual good nature, had made him happy by sending him an invitation to be her partner.

This privilege of princesses in choosing their own partners is one which, perhaps, some young ladies might be prepared to envy. At the same time, it is possible that the younger princesses may, on some occasion and in some cases wish that they could waive their royal privilege.

Crazy.

"We find the prisoner not guilty by reason of insanity."

"But the plea was not that of insanity," remarked the court.

"That's just the point we made," rejoined the foreman. "We decided that any man who didn't have sense enough to know that an insanity plea was the proper caper must be crazy."

SWIMMING RECORDS AND NEW STROKES

Trudgeon Displaced by the Crawl For Speed Swimming—Old Records Seem Slow

There is no doubt that the several new swimming strokes, hich have been devised in the last few years, are accountable for the number of swimming records that have been broken. The crawl and its variations have made big inroads into the time for various swims. Record holders have learned to use these strokes while still little more than youngsters in most instances, and they have improved upon them until the time made by the use of the old breast stroke and the overhand stroke had to give way, just as the improvement in automobile engines and motorcycle engines has accounted for the record-making in these branches of sport.

A glance over the record holders and the title holders of the past two decades discloses to view two swimmers who stand out head and shoulders above the rest, one in England, and the other in the United States. From 1894 to 1897 J. B. Tyers, the great English swimmer, held every British record and championship from 100 yards to the mile, while in the States C. M. Daniels maintained the same high standard as peer of all swimmers on this side of the Atlantic, being unbeatable from 1904 until his retirement. Although there were swimmers who might have been slightly faster at some one distance than these two men, it can safely be said that for all round speed swimming they were in a class by themselves, all distances looking alike to them, each holding the sprint records and the distance marks.

Tyers' records compared with the times made by the best swimmers of to-day seem slow, but when it is considered that they were mad, with the trudgeon stroke, which has been generally abandoned for speed swimming the world over by latter-day swimmers, they appear all the more remarkable.

Old Strokes Abandoned

C. M. Daniels in the early part of his racing career used the trudgeon stroke exclusively, and even after he had acquired the then new crawl used the trudgeon for all swimming over the two hundred and twenty yards. It was not, however, until he took to the crawl seriously that he broke down the existing American records and a number of world's records.

The minute mark for the one hundred yards was for many years the zenith of every speed swimmer's ambition. It was not until 1902 that the one hundred yards was swam in less than a minute by V. C. Lane, an Australian. Swimming the Australian crawl he reduced the time to 59 3-5 seconds.

From 1902 up to the present every championship meeting, with few exceptions, has brought forth a new record for this distance. In 1905 Zoltan de Holmay, the great Austrian swimmer, further reduced the time to 59 seconds flat. The time for the century was again brought down by Daniels in 1907 to 58 3-5 seconds. In 1908 occurred the most remarkable reduction of this oft-broken record, when C. M. Daniels, swimming against the world's best speed swimmers at Manchester, England, established the unthought-of time of 55 2-5 seconds.

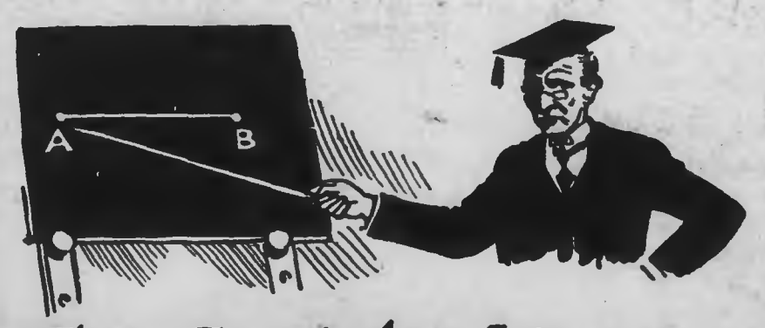
Hawaiian and Canadian

This record stood until the Olympic games at Stockholm brought to the public's attention one who is considered the peer of all speed swimmers, past or present, Duke Kahanamouks, the Hawaiian. He set the wonderful time of 1.01 3-5 for the distance of 109.361 yards, and later established a new world's record of 54 3-5 seconds for the 100 yards.

Kieran established a record of 23 minutes 16 4-5 seconds for a mile in a bath, which has never been approached.

The record for the half-mile of 11 minutes 25 seconds, established by Taylor, a great English swimmer, still stands, and the only swimmer who is at all likely to break it is George Hodgson, the wonderful Canadian mile record holder.

It is in the mile event, the classic distance, that the greatest changes have taken place. Starting with Tyers' record of 27 minutes 27 3-5 seconds in 1895, it is found that it was broken eight times, concluding with the marvelous swimming of the youngster Hodgson who established the new accepted figures of 23 minutes 34 1-4 seconds, a total reduction of three minutes and forty-seven seconds in sixteen years.



The Straight Line in Creating Demand

"A Straight Line is the Shortest Distance between Two Points"

Whatever troubles old Euclid gave us in our schooldays his axioms were simple enough. In our business life to-day we show a lively appreciation of the truth of this axiom in cutting out superfluous efforts—in the saving of time and labor.

In making goods the straight line is "efficiency." It is the shortest distance between raw material and finished product.

In Selling Goods, the straight line is Newspaper Advertising.

It is the shortest distance between the seller and the buyer. Some manufacturers are applying the straight line in the making of their goods, but neglecting it in the selling of them. Some have no line of communication with the consumer at all—many let their message meander along by-paths of "chance acquaintanceship" instead of telegraphing it along the straight line of Newspaper Advertising.

Newspaper Advertising is the Shortest Distance between the two points of "Supply" and "Demand."

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this Newspaper. If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

Altered the Case.

"Henry, what is this underworld there is so much talk about?" "The underworld is a general term that is applied to the class which is made up of people who trade on vice and live by criminal practices." "Dear me! Why is such a class permitted to exist?" "Oh, it serves its purpose." "In what way, I should like to know?" "For one thing, if there were no such class I'm afraid I'd have to go out of the law business business right away, and I don't know of anything else that I could make a living at." "Well, of course that being the case, I suppose we ought to look at it sensibly, but I almost wish you had studied to be a doctor."

What Hisses Sound Like to an Actor.

In the American Magazine David Warfield, giving his stage experiences, tells how terrible it is from the actor's point of view to be hissed:

"I next appeared at the Wigwam, telling stories and giving imitations. I came a terrible cropper, something fearful! I was second in the bill, which is the worst place but one. I shall never forget the anxiety I felt on that occasion as I stood in the wings waiting for my turn to go on. At last I appeared before the footlights. The audience was drifting in, shuffling in in a desultory way. I could not get its attention. It was awful, awful. The few friends I had there applauded me, but the others hissed. It sounded as if 10,000 steam pipes had burst. A hiss to a sensitive man—and all actors are sensitive since all are vain—is like the strike of a rattlesnake. It is so venomous, so cruel, so unnecessary! It is as if you had done the people out in front an injury with malice prepense instead of having sincerely tried to please them. You don't even dare to face your own mother; you're so dreadfully guilty."

This scheme of the new Indian commissioner to have the Indian tribes raise more cattle sounds well, but the squaws already have all the work they can do.

Bostonians in Good Standing

"Yes, I had a brother in Boston once," said a Chicago lady to a Bostonian. "He was in some great musical society there, but I forget its name."

"Handel and Haydn Society, perhaps," suggested her visitor.

"Well, I guess so. Handel and Haydn were Boston men, weren't they?"

HEADACHY, COSTIVE, BILIOUS,—"CASCARETS"

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach Mean Liver and Bowels Are Clogged —Cheer up!

Get a 10 cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver, and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10 cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

TAKING UP TREATIES.

U. S. Senate Now Prepared to Go On With Arbitration Pacts.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—General arbitration treaties with Great Britain, Japan, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Portugal, and Switzerland, which have expired and are awaiting ratification for extension, are to be taken up for consideration by the Senate on Feb. 19, the postponement arising owing to the illness of Senators Bacon and Stone. This course was determined upon yesterday by the Foreign Relations Committee, which favorably reported the treaties recently after a conference with President Wilson on the nation's foreign policy.

Opposition to extension of the treaties is certain to develop, but Administration leaders see a clearing up of the foreign relations of the country and believe that the convictions will be favorably acted upon after the general debate. That the opposition is not as formidable as it was last summer, when action on the treaties was held up, already is apparent. One reason for that is the desire of the President for repeal of the section of the Panama Canal Act exempting from toll charges American coastwise shipping. It was because of fear that this question would be forced into arbitration at The Hague that consideration of the general arbitration treaty with Great Britain was blocked last summer. Consequently other treaties also were held up, in order that there might appear to be no discrimination.

Sir George Ross In Serious Condition Say Doctors.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—The continued illness of Sir George Ross led to the issuance yesterday of a more detailed statement of his condition by his physicians, Dr. Goldie and Dr. McPhedran. The statement was as follows:

"Owing to the diverse reports and the probability of the long continued illness, a definite report of the health of Sir George W. Ross is necessary and further reports will be issued when any change in his condition makes it advisable to inform his many friends.

"The acute nephritis has subsided into a chronic condition, leaving Sir George in a much weakened state, in which there are varying waves of improvement and depression. While his condition is serious, it is of the whole favorable."

Sir James Whitney continues to improve.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. — Secretary of State Bryan gave his unqualified endorsement for Government expenditures in the cause of international peace before the House foreign affairs committee yesterday.

Representative Smith of New York, asked for the Secretary's attitude toward the bill to appropriate $150,000 for celebrating the centennial anniversary of peace between the United States and Great Britain.

"I am not only in favor of celebrating," said Mr. Bryan, "but I am in favor of celebrating liberally. I am in favor of spending the maximum on such peace celebrations."

Duke May Stay Another Year.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—Though the term of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, as Governor-General of Canada, is generally understood to expire [illegible] October, there is a strong probability of the term being extended another year, particularly if the health of the duchess continues to show as satisfactory progress as during the recent months. Strong influences are being brought to bear to gain the consent of the Duke of Connaught to remain in Canada for a longer period, and it is believed that these have had weight.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 50 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

VETERAN OF MILITIA.

Maj.-Gen. Cotton Holds Seniority of Service In Canadian Forces.

Born in the city of Montreal, and having in the course of his duty as a permanent officer been stationed in turn at Kingston, Quebec, Ottawa London and Toronto, Maj.-Gen. H. W. Cotton, Inspector-General of the Canadian Militia, whose appointment has been extended to March next, when he will retire, is widely known in Canada. He is one of the oldest officers of the permanent force, probably the very oldest in point of swearing in. When, owing to the withdrawal of the permanent troops, the duty was forced upon the Canadian Government of organising a couple of artillery corps to garrison the fortifications at Quebec and Kingston, Col. Cotton was a captain in the old Ottawa Garrison Artillery and applied for and was given a commission in the new corps then being raised at Kingston, which subsequently became "A" battery, and eventually was the colonel of the present Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

In his younger days Gen. Cotton was recognized as one of the best rifle shots in Canada and twice went to Wimbledon as a member of the Canadian team. He has never since failed to take an active interest in rifle shooting and artillery practice. He entered upon his first staff duties in 1882, when he was appointed to the command of the artillery school connected with A Battery and was appointed assistant inspector of artillery. He retained those dual appointments until appointed district officer commanding the old third military district with headquarters at Kingston. Later he became inspector of Artillery, commanded military district No. 4, Ottawa, and was Assistant-Adjutant-General for Artillery at headquarters. He has also been Quartermaster-General, Master-General of the Ordinance, Officer Commanding Western Ontario Division with headquarters at Toronto. He commanded the first infantry division at the Quebec tercenteracy review.

Apart from a few months' service during the Fenian raids, Gen. Cotton has not had a chance in active service. At the time of the Northwest Rebellion of 1885 he was commandant of the Citadel at Quebec and though all of the other regulars in his garrison were sent to the front he was ordered to remain at Quebec. At the time of the South African war he was again unable to leave for Africa, his services being needed at Ottawa in connection with the equipment, and despatch of the various contingents. He was represented on the field, however, by his son, who enlisted into the first Canadian contingent from the Victoria Rifles of Montreal, and gave his life for the Empire at Paardeberg. A man of calm, unruffled disposition, never over exacting, and always anxious to give full credit to his subordinates, Gen. Cotton is much beloved in the militia, and every officer and man who has served under him will regret his retirement. Mrs. Cotton, who has always been a prime social favorite, was the daughter of the late John Pinder of Montreal. — Family Herald and Weekly Star.

Get on Dangerous Ground.

Telling of his experience in Jolo, in the Philippines, a writer in the New York Times says: "When I was first picking up some of their language there ran toward me one day a handsomely dressed little boy, his mother following at a distance. I picked the boy up and asked his mother how much he was worth. I thought it an utterly harmless way of attempting a civility. But the scream the mother let out, followed by a quick rushing of men with knives from all the huts roundabout, soon convinced me I had offended seriously. A priest of their faith, who had been giving me language lessons, was luckily among the first to arrive. I explained to him I had meant nothing wrong. He in turn explained to me that bartering in children was very much of a reality among them and, more than that, that it was not the custom for any man ever to address a remark to their women at all. I had doubly offended, as the child was a datto's son, and only the children of the low and enslaved were for sale."

ALL EVIDENCE IN.

Both Quebec Enquiry Committees Ready To Prepare Reports.

QUEBEC, Feb. 12.—Yesterday the investigation committee of the Legislative Council followed the course of the committee of the Legislative Assembly and closed the investigation into the allegations of corruption made against Hon. Octave Mousseau, resigned member of the Assembly, and Hon. Messrs. Bergevin and Bernard of the Legislative Council, likewise resigned. Each committee will now report to its respective House. Future proceedings will be determined by the nature of these reports, which, it is understood, will be submitted to-day. Draft reports have been already drawn up.

As regards the report of the committee of the Upper House, it would not appear that there is much likelihood of any grave disagreement, and therefore probably there will be only one report. The situation, however, as it touches the committee of the Lower House, is much different. The members of this committee will meet to-day, and it will then be decided whether there are to be two radically different reports. Many things may happen.

When the session of the committee of the Legislative Council opened yesterday the members had before them the evidence of C. B. K. Carpenter of Gaspe, and, as a result, the testimony of Messrs. Heck and Payne as to the conversations Mr. Carpenter is alleged to have held with the bogus promoters of the bill. But, it having transpired that Nobody knew why the man from Gaspe had been subpoenaed, the committee decided that they would do without his testimony.

There was left but the formal closing of the case, Messrs. Nichols and Macnab were called, and repeated their assertion that the sole motive they had in publishing the articles was the public interest. Their counsel, Mr. Marechal, summed up the case. He held that the accusations brought against the Hon. L. P. Berard and A. Bergevin had been established beyond all doubt.

Mr. Aime Geoffrior spoke for the defence, and was followed by Mr. Laflamme.

TERRIBLE RESULT OF BLOOD POISON

After Three Operations Zam-Buk Was Tried and Proved Successful.

If people would only use Zam-Buk for chronic sores, blood-poison, etc., before permitting an operation, scores of limbs would be saved.

Mr. Robt. Patterson of North Pelham, Welland Co., Ont., writes: "My daughter, Annie, had blood-poison in her finger. The doctor operated twice on the finger, but did not obtain the desired result, and a third operation was considered necessary.

"Three doctors were present at this operation, but after it had been performed the wound did not heal. Try as we would we could not get anything to close the wound.

"We at last tried Zam-Buk, and it was really wonderful to watch how this balm healed the wound. Each day there was a marked improvement. First the wound in the palm of the hand closed, and then the finger which had been bad so long began to heal. The diseased flesh seemed to rise out of the wound and then drop off, and new healthy flesh formed from below, pushing off the diseased tissue. In a short time the wound was completely healed. Had we applied Zam-Buk at first we might have saved the finger.

"We had another proof of Zam-Buk's power in the case of my son. When two years old he had his hand badly mangled. One finger had to be amputated and it left a running sore for some months. This would, also, was finally healed by Zam-Buk.

For chronic sores, blood-poison, ulcers, abscesses, scalp sores, piles, eruptions, inflamed patches, eczema, cuts burns, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases Zam-Buk is without equal. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Have you tried Zam-Buk Soap? 25c. tablet.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Feb. 9.—There is an appreciable easing in the money position the world over. Discount rates have fallen one-half per cent in the last couple of weeks, and many money is available for all legitimate enterprises. The settlement of Balkan war problems and the consequent release of gold hoarded up in Europe is supposed to be a large factor in accounting for easier money. A better explanation, however, is that, as the supplies of wealth produced have not been going into real estate in the last six months, labor has itself produced surplus capital that is now easing the money market. Whatever may be the cause, better times will be welcomed by all business people.

The advantageous effect of high prices for farm products so far as the live stock industry is concerned is reflected in the optimistic reports of all the associations that convened in Toronto last week, all reporting great progress. A study of the markets of the week show farm produce steady to lower, the most serious depression being in cattle.

WHEAT

There is practically no foreign demand for our wheat, and prices are rather easy. Late reports from Argentine and Australia indicate a falling away of the crop from previous estimates, and this may serve to strengthen the wheat market. Western farmers are not greatly concerned as they have marketed practically all of their wheat. No. 1 Northern is quoted 96c; No. 2, 94½c; all-rail, 1c more; Ontario No. 2, 89c to 90c outside.

COARSE GRAINS

Ontario grains are quiet, there being less than the usual movement in all, especially Western oats. The lull is temporary, however. Quotations now are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 40½c; No. 3, 39½c; Ontario, No. 2, 35c to 36½c; corn, 70½c to 74½c; barley, malting, 53c to 57c; buckwheat, 74c to 75c; rye, 89c to 94c; peas, 92c to $1.00. At Montreal wholesale dealers quote No. 2 C.W. oats, 42½c to 43½c; No. 3 and No. 1 feed, 41½c to 41½c; corn, 71c; barley, malting, 55½c to 56c; feed, 49c to 49c; buckwheat, 55c; rye, 73c; peas, $1.75 to $2.00.

MILL FEEDS

Mill feeds are in greater demand and prices have advanced: Bran, $22 to $22.50; shorts, $23 to $24; middlings, $25 to $27; feed flour, $29. Montreal wholesale quotations are: Bran, $23; shorts, $26; middlings, $28.

POTATOES AND BEANS

There is no change in the potato market. Supplies come ahead steadily, and are well taken up at present quotations. Ontario's, 90c to 95c a bag out of store; 85c to 85c car lots; New Brunswicks, 10c more. Montreal dealers are asking of the retail trade 65c to 65½c for Green Mountains and 60c to 70c for Quebec whites.

Beans here are quoted for primes, $2 to $2.10; hand-picked at $2.05 to $2.12½; three-pound pickers, $2.75 to $1.90.

SEEDS

Merchants are paying farmers a bushel as follows: Alsike, No. 1, $5.50 to $6; No. 2, $7.50 to $8; No. 3, $4 to $7; red clover, No. 1, $8.25 to $9.75; No. 2, $7.50 to $8; timothy, No. 1 $2.75 to $3.25; No. 2, $2 to $2.50.

HAY AND STRAW

Steady prices prevail for good hay. Baled hay, choice, No. 1, $14.50 to $15; extra No. 1, $13.50 to $14; No. 2, $11 to $13; No. 3, $9 to $9; baled straw, $8. There has been a rather quiet feeling in the trade at Montreal. Some shipments are made to the United States. No. 1, $16 to $16.50; No. 2, $13.50 to $15.50; No. 3, $10.50 to $11.

EGGS AND POULTRY

Cold weather is again with us, and it will tend to check the increasing receipts of eggs. Much of the supplies are now coming from the United States. Local quotations are: New laids, 40c; storage, selects, 32c to 33c; country splits, 28c to 30c; storage, 25c to 26c. At Montreal fresh eggs bring 44c to 45c; selected, No to 40c; No. 1 stock, 34c to 35c; No. 2, 28c to 29c.

Quotations on dressed poultry are: Fowl, 15c to 16c; alive, 13c to 14c; dressed spring chickens, 18c to 19c; alive, 13c to 14c; geese, 13c to 15c and 12c to 13c; turkeys, 17c to 20c and 14c to 15c.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The market for butter seems to be a little easier. New Zealand butter is so popular in the west that eastern butter is not now in the demand that it once was for the western trade. Some dealers show a tendency to reduce quotations, but for the most part last week's levels hold good. Farmers' separator prints, 28c to 29c; dairy prints, 27c to 28c; creamery prints, fresh, 30c to 32c; solids, 28c to 29c; storage, 25c to 26c. Cheese quotations are: New large, 14½c; twins, 15c old large, 15c to 15½c; twins, 15½c to 16c We have noted a dullness in the live stock market here for the last three weeks. The depression still continues, and this week's trade has been marked by a still further decline in values. It is doubtful if it would be advisable to ship heavily in the next couple of weeks. Most of the cattle arriving are of inferior finish. Why not hold and finish somewhat until prices reassert themselves. At present the big packers are not in the market to any great extent, but they cannot stay out much longer as their supplies are becoming exhausted.

The most notable event on the Stock Exchange in the last week was the sale of pure-bred Shorthorns last Thursday. Sixty-six were sold, the highest price, $675, being given by Prof. G. E. Day, of the Ontario Agricultural College, for a bull calf. The average price for the 66 sold was $357. Buyers were present from all parts of Canada and the United States. These prices indicate the interest that is being taken in beef cattle.

Quotations average as follows: Butchers' cattle, choice, $8.10 to $8.50; com. to good $8.00 to $8.10; heifers, $6 to $8.10; choice cows, $6.25 to $6.75; com. to good, $4.50 to $6.25; bulls, $4.25 to $7.50; feeders, $6 to $7.50; stockers, $5 to $7; canners and cutters, $2.50 to $4.50.

Choice milch cows still bring $60 to $90; springers, about $45 to $90, and common to med. $40 to $60. Calves range from $6 to $11, according to size and quality.

Small meats are the strongest feature of the market. Wether lambs are firm at $9 to $9.50; buck lambs, $8.25 to $8.75; ewes, $5.25 to $7 and culls, $3 to $5.

Packers quote hogs, f.o.b., $8.90 to $9.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Saturday, Feb 7.—A feature of the provision trade to-day was the increased demand in the market for live hogs and prices advanced 10c to 15c a cwt., owing to the small offerings and the continued good demand from packers for supplies, and sales of selected lots of Ontario hogs were made at $9.75 to $10, weighed off cars. There was no change in the condition of the market for dressed hogs, but the feeling was very firm with a good demand from butchers for small lots, and sales of abattoir freshkilled were made at $13.75 to $14, and country dressed at $13 to $13 as to quality and weight.

MONTREAL BUTTER AND CHEESE MARKETS

Montreal, Saturday, Feb. 7.—The market for cheese is steady this week, with no change in prices. There are very few cheese left here unsold, the bulk of the white stock having been cleaned up last week for shipment to the United States and several car-loads have gone across the border this week to fill these orders. There are still a few cheese left for shipment to Great Britain, which are owned in England, and these will probably all go out this month. Stocks are very light, probably the smallest on record at this time of the year, but the receipts of New Zealand cheese in England will be very heavy from now on.

The market for butter has shown some weakness during the past week or 10 days, and owners have been inclined to reduce prices a little to force sales and some June and July creamery ex cold store has been offering at under 27c and we have heard of quotations of finest fall made Townships at even less than 28c. It is doubtful, however, whether much could be bought at these prices, as the supply of strictly finest butter is getting very small. There are over 50,000 boxes of butter in storage in Montreal, but a great deal of it is owned outside of this city, some of it in the west, and, when all of this is distributed, there certainly will not be any more than sufficient left to supply the demand here.

The Luckless Procrastinator.

The procrastinator is always liable to be luckless. To postpone a duty that should be discharged at once is to invite trouble for all concerned. Many a man who is well disposed toward life insurance is still deferring the purchase of a policy which would be a boon to his family in the event of his death. The would be insurant is in good health today, but tomorrow he may be stricken with a disease that may bar him from the ranks of the insurable. His reason for putting off securing a policy may be that it is inconvenient at present to pay the premium. But he should consider carefully the fact that life insurance will never be cheaper for him than it is today. His yearly premium on a policy taken out now would be appreciably less than would be the premium on a policy of the same amount taken out when he is a year older. Delay, therefore, will add somewhat to the yearly burden he would have to carry. The best thing for any uninsured man to do is to insure at once.—Leslie's Weekly.

Met Its Match.

A cyclone visited the negro quarters in an Alabama mining camp several years ago. It tumbled down the cabins and not one joist or sill was left standing. Uncle Joe was the only one who came through the visitation unscathed.

"Yas, suh," he said, "I hea'd dat win' comin' through de brush, an' I seen it, an' I felt it, an' I knew it was er sky-koue—an' I's de oulliest pusson in dat settlement whut could say, 'Heah she comes' an' 'Dar she goes!'"—New York Post.

Uncorker of Ocean Bottles.

It is not many years since the high sounding post of uncorker of ocean bottles was abolished in England. News traveled slowly in Queen Elizabeth's time, and the first news she had of the taking of Nova Zembla by the Dutch was found in a bottle picked up by a Deal fisherman named Toufield, who forwarded the message to the lord high admiral. Queen Elizabeth was struck by the idea and decreed that all bottles with inclosures found on the coast should be forwarded to the lord high admiral, Toofield being appointed uncorker. The post survived for centuries.

Acid Stomachs Are Dangerous

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause greatest distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy

THE KING'S SON.

The Prince of Wales Enjoys Only the Life of a Country Gentleman.

The Prince of Wales, George V. that is to be, has no taste innate or acquired for sovereignty. He is less the King's own son than his grandmother's own grandson. The King loves urban life with all its exactions and excitements; the prince, like Queen Victoria, prefers life in the comparative retirement of the country. The King has little taste for domesticity; the prince is a born bourgeois in his liking for domestic life. The King has the tastes, the habits, the requirements of a man of the world. Paris pleases him no less than does London. He is at home in Marienbad or Biarritz. The prince enjoys the life of an English country gentleman on his own domain, and he is uneasy when he makes visits of obligation to the continent or "imperial tours" to open federal legislatures in distant colonies. The King takes his sport vicariously—from the royal enclosure at Ascot or Epsom or Doncaster. The prince is one of the best shots in England, keen to follow the grouse across the moor or at the stalking of stags in Scotland. The King has an amiable liking and a practiced familiarity with the arts—music, the drama, painting, sculpture, letters. The prince is indifferent to all these things. They do not interest him; he cannot make them interest him. The King has a kind of instinctive aptitude for the formalities of sovereignty; now that the prince has begun to exercise some of them he had needed assiduous coaching. The King's tact, the King's talents for sovereignty, the King's genuine capacity for constitutional monarchy have not descended to his son. The King's traits are warmly outlined in his life, and they are clearly in play wherever and whenever he is in close contact with his subjects. Many of them are the aristocratic traits that in sovereigns, in their lighter relations with their people, so commend them to a democratic community. The prince lacks such distinctions, and he is outwardly so cold of temperament that he seems distant and indifferent when it is the least of his wishes so to be. England is conventionally "loyal" to the Prince of Wales. It holds the King in an affectionate regard that makes "loyal" seem an academic adjective.

Here is the Secret of Long Life

While looking forward to health and long life it is possible that you are unaware of the conditions necessary to attain healthful old age. Careful eating, and consequent preservation of the health and vitality of the digestive and excretory organs, is of the greatest importance.

Overeating is the usual cause of torpid, sluggish liver action, and when the liver fails additional work is thrown on the kidneys and they break down. Kidney disorders are the great source of suffering in old age. Rheumatism, bodily pains, aching arms and legs, backache and lumbago are the result.

By the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to regulate the liver, kidneys and bowels, as occasion requires, you not only overcome the suffering, inconvenience and unpleasantness of attacks of billousness, indigestion and constipation, but you actually prolong life by keping these organs in good, healthful condition. This medicine is a wonderful source of comfort for people in old age.

A BIG YEAR IN SIGHT

Nearly Three Millions to be Spent by Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario

SURVEY FOR NORTH

TORONTO, Feb. 12—Expenditures approximating between two and three million dollars are involved in the construction program of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for this year. After a lengthy meeting of the commission yesterday, Hon. Adam Beck, chairman, outlined the scope of the work that would be undertaken.

In addition to the duplication of the trunk line of the Niagara system from Dundas to Niagara Falls, which will cost about $700,000, a 46,000-volt line from the Falls to Welland is to be immediately constructed at a cost of $400,000. Owing to the nature of the country and the severity of the storms, this line will be of extra heavy construction. The engineering department was authorized to proceed at once with the purchase of the remaining right-of-way for the Dundas-Niagara Falls line. The enlargements to the stations at both places have been practically completed and contracts were awarded for towers and insulators. The cable was ordered some time ago.

The proposed development at Eugenia Falls was advanced a stage when estimates were sent to the group of municipalities in Grey and Bruce counties that are seeking cheap power. These municipalities are: Chatsworth, Markdale, Owen Sound, Flesherton, Durham, Hanover and Walkerton. The price ranges from $33 to $43 per horsepower on an estimated development of 4,000 or 5,000 horsepower. Provision is also made to connect this line with Collingwood and Mesford, so that the whole district will be served. The power will be developed at 2,300 volts and will be delivered to these municipalities stepped down and ready for distribution.

In connection with the construction of another circuit from Dundas to London and St. Thomas, Mr. Beck made the announcement that this line would be ready by the first of May, thus giving three complete circuits to supply the municipalities in the London district.

The commission authorized the town of Walkerville to sell power to Ford City. This will probably enable a reduction of rates below the estimate already given for this district.

Away from northern Ontario the cry has come for Hydro power, and the chief engineer was authorized to have an investigation of the power possibilities of the Magnetawan river.

Michael Bass Is Sought For Information Wanted as to Missing Young Man

Editor, The Examiner:

Gentlemen,—Will you please be kind enough to help a heart-broken father and mother to find their lost son, Michael Bass, age 20, who left home three years ago in Chicago, Illinois, and we have not seen or heard from him since.

We lived in Chicago all our lives until last year when we moved to New York, thinking we might find him there, but unfortunately, we have not been successful.

We are under the impression he may be somewhere in or around your city, but we are too poor to travel around to look for him, as the husband is only a working man, so we ask you to be kind and help us in locating our lost boy.

Thanking you many times in advance, and hoping, with the help of you and God, to hear from our lost son, we remain,

Yours very respectfully,

REUBEN H. BASS,

Harvard Smiles On The Tango

Special Wire to The Examiner:

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 12—Despite protests from various quarters the Harvard authorities have declined to prohibit the dancing of the tango or other modern steps at the "junior prom," which is to take place to-morrow night. The annual dance is the big social event of the year at the university.

46 BELOW AT HUNTSVILLE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—The official temperature here to-day was 18 below, which was four degrees warmer than that of January thirteenth, when it was twenty-two below. Reports indicate that the whole province is still in the grip of zero temperature. In Huntsville the mercury dipped to 46 below, which was ten degrees colder than the coldest date this year.

SETTLEMENT LIKELY SAY UNIONISTS

Four North-Eastern Counties of Ulster May be Excluded For a Term of Years

LIBERALS OPPOSED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 12. — (Special cable.— Yesterday evening persistent rumours were circulated among the Unionists that a settlement may be arrived at on the basis of an agreement excluding the four north-eastern counties of Ulster for a term of years, at the end of which a plebiscite of inhabitants would be taken on the question of incorporation in the Home Rule scheme. The Times declares that Ulster Unionist members would consider this scheme as favourably as any. Doubtless they would. The Liberals, however, have plainly declared their fixed opposition to any separation of Ulster, even temporarily. Sir Horace Plunkett's proposed solution gives greater hope, although Ulster Unionists are reported as opposed to it. Plunkett proposes that Ulster should accept Home Rule on three conditions, that Ulster have the option of deciding the plebiscite in a fixed number of years, whether to continue under Irish parliament. Secondly, both sections of Irishmen should be invited to suggest to the government preferably in a conference, amendments to be proposed in a bill by consent. Third, Ulster volunteers should be given opportunity of being organized as a territorial force, thus adding a valuable force to the home defence troops and preserving intact for Ulster. Unionists an ultimate safeguard on which rightly or wrongly they rely for the preservation of their liberties. Some disappointment is expressed at Carsons bellicose speech. The Daily Chronicle says many will ask, after reading it, if it is any good for the government to continue to hold olive branches out.

Musical Comedy Made Big Hit

Vaudeville at Royal is Being Visited by Hundreds Who Are Not Regular Patrons of Moving Pictures

Hundreds of people who are not regular patrons of the moving picture theatres, have visited the Royal Theatre during the past four days, and every one has been greatly taken with the act of the Happy Musical Company. Their act on Monday and Tuesday was a splendid one, but the "Bell Boy," a comedy which they are presenting to-day, is sparkling with wit, humour, singing and dancing. It is not stretching the truth in the least to say that they are giving by far the best vaudeville ever put on in a local picture theatre.

The "Bell Boy," which they gave yesterday and to-day, is a comedy centring around the "hello girls" in a telephone exchange. It has a clever plot, full of laughable situations, and replete with catchy musical and dancing specialties.

To-morrow and Saturday they will give an altogether different play, with new specialties and different song hits. On Saturday a special matinee will be given for ladies, and none should neglect this opportunity of seeing a real live musical comedy, well acted, well sung, and cleverly danced.

A Divorce Action that Has Created a Sensation in the Exclusive Society Circles in Great Britain — The Leslie-Melville divorce case, in which Captain A. B. Leslie-Melville is seeking a divorce from his wife and naming as co-respondents Earl Fitzwilliam and Mr. T. Cornyns Platt, is creating extraordinary interest in Great Britain. Lord Fitzwilliam, who by the way, was born in Canada, is a personal friend of their Majesties. He is a married man with four children. The Leslie-Melvilles have sometimes been spoken of as one of the handsomest couples in Great Britain. The lady is noted for the perfection of her taste in dress. At the Pantomime Ball at the Albert Hall she appeared as the "Sleeping Beauty." Mr. Thomas Cornyns Platt, the second co-respondent in the case, is the Hon. Sec. of the British League for the support of Ulster. Lord Fitzwilliam emphatically denies misconduct and, it is said, has given the King assurance to that effect.

ESTIMATES ARE HIGHER

For the Board of Works Department—Committee Made a Noise Like Economy

STREET PAVING

The estimates of the Board of Works department were laid on the table at the regular meeting of the Board, which was held last evening. The Board is asking for an appropriation of approximately thirty-three thousand dollars. Last year's appropriation was twenty-eight thousand five hundred dollars. Those present were Ald. Duncan, chairman, His Worship, Mayor Buller, Aldermen Duffus, Stratton, Johnston, Green, Saunders and City Engineer Parsons.

Very little paring was done to the estimates, the Aldermen preferring to let them stand over until the estimates for the other departments are arrived at.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS

The City Engineer submitted the following estimates for this year:

Approaches	$ 50

New watering cart	350
Smith street bridge (at Jackson Park)	120
Cement testing outfit	225
	$1,495
General appropriation	$31,925
Total	$33,420

A GOOD MOVE

For gravel and stone for road making $9,000 was allowed, but the City Engineer and Ald. Duncan suggested that this money be put into permanent concrete road work, which would not need repairs for years, and thus have more cash available for work on streets which have practically been receiving no attention. Permanent concrete road work could be done under the local improvement act, thus reducing the Board of Works appropriation.

Of the $7000 shown above for salaries, $4500 is chargeable to debentures, leaving the amount chargeable to the Board of Works Department at only $2500.

WHO WILL BE THE CITY'S NEXT M.H.O.?

Two doctors have been mentioned, either of whom may be selected as the successor of Dr. A. W. McPherson, as Medical Health Officer for the City. Rumour has it that the names of Dr. Young and Dr. Brown will be suggested to the Council and that the choice will likely be made from these two doctors.

Half The Men Of Dominion Are Bachelors

Canada a Country of Young People—One-Fourth of all Quebec Are Under Ten

CENSUS STATISTICS

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—The 18th bulletin of the census of 1911, issued today, contains the statistics of ages of the people by single years, by totals for Canada, and for each of the provinces also comparative statistics of the distribution of the people by age periods in 1911 and 1901.

The largest proportion per 1,000 of persons under 10 years is found in the Province of Quebec, with 273,508, as compared with 271,456 in 1901, when it also held the premier position. The lowest proportion is found in British Columbia, with 166,345, followed by Ontario, with 200,316 per 1,000; These two provinces occupied the same relative positions in 1901, thef ormer having 169,374, and the latter 208,393 per 1,000. The provinces which show a betterment at this age are Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec. The greatest falling off is shown by Manitoba, which has dropped from 270,094 to 248,627, and by Prince Edward Island, which has fallen from 232,086 to 214,450 per 1,000. The Western Provinces are the regions of young men and women, as is shown by the large per cent. of the population between the ages of 20 and 45. It is an interesting fact that the highest proportion for this age period is to be found in British Columbia, and that as we come eastward the proportion assumes a constantly decreasing figure.

Where People Live Longer.

The provinces showing the largest proportion over 70 years are Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario, with 52.9, 46.6, 38.1 and 34.7 respectively per 1,000, while those showing the lowest are Alberta, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Manitoba, with 8.2, 8.8, 12.3 and 13.3 per 1,000 respectively. That Canada is pre-eminently a country of young people is evidenced by the fact that 812.9 persons in every 1,000 of the population of known age are under 45 years.

Six Divorces Per 10,000.

The proportion of divorces is given as six in 10,000. Of the total male population, 62 per cent. are single, 34.85 married, and 2.33 widowed. Of the female population, 57.37 per cent. are single, 36.97 married, and 5.31 widowed. One man and fifteen women of under 15 years are married. From 15 to 19 years, 1.20 per cent of males and 6.9 per cent. females are married.

EXPECTED 40 DEGREES

It Was Only 27 Officially and Many People Were Actually Disappointed

LOOKED FOR A RECORD

The official thermometer registered 27 degrees below zero as the lowest point touched by the mercury's surface during the night. Other glasses went as low at 33 degrees. Some street railway men on their way to work this morning stated that the big thermometer in front of one of the stores was 30 degrees below zero, and citizens with registers on their front porches were loth to accept the official figures after they had seen the figures on their glasses. However, the official report must be accepted. It is regarded as possessing the element of infallibility in following the movements of the weather, but had the mercury a spark of humanity in its atoms it would surely not have stopped at the 27 mark.

Scores of people 'phoned the Examiner with questions of this kind: "How cold was it last night?" "Is it getting any warmer out" "What are the probs for to-morrow?" "Are there any families needing help?" and so on.

REVIVAL MEETINGS

Services in the Free Methodist Church Are Well Attended

A very appreciative audience listened to an instructive and powerful sermon by Miss Babcock last night, from the 20th verse of the 5th chapter of the epistle of James.

The speaker stated that she would not treat the text on the line of Christian effort for the salvation of the wayward, but would endeavour to show the error of the ways of sin and its terrible consequences, which the scriptures declare are "death," which she did in a very convincing manner.

She held up Christ as a full and sufficient Saviour from all sin, and the only source of satisfaction for the infinite desires of an immortal spirit made to fellowship with its Creator. The vanity of all sinful pleasures were very clearly shown, and an appeal was made to those present (who had not already done so) to at once decide to forsake all things that do not lead to heaven, and become consciously and savingly acquainted with Christ as a personal Saviour.

Come to-night and hear Miss Babcock proclaim the word of truth. Song service at 7.50, preaching at 8 o'clock.

STAY CLOSE

O God of Love stay close, stay close;
Our City needs Thee sore;
For Thou hast known before,
Life's stress,
Life's agony without redress.
O God of Love stay close.

O God of Love stay close, stay close;
And touch with zeal and grace,
Those men who have high place,
Who hold
Fair lives as less than house or gold.
O God of Love stay close.

O God of Love stay close, stay close;
And give us MEN, who'll care
To save our youth so fair;
REAL MEN,
Who'll fight for purity—E'en then,
O God of Love stay close.

The police captured three of the gang, one of whom, Santani by name, was identified as the murderer of Celentano.

ASSOCIATION HAS HAD A GREAT YEAR

Annual Meeting of the Poultry Men Held Last Night Showed a Fine Balance

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Peterough Poultry Asociation was held in their hall on Simcoe street last evening. A goodly number attended in spite of the severe weather, and the meeting was presided over by President Holmes.

The business of the meeting was opened by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Secretary J. Kelly. These were approved as read.

The meeting then dealt with a considerable amount of routine business. The secretary's report was received with great interest by those who were present, and contained a concise and accurate account of the numerous activities in which the association has engaged during the past year.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The officers of the association for the ensuing year were elected as followed:

HENRY HOPE IN PROGRESS

Machinery Will Be Installed as Soon as Temporary C. P. R. Siding is Completed

WORK IS ADVANCING

Work at the Henry Hope factory is advancing steadily, and it is understood that manufacturing operations will be commenced when the plant is completed. Mr. J. K. Costain who has the construction work under his supervision, states that the heating system is being installed at present. Benches and similar equipment are being put together. Five cars of machinery are waiting on a siding pending the construction of the new C.P.R. line into the factory premises. A temporary siding is now being laid to serve until the weather will permit the building of a permanent bed. Mr. Richardson, who will likely be the local manager, is supposed to be now on his way to Canada from England. The present work will be pushed forward and the machinery erected as soon as possible.

10TH ANNIVERSARY WAS FITTINGLY REMEMBERED

At the residence of Mrs. Jas. McMillan, Water street, last evening, a number of friends met, the occasion being the 10th anniversary of the wedding of Mrs. McMillan's daughter, Mrs. Ernest Belleghem, who resides in the Northwest.

The evening was spent in Bible studies, under the leadership of Mr. N. Wagar, after which refreshments were served. A very profitable evening was spent, the company dispersing after singing, "God be with us till we meet again."

MANLY AUSTRALIA.

Australia is qualified to set, and does set, an example of manliness to the other dominions of the Empire, especially to Canada. While Canada is discharging her obligations to contribute to imperial naval defence by a profitless little gift of money to build ships without sailors. Australia is building a navy of her own, maintaining it and manning it. Her people are taking a personal share in the fighting to be done, and not hiring their fighting done as Canada is doing—or rather, not doing—for we are doing nothing whatever in the matter of naval defence. In this regard Australia is taking the manly way.

Australia is also showing another striking example of manliness in its chivalric attitude towards the women of the country. Australia has equal suffrage in voting—has had it since 1902—that is, women vote on an equality with men, and thus enjoy equality with men and the full rights of citizenship. Women, in Australia, before being granted the franchise on an equality with men, were in a position of inferiority. Now, the country and he press take them seriously and recognize them as important factors in the national economy. If Canadians could bring themselves to the manly point of effectively contributing her share to imperial naval defence in he same manly way as Australia has done, we could hold up our heads, and show our faces without shame; could look the Empire in the eyes. If Canada should take the same manly attitude towards women suffrage as Australia has done, many moral questions that are now "hanging fire" would "go off" with a bang and a hole in the bullseye. If Canadian women were granted their rights—an equal voice in voting—the police commissioners couldn't, or wouldn't, anyway, take so complacent not to say, disdainful, an attitude towards the police-woman question.

REDISTRIBUTION.

After shying at redistribution of parliamentary representation for two years Mr. Borden has, at last, introduced his redistribution bill. There seems to be no excuse for the delay, though as matters have turned out, there has been no great need of a readjustment of representation. Mr. Borden has done a wise thing in following the example of Sir Wilfrid by referring the details of the measure to a committee, in which both parties are represented, as both are interested. It is possible that the coming redistribution will be fairly fair, especially if the gerrymander principle is not applied to constituency boundaries. In the shuffle Ontario loses four seats, Nova Scotia two, and New Brunswick two. With these reductions the additions to Western representation increases the total parliamentary roll from 221 to 235. The West gets twenty-two additional seats, distributed among Manitoba, five increase, Saskatchewan, six; Alberta, five; and British Columbia, six. Of course Quebec, the pivotal province, retains the sixty-five seats fixed by the Confederation Act.

It seems that there will have to be a change in this standard since the House of Commons membership is becoming larger than is desirable. We certainly have more representation than we need. The British Parliament, consisting of 670, provides one member for every 64,636 of population. Canada's parliamentary representation is nearly three times as large in proportion to population as that of the United Kingdom. Canada has a member of parliament for every 26,409 of the population. If the forty three odd millions of Great Britain were represented as liberally as Canada's seven and a half millions the British Prliament would consist of about two thousand members. If the Quebec pvotal standard of 65 were so changed as to reduce the membership of the Canadian House of Commons to something like a total of 100 for the whole Dominion, even then Canadians would be as well represented in Parliament as the people of Great Britain, the mother of parliaments, and therefore a fair standard of proportional representation. As things are Canada's parliament is top-heavy in proportion to our numbers. It would not, however, be so bad if it were top-heavy with brains.

USE THE PARCEL POST.

Even if the present arrangement for parcel post is not satisfactory, the people of Canada can help to make it a success, and force the Government to improve it. Use it for all it is worth. If you do not use it, the enemies of the system will say that it has been tried, but that the people do not want it. Do not allow that impression to be created. Inquire about the system, talk about it, use it, insist upon its being enlarged and improved. Then it will be enlarged and improved.

Whether Mr. Pelletier or somebody else gets the credit for the improvement is a matter of minor importance. At present some are doubtful, timid, hesitating. They see difficulties rather than advantages. If the people insist upon having the service and enlarging it, the critics will fall into line. When Rowland Hill proposed penny postage the critics gravely predicted that the walls of the post-office would burst because of the enormous quantity of mail matter. The fashion to-day is to say that there will not be mail matter enough to pay. The experience of the United States is sufficient to destroy that objection. But the best way to refute the objection is to use the parcel post for all it is worth and ask for more. —Toronto Star.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE IN AUSTRALIA.

Votes for Women publishes an interesting article in its current issue on "The Effect of Wiman Suffrage in Australia." It is written with the object of proving that the enfranchisement of women has accomplished all that was claimed for it by its advocates. "Since the women have entered into the heritage of a full citizenship," says the writer, "a change has come over the electorate, and much fuller polls are recorded." The following table is given in support of this:

Federal Elections to the House of Representatives

Percentage of those who recorded their votes.

	Males.	Females.	Total.
1903. . . .	56.47	43.50	50.27
1906 . . .	57.36	44.81	51.48
1910 . . .	68.12	56.93	62.80
1913 . . .	78.22	71.64	74.88

The difference in the attitude of the press towards women's questions since their enfranchisement has been marked in Australia. The writer of the article says on this subject: "From 1897 to 1902 the Political and Educational League, a woman's suffrage association, of which I was vice-president, could never obtain any but the scantiest notice of its meetings in the papers in which it was advertised. The moment we were enfranchised we could easily command columns for our speeches."—Brantford Expositor.

GUARDING THE INTERESTS OF THE "INTERESTS"

The Borden administration has been so busy since coming into office keeping the promises made to the big interests who helped it into power that it has had no time to redeem the pledges made to the peopl. One of the reasons is that the promises and the pledges in many instances conflict. But the main reason is that the ear of the government is more receptive to the autocratic demands of the big interests than to the appeals of the people. Certain powerful influences combined to place the present government in power in 1911; to these the government must give their reward.

In the campaign of 1911 the Nationalists of Quebec combined with the Imperialistic Conservative to defeat Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The price they asked for their alliance was the repeal of the Laurier Naval Act, and the repudiation of the principle of a Canadian navy. The introduction of the Borden contribution bill was the manner in which the Government paid that price. By encouraging desertions from the Canadian Naval Service, and by relegating the vessels to ignominious disuse tied to the docks at Halifax and Esquimalt, the Government has, while not virtually repealing the Naval Service Act, made it of no effect.

The Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian Northern gave their tributes to the war chest of the Government, and are receiving their reward. Fifteen and a half millions of the people's money were handed over to the latter company last session, in the face of strong opposition from the Liberals. No interference in capitalization increases the granting of valuable rights on the people's line (the Intercolonial) and other concessions comprise the reward to the former.

One of the most powerful influences brought to bear on behalf of the Government at the last election, against reciprocity was that of the big protected interests, the Canadian trusts, and combines No profane meddling with the principle of high protection, and no encouragement of "foolish, and radical free trade tendencies" were the pledges which these gentlemen drew from the Government as a reward for their share in the victory. In order that the Government might have the best advice possible to this end, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association agreed to "part" with its tariff expert, A. R. Breadner, who, shortly after being appointed by the Government, took up spacious offices adjacent to the Minister of Finance in the East Block.

In the Commons last Thursday the Government voted down the Liberal free wheat amendment, despite the fact that organized agriculture from all the provinces asked for the abolition of the duties; despite the fact that the three western Conservatives members in the Commons desire that they should be done away with. In the Conservative caucus on Tuesday last these latter appealed eloquently to the members of the Cabinet to drop the wheat duty. There would seem to be no economic reason for the Government's refusal to do so. But here again its pledges to the big interests stood in the way. The railroads, who had helped in the last election must be assured a monopoly of the Canadian trade; the Canadian millers, in the heart of the hard wheat belt, must be protected from alleged American competition; for the sake of the protected interests there must be no encouragement of "free trade tendencies" looking toward the reincarnation of the principle of reciprocity, and constituting "the thin edge of the wedge"

The Government must keep its pledges to its friends—the big interests, though the Heavens fall.

SOME THINGS AND A FEW OTHERS

Who left the refrigerator door open?

To Old Probs.—"Have a heart."

And some one said the Weather Man was ready for the chloroform a la Osler.

It has been remarked that no one loves a fat man. He should worry in weather like this.

Pete Spratt has been on the O. H. A. water waggon, but it is rumoured that Peter will fall off for to-morrow night's game.

Pa, ma and the rest of the family are afforded a good chance to get a line on Peggy's beau these evenings.

The mercury touched 27 deg. about 7 o'clock this morning. Even the Weather Man is leagued against the worker who clocks in at seven bells.

Surely a merciful Almighty would not impose such distressing conditions upon poor humanity? Well, is that not in line with an assertion you sometimes hear about the hereafter.

Along the same lines, would it no be in accordance with the views of some Socialists that everyone would want to spend the winters in Southern California or along the Mediterranean's shores?

COST OF STREET SIGNS

Ald Green is of the opinion that it would be more honourable and honest to raise the tax rate in order to meet the necessary requirements, than to undertake the work and not do it properly.

Street Signs.

City Engineer Parsons has reported that a total of 821 street signs will be required if one sign is placed at each street intersection. To put one sign at every available street intersection would require 2246 signs. The Board of Works have practically sanctioned the expenditure of two hundred dollars for a start. The signs will cost about 45 cents each.

New Bridges.

The Engineer will estimate the cost of building bridges on Bonacord and Townsend streets (the latter at George Street), the work to be done by debenture under the local improvements act Also bridges on London Street, on street across the Downie Street Creek, Victoria Avenue and Smith Street.

HELD CANADIAN GENERAL STOCK

The $272,829 estate of the late Henry Wicks, who died at Middlesex, England, August 6th last, has been filed for ancillary probate in the Toronto Surrogate Court. His Ontario estate is valued at $,1,010 and comprises 45 shares preferred stock in Canada Car and Foundry Company, $4,880; 40 shares Canadian General Electric Company, $4,770; and $2,500 held in debenture stock of the Toronto Power Company. The balance of his Canadian estate is made up of 25 shares Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Company, $2,410; 25 Canadian Pacific Railway stock, $5,515; 120 Nipissing Mines, Limited, $1,010.

The residue of the estate is: $4,920 in personal effects, $44,483 held by mortgages, $103,349 in stocks. The stock is held in industrial companies operating in all parts of the British Empire.

The estate is divided among twenty-two relatives. To all the female servants, if they have been in his service for two years, is to be given a sum equal to one year's salary, reads the will.

USEFUL RECIPES

STUFFED SHOULDER OF MUTTON—JELLY SAUCE.

Remove blade from a shoulder of mutton. Fill space thus made with stuffing and skewer into shape. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour, and put on rack in dripping pan. Roast in a hot oven (allowing fifteen minutes to each pound) basting every ten minutes with fat in pan. If necessary, put boiling water in the pan. For the stuffing mix one cupful of cracker crumbs, onefourth cupful of melted butter, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, and one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley. Moisten with one-fourth cupful of boiling water and season with poultry seasoning. Serve shoulder with Franconia potatoes and currant jelly sauce.

CURRANT JELLY SAUCE.

Separate one tumbler of currant jelly into small pieces. Add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of finely chopped fresh mint leaves, and very thin short shavings from the rind of one-fourth orange.

x x x

CREAMED LIMA BEANS.

If dried lima beans soak over night, boil in a little salted water until tender, cook down all the water, or if in a hurry drain. Add a cup of cream, a little butter and pepper and salt, simmer a few minutes and serve.

x x x

APPLE GELATINE.

Cover one-half box of gelatine with half a cup of cold water and let stand for half an hour. Pare, core and quarter six tart apples, add the thin, yellow rind of half a lemon, cover with sweet cider or water, boil and press through a sieve: add one cup of sugar and juice of one lemon. Pour over the gelatine, mix, turn into a mould, and let harden. Serve with cream or cider sauce.

CABBAGE OR SALAD DRESSING.

Melt in a double boiler one generous tablespoonful of butter. Add to it one tablespoonful of flour, one tablespoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of made mustard, three dashes of paprika, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, white pepper to taste. When these are well blended add slowly, stirring constantly to avoid lumps, one-half pint of boiling water and three drops of Worcestershire sauce. Continue stirring until thick. Cook five minutes; if too thick, put in a little more water. Should the dressing be for cold slaw, pour it while hot over finely shredded cabbage; if for salads, use when cold.

ROCHESTER PORK CHOPS.

Wipe six thick pork chops, trim, roll and skewer into shape. Put in a small baking dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and add hot water to half surround. Cover and bake in a moderate oven until tender, the time being about one hour. Dry slices of bread in a slow oven, and roll. To three-fourths cupful of breadcrumbs, add three tablespoonfuls of butter, and a few grains of salt. Sprinkle chops with prepared crumbs, and bake uncovered until crumbs are brown. Arrange on a hot platter around fried onions, pour around gravy, and garnish with Rochester baked apples.

BROWN GRAVY.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, and stir constantly until well browned; add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and continue the browning. Then pour on gradually, whils stirring constantly, the liquor remaining in the pan in which the chops were coked. Bring to the boiling point, and let simmer three minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

ROCHESTER BAKED APPLES.

Wipe and core medium-sized selected apples, then make two circular cuts through the skin at equal distance from stem to blossom ends. Wipe, pre, core, cut apples in small pieces. Put whole apples in baking dish and fill cavities with prepared small pieces of apple, allowing one teaspoonful of finely chopped pork fat to each filling. Bake in a hot oven until soft, having enough hot water in the pan to prevent the apples from burning.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Fresh cabbage is crisp and of a bright colour.

Try lemon and salt for ink stains on the fingers.

If corns are rubbed daily with toilet pumice, they will disappear.

If plants are washed in soapsuds, they will not have insects on them.

A good flavouring for syrups, jellies, and preserves is made with orange and lemon peel.

Dampness will tarnish brass articles. They should be kept in a dry cool atmosphere.

Sifted wood ashes put on a damp cloth will remove stains from tinware, agate, or crockery.

To give plaster casts an alabaster effect, dip them into a strong solution of alum water.

Two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar to one white of egg will make excellent meringues.

Use warm water to sprinkle starched clothes, and the effect will be twice as satisfactory.

The wood of mission furniture may be safely washed with warm water. After it is thoroughly dry, it should be polished with a good oil.

If grease is well rubbed on the stove before polishing the polish will not burn off so quickly.

When the rug curls up, it can be made to lie flat by making it very damp on the under side.

To freshen a skirt that has become wrinkled and mussed from packing, brush carefully so that the dust may be removed, and hang over a tub of hot water.

Blankets after being washed and dried thoroughly, should be well beaten with a carpet beater.

Paint-spattered glass can be easily cleaned by melting soda in very hot water and washing the glass with it.

Lacquered brass can be cleaned by washing it in hot water, and a little soap may be added if necessary.

Cut glass will be clear and sparkling if a little bluefig is added to the soapsuds in which it is washed.

Elasticity is restored to rubber by soaking it in one part ammonia and two parts clear water until the desired results are obtained.

By slipping stiff collars into a glass or tumbler after they are ironed and allowing them to thoroughly dry they can be made to keep their shape.

Land Speculation And Its Results

An Interesting Letter on the Subject by Mr. F. E. Ellis

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—Is land speculation immoral? I have followed with great interest the debate that has been carried on in The Examiner between Mr. Taylor and Mr. W. C. Austin. If the morality of any practice is to be judged by its results, good or evil, then I would say that land speculation must be one of the most immoral of all practices, Mr. Austin's opinion to the contrary notwithstanding.

We can sometimes see the light clearer when we are studying conditions in a country many hundreds of miles away than when we study the conditions of our own immediate neighbourhood. Let us look into the results of land speculation in the Canadian West. Mr. Geo. F. Chipman, editor of the Grain Growers' Guide, of Winnipeg, is responsible for the statement that all the land under crop in the Canadian West could be located within two miles of the railroad and allowing extra land for pasturage every farmer in the West could be located within seven miles of a railroad. At least this might be the condition if it were not for the evil effects of land speculation.

The conditions that I and all others have found when we visit the Canadian West, is that the great proportion of the good land situated near the railroads is not under cultivation at all. It is being held by speculators for an advance in value. Consequently, genuine settlers who go into the country to improve their farms and build homes for themselves are forced to go back, in some cases 80 and 100 miles from the railroad, before they can find any of the free land of which Mr. Austin speaks so glibly. When in Edmonton four years ago I had occasion to employ a man for a few days. He was a settler on a steading 80 miles from the city, and almost 80 miles from the nearest railroad. He told me that he had been attracted to the Canadian West from Old Ontario by the glittering stories of a real estate agent. When he got to Edmonton he found that fully 80 per cent. of the land around the city was not in use that it was held for a prohibitive price.

The sufferings that that man, his wife and children had endured in trying to make a home for themselves on the outskirts of civilization, were something that would have appaled a harder man than I am. His nearest neighbour was many miles away. Time and again his wife threatened to go insane with loneliness. When the children were sick these parents had to stand the excruciating torture of waiting for their little ones to get better without medical attendance. The nearest doctor was over half a hundred miles away. Finally, when they had harvested their first crop it was only to find that by the time they had stood the expense of getting it to the nearest railway station that it was valueless to them. Consequently the man was forced to come to the City of Edmonton to look for work, leaving his wife and children alone on the prairies.

This is only one of many such instances that I ran across when in the West. Possibly I had a better opportunity of talking with settlers than has the average visitor to the West in that I was there on an agricultural mission. I am told that a larger proportion of women on the prairies go insane than women of any other class in Canada, and I can well believe it. The greed of the land speculator, many of them who have never seen the country, in holding the land most favourably located for speculative purposes is responsible for this condition of affairs.

If we come a little nearer home we can see even more deplorable results of land speculation. One of the greatest problems that we are facing in the cities of Canada to-day is the slum problem. People do not congregate several families in a room because they like to live that way, but because the land speculator makes it necessary for them to do so. The vacant land that lies on the outskirts of the city and which should afford homes for the poorer people of the city is invariably in the hands of speculators. It is said that in the City of Toronto only one-half the land is really occupied. Suppose that the other half, by a system of taxation, could be taken out of the speculator's hands and made available to the people, wouldn't it solve the slum problem immediately? I will guarantee that there are many poor people in the City of Peterborough who would have built homes for themselves in the south end if they could have bought the land for what it is really worth, that is its agricultural value, instead of at the speculator's value.

And so it goes. In the country the land speculator is driving the people to the confines of civilization with all the hardship that that involves. In the city he is driving the people into the slums with the misery and degradation that go therewith. I recognize that many land speculators have no idea of the misery for which they are partly responsible. Such discussions as you are now giving space for in The Examiner, Mr. Editor, will do much to show people their moral responsibility on the question of land speculation.

PARCELS POST LITTLE BENEFIT FOR CITY PEOPLE

Few Parcels Coming In Compared With the Number Going Out—Eggs by Mail

NO VEGETABLES

Though Uncle Hiram out at Crewson's Corners, and Aunt Sally and Jemima, and young Eph, are finding the new parcels post a great convenience, city folk, with big butchers' and grocers' bills to pay, are rather wondering where they come in, so far as the benefits of the scheme are concerned. The number of parcels coming into the city in the first two days of the operation of the new system is only about half the number of parcels going out. The luxuries of the city are being spread abroad through the country, but the necessities produced by the country, now almost in the class of luxuries, are not coming into the city at nearly so rapid a rate.

The Country Doctor.

Outgoing parcels include all kinds of small merchandise. There are clothes and hats for Aunt Sally and Jemima, boxes of candies and new neckties with which young Eph can win the heart of the Jones girl on the next concession, and a package of the latest records for the phonograph in the parlour. The country doctor can get his medicines now quite handily in bottles or boxes. The rural mail delivery waggons bring them right to the door.

Incoming parcels are of a less miscellaneous character. Some farm produce is being received, but not in quantities sufficient to make muh of a dent on the High Cost of Living. Eggs, mostly in lots of one or two dozen, butter, and chickens made up the bulk of it. Most of it seemed to be sent from farmers to friends or relatives in the city, not much to grocers or produce men.

Using the Big Bags.

Eggs are packed in stout cardboard cartons, with nests inside for from one to four dozen eggs. The chickens and meat are packed in boxes. The six-pound limit pretty well narrows down the field of produce which can practically be sent through the post to butter, poultry, and eggs. Even these can only be sent profitably to private individuals. "It wouldn't pay us to get butter through the post in six-pound lots," one grocer said. "That would mean a charge of 17 cents for every six pounds. It is much cheaper to get a 50-pound lot by express."

No vegetables have been sent as yet. The ordinary vegetables, potatoes, carrots, beets, etc., would require a sum equal to their value for delivery through the post. Few people want to buy just 6 pounds of potatoes or six pounds of parsnips at a time.

The mail is being handled in big newspaper mail bags. Ordinary parcels are dumped into the ordinary bags. Articles labelled "Fragile" are placed in bags with the same label and handled separately and carefully.

When the limit of weight of the parcels is raised to 11 pounds it is likely that the delivery will be carried out altogether by waggon.

Rally Was An Interesting One

Methodist Missionary Auxiliaries Gather in the George Street Sunday School Room

On Tuesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the George Street Auxiliary, fully two hundred women from the four Methodist churches of the City assembled in the schoolroom. Under the able and inspiring direction of Mrs. Kendry, the president of the George Street Auxiliary, the meeting proved to be unusually interesting. The singing was hearty, as Mrs. Carlisle led the devotional exercises, Mrs. Shields reading the lesson from the first chapter of St. John's gospel.

Thee were many features of the meeting worthy of note.

A letter was ready by Miss Wood from the branch president, Mrs. Grange, suggesting that it would be fitting for all the auxiliaries of the branch to make a special donation in memory of the late Mrs. Platt of Picton, who was branch president for so many years ,and on motion by Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Carlisle favourable action was decided on.

Expressions of sympathy were ordered to be conveyed to Mrs. Devins, who was absent on account of the death of her mother.

Two features of the meeting were the bright and interesting address of Mrs. Mansell, president of the Charlotte Street Auxiliary, and the paper of Mrs. Peever on the conditions of the Woman's Missionary efforts in the Province of Quebec.

The larger generosity was stimulated by the recitation of "The Stingy Man's Penny" by Mrs. Emory of St. James Street Auxiliary and the reading of "I give tittles of all I possess" by Mrs. Curtis of George Street Auxiliary.

After Mrs. Armstrong's account of the work done in the fortnightly study class of George Street Auxiliary, particularly in reference to the book on "The King's Business," many felt that they were losing in not attending the class.

The beautiful solos by Mrs. Middleton and Miss Wrigley, and the piano selection by Mrs. Cleary, added much to the pleasure of the afternoon.

When Mrs. Kendry rose to close the meeting by reciting the first watch word of the society given by the first president, Mrs. Gooderham, thirty three years ago, she called to the platform Miss Benson, who had formerly been a teacher in George Street Sunday school. Miss Benson asked those who had been members of her class to stand, and among those who responded was Miss Munro, who lately returned from the foreign missionary field.

After prayer by Mrs. Kendry, a social half hour was spent by the women who felt that they had been greatly benefitted by the meeting.

52 BUSHELS OF WHEAT PER ACRE

Mr. J. Clark, formerly of Cavan, and who went west and settled near Regina, Sask., has sent the clipping printed below, to Mrs. Syers of Cavan. The record of 52 bushels of wheat was made on land adjoining that which he worked when he first went to Saskatchewan. Mr. Clark is now living in Regina.

The clipping reads as follows:

Reports of some wonderful records in grain production made in this vicinity last year have been brought to Regina by J. A. Chalmer, an insurance inspector. At Kronau, C. A. Wertzburger, a German-American, threshed 5,208 bushels of Marquis wheat, elevator weight from a 100 acre field grown on S. E. 1-4 7-16-18. The next best record was made by David Boyle, who resides in Regina, and who threshed 5,100 bushels of the same variety, elevator weight, from 100 acres. This wheat was shipped from Estline, the second station out of Regina on the G.T.P.

The Forbes brothers of Grand Coulee made a record when they produced 90,000 bushels of grain, only a small part of which was oats, from three sections and a quarter. Forrest Forbes, one of the brothers, threshed 30,000 bushels, half of which was oats and half wheat, from one section.

The Peace Celebration

Great Britain and the United States to Celebrate Their 100 Years of Peace

The Guelph Mercury, in reporting a pulpit address by the Rev Ben. N. Mitchell, quotes the following interesting portion of the speaker's remarks on "International Peace":

"Mr. Mitchell drew attention to the visit last Tuesday of Mr. Scammell, the organising secretary of the Canadian Peace Centenary Association and the nomination of a local committee who will be responsible for the preliminary work of organising committees in Guelph, when Great Britain, Canada and the United States are to fittingly celebrate one hundred years of peace between Great Britain and the United States. The speaker dwelt at some length upon the fact that 'God has made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on the face of the earth,' and yet 1900 years after Jesus Christ 'made peace through the blood of His cross' the civilised nations of the earth are to-day groaning under an intolerable burden of taxation in order to pay the interest on war debts to support great armies and navies, and to meet the expense of building more Dreadnoughts. Mr. Mitchell then dwelt upon the waste of human life through war, and in eloquent language showed how utterly false is the statement that nations make progress through war by the survival of the fittest. The fittest do not survive. They are the first to fall. France still feels the wars of Napoleon 1st, who in his attempt to conquer the world left France's best men on the bloody field of battle. The same is true of England, of Scotland, whose deer forests were once the abode of brave and sturdy men and women; and of the United States, in whose civil war 600,000 were offered up on the altar of patriotism. Mr. Mitchell rejoiced to know that amid all the turmoil of war preparation by other nations, Great Britain and the United States will fittingly celebrate one hundred years of peace next year, and he expressed the hope that this celebration may be the daybreak of universal peace. Let the Anglo-Saxon race be united, and international peace will eventually result. The speaker closed by saying that in this desire for international peace, as in all that is righteous, the Church must lead."

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH A.Y.P.A. HELD SOCIAL MEETING

A very pleasant social meeting was held last evening (Wednesday) in the Sunday School room of St. George's Church in connection with the Young People's Society. In spite of the coolness of the weather which, by the way was no warmer south of the Exhibition Grounds, where the weather man gets when he gives us his official report, quite a large number were present, and the evening enjoyment well paid them for their pluck. Mr. F. D. Kerr gave a very interesting address on "Tennyson and His Works," reading some of his choice poems such as "Crossing the Bar," "The Brook," etc. The speaker appealed to everyone to try and take some interest in poetry, for although it may at first seem dry and uninteresting to some, yet there is a lot to be found in it that was good and would help to build up character. The writer would like to report the whole address but he does not remember it all, and he would advise all young people to attend these meetings in future and make sure of getting the whole thing another time. A good, warm fire, songs, recitations, and last, bu not least, plenty of good lively games, in which all took part, helped to make up the programme. The meeting closed shortly after 10 p.m. with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" in proper style.—Com.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—In the Railway Committee of The Commons this morning the consideration of W. H. Sharpe's bill providing for an extension of time for the construction of certain C.P.R. branch lines and authorizing new lines was under consideration. A. E. Dr. Schaffner moved that all bills be provided that railways must commence within a year and complete it in three years. On a standing vote this amendment was defeated by 15 to 12, which means that railways will continue to have two years to commence and three more to complete lines of railway.

The New Striped Messaline Silks Will Enjoy A Wide Spread Popularity

Because They Possess Strength of Texture, with Uncommon Beauty in Pattern and Colouring

DRESS FABRICS must of necessity lend themselves to much draping and gathering, or they can take no part in the styles of the present day.

For this reason, Messaline Silks with their very soft texture, have become a universal favourite in the making up of waists and dresses.

The chief points of merit about Messaline Silks, are the strong, twilled weave, and the new and beautiful range of striped colours in which they can be procured.

In every instance the stripe is a white hairline, upon such colours as Tan, Copenhagen, Rose, Navy, Brown and Black; while the width is 36 inches and the price $1.25 yard.

This particular variety has a very substantial weight; is imported from France, and is also to be had in plain colours without the stripe, at $1.00 yard.

Checked Materials Also Figure Conspicuously in the Newer Fashions

Shepherd Checks, Crow Foot Checks and Honeycomb Checks, all come in black and and white, some in blue and white; and form one of the best fabrics to wear at any time, in any season. While for early spring wear they promise to be very much in demand.

And happily, in the case of these checks, the question of price is not a prohibitive one, for they can be secured in a great range of widths and qualities, which are marked from 50c to $1.25 yard.

MANAGEMENT IS BAD

Waste and Inefficiency Shown in Port Nelson Work

MINISTER IS CRITICIZED

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—The extravagance, inefficiency and waste characterising the operations at Port Nelson under the direction of the Government during the past year were under criticism in the House yesterday afternoon. The criticism came in the debate upon the motion of A. K. Maclean (Halifax) for the production of papers bearing on the work at Port Nelson, and Opposition speakers pointed out in effective fashion that the bungling mismanagement in connection with the work had not only caused financial loss, but had delayed very considerably the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway project.

Hon. Frank Cochrane replying for the Government, took the stand that the misadventure of last summer had been largely due to a succession of unfortunate fortuitous circumstances.

Mr. Maclean, in moving for the return of papers in connection with the work at Port Nelson, spoke of the wreck of the Ceasrense and the injury to the Alette. He also dwelt upon the inability of the Alcasar to discharge her cargo, the absence of lightering facilities, the hardships of laborers taken to Port Nelson under contract with the Government, and the lack of bucys and other aids to navigation in the Nelson roads.

Throughout, Mr. Maclean declared, there had been a deplorable manifestation of inefficiency, extravagance and loose and wasteful methods. An obvious lack of navigation aids, inaccurate charts and the absence of buoys in portions of the bay to be traversed by the ships chartered by the Government, had all contributed to the conditions which had resulted. There were no wharves or other facilities for unloading. There was no organization for the protection of supplies once they had landed. There was gross extravagance in Government purchases. Judgment had not been exercised in the selection of ships chartered, and serious complaints had been made as to the treatment extended to laborers who went up to the bay to work for the Government under contract.

Hon. Frank Cochrane, in replying, said that the vessels which had been lost, were lost through the incapacity of their captains. It might be admitted that conditions were not ideal at Port Nelson, but there were great difficulties to cope with. Supplies had not been delivered as contracted for, and owing to an accident which befell the Marine Department steamer Beothic off Newfoundland, the material for the wireless station at Port Nelson had not been delivered.

As to the choice between Nelson and Churchill as the terminal port, Mr. Cochrane said that Churchill had a good harbor but a small one. To reach there would involve building 80 miles more of railway than was necessary to connect the Le Pas with Nelson. There were difficulties in making a harbor at Nelson, but they were not insuperable. The Nelson river was no less navigable than the Mississippi, the Delaware or the Mersey.

Hon. Frank Oliver, following Mr. Cochrane, took the ground that the Minister's objection to Fort Churchill because of the barren lands which would have to be crossed in reaching it, was not sound. He believed that the railway could cross these lands without great difficulty, and that Churchill is a port answering every requirement, and one which could be equipped at the minimum cost.

J. A. M. Aikins (Brandon) said that Mr. Cochrane had shown commendable energy in handling the railway project, and that the mishaps of last summer were due to the failure of the human equation at the time of test. As for the choice of Port Nelson, Mr. Aikins believed it was justified by the fact that navigation at that port opens earlier in the year and continues longer than at Fort Churchill.

Hon. George P. Graham said that personally he believed Nelson was the proper terminus. He warned the Government, however, that the construction of the railway was the smallest part of the job before them. They had to create a harbor, build docks and elevators, and finally steamships. He doubted if the steamship lines would carry traffic to or from Hudson Bay unless subsidized by the Government. He said he was a believer in the Hudson Bay route and hazarded the guess that ultimately 75 per cent. of western Canadian wheat would find its way to Europe via Hudson Bay.

Mr. Knowles (Moosejaw), G. W. Kyte (Richmond, N.S.), Mr. Sharpe (Lisgar), Mr. Mackay (Prince Albert), also participated in the debate.

Bank Clerks To Organize

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—With the object of bettering the material, moral and intellectual welfare of bank clerks generally, the initial steps were taken at a meeting in St. George's Hall, Elm street, toward the organization of a Dominion-wide society to be known as the Associated Bank Clerks. The action is the outcome of a long agitation among bank employees to secure increased salaries and improved working conditions.

F. P. Buschlen, author of "A Canadian Bank Clerk," presided and he regretted that, while the hall was nearly filled at the meeting held a week previous, not many more than a hundred were present at this meeting. "Is it cold feet or did the head office send out a circular?" he asked; but the question was not answered.

What They Want.

Mr. Buschlen read an editorial from a weekly paper which pretty well covered the attitude of the bank clerks. It dealt with the marriage restrictions and the limited salaries as well as the prospect of dismissal in the event of organization such as was now being attempted. Australia, he said, had passed a law making it an offence punishable with a $500 fine for any influence being brought to bear on a young man over 21 to prevent him from marrying.

The constitution and by-laws as read, give the object of the association is being to advance the general welfare, a policy of co-operation and publicity, members to be enrolled to be any and all bank clerks. Expulsion from membership is provided for when dues are not paid in three months, but three weeks' notice must also be given. Five officers are to be elected.

THE CAUSE OF THE EARTHQUAKE

Earthquakes are caused by a contraction of the earth's crust. At one time the whole of the earth was exceedingly hot, and it is cooling from the outside inwards. As the outside cools it contracts in accordance with the general law of nature that cold bodies are smaller in volume than hot bodies. This applies to the crust of the earth. As it cools it contracts and there is a buckling of the strata of rock which compose its solid crust. The buckling is necessarily accompanied by a movement and an alteration in shape. Generally this is slight, but in some cases, as in the great San Francisco earthquake, it is sufficient to destroy a whole city. The Island of St. Pierre completely vanished as the result of one of these giant movements of the earth's crust. Earthquakes occur in certain well-defined parts of the world.

The line of the greatest activity is usually marked by a volcano, an extinct volcano, or by the fumaroles, geysers, and hot springs, such as are found in Tuscany, Yellowstone Park, Iceland, and other parts of the world. Minor earthquakes may be a direct consequence of volcanic eruption, being brought about by sea water finding its way deep down into the interior of the earth. It is a significant fact that most regions liable to earthquakes lie near large masses of water.

The earthquake in Peterborough was in all probability due to a movement of the strata of rock underlying the strata upon which Peterborough stands.

This movement was most likely the result of the shrinking, which is continually taking place, and not to any of the abnormal volcanic causes which give rise to disastrous shocks. This is the second earthquake which has visited Peterborough in the last week, but people have no cause to be alarmed as Peterborough lies outside the volcanic region of severe disturbances.

TAMMANY CHIEF A HERO NOW

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 12.—Charles F. Murphy, chief of Tammany Hall going home at two a.m., caught sight of flames in the hallway of a tenement. In a few minutes, silk hatted and fur-coated, he was getting the sleepy inhabitants out of the burning building. He herded them into a nearby restaurant. The tenement was entirely destroyed.

A Holiday

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12—Reports from many sections of the country indicate a wider observance of the Lincoln birthday anniversary to-day than ever before. Less than a decade ago the anniversary of the birth of the martyr President was officially recognized in only twelve States. During the past few years the number of States in which the day is celebrated as a legal holiday has increased to twenty-two.

"A BUTTERFLY ON THE WHEEL"

"A Butterfly on the Wheel," which was one of three plays to run all of last season in New York will have its first local presentation at 'The Grand' next Saturday, matinee and evening. This is the play which has been talked about so much on account of its realistic trial scene which occurs in the third act. Mrs. Admaston, wife of a member of Parliament, commits an indiscretion—it is really trivial—and is sued for divorce.

The wife, frail, in fact a typical social "butterfly" is shown on the stand. Although entirely innocent the prosecuting attorney tries to prove her guilty and the examination, which is most severe, takes the woman to such an extent that in the end she collapses. The scene is one of powerful dramatic force, and it reaches the height of dramatic possibilities.

Special attractive prices have been arranged for the matinee performance, ranging at 25., 35c, and 50. Peterborough ladies should make a special effort to take in this great drama which makes a special appeal to women.

GAVE ADDRESS ON TENNYSON

Mr. F. D. Kerr Delighted Large Audience at St. Georges Church

At the regular meeting of the A. Y. P. A. of St. George's Church last evening, a very enjoyable as well as profitable, time was spent. The chair was taken by the President of the society, Mr. Pitchford, and the feature of the meeting was an address by Mr. F. D. Kerr on Tennyson's poems. In a very interesting and comprehensive manner, Mr. Kerr referred to the immortal works of the celebrated English Bard. At the conclusion of the lecture he hearty thanks of the Association was tendered the speaker of the evening.

The last half of the meeting was spent in a social way, several of the young people contributing songs and recitations.

Canada's Big Seismic Shock

Trees Rocked So That Indians Said Whole Forest Was Drunk—Hill Sank in Water

OCCURRED IN 1663

February seems to be a favourite month for Canadian earthquakes, for it was on the 5th of that month, in 1663, that the worst seismic shake every recorded in Canada took place. Lolemont, a Jesuit, thus records it:

Roaring Sound.

"It began with a great roaring sound heard through the whole extent of Canada. Bells sounded of themselves; beams and joists cracked; the logs of the palisade at Quebec danced about, and many inhabitants were nauseated by the rocking of the earth.

"Trees struck against one another, and leaped on each other with such noise and confusion that the Indians said the whole forest was drunk. A number of men in a boat near Tadousac stared aghast at a large hill which sank into the water before their eyes. And Mother Matie de l'Incarnation tells of a man who ran all night to escape a crack in the earth which opened behind him as he fled. Spectres ran rampant in the forest.

Geology's Testimony.

Tangible evidence was not wanting to prove, by geological signs, that a severe convulsion of nature took place at that time, and although the silent records are not so eloquent as the flamboyant language of the Jesuit historian they provide confirmation.

The earthquake of 1663 was felt even by the Puritans of New England and the burghers of New Netherlands. The shocks continued, though with lessening severity, for several months. Small rivers were dried up; some mountains appeared to be much broken and moved, and midway between Quebec and Tadousac two mountains weres haken down, forming a point of land that extended some distance into the St. Lawrence.

LINDSAY FIRM WILL EXTEND

LINDSAY, Feb. 12.—Horn Bros'. Woollen Mills has secured an option on the Cornell brewery property, immediately north of their plant, and it is their intention to build a large extension, modern in design, which with the installation of the latest machinery, will mean an increase to 250 or 300 in the number of employees. A by-law will be submitted to the ratepayers at an early date, and if carried, the firm will proceed to build the extension and have it completed early in the summer.

Or Prosecution Will Follow---Local Police Department Receive Instructions From the Provincial Department --Markers Must Be Properly Placed.

Chief of Police Thompson has received a circular from the Provincial Department, calling attention to the new regulations concerning the numbering of automobiles. The regulations in part are as follows:

Owing to the fact that a great number of motor vehicle owners fail to comply with the provisions of The Motor Vehicles Act in the placing of their registration markers, the Department begs to direct attention to the following excerpts from the said Act. With a view to obtaining a more rigid enforcement of this particular section, the matter of its frequent unobservance is being brought to the notice of the local police authorities.

The number shall be kept free from dirt and obstruction and the markers shall be so affixed that the numbers may be at all times plainly visible.

A permit shall remain in force only during the calendar year in which it is issued.

A permit shall remain in force only during the calendar year in which it is issued.

A marker shall be exposed only upon the motor vehicle in respect of which it was issued.

IRL HICKS PREDICTED THE EARTHQUAKE TO EXACT DAY

Do you recall what Irl Hicks said regarding seismic conditions during February?

In the issue of February 5th of the Examiner the following appeared in his prognostications for the present month:

"The first seismic or earthquake period for February will be central on the 10th, covering about the 8th to the 13th. Moon will be in opposition with the sun and earth on the 10th, in perigee on the 11th, and on the equator on the 12th. All these will augment earthquake unrest at this time. Watch for reports, and expect startling results."

The 10th was Tuesday, the day on which even Peterborough gave unmistakable evidences of an abnormal agitation of the earth's surface. Of course Prof. Hicks did not specify the districts in which the abberations of the good ship earth would be particularly manifest. Few persons would expect minute details. But, in any case, this is not written with the intention of focussing attention upon the accuracy of this particular prediction. Reading between the lines it might then be supposed that this was quite an ordinary bullseye for the reverend professor. The simple object of this reference is to point out the coincidence of the forecast and the temporary terrestrial rampage of Tuesday.

Another sentence: "Piercing cold will visit most parts of the country, from about the 12th to the 14th". Had those two dates been fixed upon the 10th to the 12th, it might have been more applicable to Peterborough, but even at that it just about covers the situation.

Irl Hicks is jocularly spoken of by some readers as the man who makes the weather. Those who follow his reports are boosting his stock since the earthquake shook the vicinity.

JOHN D. ELUDES TAXES.

Trying to Hang on to $12,000,000—He May Desert Ohio.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 12.—Local Tax Commissioners are planning a counter attack on John D. Rockefeller, who thus far has cleverly outwitted them in their fight to collect $12,000,000 in revenue on the oil king's estimated $900,000,000 of personal property. They were framing a bill to "make real estate subject to levy for collection of personal taxes."

Under the present law Rockefeller's property cannot be seized for non-payment of taxes.

In the meantime retainers at Forest Hill, the Cleveland estate of Rockefeller, continued to send personal property to New York. An $87,000 painting and several horses have already gone.

Every indication is that Rockefeller is deserting Ohio permanently.

KEENE NEWS

P. and Mrs. Kindred Extend the Hospitality of Their Home —Other News

Examiner Special:

KEENE, Feb. 11. On Thursday evening, Feb. 5th, the members of the "Winado" Adult Bible Class met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kindred for their quarterly business meeting. The teacher, Mrs. A. E. Wood, being absent on account of sickness, Rev. Edmison conducted the business for the evening, after which one of the members gave a reading on "Influence," to which Rev. Edmison responded in a very interesting and applicable manner. At the close the class was invited to the dining room, where they partook of an oyster supper, which was a treat, from Mr. Thornton, a member of the A. B. C., to his classmates.

Last Thursday evening a picked team of hockey players from Peterborough, Lakefield and Downer's Corners came down with the expectancy of defeating our senior team, but were much disappointed, as Keene beat them by a score of 15 to 4.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Two conditions are essential to business success; sufficient money to meet current expenses and to provide for emergencies, and an established credit.

The spot-cash man may and may not be given credit, and he who does business on credit will not continue long unless he backs his credit with cash.

Every one, young or old, in business for himself or working as an employe, should establish credit, although it may be inadvisable for him to use it. He should be known as reliable, good for what he orders, and able to meet his bills at maturity.

I am not advising the young man or employe to run up bills, because cash payments work for economy and charge accounts encourage extravagance; but, nevertheless, one should begin early to earn the right to have credit, for sooner or later he may need it.

Credit cannot be established unless bills and all obligations are met at maturity. It is better to borrow money, if necessary, than to let debts over-run, but young people and employes in general should not borrow, nor should they anticipate their salaries or incomes. Ninety per cent. of the improvident borrow at every opportunity and live beyond their means. They anticipate their incomes or salaries, and spend them before they arrive. Consequently, they are always in debt and behindhand.

I advise every young man, yes, and every young woman, who is in business or is an employee, to open a checking account in some reliable bank or trust company. Provided, of course, that he or she is able to accumulate a hundred dollars or a few hundred dollars. The carrying of a bank account does much toward establishing credit or financial responsibility, and is most convenient, for it enables the depositor to pay the bills by check, which is a receipt in itself, and to have his money where it is fully protected against loss, and yet always available.

Most banks and trust companies pay 2 per cent. interest on daily balances of from three hundred to five hundred dollars, while savings banks pay from three and a half to four per cent. It is obvious, then that one loses from two to four per cent, if he carries a checking bank account; but, if the account is small, this loss may be justifiable, because of the conveniene.

There is no habit more pernicious than borrowing money, even for convenience when one is abundantly able to pay the loan. The transaction may be forgotten, to the detriment of the borrower and to the loss of the lender. Better, far better, it is to get a check cashed when in need of ready money. This reduces the obligation to the minimum, and the lender takes no chances, provided, of course, the check is good.

Avoid, if possible, being short of money. Make any reasonable sacrifice to have a small amount of cash on hand. Even if your salary is small, you can usually put aside a moderate sum every week, depositing it either in a checking bank or an institution for savings. You will then not be under the necessity or borrowing and of obtaining an unenviable reputation, and you have quick assets ready for emergency.

THE CONSTITUENCIES OF ONTARIO

Ontario will have eighty-two seats in the next Parliament if the present redistribution plan is carried out.

This is a reduction of four, and, allowing for additional urban seats, there will be nine or ten rural constituencies wiped out. A study of population, as given below, is therefore interesting:

Four Eclipses For 1914

There will be four eclipses this year, two of the Sun and two of the Moon, and a transit of Mercury, as follows:

1.—Annular of the Sun, Feb. 24, invisible in North America.

2.—Partial eclipse of the Moon on the evening of March 11 and morning of the 12th. The size of the eclipse when at its greatest will be about 11 digits, of 11-12 of her apparent diameter. The first contact of the limbs of the shadow and Moon will take place on the eastern limb of the Moon from which point she will pass eastward and southward (being at her descending node) through the earth's great black shadow whose boundary and shadow is only made visible by the immersion of the Full Moon's bright face therein—one of the visible proofs of the rotundity of the Earth, as only a round body could cast a round shadow. The following is the standard time of the different phases:

Intercolonial — Begins at 10.42 p. m.; middle, .13 a.m.; ends at 1.44 a. m.

Eastern —Begins at 9.42 p.m.; middle at 11.13 p.m.; ends at .44 a.m.

Central—Begins at 8.42 p.m.; middle at 10.13 pm.; ends at 1.44 p.m.

Mountain —Begins at 7.42 p.m.; middle at 9.13 p.m ; ends at 10.44 p.m.

Pacific—Begins at 6.42 p.m.; middle at 8.13 p.m.; ends at 9.54 p.m.

3.—Total eclipse of the Sun, August 21st, visible as a small partial eclipse on the Sun's northern limb on northeastern North America. Throughout the east loke region the Sun will rise with the eclipse on. A line drawn from Newport, R.I., through New York City, to Washington, D.C., and then westerly to near Louisville, and thence northerly to Indianapolis, Des Moines, Fargo and Winnipeg, roughly marks southern and western boundary of the area of visibility, and west and south of this line no portion of the eclipse will be visible.

4.—Partial eclipse of the Moon, September 4th. The beginning only will be visible in the United States and that only on the Pacific coast. The eastern boundary of the area of visibility of the beginning of the eclipse will be near the western limits of Colorado and New Mexico, where the Moon will be setting as the eclipse begins; and west of this line the Moon will set more or less eclipsed on her southern limb.

Mountain Time —Begins 5.16 a.m.; middle, invisible; ends, invisible.

Pacific Time—Begins at 4.16 a.m.; middle at 5.55 a.m ; ends, invisible.

5.— A transit of the Planet Mercury across the disk of the Sun, November 7. The Sun will rise with the planet well on its face. This event can only be seen with the aid of a telescope, opera or field glass, and smoked or stained glass should always be used between the eye-piece of the instrument and the eye. Otherwise the eye would suffer serious danger by the concentrated solar rays.

Liner Tossed Like Toy Boat.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 12. — Steering her way into Halifax harbor with her emergency gear, the big French liner Chicago arrived here yesterday from Havre to secure 500 tons of bunker coal, having all but exhausted her supply in a 12-days' struggle against increasing head gales. The Chicago is bound for Boston and New York.

The ship was tossed about like a toy by the enormous seas.

Six Hundred Driven Out.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Six hundred men, women and children—one hundred and fifty families — were driven to the street in the snow by a four-alarm fire which wrecked a five-storey factory building in East 34th street early yesterday. The building is in the heart of "Corcoran's Roost," and surrounded by tenements, all of which were emptied. The loss was about $100,000.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Selling by holders who wished to avoid an open risk during the holiday tomorrow counterbalanced in the wheat market today the effect of a good export call and of a moderate cold wave. The market closed easy at the same as last night to 1-8c up. Other staples all showed a net decline: corn 1-4 to 3-8c; oats 1-16c and provisions 21-2 to 10c.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼d to ⅝d higher; corn, ⅛d to ¼d higher.

No choice steers were offered but good ones sold readily at $8.25 to $8.50, fairly good at $7.75 to $8, fair at $7.25 to $7.50, and the more common stock at from $6 to $7 per 100 pounds. TWO LEADING TEAMS HAD EASY VICTORIES

Exploits Win by 7 to 1 While the Y.M.C.A. Piled Up 10 Goals to 1 Against the Wanderers---Next Week's Game Between Exploits and "Y" May Decide the League Championship.

The Alerts were eliminated from the City League race last night and the title will hinge on the game between the Y.M.C.A. and Boston Exploits next Wednesday night. The Y can tie up the League by beating the Bean Eaters, while a win for the latter will give them the championship.

Both teams were easy winners last nights, the Exploits beating the Alerts 7 to 1 and the Y. winning from the Wanderers 10 to 1.

The first game between the Alerts and Exploits was not the hard battde that was expected. The Alerts did not show the pepper and aggressiveness that they displayed against the Y.M.C.A. last week, and the lack of system that has characterized their play all season was painfully in evidence, promising openings to score being thrown away. The Alerts have lots of speed and weight, but show little grey matter in their playing. With coaching from the first of the season they would have made things interesting.

The Exploits played their usual snappy game and had little trouble in carrying off the honours. They were in front 4 to 0 at half time, and outscored the Alerts 3 to 1 in the second half. Butcher, Rose, Graham and Phelan were the Exploit stars, the latter tearing off some long rushes for goals. Legendre and Lowes performed the best for the losers.

Exploits		Alerts
	Goal
Latimer		Legrow
	Defence
Phelan		Legendre
Regan		Davidson
	Rover
Graham		Lowes
	Centre
Butcher		Doughty
	Right Wing
Wolff		O'Connell
	Left Wing
Rose		Heath

The Y.M.C.A. uncovered their best exhibition of the season in the second game. The keen ice was just to the liking of the Triangle squad and the Wanderers never had a chance. The red and black team are easily the best combination team in the league. They get away three or four in line and pass cleanly and at the right time. The Wanderers simply couldnt hold them out and it was 7 to 0 at half time, with the final score 10 to 1. Knapman was the individual star of the game, his stick handling and speed standing out prominently. Quinn and Jackson also performed brilliatly and Stevenson and Smyth were a strong defence.

Coughlin and Primeau were the best for the Wanderers. Nearly all the Y. goals were scored on neat combination plays, although Jackson nicked a couple on beautiful shots from the side. The teams were:

Y.M.C.A.		Wanderers
	Goal
Darling		Walker
	Defence
Smith		Coughlin
Stevenson		Revoy
	Rover
Knapman		Stuart
	Centre
Quinn		Brown
	Right Wing
Cranfield		Primeau
	Left Wing
Jackson		May

The second game was the cleanest of the season.

Referee Dobson gave good satisfaction in both contests.

RECORD CROWD SURE FOR TO-MORROW'S GAME

Can Peterborough overcome the four-goal lead, and win the round from Orillia to-morrow night? That is the question of the hour in Peterborough just now, and the biggest crowd of the season will be on hand to see the answer worked out. It promises to be one of the most exciting and spectacular contests seen at the Brock street rink in years, and judging by the inquiry for seats there will be few vacant spaces. The Petes are confident that they can turn the trick. They worked out last night to take the kinks out after the hard game on Tuesday and they should start out to-morrow night right on edge for the hardest task they have been set this season. The players state that they were not going at their best in Orillia, but that they will give the northerners a terrific battle here. The ice will be keen and fast and everything points to a sensational game.

TORONTO GRANITE RINKS INVADED PETERBORO' QUARTERS LAST NIGHT

Visitors Had a Lead of Five Shots on Four Out of Five of the Games But 18 Shots Lead on the Other Resulted in a Win for the Locals.

Five rinks from the Toronto Granite Curling Club arrived in the City shortly before 8 o'clock last evening, and played friendly games with an equal number of local rinks. Three out of four of the local quartettes won from their opponents, but had it not been for the 24 to 6 game that Dr. Wightman took from R. J. Conlan the majority might have been on the side of the invaders.

As it was, on the other four games the Granites were up 5 stones, but as Dr. Wightman and his rink were up 18, the locals came out of the game thirteen shots to the good.

The curlers trundled the stones on to the ice before nine o'clock, and the last of the games were not finished till nearly 1 o'clock this morning. However, every minute of the play was interesting to both the players and spectators. The "M. D." rink lost to S. H. Armstrong 18 to 13.

The Toronto curlers came in their special car, to which they retreated after the games last night. This morning they woke up in Toronto.

The scores were:

Peterborough	Toronto Granites

ART ROSS, the plucky captain of the Wanderers team of Montreal, who is now permanently out of the game with an injured back. He has been weak since the third game of this season, but with remarkable fortitude stood up to the stick.

MANY TOES WERE FROZEN AT THE BROCK ST. RINK

So cold was it at the rink last night that not a few of the Junior City League players were sporting frozen toes and other members were accordingly whitened by the frost.

Art. Primeau had both feet hidden in a shovel full of snow at half time. He had three or four toes pretty well nipped. Buck O'Connell, Milo Heath and Lowes of the Alerts had a toes or two apiece frostbitten. It was one cold night. Fred Denison had both little toes frozen during a twenty-minutes workout, and Grover Halpin had a big toe similarly treated. During the afternoon the Collegiate Institute boys were treated to the same medicine.

TENNIS SOLONS TO DEFINE AMATEUR

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—Amateurism in lawn tennis will be strictly defined at the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria to-morrow. For a long time there has been much controversy over this question, and at the last meeting of the national body a committee was appointed to draft a rule that would conform sufficiently with that of the International Federation of Europe, so as to avoid the possibility of friction in the Davis Cup matches, which are to be played in the United States next summer. The principal objection to the definition of an amateur has come from the promoters of invitation and hotel tournaments, in which it is alleged discrimination has been shown in favour of the leading players, and the adoption of a new rule will mean that these promoters will have to depend largely on local players in the future. While the opposition is expected to muster considerable force at to-morrow's meeting, it is thought among the leading officials that the rule will pass.

Hockey--That's All

An exciting game of hockey took place on the Sacred Heart rink last night from 7.30 to 8.30, between All Saints' Junior Church youngsters and the St. James' Church boys, resulting in the defeat of the St. James' church players by 8 to 3. The star for All Saints was F. Soward and for the St. James, O. Freeburn. The return game is to be played on the Sacred Heart ice next Wednesday, Feb. 18th, from 7.30 to 8.30.

Toronto Telegram—Dave Belland, with Quebec Hockey team, and Louis Legeux were the chief executioners in a good joke this morning. They engineered the hanging of one "Costello," which was to take place at the jail this morning. Securing passes signed by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick bearing the legend, "Admit one," they turned one over to the victim and then suggested that he throw it into a pool to rattle it. He refused point blank to take any chance at all.

At 4 a.m. the clanging bell at the Palmer House awoke the joke victim and he was in such a hurry to get to the hanging that he put on another fellow's trousers.

He went up and down the corridors banging at the doors of the elect, including one lady and informing the occupants of the rooms that it was time to get ready for the execution. Most of them never heard of any execution, and one nearly came off in the hotel with the crier as the victim.

He hustled to the jail, being told that Belland and Legeux had gone ahead.

Arrived at Governor Chambers' castle he rapped and told the guard he came for the execution and that he had a ticket. The official thought he was backed into somebody needing attention and invited him in. Then he fell for the joke and explained that there was no hanging there.

The victim hiked for home, but the strange trousers didn't even have a nickle in them and he had to walk back.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—That seven-goal lead was too much for London intermediates in the final game of the round with Carnia to-night. Sarnia won at home by 7 to 0. The locals came with one goal of overcoming it, but they could do no better than secure a 7 to 1 victory over the Tunnel Town, and as a result they will play no more hockey in the O.H.A. this season. Gus Edward's London's right wing player, formerly of Parkdale, tried hard enough to keep London in the running, but the best he could do was to score five goals, although he rained in a hundred shots at Cameron that were either marvellously stopped or else missed the net by inches. The score at halftime was 4 to 0.

It was a game with a heart-breaking finish. With only a couple of minutes to play, London needed just one goal to tie up the round. The London team, with the exception of Wardrope, made one last desperate attack on the the visitors' nets to notch that tally, but the time was too limited. Hall and Reid moved up from the defence to the forward line, but even with five men all combining in an attack on the Sarnia goal it was no use. Both teams were pretty much all in when the final gong sounded.

BASEBALL

Hamilton Spectator: A meeting of the Canadian league schedule committee will be held within a few days. The International league schedule will be published shortly, and the Canadian league schedule makers will get busy right after the publication of the International dates by President Barrow. At the present time Hamilton has no representative on the schedule committee, but an effort will be made to have this rectified. It is the opinion here that local conditions are such that this city should have an important say in the making of the schedule this year.

LONDON, Feb. 11. — Negotiations are under way between George O'Neil, director of the London Baseball club, and G. B. Patterson of the Molsons Bank, for the transfer of the interest held by Mr. O'Neil in the London club to Mr. Patterson.

The price asked by Mr. O'Neil was not made public, but figuring it as a basis the London Baseball club franchise is worth considerable.

The directors will soon place the stock list of the new incorporated company on the market, and it is expected that it will find ready buyers, as the league has passed the experimental stage after weathering three years, shortly to enter upon its fourth and best season.

Binghampton, N.Y., Feb. 11.— Eddie McCafferty of the Toronto International league club, is in Binghampton to-day negotiating with Neil Sullivan, William Hitchcock and Lynne Schenk for their signatures to contracts. Sullivan is a fast outfielder and heavy hitter, having played with New York state and Virginia teams. Schenk is an infielder, who has developed marked ability and is regarded by big league scouts as a comer. While William Hitchcock has made good as a twirler in several of the minor leagues. He was with the Tri-State League and last year signed with Newport News, but was injured in a collision, and was out of the game the greater part of the season.

Windsor Accord: When the postman left a large official looking document at the home of "Rube" Deneau last week it contained a contract from the London baseball club. Not being a cub player Rube did not jump into the air with glee or attach his signature to it and send it back in the first mail. Instead he cautiously opened the epistle and took just one look where it says, "and the party of the second part is to receive a salary of $— for his services."

Right then Rube became what some would term a hold-out. Last year when the contract arrived, Rube looked at the figure and it was all right, so he came to terms with the club in a real joyfest. But things change with years, and the Deneau case was no exception to the rule. Last year he was manager of the team and drew a nice salary. He brought the London team into the running, and not until the end of the season was it sure that London would not win the pennant. This year, however, the club owner and the manager had differences, and another man was handed the reins. This meant a cut in salary for Rube, and he says he will not stand for it.

There is a trade pending now, by which Deneau will go to Brantford and take over the reins of the Brantford team. This would do away with all the holding out and everything would be lovely.

While it is not openly said to be true, there is a chance that the London team may intend to let Deneau go to Brantford, but the directors are playing a little game of solitaire. It may be that the Asylum City owners are keeping Deneau from getting busy on his new team as long as possible. The longer Rube is kept away from the Brantford team, the less time he will have to build up a winning aggregation.

Brantford Expositor:

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea,
And T. J. Nelson says, "Of hope, no ray;
When will they send my Rube Deneau to me?"

FIGURE SKATING COMPETITION

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 12—The annual figure skating championships, under the auspices of the Canadian Skating Association, which began this afternoon at the Laurier Avenue arena in this City, have brought together the most graceful figure skaters of Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, and a number of other cities. The competitions, which will continue over to-morrow, will include those for individual skating for the Minto Cup, for teams of four for the Earl Grey trophy, and pairs' skating for the Minto Challenge Cups.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS SHARE IN THE CUP TIE RECEIPTS

English Football Finalists May Tour Canada Next Summer --Meredith's Great Record---Newcastle's Misfortunes

The following message comes from Montreal:

The English soccer cup finalists will probably make a tour of Canada during the summer of next year (1915), according to advices received here. Preliminary arrangements are being bade by Con Jones, the Vancouver lacrosse magnate, and F. J. Wall, secretary of the Football Association of England. A side attraction talked of is an exhibition game at San Francisco Exhibition. This information may be accepted with great caution. Mr. Wall, of the Football Association, could not make any such arrangement without consulting the Dominion of Canada F. A. It may be, however, that the report is an echo of the D.F.A.'s invitation to send a team over, with Con Jones as the financial guarantee against loss. If so, then all will be in order.

Newcastle's Misfortunes.

Talk about misfortune, few clubs have experienced the "slings and arrows," etc., to the extent of Newcastle this season, the triple disaster against Sheffield United being the climax. Of recent years, too, the United have been severe sufferers by serious injury to players. To recall a few:

R. Blanthorne, broken leg, against Bradford City, September 2, 1908.

A. Shepherd, broken leg, against Blackburn, 1911.

A. Gosnell, cartilage, at Newcastle.

S. Higgins, injured knee, against Aston Villa, December 16, 1911.

J. Howie, twisted ankle, practice game, 1910.

A. Gardner, broken leg, Cup-tie against Blackpool, 1909.

P. McWilliam, knee, at Cardiff, playing for Scotland, 1911.

G. Jobey, cartilage, at Manchester.

C. Veitch, injured kidneys, at Bradford, December 26, 1913.

W. McCracken, broken ribs, at Sunderland, December, 1913.

J. Lawrence, broken collar bone, against Manchester City, January, 1914.

Players Get Share.

When the public attention is focussed on the English Cup competition the financial aspect of success so far as the players are concerned may be noted. It is only fair perhaps that the emoluments in the Cup ties should not be monopolized by the clubs and the association. The players now benefit by the amount of success they meet with, nd the clubs may distribute payments to their professionals not exceeding the following sums in the aggregate:

Cup winners, £275.
Runners-up, £220.
Each defeated semi-finalist club, £165.
Each other club reaching round four, £110.
Ditto, third round, £55.
Ditto, second round, £22.

A Great Record.

In the game against Ireland on 12th January, Meredith got his 44th international cap, and appeared for his 20th year in Welsh representative matches. No other player can boast a similar record. The nearest approaches to it are Crompton, with 31 representative games; Bloomer, with 23, and "Bobbie" Walker, with 29. Meredith's 20 yers of internationals would have been successive but for one year, 1906, when he was under suspension.

Newcastle's New Goalie.

William Mellor, the new goalkeeper for Newcastle, went to Norwich four seasons ago with Mr. J. B. Stansfield, the present secretary-manager of the club. He was practically unknown and one of his recommendations was that he had played three-quarter back for a Northern Union Rugby club. Norwich have never had reason to regret the day that Mellor arrived from Barrow. For a time he was understudy to R. H. Beale, now with Manchester United, nd on the few occasions that he appeared in the league team he made a deep inpression. He was born in Stockport.

From the draw for third round of the Socottish Cup it may be gathered that Stevenson United beat Kirkcakly on Saturday, although such a result was not cabled to this side.

Celtic replayed their game with Clyde yesterday and won by 2 to 0, so that when the draw was made last night Clyde were out of the count. The draw as cabled for third round is as follows:

Third Lanark v. Raith Rovers.
Aberdeen v. St. Mirren.
Stevenson United v. Partick Thistle
Forfar or East Stirlingshire v. Celtic.
Hibernians or Morton v. Airdrieonians.
Motherwell or Leith v. Rangers.

TWO LOCAL RINKS STILL IN RUNNING

Results of Games in Oshawa Yesterday—Skips Ferguson and Hicks Won

FORTY-TWO RINKS

OSHAWA, Feb. 12.—The eighth annual bonspiel of the Oshawa Curling Club opened yesterday morning under most favourable circumstances, and is the largest, most interesting and successful yet held by this club.

There are 42 rinks entered, and the town is full of visitors. Ideal weather has favoured the club, and the ice is the best. The McLaughlin Carriage and Motor Car Company very kindly met the morning trains and conveyed the visiting curlers to the rink and hotels in automobiles. All day and to-night the curling rink has presented an interesting and lively appearance, as the townspeople have turned out in large numbers to witness the games. The rink is prettily decorated with flags and bunting, the work having been done for the occasion by the T. Eaton Company of Toronto through the kindness of Mr. Will Eaton, of Oshawa. The visitors and guests are being right royally entertained by the members of the curling club. Luuches are served continuously, and everything is being done for the convenience and comfort of all. Handsome prizes have been offered for the winners, and the play will continue for three days. The Eaton rink of Oshawa, skipped by the veteran curler, Mr. Herb McMurty, should land in the jewellery class. Billy Eaton is leading a great game. Earl Moore plays second stone, and Sam McLaughlin rounds out the quartette.

A large number of friends and neighbours followed the remains to the place of interment, Apsley cemetery.

Germany Leads In Aviation.

JOHANNISTHAL, Feb. 12.—The performances of German aviators this year have so greatly surpassed expectations that the committee of the national aviation fund announced yesterday that the $200,000 assigned for the payment of premiums to aviators making long endurance flights had been practically exhausted and consequently no further premiums could be paid.

The committee declares that its aim has been attained as "France, which was far ahead of Germany in aviation when the fund was raised, has now been put into the background."

British Fleet Leaves Home Waters.

LONDON, Feb. 12. — Departure from home stations of the first and third battle squadrons and the first battle cruiser squadron yesterday completes a series of British fleet movements, spread over the past month, which have virtually denuded the shores of England of their defensive ring of fighting craft, and at the same time affords the clearest proof of the vastly improved international situation.

Broke Altitude Record.

JOHANNISTHAL, Germany, Feb. 12.—Robert Thelen, a German aviator, yesterday made what is said to be a world's altitude record for a flight in an aeroplane with four passengers. He attained a height of 9,350 feet.

Mrs. Thos. Cooley, 498 Aylmer street, was the recipient of a telegram notifying her of the death of her neice, Myrtle Baylis, daughter of Wm. Baylis, of Winnipeg, and formerly of this city. Her father is expected to arrive in Peterborough with the remains on Friday. The deceased was 12 years of age.

THE LATE MRS. MATHER.

Marion S. Blizard, wife of Mr. W. T. Mather of Otonabee, passed away at her home in Otonabee yesterday, after a lingering illness. The late Mrs. Mather was 59 years of age and was born in Otonabee, where she resided all her life. She was a faithful and active Methodist, and was very highly respected in Otonabee and the neighbouring township.

She is survived by her husband and seven children, William, Frederick, Lloyd, Herold, Charlie, Letitia and Marvin.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

EDWARD SHAUGHNESSY.

The death occurred in Otonabee this morning of Edward Shaughnessy, the son of Mr. James Shaughnessy, of that township. The deceased, who was nineteen years of age, was well and favourably known. The funeral will take place on Saturday morning to the Sacred Heart Church and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

COLDER WEATHER YET SAYS "PROBS" MAN

While the residents of the champion cold spot of Ontario (White River) were feeling the pinch of a reported temperature of 62 below zero, although the official figures gave it yesterday morning at 56, Peterboroughonians were basking under the comparative "heat" of 27 below.

Colder Yet, Says the Prophet.

Whatever the people have been experiencing during the past few days they have only been preparing for the worst, which is yet to come. The predictions and probabilities are that even colder weather conditions will prevail to-day.

Records have been going by the board in other parts of the Dominion. Every point east of the Rockies is now feeling the effects of a pronounced high pressure. A widespread cold wave dominates the weather of the continent. It continues fair and cold throughout the Dominion.

Quebec in Ice King's Grip.

A despatch from Montreal late last night declared that with one exception the registration of the thermometer at the observatory at McGill University was the lowest yesterday morning for thirty-seven years.

The official temperature recorded was 25.9 below zero, which is about a degree warmer than the coldest, on January 13 of this year. Reports from the southern counties and eastern townships of Quebec are to the effect that early yesterday morning the mercury went as low as 36 below, constituting a record.

They Ought To

People who get lonesome must realize what poor company they are.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Rev. Canon Davidson was in Toronto yesterday.

Mr. W. A. Anderson, of Hastings, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. J. Anderson, of Lakefield, was in Lindsay yesterday on business.

Dr. Carruthers, of this city, was in Lindsay yesterday on business.

Mrs. J. J. Dunlop, of Quebec, and Mrs. J. Logie, of Toronto, are the guests of Rev. T. J. Mansell.

Superintendent Koyle, of Belleville, passed through the city yesterday, on his special car. He left this city for Lindsay.

Count and Countess de Lesseps, and Miss Bertha McKenzie and Baron de Vaux, spent the week-end at the Kirkfield House.

Miss Lilian Calder has returned from Warsaw, where she has been spending the last two weeks with her cousin, Miss Ida Clementi.

Mr. J. J. Allen, of the Prudential Life Assurance Co., has returned from a hurried business trip to Toronto, Cobourg, and other places.

Miss Gertrude E. Hartley of 234 Antrim Street, has returned home from Toronto, where she has been visiting for the last four weeks.

THE WEATHER

The thermometer was down to 27 degrees below zero this morning at 7 o'clock—lower than yesterday morning by three degrees. The present cold wave is a severe one and extends over a wide stretch of country, and while it is certainly cold here there are lower figures being recorded at a few other places. It is likely that the weather will now gradually moderate.

His Tongue Frozen To Iron Post

Four Year Old Boy in a Painful Predicament

George Weir, a four-year-old boy living at 238 1-2 Simcoe Street, was found in a strange and painful predicament by City Clerk Armstrong this afternoon. As the City Clerk was passing the market arcade he noticed the little fellow was apparently in trouble, and on investigation found his tongue was frozen to one of the iron pillars. Evidently some older boys had persuaded him to try the experiment. At all events he was held fast. P. C. Hayward assisted Mr. Armstrong in releasing the boy, an operation that took about twenty minutes, so much care had to be exercised to avoid tearing the tender flesh of the tongue.

SKETCH OF A FORMER LOCAL LADY

The last week's issue of the Canadian Courier contains a sketch of Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, formerly of this city, and who now resides in Winnipeg. The article, along with which is published a photograph of Mrs. McWilliams, is as follows:

Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, the new President of the University Women's Club of Winnipeg, is what is known as a "live wire." She is not an old-timer in Winnipeg. In fact she is afflicted with a modest feeling that her identification with the city is neither complete enough, nor old enough to make here eligible for treatment as a citizen of the West. But in spirit she is so thoroughly of the West, Western, that Winnipeg feels she is its very own.

Margaret Stovel, as she was known in pre-marital days, was born in Toronto some thirty-odd years ago. Her father was a merchant of English birth; her mother a pure Canadian woman of great poise and common sense. She attended the public schools and later the Harbord Collegiate, where she came under one of the formative influences of that period of her life, in the personality and teaching of Miss Gertrude Lawler. Miss Lawler was one of the first graduates from Toronto University. She impressed her pupils, as can only such a born teacher and so strong a personality, breeding or stimulating within them that power to think for themselves, which is the true test of the value of a genuine educator. The young Margaret Stovel, under her tuition, developed an inherent love of good literature, and still harbours for Miss Lawler a lively sense of gratitude.

From the Harbord Collegiate the subject of our pen study passed into Toronto University, which she entered as the first woman student in the Political Science Course. Here, under the inspiring guidance of Professors Mavor and Wrong she acquired still furthed merit as a serious student and graduated as a trained worker, ready for a real task, with honours. Throughout her course she was connected with "Varsity," the college paper, and in the year of her graduation was one of the editors of the Year Book. As President of the Glee Club she learned to handle people and developed some of that executive ability always so strong a feature of her nature.

Teaching, as a profession, did not attract the graduate, so she turned her mind to a journalistic career. "Go West, young woman," seems to have appealed to her as very sensible advice, so she hied herself to Minneapolis, where she worked for a year as woman's editor on the "Journal," during the absence in Europe of the incumbent of that office. This was her first acquaintance with the West, and she found that it suited her. In 1900, however, hving secured a permanent position on the Detroit "Journal" she took up residence in that city, where she continued to do press work for three and a half years. Her marriage with Mr. R. F. McWilliams, a practicing lawyer in Peterborough, took place in 1903, and for the next seven years their happy life lines lay in that pretty, peaceful, little Ontario town.

But neither perpetual prettiness nor quiet peacefulness has ever appealed to either the subject of our sketch or to her equally actively disposed husband, and not even when Mr. McWilliams was Mayor of Peterborough did his wife find an entirely satisfying outlet for her immense store of public-spirited energy. The West seems to have called to the pair insistently; for in 1910 they left their comfortable, established home in Peterborough and fared forth to take up a new career in Winnipeg.

Since coming West Mrs. McWilliams has been an occasional contributor to the "Free Press" and other journals. She has been on the Board of the Free Dispensary for several years; she is a vice-president of the Free Kindergarten, and was one of the founders of the Social Science Club, an association of some thirty women who meet to study economic problems. Then as secretary of the Women's Canadian Club, a position which she has efficiently filled for the last two years, Mrs. McWilliams has done a perfectly immense amount of good work. The club of University women, which now numbers some eighty-four members, projected, under her s president, an ambitious programme for this season. The services of Professor Moulton, of Chicago, and of Helen Keller, were secured for two lectures; a series of organ recitals was arranged in various parts of the city, and a special social service committee is studying conditions affecting working women in Winnipeg.

From which it will be readily deduced that as a shining example, not of the superiority of the university women, necessarily, but of the fine practical uses such women may make, if they will, of the specialized training which they have received, Mrs. McWilliams is valuable in Winnipeg as she would be anywhere else. We of the West are glad that her husband and herself came to our town, and that they are likely to be Winnipeggers for good—theirs and our own.

The resignation of the retiring secretary, Mr. J. Kelly was received with many expressions of protestation and regret. All were sorry to hear that he felt that he could not continue in office and do justice to his own work and that of the association.

A Proud Day For New Jersey

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 13.—The President and Mrs. Wilson and the Misses Wilson held a special reception at the White House to-day in compliment to New Jersey, their home State. It was probably the first time in the history of the executive mansion that a reception had been given there, especially for the people of one State. There was no room to doubt that the Jerseyites appreciated the honour bestowed upon them. If it had been "Deep Sea Day" along the Jersey coast, they could not have turned out in greater number. The governor of the State, one or two former governors and half a dozen who aspire to be governor, together with the judiciary, the New Jersey delegation in Congress, the members of the Democratic State committee, the editors who work with pen and brain the year round to keep the Democratic party in fighting trim in New Jersey—all were there to shake the hand of the first citizen of New Jersey to be elected to the Presidency. Secretary Tumulty, himself a loyal New Jersey Democrat, acted as master of ceremonies. The Marine Band dispensed music and waiters dispensed light refreshments. Altogether it was a proud day for New Jersey.

Murdoch Arrested

Welland County Temperance Secretary Haled Into Court.

SCRUTINEER ALSO CHARGED

Mr. Murdoch Is Accused of Having Made a False Affidavit in Connection With the Arrest of Deputy Returning Officer Coulthurst —Local Preacher Is Charged With Slandering Woman.

WELLAND, Feb. 13. — Opponents of the Canada temperance act yesterday caused the arrest of Andrew E. Murdoch, secretary of the County Temperance and Moral Reform League, and the issuing of a writ in a slander action against a temperance scrutineer who was on duty at the polls on the day of voting.

The news of Mr. Murdoch's arrest spread rapidly, and when he came up for a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Burgar at noon yesterday the courtroom was crowded. The warrant on which he was arrested was sworn out by George R. Boyd, ex-town clerk.

He was charged with wilfully and falsely making an affidavit, knowing it to be false at the time, with the intention of misleading the judge in the application for a scrutiny in connection with the election. The alleged false statements were made in connection with the ballot for of Deputy Returning Officer Coulthurst of Ward Two, Bridgeburg, who is charged with forgery and the issuing of forged documents.

"Someone had to make such an affidavit to get the matter of the alleged corruption before the courts," said Mr. Gross, who is defending Mr. Murdoch, and who drew up the affidavit on which the charge is based. "If anyone is to blame I am the man; go ahead and put me in jail. The assertions may be wrong, probably are."

Complying with the request of the prosecution, the case was adjourned until four o'clock next Monday afternoon and the prisoner released under $2,000 bail, furnished by two sureties, O. P. Garner and F. M. McConnell.

The slander action is brought against William Christian, scrutineer at Bridgeburg, and a local preacher. Plaintiff is Mrs. Annie Pearl, wife of the proprietor of the Amigari Hotel. Christian is alleged to have used disparaging remarks concerning her from the pulpit.

REBELS DESTROY TRAIN.

Military Escort and Many Passengers From Tampico Killed.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13.—The rebels yesterday gain cut off the oil supply from Tampico over the railroad into San Luis Potosi, this time emphasizing their work by the total destruction of a passenger train, wiping out the military escort and killing and wounding many passengers.

At Las Cabosa, 25 miles south of Cardenas, dynamite mines were exploded beneath a passenger train from Tampico. A battle between the federal escort of fifty and the rebels ensued, in which all the federals were killed.

Most of the passengers, who were in the rear cars, fled to the brush and some of them succeeded in reaching nearby stations.

The train was destroyed by fire, after which the rebels tore up almost a mile of track. A military train has been despatched from Cardenas to the scene.

Montreal Has Another Break.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—Cracks along the entire length of the concrete intake pipe, upon which more than half the City of Montreal depends for its water supply, are producing a leakage at the rate of from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 gallons a day. While the freeze last there may be no great danger, but it is feared that with a prolonged thaw a recurrence of the Christmas Day breakage will come and the whole supply again shut down.

Sunday School Teacher Who Disappeared a Week Ago Says She Was Hypnotized

BROOKLYN, Feb. 12.—Miss Henrietta Schlatalein, a Sunday School teacher, seventeen years old, who had been missing from her home, No. 136 Stillman avenue, Brooklyn, for over a week, returned yesterday, and told a story which caused two young men to be arrested and locked up.

Miss Schlatzlein disappeared from the Young Women's Christian Association building a week ago last night, and a thorough search had been made for her ever since. On her return she told her parents she had been with friends, but this did not give satisfaction and the police were notified.

Acting Captain O'Connor, with two other police officers, questioned the girl, who finally admitted that on leaving the Association rooms, where she had been to attend a sewing class, she met two young men, who took her to a moving picture show in Flatbush avenue.

Afterwards the three went to a "clubhouse" near by, where they stayed until morning. The girl said she was then afraid to go home, and stayed at the "clubhouse" for two days. At the end of that time one of the young men took her to a furnished room house in Bedford avenue, where she took a room under the name of Alice Maywood.

She says the men had hypnotic influence over her and she stayed in the room without question. They supplied her with food and paid the rental of the room.

She learned of the search being made for her on Monday and yesterday decided to return home.

BIG OUTLAY EXPECTED.

British Navy Estimates Over $250,000,000 Says Chronicle.

LONDON, Feb. 13. — The Parliamentary correspondent of The Daily Chronicle, who is usually well informed on these matters, understands that the navy estimates for the next financial years will exceed $250,000,000 over and above the $15,000,000 of last year's supplementary estimates.

The Earl of Crewe, who has hitherto been somewhat of a dark horse on the question of the increase of armaments, spoke last night before the members of the Eighty Club and gave unqualified support to Mr. Winston Churchill's case. He entirely agreed with the view that the whole business of armaments was approaching a scandal, and no one should be surprised at the reaction felt in the Liberal ranks against this immense burden. "I can assure you," Lord Crewe continued, "that the Government are very conscious of the gravity of the position. We do not underrate the gravity of the occasion, nor are we surprised at the evidence of doubt which have been expressed in various quarters of the Liberal party.

"The First Lord of the Admiralty takes keen pride in the splendid service over which he presides. He also has regard for the efficiency of the service, but it is really altogether unjust to Churchill to say or to hint that he regards the increased naval expenditures with a light heart or anything approaching satisfaction. Altogether to the contrary, I can certainly assure you that when we present our defence estimates we shall do so with anything but a light heart. I hope we shall be able to show the House and the country that we are doing it with an unburdened conscience."

Second—That both sections of Irishmen should be invited to suggest to Government any amendments which could be incorporated in the bill by consent.

Third—That the Ulster volunteers be given opportunity to organize as a territorial force for the preservation of their liberties.

They promptly remove the constipation and, by soothing and strengthening the bowels, make it less liable to occur again. We have the utmost faith in them. We know what they are made of and the pleasant, beneficial results that always follow their use.

You needn't take our word for it. If Rexall Orderlies don't help you—if they don't entirely relieve all your bowel troubles—come back and tell us and we'll give back your money. In vest pocket tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50c.

Report Is Tabled

Long Awaited N.T.R. Finding Alleges Extravagance.

ROAD IS TOO WELL BUILT

Carefully Prepared Press Version of Gutelius-Stanton Investigation Declares That Insufficient Economy Has Been Shown In Construction of Government Road—No Charges Made.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—The long-awaited report of Messrs. F. P. Gutelius and George Lynch-Staunton, K.C., commissioners appointed on the 27th of January, 1912, to investigate the cost of construction of the National Transcontinental Railway prior to the advent of the Borden Government, was tabled in the Commons yesterday afternoon. Its press report carefully prepared with a view to political effect, the three hundred typewritten pages of the commissioners' report, exclusive of nearly twelve hundred pages of evidence, are compressed into small compass, giving, without details, the general findings of the commission.

Extravagance and lack of economy are the charges made by the commissioners. They say the road is better built than need be. There are no specific charges of graft against anybody, except in one or two small instances where politic. private gain is suggested.

The summary of the commissioners is as follows:—

"We find that the Transcontinental Railway Commission, the Grand Trunk Railway and those having charge of the construction of the railway did not consider it desirable or necessary to practice or encourage economy in the construction of the road.

"We find that, without including the money which was unnecessarily expended in building the railway east of the St. Lawrence river, forty million dollars at least was needlessly expended in the building of the road."

Dealing with the inspection of the work, the commissioners state that the Government made an agreement with the representatives of the proposed Grand Trunk Pacific Railway whereby the Government was to construct a single line of railway from Moncton, N.B., to Winnipeg, to be known as the eastern division of the National Transcontinental Railway. After its construction there it was to be leased to the G.T.P., which was to operate and maintain it for a period of fifty years.

The report goes on to say that Hon. Mr. Fielding advised the House that the cost of such a railway from Quebec to Winnipeg, 1,344 miles, would be $35,000 per mile, or $47,040,000, and from Moncton to Quebec, 460 miles, at $31,250 per mile, or $14,375,000, a total of $61,415,000.

Contracts were let for most of the road, and on Sept. 30, 1911, says the report, there had already been spent $109,000,000, and Gordon Grant, the chief engineer, estimated that the road would cost, exclusive of interest, $161,300,000.

If the road is completed at this cost by the end of 1914, the G.T.P. will commence to pay rent at the beginning of 1922 on this amount, with $18,700,000 added, making an annual rental of $5,400,000, or $14,800 a day. Assuming that the G.T.P. will commence to pay interest on the cost of construction in 1922, the commissioners declare that the road will have cost the country for principal and interest $234,651,521.

The report alleges that eleven firms secured all the work and sub-let it to upwards of 100 sub-contractors. These eleven firms, it is charged, were paid $8,500,000 in profits for that part of the work which they sub-let.

The report then proceeds to go into the over-classification charges. It says that $3,300,000 too much was paid under this heading. A new sub-classification called "cemented-rock" was introduced after the contracts were signed and $1,825,051 paid out to contractors under this heading. The report declares that there was no such class of work on the road. It also maintains that plowable clay in new Ontario, which should have been classified as common excavation, was graded as loose rock and $750,000 extra paid out to contractors. Overbreak cost $677,866, and the commissioners believe that if momentum charges had been adopted $6,200,000 would have been saved. They say that sharper curves would have saved $3,400,000; wooden trestles instead of steel, $2,047,227; and train idling after the road was opened, $3,250,000.

The report criticizes the cost of the Transcona shops at Winnipeg, which cost $4,500,000, as being twice too big, and declares that the 16 engine houses cost $500,000 too much. Station accommodation, it maintains, could have been secured for $200,000 less. Other items which the commissioners claim were extravagant are the piers at Cap Rouge Viaduct, the Chaudiere Cut and the grades at the Little Salmon river in New Brunswick.

At Lu Tuque a chance to save $1,000,000 was neglected, says the report.

In the opinion of the commissioners large sums of money in interest have been lost by the premature construction of the New Brunswick section. It cost $34,000,000 and the country is paying $1,200,000 of interest annually upon that sum. The road parallels the Intercolonial [illegible] is earning nothing, trees are growing upon the right-of-way, the ties are rotting, and the rails are rusting away. The commissioners are of the opinion that its building was not a commercial necessity, and that it was built for the purpose of placating the supporters of the Government east of Quebec.

M. P. and J. T. Davies of Ottawa are alleged to have secured three-quarters of a million dollars rake-off on two contracts. They agreed to finish No. 16 by Dec. 31, 1910, and No. 17 by March, 1911. Very high prices were agreed to be paid on account of the remoteness of the work, to the north of Lake Nepigon. In September, 1909, not a stroke of work had been done on either contract, and at that time the work had become easy of access. C. M. Hays, of the G. T. P., according to the report of the commissioners, drew Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attention to the fact that the time had nearly expired for doing this work, none of it had been done, and that a high price had been agreed upon because of its remoteness from civilization, therefore, because the work was easily getatable, the Government should cancel the contracts and advertise them again under the new conditions. The Prime Minister took no action and the commission refused to cancel the contracts. The commission actually agreed to an assignment of the contract to O'Brien, O'Gorman and McDougal, whereby Davis & Co. should receive ten per cent. of the gross cost of the work, this to be deducted by the commission. The commission did so and M. P. and J. T. Davis received $740,000.

Denies Protest Against Tolls.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—"On the contrary, the C.P.R. has never, directly or indirectly, protested to the British Government or any other Government against Panama canal tolls, and the company does not care a rap what conclusion is finally reached."

This statement was made by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy yesterday after seeing a Washington despatch, which credited Senator O'Gorman of New York with the declaration that the C.P.R. was inspiring the demand of the British Government for the repeal of the toll exemption provision in favor of American vessel owners.

Troubled With Weak Back and Kidneys For 10 Years.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Take notice to the warning and cure the backache on the first sign, for if you don't do this, serious complications are sure to arise and perhaps develop into Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills will strengthen the weak back, and prevent any form of kidney trouble entering the system.

Mrs. Ed. Boyer, Nokomis, Sask., writes:—"I have been troubled with weak back and kidneys. I had terrible dizzy headaches, and could not sleep at night. In this way I suffered for ten years, until I read about Doan's Kidney Pills. I purchased two boxes, and as they helped me, I sent for two more; they put me on my feet, and I have been able to work ever since."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

If a pan in which milk is cooked is rinsed out in cold water the milk will not be so apt to stick.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

CHAPTER XII.

JULIET ASSERTS HERSELF.

Now that the owner of the Bar T ranch had succeeded again in a match of wits with Larkin, he put sheep out of his mind and turned his attention to the more immediate danger of the rustlers. It had been a matter of a couple of years since last determined attempt of the cowmen to oust these poachers by force of arms, and Bissell thought that the time was ripe for another and, if possible, final expedition.

With Larkin in his power, he had no doubt the necessary information could be procured from him in one way or another, and, after talking matters over with Stelton, despatched cowboys at top speed to te ranches in his district, asking that the owners and as many men as they could spare should come at once to a conference at the Bar T.

Having got them there, it was his intention to sweat Larkin for names and descriptions, and then let him go. Should the sheepman refuse all information, then his case could be acted upon by the members of the association without any further delay.

All these plans Larkin learned from Juliet and her mother, who looked after most of his wants. The latter, good woman, quite flustered at having what she termed a "regular boarder," became rather fond of the patient young man from the East who never failed to listen attentively to her narrative of the famous trip to St. Paul.

The regular boarder, for his part, could not but sympathize with this homely, hard-working, lonely woman. One rarely connected Martha Bissell with old Beef Bissell except in an impersonal way, as one would have connected the corral, or the barn, or the brand. In fact, the cowman seemed hardly cognisant of her existence, long since having transferred all the affections his hard life had left him to the daughter he worshipped.

But Martha, as is so often the case with women who grow old slaving for their husbands, had not changed in her devotion to Bissell since the proud day they had eloped on one horse and been married by a "sky pilot" in the nearest cow town.

Mrs. Bissell had come to that dolorous time in a woman's life when she no longer has the power of attracting male atention—which power is not a matter of age, but merely of mind and spirit. And yet there were depths in her, Larkin found, unsuspected because unsought.

Loving her daughter as she loved her husband, she derived a certain negative happiness from the fact that their exclusive companionship brought them pleasure.

For herself she asked nothing, and, as is the way of the world, she got it.

For Bud Larkin, who had only known her as an angular, uninteresting addendum of the Bar T, she took on a certain pathetic interest, and he went out of his way to talk with her about the glories of Chicago, since her one dissipation seemed to be mental journeys back East.

Larkin was not strictly a prisoner at the Bar T ranch house, for this had been found impracticable from a number of standpoints. He had the run of the ranch, an old, decrepit cow pony to ride, and could go in any direction he chose under the supervision of a cowboy who carried a Winchester and was known to have impaled flies on cactus spines at thirty yards.

Occasionally Bud and Juliet rode out together, with this man in the rear, and renewed the old friendship that had lain dormant for so long. During one of these rides the girl, after debating the matter with herself, opened on a delicate subject.

"That Caldwell man is a strange-looking fellow, Bud. Who is he?"

Larkin looked at Juliet closely before replying, but could find nothing in her face to indicate any but a natural curiosity.

"He is a Chicago character I used to know," he returned shortly. "But what brought him out here is a puzzle to me."

"You semed to want to see him pretty badly," said she, assuming a pout. "I was really jealous of him taking you off the way he did that night you came."

"That's the first time I have been flattered with your jealousy," Bud returned gaily. "I'll ask him to come again."

And that was the closest she could come to a discussion of Caldwell's connection with Larkin. The fact, although she would not admit it, gave her more concern that it should have, and kept her constantly under a cloud of uneasiness. Bud's evasion of the subject added strength to the fear that there was really something horrible in Bud's past.

It was on one of his rides alone that Bud suddenly came to a very unflattering solution of another problem in regard to Caldwell. Ever since the stampede he had been giving time to the consideration of Smithy's strange actions that night. There was no love lost between the two, that was certain, and why the blackmailer should risk his life to defeat the rustlers and save the man he hated was beyond Bud's comprehension.

But at last he arived at a solution that removed all his doubts, and this was that Smithy Caldwell had saved him for the same reason that the old lady in the fairy story was told to preserve the goose.

"Kill the goose and there will be no more golden eggs," remarked the fairy sagely, and evidently Caldwell was ready to heed her advice.

It certainly was worth the effort on Smithy's part, and even when Larkin had finally discovered the man's sordid motives he felt a species of admiration for the man's coolness and bravery. He felt, too, that if he could not get a grip on the blackmailer before another payment was demanded, he could part with the money for the first time with the feeling that Caldwell had partially earned it.

As to Caldwell's presence among the rustlers, that was another matter entirely, and Larkin could not fathom the mystery. How Smithy, a low Chicago tough, whose only knowledge of a horse had ben gained by observation, could so quickly become a trusted member of this desperate gang of cattle-thieves he could not conceive. Was there some occult power about the man—some almost hypnotic influence that passed his crossed eyes and narrow features in that company?

Larkin gave it up. But he knew that, should he ever again get his full liberty, his sheep safely across the range, and the leisure to pursue rustlers, Mr. Smithy Caldwell of Chicago would be his especial prey. And he grinned with anticipation at the glory of that moment when he should have the blackmailer in his power, with enough evidence to swing him.

Stelton was the one man of the whole Bar T outfit who had suffered from the boomerang of his evil plans. It had been through him that Larkin was forced to accompany Bissell home after the stampede; and now he passed days and nights of misery, watching the progress of Bud's very evident suit. Chained down by his daily round of duties, his time was not his own, and with a green venom eating at his heart he watched the unfettered Bud ride off across the plains with Juliet, laughing, carefree, and apparently happy.

So greatly did this irk Mr. Stelton that his morose melancholy increased to a point where his own cowpunchers entertained fears for his sanity, and made him acquainted with the fact in their well-known tender manner. This did not serve to buoy his spirits, and he cursed himself roundly for the ridiculous position into which he had led himself.

As to Juliet, he hardly dared pass a civil time of day with her, so terrible a trial had his thwarted desires in regard to her become.

The fourth day after Bud's arrest old Beef Bissell called for his horse and rode away to the Circle Arrow Ranch. Old man Speaker had not seen fit to rally to the cowmen's gathering, and Bissell valued his counsel very much; he had, therefore, gone to fetch him.

During the three days of his absence Mike Stelton suffered another of those reverses which are so exasperating because they are brought about by our own ugly spirits.

All the time he had continued to eat at the ranch table, and had been accorded his share of the conversation and attention. Now, with old Bissell out of the way, his status immediately changed. Mrs. Bissell, Juliet, and Bud were the best of friends, and presented a solid front of uniform but uninterested politeness to the foreman against which he was helpless. On the second day, for the first time in ten years, he moved his seat down into the punchers' dining-room and ate with them.

Such a defeat as this could not pass unnoticed among the punchers, who had never been accorded the pleasure of their gloomy foreman's presence at meal times, and Stelton suffered keenly from the gibes of the men.

Stelton endured all this with seeming calmness, but when Bissell returned the foreman got his revenge. He outlined with full detail and considerable embellishment the constant progress that Larkin was making with Juliet. Disclaiming any interest of his own in the matter, he explained that the reason for his complaint was the character of Larkin.

"Why, boss, 'fuh shore wouldn't want a darned sheepman breakin' Julie's heart," he said, "an' him a Eastern dude at that. You should 'a' seen that feller. Yuh no more'n got yore back turned that he carried on with Juliet all the time. It made me plenty mad, too; but what could I do about it? I just moved my grubpile down with the boys an' thought I'd tell yuh when yuh came home."

Simple Home Treatment For Superfluous Hairs

(Beauty Culture)

A very effective and simple home treatment for superfluous hairs is as follows: Mix into a paste enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairy surface, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has disappeared. This method is devoid of pain or danger and leaves the skin free from spot or blemish. Best results naturally follow when the delatone is purchased in an original package because its strength and purity are then assured.

A TROUBLESOME SHIRT

Italian Railwaymen Turned Tables on Irate Legislator

Signor Maury, an Italian Deputy, brought upon his head a hurricane of ridicule through making public his intense vexation at the loss of a new shirt which immediately after its purchase vanished from a sleeping car in which he was travelling.

He wrote an indignant letter to the directors of the line, in which he said, "It is shameful that the railway servants, for whom so much has been done by members of Parliament, should dare to appropriate the belongings of passengers."

A few days after this protest he received a letter signed by 200 railway employes and enclosing a postal order for $1.54, which, the letter said, was the result of a small collection at Ancona, and would enable him to buy another shirt. The letter added that it was a gift, and not a restitution, inasmuch as when the shirt vanished M. Maury's electoral agents were frequenting the trains.

MEANING OF "POT LUCK"

The Commonplace Phrase Originated in Limoges

The real origin of the word "pot luck" is unknown to most of the people who use it. In Limoges, France, however, one runs into potluck itself. In a certain corner of that quaint city of jostling roofs there is still segregated, much as if in a ghetto, a Saracen population, probably a remnant of the wave of Saracens that swept over Europe hundreds of years ago. Here they live in their crooked, narrow streets, following old customs handed down from generation to generation. There are many butcher shops in the quarter and outside of each steams a great pot of soup over a glowing brazier. In each pot stands a ladle as ancient as the pot.

When a customer comes with a penny, in goes the ladle and coming up full of savory broth and chunks of meats, odds and ends that the butcher had left over. And what comes up the customer has to take. One can imagine how anxiously the hungry urchin or the mother of seven must eye the inexorable ladle, and how a pretty girl might get another draw from the butcher's boy.

At any rate, "to take potluck" means to take what you get and say nothing, whether the pot is in Limoges or in the house of the man who eagerly invites a friend of his youth a dinner.

Rounding up Sabbath Breakers

The sixteenth century practice of the elders in Scotland of going the rounds to pick up offenders against Sunday rules survived until the eighteenth century. Mr. Thomson, in his "Weavers' Craft," gives details of the "bag": "The minister himself would make the rounds to spy with his own eyes the sins of the absentees. Here one man is found romping with his bairns; another detected kissing his wife; two men were found drinking ale, and one was found with his coat off, as if he were going to work, and still another was seen eating a hearty dinner. All were pulled up before the session of the kirk and 'repentances' enforced upon each." And now one can understand the wherefore of the drawn blind on the Sabbath which struck James Payn as astonishing in the Edinburgh of the sixties!—London Chronicle.

GERMANY'S TRAINER

Rumored Big Salary Paid to Secure Olympic Supremacy

It is reported that A. G. Kraenzlein has signed a five-year contract to prepare Germany's representatives for coming Olympic meets and it is said he will receive $50,000 for his services.

The $50,000 part of the contract however, is to be doubted, according to Lawson Robertson, trainer of the Irish-American A. C. track and field team. Lawson was offered the German job, with a three-years' contract at about $2,500 a year.

Lawson calls attention to the fact that all the European countries who are engaging trainers pick native sons. While Kraenzlein isn't a German by birth, he is a product of Milwaukee, a little Germany in itself.

Kraenzlein has been a wonderful athlete. He first shone as a hurdler, afterward took to broad jumping, and then to all-round athletics. Some of his records still stand. He was a big, heavy-set chap with a wonderful pair of legs. He never could lay claim to being the most graceful athlete in competition, but he was a wonder at getting over the ground. He is now a successful dentist.

BOTH HAD MACHINES.

Here is one that was told the other day when reference was made to the proneness of some of the sweet sex to boast regardless of facts.

Some time since Mrs. Brown met Mrs. Green at an afternoon angel cake seance, and just as soon as they got the wire to themselves the talk turned to their earthly possessions.

"Speaking of motoring," enthusiastically exclaimed Mrs. Brown, "I simply adore it. I couldn't do without our daring little machine. It is a six-cylinder Hill Hiker, you know, with improved clutches, a self-starter, and things like that. I should think you would get one."

"We have got one," answered Mrs. Gren with a happy little smile. "We have had it for some time."

"You don't really mean it!" returned Mrs. Brown, just a trifle jealously. "What make is it?"

"It is a light-running lockstitch," answered Mrs. Green, "with a hemmer, jucker, and a buttonhole attachment."

ODD ADVERTISING

Newspapers Used in Novel Manner to Make Wants Known

About the last place in which one would look for advertising is the churchyard, but it has been demonstrated that even there all is fish that comes to the net of the far-reaching advertiser. It is recorded of a certain shopkeeper possessing a grim sense of humor that he had his grave dug some years before his death. On the marble he caused to be inscribed "Here lies John Emery, the Best Hatter in Ohio."

A Canadian firm went this one better. The senior partner having passed to his reward, his business associates erected a monument to his memory. The tombstone bore these words: "Here lies Abram Stokes, founder of the firm of Stokes, Stokes & Co., who for many years have manufactured pickles and bottled fruits. Best of all and without a rival."

For her late husband a grief-stricken widow across the ocean put up a stone with this touching inscription upon it: "Here lies ———, dear departed husband of ———, who now carries on his business of general outfitter, and always gives good value, terms cash."

Bill Nye, the lamented provoker of smiles, once had a cow to sell, or professed to have, and he advertised the animal in this manner:

"Owing to my ill health, I will sell at my residence in township nineteen, range eighteen, according to the government survey, one plush raspberry cow, aged eight years. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present home with a stay chain, but she will be sold to anyone who will treat her right. She is one-fourth Shorthorn and three-fourths hyena. I will also throw in a double-barreled shotgun, which goes with her. In May she usually goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall, red calf with wobbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell to a non-resident."

Another Englishman in his home paper boldly declared his want of a wife "who must be quite dumb and deaf, at least fifty years of age, and who hates music, children, pet dogs and all strong drinks."

Here is an advertisement taken verbatim from one of the large New York dailies:

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS
CURED A BAD ATTACK OF ECZEMA.

All skin diseases such as Eczema, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Rash, Boils, Pimples, and Itching Skin Eruptions, are always caused from the blood being in a bad condition, and it is impossible to eradicate them from the system unless you put your blood into good shape. This you can very easily do without the slightest trouble by using Burdock Blood Bitters.

It drives out all the humor from the blood, and makes it pure and rich, and not only are the unsightly diseases removed, and a bright clean complexion produced, but the entire system is renovated and invigorated at the same time.

Mrs. G. A. Day, Somerville, N.B., writes:—"Last spring I had a bad attack of Eczema. I tried several patent medicines as well as the medicine of a physician, but they seemed to make the disease worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and I did so with the result that in two weeks time the sores began to disappear. I continued to take it until I had taken three bottles and they worked a complete cure."

INTERESTING MEMORIES

A Link With the Past Destroyed at Prince Albert

A fire at Prince Albert, Sask., which recalls many interesting memories, started in the wreck of the old steamer "Marquis" and consumed most of it before being extinguished. Surely no vessel ever rendered greater or more varied service. In 1882 she entered the fleet of the North West Navigation Co., along with the "Manitoba" and "Northwest." The line at that time consisted of the "Northcote" and the "Lily." After making regular trips from Grand Rapids to Edmonton until 1884, the "Marquis" sailed up the South Saskatchewan river with troops for the rebellion, and at Batoche succeeded in running the blockade. When the railway lines came and the surrounding country caught the spirit of rapid development all the boats were considered too slow, even for freight, and so one by one they disappeared. The "Marquis" was pulled up at Prince Albert on the south bank of the river at a point near the Hudson Bay Co.'s reserve. After her heavier timbers had been removed a homesteader took enough material for a shack, and a ferryman supplied himself with a new ferry. All that remains is about fifty feet of battered hull.

It helps with scores of dishes

Inside a packet of Edwards' Soup cook has the secret of scores of successful dishes. It is Edwards' Soup which imparts that distinctive flavour to her stews, Edwards' Soup that puts such savouriness into her gravies, Edwards' Soup that gives such nourishment, such colour and such substance to her own soups, Edwards' Soup that forms the basis for her hashes, Edwards' Soup that sends down the bills and sends up cook's reputation. Cook always gives Edwards' Soup half-an-hour or more on the stove—she says it's worth the time twice over.

EDWARDS' DESICCATED SOUPS

But you MUST boil them for half-an-hour — worth it.

Edwards' Soup is good as a soup by itself, it is good as a strengthener of other soups; good as a thickener of gravies; good for hashes, good for stews—too good to be spoiled by insufficient boiling.

MAILS BY AIRSHIP ACROSS THE SAHARA

An aerial mail service across 1,000 miles of Sahara desert sand is a project of the French government. It comes as the culminating enterprise of a long series of aerial successes. The new desert mail service by air will not be as simple, however, as are these short-distance trips which have long been a regular thing along the Algerian border. The trip will be made in two days, with several stops en route at stations which are now being established and stored with food and supplies. The route is being marked out with great stakes set up on the desert floor at distances of ten miles apart.

The service will solve a century-old problem and obviate the terrors of the old desert trip by caravan, which took sometimes four months, and was subject to all the perils of heat, thirst and starvation, and sandstorms.

Child Almost Strangled

You never know what minute a child will develop a bad cold or be seized by croup. For this reason it takes a great burden off every mother's mind to have at hand Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Mrs. E. W. Silver, South Milford, Annapolis County, N.S., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for my little boy with most satisfactory results. His throat would fill up with phlegm so bad that he could scarcely make a sound, and I thought he would surely strangle. He grew worse, and had frequent bad attacks, so I began using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Scarcely half a bottle was used when the strangling ceased. This medicine had a wonderfully soothing effect, and when he had taken two bottles I could not tell that he had any throat trouble. We have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with equally good results. It is a grand medicine for salt rheum."

There are imitations, but the genuine Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author.

"SINS OF THE PARENTS"

Father Wanted Discount For Fine Paid In Cash

Morris Freedman, of Southwark Park road, London, summoned at Tower Bridge for employing his son, aged 12, after 9 p.m. in contravention of the London County Council by-laws, pleaded that he had told the boy not to work, but he persisted in doing so.

The magistrate: "An early instinct for business. Are you a Jew?"

The defendant: "Yes."

Mr. Cecil Chapman: "Then you know that parents often suffer for the faults of their children?"

The defendant: "I thought it was 'The sins of the parents shall be visited upon the children?'"

Mr. Cecil Chapman: "But parents do suffer. You must prevent this boy from selling."

Previous convictions for similar breaches of the by-laws were proved, and the defendant was fined $5 with $2.50 costs.

The defendant: "That's a little changer!, Any discount for cash, sir?"

Germans Given Contracts

The Port of London Authority announced that contracts for three pairs of lock gates, a bascule bridge, a swing bridge, and a caisson for the dry dock, in connection with the Royal Albert Dock Extension, were placed with two German firms. In awarding the contracts to German firms instead of British firms who tendered, a saving of 20 per cent., or nearly $350,000 was affected.

Cost of Staging

On an average, it is stated, $20,000 is spent from first to last on a London West end stage production before the enterprise returns a dividend.

[FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.]

THE Court of Misfit Marriages some call it; others style it the Court of Sorrowful Hearts, but officially it is listed as the Court of Domestic Relations, and there each day between the hours of ten and four Cupid and Hymen limp in, both tearfully pleading that their injuries and grievances be speedily healed and adjusted.

The big, rambling building in East Fifty-seventh street which houses this most interesting of all the city's courts is not a cheerful place by any means, and this in a measure may account for the long and doleful countenances of those who find their way there in search of solace and a friendly hand to pilot them safely by the rocks that rise sheer out of the turbulent sea of matrimony. Tragedies are so common here that one would suppose those in attendance become callous and hardened and set about their daily tasks in a mechanical and perfunctory manner, all seeking to speedily rid themselves of the burdens thus heaped upon them. Yet a visit to the court, whether it be in session or not, will soon set at rest any such erroneous idea, for here is to be found a little band of men and women whose life's work is to pour oil on troubled waters and by kind counsel and softly spoken words reduce those compound fractures of the home which so often lead heedlessly and irrevocably to the divorce courts.

Chief Magistrate William G. McAdoo is immensely proud of the Court of Domestic Relations and its functions. He is earnestly hoping that within another year it will be housed in a home of its own, preferably in Irving place, where he has been shown a building admirably suited to its purposes. He wants it far removed from police and civil courts, for, as he says, the aching hearts of the poor unfortunates compelled to seek counsel or redress there should not be bared before gaping and idle crowds of the curious who invariably haunt these places. He wants the men and women who appeal to the city's pacificators—for pacificators they are in the truest and noblest sense of the word—to be protected from the horde of hungry "shyster" lawyers and their runners, who make capital out of the misfortunes of their fellows, despite the aliimess of their purses.

"Give us a home of our own," said the Chief Magistrate, "and permit us to make those innovations we have in mind, such as a play room for the children poor mothers invariably bring with them, and other improvements glaringly needed, and the work of this court will be materially aided."

It was with the Chief Magistrate's sanction that your correspondent visited the court, free to talk with any and all of the attendants and gain from them their intimate views on the work before them. The cause and effect, as it were, for the endless stream of mismated ones who find their way there and the remedies most often applied.

Magistrates Charles N. Harris and Robert C. Cornell alternate in this court, although on the day the reporter was there Magistrate Barlow was presiding. Mr. Henry P. Lewis is the chief clerk, and he perhaps has had more tales of marital woes poured into his ears than any other man in the city. In Miss Rose McQuade, the court probationary officer, however, he has a strong rival, for her duties are to exert every effort to heal the breaches, reunite the jarring ones and send them on their way rejoicing before matters reach that acute stage where their actual appearance in the court room is necessary. Just how well she succeeds is proved by her records, although she modestly asserts that it is an even break—that fifty per cent of those sent into her little sanctum by Mr. Lewis or the presiding magistrates are reunited after she has had a heart to heart talk with them. It is nearer seventy-five per cent.

Then, too, there is Miss Helen McGrath, whose duty it is to interrogate every man and woman who enters the building. Her desk is behind a railing in the anteroom, and very frequently she is able to convince those who apply that their grievances, after all, are but imaginary and exact the promise that they will return home and make one more effort to live in peace and harmony. Whenever she succeeds in this manner she has saved the time of the other court officers, for that means just one less case to come before this tribunal of tribulation.

But still other women play important rôles in the daily routine of this court. Just around the corner in Fifty-ninth street, and housed in the Charities Department building, is the Bureau of Domestic Relations, presided over by Mrs. Ida Upshaw and her corps of assistants. Whenever a woman without means has been deserted by her husband and there is none to provide for her and her babies she is directed to the Charities Department, which in turn sends her to Mrs. Upshaw. Her story is heard from beginning to end, and if the case is a worthy one Mrs. Upshaw sends her on to the Court of Domestic Relations with a recommendation that the court take steps to ferret out the erring father and bring him before the bar of justice and compel him to provide for his family. Hundreds of cases come to Mrs Upshaw each week and many of these are passed on to the court. She, too, believes in healing these breaches, and she and her several probationary officers do all possible to bring about these happier results.

But to return to the court proper. Mr. Lewis was found seated at a desk piled high with formidable looking legal documents, each a summons for some errina and recalcitrant husband, citing him to appear in court and there explain why his earnings are being squandered in the corner saloon while his wife and babies go supperless to bed. After a brief chat with Mr. Lewis one is strongly impressed by these dominant traits of character. An inherent love of fair play, a keen and ready wit, marked talents for diplomacy and, above all, a kindly and sympathetic nature which renders him easily approachable by the veriest stranger.

"One could never become callous in this court," Mr. Lewis said. "The little tragedies of every day life that crop up here in such abundance and variety have just the opposite effect upon those of us who must lend an ear to the tearful women and crushed and heartbroken men who see us. It never becomes monotonous, for we inadvertently find ourselves touched to the heart by the poor unfortunates who shrinkingly come before us for redress. Naturally, the stories in the main are identical, yet each possesses some new and distressing angle, and before we know it we find ourselves actually believing that at last a case radically different from the last has come to our attention. But sifted down to the cold, hard facts, it's the same old and timeworn story—incompatibility.

"Temperamental tangoes we could aptly call some of them—temperaments strangely ajangle and each dancing to discordant notes, which ultimately drive harmony squalling from the home, leaving in its wake a weeping mother and a father hard and stolid, neither willing to bend or admit the fault.

"Sifting down the evidence of man and wife, we come to the conclusion that the majority of cases before us are due to a woful lack of common sense. If common sense could be 'canned' as we 'can our music and other commodities of life, perhaps there would be a sufficient quantity to permit of its being parcelled out among those foolish young things who plunge headlong into matrimony before they realize the seriousness of the leap. Despite our efforts, it is seemingly impossible to convince these unfortunates that diplomacy is the best sauce for the matrimonial pudding. Each goes his own way and then their steps lead them to the courts. We tell them here that they must play the game fair. An [illegible] split—a fifty-fifty basis—is my advice. Give what you demand and when each agrees and lives up to this rule there can be no jars."

Miss McQuade had just [illegible] her sanctum when the reporter [illegible] seated at her side was a young wife sobbing violently. At the far end of the desk a man sat crumpled in his chair, his unwavering eyes fastened hungrily on the sob convulsed form of his wife. As these sobs subsided the wife drew from her tattered muff a letter. This she thrust toward Miss McQuade, dramatically, saying:—"This proves my guilt! This letter [illegible] woman. [illegible] in the letter box and refused to open it before me. I know he has been carrying on with one of his old sweethearts and I want to get a divorce. I want you to open the letter and read it."

Miss McQuade, a motherly looking and intensely human woman, took the hand of the girl-wife [illegible] her palms and gently stroked it. Mere words could never still that storm of weeping and this she knew. Instead she drew the pretty head of her client to her shoulder, soothing her as a mother would a grief stricken child. As the weeping became less violent and the young wife was able to compose herself Miss McQuade replied:—"I am sure, dear, you don't mean what you say. You wouldn't dare open your husband's letter, and I suppose you wouldn't either." No doubt if you give him the opportunity he can satisfactorily explain it.

Twice the young husband attempted to interrupt, and each time the wife flared up:—"Don't you dare say a word. I won't listen to any excuse you are about to tell. If you are a man you will open that letter and read it aloud."

"Of course I will," said the young mechanic, seemingly breaking heart and at last finding his tongue. He seized the letter and, ripping the envelope, scanned closely the written lines, and, turning to an inside page, he found the signature. At last a smile rippled over his troubled face and turning to Miss McQuade he gaily said:—

"It is from my aunt. I didn't recognize the writing, and that's why I couldn't explain it when my wife first showed it to me."

Needless to say, that case did not get before Judge Barlow, but before that young woman left the court she had humbly apologized to her husband, and furthermore she received a plain and wholesome talk from Miss McQuade on the folly of basing accusations on such ridiculous and purely circumstantial evidence as this. Sheepishly the young things left the court room to hurry home to the baby they had left with a neighbor.

"That's a fair sample of what goes on here all day, six days in a week," Miss McQuade said. "You little know what really trivial things lead such foolish young couples to this court. Sometimes they have even less provocation for their suspicions than this young woman had. It is an endless procession of marital misfits, and somehow the like never grows stale. [illegible] to the court, and there are [illegible] feel [illegible] they can help it.

"To what do you attribute the majority of cases that come here?" I asked.

"The corner saloon. There can be no doubt of that," was the ready response. "You see, we have those cases where there are no funds to hire lawyers. The city supplies this court for those unfortunates who require every penny they earn to live on. Lawyers have no place here. We of the court are the lawyers for both sides. Whenever Mr. Lewis sees the faintest hope of settling a case out of court he turns the warring couple over to me and I go to work on them. I make each tell me his or her side of it. I have them here in my room together. Sometimes I find it expedient to take them separately. I reason with the one at fault—a fact it doesn't take me long to ascertain—and then if that fails I resort to sterner methods.

"For instance, a man is haled before us for non-support. He makes perhaps $10 a week and has deserted his wife and children. We can't strip him of every penny he makes. If he is a working man it costs him at least $5 a week to live. He must have a dollar or two in his pocket for his car fare, shaves, tobacco and the like. If we make him agree to give his wife $3 a week it is leaving him on slim rations. She, poor thing, must get out and earn the balance. If she is adapted to any sort of work—and nearly all the wives that come here have earned their own living before marriage—she must go forth and seek employment in that field. Perhaps she can make $7 or $8 a week. That raises her income to $11 a week, and forthwith the husband cries out that he is reduced to $7 a week while his wife has $10 or $11. Then we get busy and seek to bring them together again. We point out to each the error of their ways and more often than not a reconciliation is effected.

"For the man who refuses to work—and they are legion—we have a formidable weapon. He is no use at home. He sits around and chins his wife until she gives up her hard earned wages, and this he spends at the corner saloon. He is far better out of the way, and when he is haled before the court he tarries there only long enough to hear his doom sealed—six months in the workhouse. That [illegible] strikes terror to the hearts of [illegible] feel [illegible] they can help it.

"A peculiar case came up here to-day. A woman had a man summoned here on the charge of non-support. He was drinking, she said, and contributed very little to the support of herself and their three children. I asked her how long they had been married.

"'Why, we aren't married at all,' the woman replied. 'Joe has the license. He took it out the day we started to live together, but he said he didn't have the price of the marriage fee.'

"'What have you to say to this?' I asked the culprit."

"'That's right, I guess. I ain't never had the price.'"

"'Well, we'll soon fix that,' I told them, and straightway I married them and their three little children around to Monsignor Lavelle. He heard them through and then, calling a priest, instructed that the couple be married at once. This done, the children were baptized and, taking them all back to court, the husband was made to furnish a bond for the support of his family. Apparently the enormity of the thing had never dawned upon either of them. That little family partook of the little wedding feast I provided.

"Many strange cases come here. The nagging wife is no more a stranger in this court than the suspicious, vicious and evil minded husband. Both are frequent visitors, and we give them many heart to heart talks before we get things straightened out in their homes. We have the wife who lapses into violent fits of weeping should her husband, on his night out, oversteay his time. He is met either with storms of protest and foolish accusations or by a disheveled woman who accuses him of every infidelity in the calendar.

"My advice to wives of this character is this: When hubby fails to punch the domestic time clock at the scheduled moment put on a brave front, meet him with a smiling face, and always refrain from hurling at him accusations at him before he has had time to explain.

"The gossiping wife is another frequent visitor. She can't remain at home long enough to mend her husband's clothes, tidy up herself, the baby and the house, and have things sweet and clean and [illegible] for [illegible] after his [illegible] rest. She has been gadding about in the hot [illegible] neighborhood, sitting first in one and then another kitchen, discussing her neighbors with any and all who listen to her. Such little kitchen gatherings are more frequently made pleasanter and livelier by the addition of a bucket or two of beer. These lead to more visits, and at each one the can is sent the more frequently to the saloon. Husbands arrive home to be met by beery wives, and then trouble brews.

"The marital woes that come bounding into this court on their billows of booze are beyond belief. First it is one, then the other. All beg and plead for 'just one more chance,' and each gets it. But somehow the word of the drinking man and woman doesn't count for much. Their promises are as empty as the beer can the day before pay day. Keep them away from drink and they appear happy. But as soon as the can starts on its trips to the corner saloon breakers loom ahead, and more often than not the ship of matrimony is wrecked then and there.

"A young woman came bounding in here the other day. She wanted a divorce on the spot. Sifted down to the kernel, I learned that her husband had spoken crossly to her that morning because she remained in bed and let him get his own breakfast. She had been awake most of the night, poor thing, with the baby, but seemingly she had neglected to tell her husband this.

"'Go home and take a nice hot bath, comb your hair, and after straightening up your home come back and we will give you your divorce.' Of course, she never returned. She had something to occupy her mind, and by the time she had done as she was bidden her wrath had cooled, and when her husband came home that night it was a far different woman who greeted him. One of our probationary officers is watching them, and so far they are getting along swimmingly."

Miss McGrath has her hands full. When not hearing the woes of the long line of waiting and warring men and women in the anteroom she is out looking after her probationers. But she is a tireless worker and keeps her words up to their promises. A word once given to her must be kept. If not she has the offender back in court in a jiffy, and when they come here on such charges there is no one to intercede for them. That means a trip over to the island.

"But in conclusion," she said, "let me add that those of us who struggle so hard on this matrimonial battlefield are more firmly convinced each day that the man or woman who drinks, no matter how moderately at first, sooner or later will come to grief. This applies to all classes, whether they be diplomatists or truck drivers. A woman's job is that of being a wife, a mother and a preserver of the little home the husband builds. If she drinks she can be none of these things. A married man's obligations are so solemn that the moment he tampers with liquor he is paving the way for a speedy trip to the rock pile on the island. Sooner or later it will get him, for out of the hundreds of cases that come here I can trace seventy per cent directly to the saloon and its back room habitués.

"I have a record of every case that has come before me in the many years I have been here. Some time, when you are in the humor, and really want to know just how much suffering and mental anguish there is in one little corner of this great, wide world, I'll turn over a few pages of this book of records and let you read with your own eyes the real tragedies it contains."

"And," I asked in conclusion, "do the constant perusal of this book and the daily entries you jot on its pages account for the 'prefix' Miss—you so persistently cling to?"

"Perhaps," came the halting and smiling reply as this big hearted and motherly matchmaker arose to receive a shrinking [illegible] who [illegible] tricken young mother who [illegible] back in court in a jiffy, and when they [illegible] to intercede for them. That means a trip over to the island.

SORTING BOTTLES BY TOUCH

London Has a Queer Trade of Returning "Empties"

One of London's queer trades is that of empty bottle sorting at the London Bottle Exchange, off Blackfriars Road. These bottles have been salvaged from dustbins, cellars, the holds of ships, and wherever bottles go astray.

Every year at least two million bottles, after many wanderings, find their way to the Bottle Exchange. They are sorted and returned to their rightful owners, who pay an annual subscription as well as a few shillings a gross for returned bottles.

Reared on the bottle, as it were, a sorter at the exchange must be a man of keen eye and delicate touch. All that he has to guide him in thousands of cases is the embossed name on the glass, and swiftly, unerringly and with almost uncanny deftness he picks out a bottle which has wandered from Glasgow and puts it in the case bound for the north.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

WHEN THEY MET

Good evening, Miss Mickleton, said the young man to the girl who had just been seated next him at the buffet supper.

Good evening, Mr. Boppe, rejoined the girl, apparently in immense surprise at seeing him.

Naturally, went on the young man, I regret making you uncomfortable, if only for a short time, but I could not very well object when the hostess asked me to sit here She of course, did not know—".

"Oh, don't apologize," murmured the young woman "It is a matter of perfect indifference to me whether you are here or 10 miles distant. I trust you realize that so far as I am concerned you might just as well be somebody else as yourself. I am not in the least annoyed by your presence"

"I am very glad of that!" said the young man. "I dislike inconveniencing any one. It is rather a shock to be told that I don't matter twopence, but I suppose the shock is merely proof of my egotism You need not talk to me if you don't want to —I'll understand."

"And have everybody in the room noticing?" demanded the young woman, indignantly. "They would say we have been quarrelling."

"Well, haven't we?" inquired the young man. "Why shouldn't they notice it? I don't care!"

"That's because you are so abominably selfish!" flashed the young woman. "Just like a man! Do you suppose I want everybody gossiping about us and talking us over and wondering which of us broke the engagement?"

"I'd be interested in knowing how you are goinsn to help it," remarked the young man. "I presume that some time in our lives we'll each marry someone else, and then it will be impossible to keep the public from knowing that you and I are no longer engaged."

"You are hateful!" said the young woman "And I must say that if you have already fallen in love with some other girl I have my opinion of you! I wouldn't have believed it even of you!"

"It takes years to probe the depth of a man's iniquity," the young man told her.

"Who is she?" asked the young woman, putting salad dressing on her ice cream.

"I didn't mention anyone," the young man said, carelessly. "I'm going to address a few words to the girl on the other side of me. She seems neglected"

"You are going to answer my question," the young woman told him, firmly. "You're here and you've got to take the consequences. You let a remark slip out by accident, and I have a right to know what you meant. At least—that is—well, I had a right so recently that it extends to now! You needn't think I have not seen the way that hateful Olivia has been working to get you away from me, and you know you always admired her eyes. You said that next to mine hers were—"

"Really, what does it matter?" asked the young man. "I am nothing to you, for you said so yourself when I first sat down here, and I feel that I am robbing the man on the other side of you of his right to your attentions. Besides, I know it is painful to you to talk to a person you dislike as much as you do me"

"I hope I know how to be polite," said the young woman, "even to an enemy".

"I'm not your enemy," objected the young man.

"Well, from the way you acted the other day," said the young woman, "I had a right to think you just hated me!"

"Not a all," said he young man. "You were doing all the hating"

"Why, George Boppe," she cried. "Laying it on me like that! You made me think—"

"Well, you certainly led me to think—"

"I never did!" she said "You are mistaken!"

"Really, Geraldine?" asked the young man, a bit huskily. "Didn't you mean it?"

"And didn't you?" she queried. "Look out—there are other people in the room!"

"I don't care!" said the young man joyously. "I'll hold your hand if I want to."

"George," she said, tremulously, "I—I'll have to confess. I asked the hostess to seat us next to each other"

"I knew it," said the young man. "I heard you ask her".

The Eskimo Mind.

The difficulty of conveying the true idea of Christianity to the Eskimo mind is related by Vilhjalmur Stefansson: "Now, it seems that in Kotzebue sound, where the Christian doctrines of the Colville people had originated, fishing is by nets only As fishing is practically the only work done there the missionary had probably said to them 'Do not put out your fish nets on Sunday,' meaning thereby 'Do not work on Sunday.' However that may be the prohibition came to our community in the form 'God has said you must not use fish nets on Sunday.' Accordingly the entire community pulled their fish nets out of the river Saturday night, fished with hooks all day Sunday and put the nets back into the water Monday morning."

Atlantic seaports are 4,000 miles nearer Australia.

The distance to the Philippine Islands is not reduced materially.

Immigration will be deflected in large numbers from New York to Pacific ports.

The cost of operating the canal will exceed $4,000,000 annually.

About 2,500 employes are required.

To pay interest on the investment and operating expenses approximately $15,000,000 revenue per annum will be needed.

Traffic experts estimate that for the first few years the average tonnage will be 10,000,000 tons, not enough at the $1.20 rate to make the canal self-supporting.

The rates charged vessels are the same as those at Suez.

The government will monopolize the business of supplying coal and provisions and operating repair facilities.

Great drydocks, wharves, warehouses, repair shops and other facilities to cost $30,000,000 are under construction.

All permanent buildings will be of the Italian renaissance style of architecture. The route of the canal will be beautified with trees, etc.

Much-married People

The world's marrying record was made by George Witzoff, the notorious bigamist, whose marriages totalled over 100. In one week he went through eight ceremonies.

Almost as strange a case was that of a Russian woman, condemned to Siberia. She had been married to twenty husbands and had treated them all alike, running away from each in turn and taking all their portable property with her. She was a most attractive woman and highly educated.

A woman named Schmeyer, of Pennsylvania, was sent to prison for bigamy. Though she was only 27 years old, she had married twelve men in ten years. Her only comment in court was that she had liked them all.

Luck.

George Ade, at a dinner, said of luck:

"Nobody is so dependent on luck as the playwright. When he prospers he considers luck a kindly goddess; but when his work fails then luck seems to him a spirit perversely cruel and mean.

"He regards luck then as Tom Jackson's wife, of Lafayette, does.

"Tom said one morning at breakfast:

"'Hang it all! While I was weeding I dropped my Imperial Order of Boosters' pin on the lawn, and I've been looking for it now over half an hour. It's gone for good, I suppose.'

"That night when Jackson sat down to dinner there was his pin beside his plate.

"'Sally for you,' said he. 'Where did you find it, Martha?'

"'I let Tommy go barefooted this afternoon,' said Mrs. Jackson quietly."

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS

Don't hesitate! A Laxative is Necessary if Tongue is Coated, Breath Bad or Stomach Sour

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful to-day often saves a sick child to-morrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs"; then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

Restaurant Patrons Held Up.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Six hold-up men entered a lower east side restaurant yesterday and with drawn revolvers backed five men and a woman patron up against the wall and robbed them of $2,000 in money, besides jewelry.

One of the victims who remonstrated was seriously stabbed, and his wife, who ventured to scream, was felled with a blow.

Three Italians, identified as being in the rubber party, were subsequently arrested by the police and part of the stolen property was recovered.

Prof. Bergson Now an "Immortal."

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Prof. Henri Louis Bergson was yesterday elected one of the 40 "immortals," or members of the French Academy, in succession to the late Emile Olivier, who died on Aug. 20, 1913.

Prof. Bergson was born in Paris in 1859. He has been professor of philosophy at the College of France since 1900, and became a member of the Academy of Moral and Political Science in the following year.

One More Effort Made.

TOPEKA, Kansas, Feb. 13.—Applications for writs of habeas corpus were filed with the clerk of the U. S. District Court late yesterday by F. A. Cooley, New Orleans; F. C. Webb, New York, and J. E. Munsey, Salt Lake City, found guilty at Indianapolis of conspiracy to transport explosives illegally. The men are serving six year sentences in the federal prison at Leavenworth.

English Beauty Tells Complexion Secrets

("Elise" in American Home)

Through a fortunate meeting with an English lady, noted for her dazzling complexion, I recently learned the full meaning of that old adage, "Beauty is but skin deep." She taught me how to remove my muddy old skin, revealing the young and beautiful skin underneath. The process is so simple, harmless and inexpensive, I'm sure you'll be glad to know about it. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at any drug store and apply nightly, like cold cream, for a week or so. Every morning in washing off the wax, tiny particles of worn-out cuticle come off, too. The action is so gentle and gradual, there's no discomfort. It's a wonderful treatment, as it not only takes off the faded or discoloured skin, but all of its defects, as chaps, roughness, freckles, pimples, blotches, blackheads.

I am indebted to the same lady for a remarkable wrinkle-removing formula. Once ounce powdered saxolite is dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. Used as a face bath, this is so effective that just one application causes the finer lines to disappear, and soon even the deepest ones go.

Has Both Feet Frozen.

KINGSTON, Feb. 13.—Frank Collins, a young lumberjack, whose home is in this city, was brought to the Hotel Dieu yesterday. He had both feet badly frozen and it is feared they may have to be amputated. He was working at Exmer camp, about 100 miles north of North Bay, and set out to walk to another camp at Cache Bay, a distance of thirty miles. After covering about 24 miles he was overcome with the cold, it being about 30 degrees below zero, and he had to drag himself as best he could four miles further to reach the nearest farm. Part of the way he had to make on his hands and knees, and he suffered terribly.

TO AID VICTIMS?

Mr. Perley Guarded Concerning Farmers' Bank Legislation.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—In the House yesterday, A. K. Maclean of Halifax asked Hon. George H. Perley, who was putting through some estimates for the Finance Department, whether it was the intention of the Government to bring in a bill for the relief of the depositors of the Farmers' Bank.

Mr. Perley said that any pledge given by the Prime Minister would be implemented by the Government. The matter was in charge of Mr. White, but he did not think that the bill had been drafted.

Mr. Lancot (La Prairie, P.Q.), speaking in French, asked for similar consideration for the depositors of La Banque De St. Jean, and Mr. Sinclair (Guysboro) suggested some general legislation which would apply to all banks in which depositors had suffered loss.

The House passed the day in committee of supply on routine estimates.

Finding that the door did not shut closely, the conductor made the most vigorous efforts to shut it, and Mr. Foster was unable to withdraw his fingers. When he was finally released it was found that four of the Minister's fingers had been badly crushed, one of them in particular is cruelly smashed. It will be some little time before Mr. Foster will be able to be in the House.

MEDDLING DANGEROUS.

British Labourites Brought to Rebellion on Home Government.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—"You could easily smash the British Empire in a day's debate in Parliament if you tried to interfere with the autonomy granted to its various parts," was the gist of the reply given yesterday by Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of the Colonies, to the amendment moved by the labor members in the House of Commons to the address in reply to the King's speech.

The Labor members suggested that the Government withhold its assent to the bill of Premier Louis Botha of South Africa indemnifying the South African Government for its action in deporting the labor leaders after the recent general strike there.

Without defending the action of the South African Government, Mr. Harcourt pointed out that there were only 1,250,000 whites to 5,000,000 South African natives who, when work had ceased at the mines, became hungry and dangerous. He added:

"That is the sort of volcano on which everyone was sitting in South Africa."

Mr. Harcourt declined to advise the King to withhold his sanction from the bill if it passed, and he declared that such advice would be strictly unjustifiable. He urged members during the debate to be very careful of the sensitiveness of the self-governing dominions and to refrain from saying a word of derogation of an autonomous Government.

The Labor-to amendment was defeated 295 to 56.

Low Spirits From Weak Nerves

Low spirits, depression, discouragement are a form of nervous disease. You worry over little things, and at the slightest ailment apprehend the gravest dangers and diseases. You form the habit of looking at the dark side of things.

Indigestion is a frequent accompaniment, and you probably do not sleep or rest well. The cause of the trouble is to be found in the exhausted condition of the nerves. To get well you must build up the feeble, wasted nerve cells by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure forms new, rich blood, and thereby nourishes the nervous system back to health and vigour. There is nothing like new nerve force to bring back hope and confidence to the weak and discouraged. This treatment works in natural ways to restore health, and, therefore, cannot fail to prove of benefit to you. Put it to the test and you will be surprised with the building-up influence that will result.

QUEER WILL FILED.

It Consists of Affidavits That Photo Bore a Memo.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—The registration of the will of the late Maurice Redpath was admitted yesterday morning at the court house, although the will had been written on the back of a photograph, which had subsequently been destroyed. The document was admitted on the strength of affidavits supplied by J. H. Redpath, brother of the deceased, and Mrs. J. H. Redpath, his sister-in-law, who swore to having seen and read the will before the destruction of the photo.

The wording of the will, as sworn in the affidavit produced, was: "I leave everything to Puss (Marjory Smith) over and above what is left after paying my debts.

(Signed) "Maurice E. Redpath."

The will was dated Nov. 30, 1913, and the death of young Redpath occurred Jan. 15, 1914, the photograph being afterwards destroyed by the young lady to whom the estate was left, and whose picture it was. The young man, who was 23 years of age, died after four hours' illness, after watching a fire on a cold day.

Veteran Convict Goes Back.

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—Charles V. Knightly, who is said by the police to have spent sixteen of the last twenty years behind the bars, was sentenced yesterday to four years in state prison for larceny, by means of bogus checks. Knightly was brought here from Ontario, Canada, where he had just finished a term in jail for passing a worthless check.

Commission at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—The high cost of living commission concluded its sittings here yesterday and will go back to Ottawa before visiting the Maritime Provinces.

John Macdougall, the chairman, would venture no opinion as to the future movements of the commission or the date when the report would be issued.

Swedish Conservatives Will Now Try.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 13.—The refusal of the Liberals to accept office has compelled Baron de Geer to withdraw from the task of attempting to form a Cabinet. The King last night invited the Conservatives to take control, and it is expected that M. S. A. A. Lindman, former Premier and Minister of Marine, will assume the Premiership. Dissolution of the Riksdag will follow immediately.

BIG STRONG BRIDGE.

Port Huron, Mich., Has a Sensational Downtown Fire.

SARNIA, Feb. 13.—Thrilling escapes from death, heroic rescues by firemen and patrolmen, and the complete destruction of the City Opera House block and the business premises of David MacTaggart, and the R. S. & J. D. Patterson Co., features one of the most spectacular fires that have swept through the business section of Port Huron in years. To-day but a smouldering mass of ruins, with streams of water playing on the smoking and steaming debris, remains of what was Wednesday one of the busiest sections of activity in the city. In addition to the main losses, the offices of several professional men and business concerns have been wiped out, and the damage will be over $100,000.

The first and second floors of the Opera House Block were occupied by private families, and these people were rescued by the firemen only after a heroic struggle. Several were carried down the ladders unconscious.

Drop Through Wall to Lover.

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 13.—A sixteen-year-old girl, ward of the Children's Aid Society, fell her way through a two-foot brick and plaster wall and into the arms of her sweetheart, when a guard of the institution discovered them and placed her and the young man, with whom she was planning to elope, under arrest.

Dropped In Parachute.

JUVISY, France, Feb. 13.—Jean Ors, a young French engineer, had so much confidence in the safety of a parachute of his own invention that he ascended here yesterday in an aeroplane piloted by Alfred Lemoine, and on reaching a height of 600 feet launched himself and his apparatus overboard. The parachute worked perfectly and Ors descended gently to earth in thirty-nine seconds.

My Meals Don't Hurt A Bit

A Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Will Aid Your Exhausted Stomach to Digest Any Meal.

Isn't it a real joy to see children eat? There is almost a ridiculous humour about it. The same joy that a child feels at meal time should be experienced by "grown ups" and would be if they would only do as children do.

The work, worries and woes of adult life exhaust the digestive apparatus and nature very often is not allowed time or opportunity to renew or repair the exhausted organs and depleted digestive juices.

"Well Whata You Think o' a Big Feed Without Pain?"

A Stuart's tablet goes into the stomach like food. It contains nothing but natural digestive elements and when at work in a weak stomach it aids the worn-out gastric glands, supplies the right mixture of stomach juices and under the action of the stomach it thoroughly permeates all the food. Thus when the stomach work is done the meal goes into the small intestines in better shape to be assimilated by the system.

One element of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is so strong and efficient that one grain of it will digest 3,000 grains of mixed food such as meats, vegetables, grains, fluids, etc.

BELMONT MINSTRELS SCORE BIG SUCCESS

Amateur Production Under the Direction of Mr. Holly Shepard Delighted Large Audience at the Grand Last Night.

A GRAND PERFORMANCE

The snappiest, brightest and best amateur minstrel performance ever given here sums up concisely the programme given by the Belmont Club Minstrels under the direction of Mr. Holly Shepard at the Grand Opera House last night. It was the third entertainment of the nature staged by Mr. Shepard here, and it is but giving justice where justice is due, to say that last evening's performance out-stripped its predecessors and scored for the Belmonts their biggest footlight triumph.

The huge audience was a splendid tribute to Mr. Shepard and the Belmonts. The Opera House was crowded from orchestra rail to the roof, and the performers received a warm reception. That the show made a hit from start to finish was amply demonstrated by the applause that greeted each number—encores being demanded in every case.

Enjoyable chorus singing, splendidly rendered solos, funny end songs, and some sparkling jokes, in which local celebrities did not escape, made the first part a series of delightful numbers, while the specialties and novelties introduced into the second part were admirably put in. The whole entertainment was bright and brisk. Mr. Shepard does not believe in long waits or draggy numbers and he has the Belmonts working at top speed throughout with the result that the audience enjoys every minute and goes away with a "moreish" taste. To accomplish such results in a little over two weeks is an indication of the efficiency of the director's efforts and of the ability and talent of the young people who take part.

The first part, entitled "A Scene in a Cabaret," is beautifully staged with the choristers in evening dress and a bevy of pretty girls in pretty gowns making a very attractive back-ground. Only the end men are in "black-face!"

The comedians are Chris. Graham, Matt Drysdale, Arthur Graham, George Wesley and Holly Shepard, and this sextette are constant contributors to the gaiety. Mr. John Crane makes a splendid interlocutor, gracefully carrying out the duties of his important position.

The part opens with a lively chorus and a solo well taken by Walter Bailey. Then George Wesley has his innings in the end song "Cross the Mason-Dixie Line," which he succeeds in putting over most effectively. Asa Huycke sings the pretty little song "Kentucky Eyes" in his usual excellent voice. "The Old Maids' Ball," by Matt. Drysdale is very funny, and the singer makes the most out of the comedy possibilities the song offers. Miss Blewitt sings her number, "Mama's Angel Child," very sweetly, and the chorus does some fine work in this number. "Beans, Beans, Beans," is Arthur Graham's song, and he makes the number a huge hit. George Lynch convulses the house with his singing of "Oh, How She Dances," a novelty song that is to use a theatrical phrase "a scream." Eddie Hanrahan gives a splendid rendition of the ballad "I Miss You Most of All," with a whistling accompaniment by the company. Little Harold Gollop, a most talented youngster sings, "Did You Lose Your Dog?" in an irresistible manner, and last night he was recalled several times. "Back to Carolina," gives Vernon Morphet a chance to shine, and he rises to the occasion. Chris. Graham sings "Kill That Bear," and in the manner that Chris. handles the song itself is a "bear." Miss Winnifred Tick gives a dainty rendition of "Be My Little Baby Bumble Bee." The first part winds up with Holly Shepard's son, "Rag Picking Man," and a dance in his inimitable style.

The Harmony Four — Messrs. Huycke, Sketch, Fleming and Lee open the second part. They sing Mr. Huycke's latest song "Memory's Flowers," in splendid fashion. Mr. Huycke has evolved a very tuneful ballad, and the quartette sing it most effectively. As an encore last evening they gave a fine rendition of the song, "There's a Girl in the Heart of Maryland," with solo by Mr. Lee.

Mr. Frank Clark contributes a banjo solo in his usual capable style, and sings his famous "Watermelon Song," as only he can sing it.

"The Burglar Rag" gives Harold Gollop another good chance to shine, and he makes good use of it. He is assisted by Messrs. Dartnell, Hanrahan, Reyner, Ide, Shepard and Johnston.

A dancing number by Miss Fick, Miss E. Smart and Arthur Graham, is very skilfully and gracefully done. The trio is assisted by seven couples

LIVES IN CAVE BARKS LIKE DOG AND EATS ACORNS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 13.—Richard Henderson, who has lived in a cave at Inverary, near here, for some time, and has been the terror of this neighbourhood for years, was taken into custody by the authorities last night, and will likely be committed to the asylum. When found Henderson was asleep. He seems unable to talk, but crows like a rooster and barks like a dog. His hair and beard are a foot long. He has lived for months on raw corn and acorns, which he gathered before the winter came.

Big Picture At The Royal

The usual light vaudeville acts will be seen next week, with the Simpson Trio in a high class musical act as the feature.

VALENTINE SOCIAL AND DANCE HELD

A Very Successful as Well Enjoyable Event Last Evening

The Valentine social and dance held last night in the Woodmen's Hall, under the auspices of Court Chemong No. 530, I.O.F., proved to be a very enjoyable event. About 75 couples enjoyed themselves to the stirring music of Messrs. Tucker Bros. orchestra and under the able leadership of Mr. A. R. Moore, gracefully glided in the various dances until the early hours of this morning.

Parlour games were also provided for the senior members. Great credit is due to Bro. James McDonald and committee for the complete arrangements, and to Mrs. Bradshaw, Mrs King, and the other ladies for the excellent and abundant refreshents provided.

The proceeds over the necessary expenses will be devoted as usual to benevolent purposes. Brof A. E. Miscampbell, Chief Ranger, on behalf of the members, expressed the thanks of the Court to the ladies and gentlemen who patronized the entertainment.

FIRE THIS AFTERNOON.

THE LOCATION FOR THE PROPOSED CUSTOM HOUSE

Has Been Selected by the Ottawa Authorities—Report Submitted to City Council

RAILWAY SIDING

City Clerk Armstrong is in receipt of a copy of a report from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., concerning the proposed site for the new Customs House. The site that has been selected is situated at the corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets. It is occupied by the Peter Hamilton Company. The engineer who was sent from Ottawa to select a site has chosen the lot at the north-east corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets.

If the City Council approve of this site, construction work will in all probability commence n the early spring. The authorities will consider the feasibility of combining the post office with the customs house, erecting both on the one property. The present proposed location will have a frontage of one hundred feet on George Street and one hundred and ninety-two feet back to Water Street. Railway facilities will be provided.

KILLED BY TRAIN.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 13.—Stepping out of the way of an east bound M. C. R. train, Mrs. George Everingham, aged 80, stepped in front of a west bound train to-day, and was instantly killed. New Players Signed For The Petes

That Curley Blount, the new manager of the Petes, is wasting no time, is shown by the item from the Youngstown, O., Vindicator, published below. Mr. Wm. Sabine, of the Roy Studio, who has lived in Youngstown for years, knows the pitcher referred to, and says he is a real ball player. He was with Youngstown several seasons, and last year was with Erie, Pa. The Vindicator says:

Curley Blount, former manager of the Youngstown Interstate League Ball Club, announced last night that he had signed Louie Schettler, local pitcher, who played with Erie last year. Blount has also signed Eddie Price, another local boy who made his professional debut with the Steelmen last season. Blount expects to land at least one or two other local lads before the season opens. He will manage the Peterborough club in the Canadian League the coming season.

A SNOW STORM EXPECTED TO ARRIVE TO-NIGHT

Storm Brewing Down in the Gulf of Mexico and Peterboro' Will Get the Benefit of It This Evening

HIGHER TEMPERATURE

This winter, which has been something of a record one in the matter of extended severe cold spells is at the parting of the ways. Down in the Gulf of Mexico a storm is brewing, says the weather watchman in Toronto, which is due to hit us to-night in the shape of a blinding snowstorm. This may prove a lesser evil than the conditions experienced during the past forty-eight hours, because it will be accompanied by at least a rise in temperature of 34 degrees, says the same prophet. The mercury is expected to hover in the neighbourhood of 16 above zero.

The later snow accompaniment may prove to be the heaviest this season. The great cold wave was centred over the north shore of Lake Huron last night, but it was known to be moving east towards the Atlantic Ocean, and by to-morrow will be venting its spleen upon those who go down to the sea in ships.

The lowest point reached by the mercury, officially in Toronto yesterday, was 24 below zero. By noon it had risen to three below.

COLD BY THE SEA.

The Maritime Provinces also fared badly during the past twenty-four hours. A despatch from St. John, N.B., declared that the official figure at the Government Meteorological Bureau was 20 below zero, this being the lowest record since 1874. It was 25 to 28 below in the suburbs of the eastern city.

A moderation was experienced in the western Provinces yesterday, but they are due for another spell of extremely cold weather, according to the forecaster here. The temperatures were: Calgary 18 below zero. Moose Jaw 19, Winnipeg 38.

Extreme cold was experienced in the various cities and towns in Ontario. At Port Arthur it was 32 below zero. Parry Sound 32, London 9, Kingston 24, Montreal 26, Ottawa 26, Quebec 26 and Halifax, N.S., 12 below.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

This evening the members of the above Association, which is doing very useful work in connection with St. John's Anglican Church, will give a St. Valentine's Eve party in the Church School-house.

SUFFERING IN NEW YORK

Examiner Special.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 13.—With twelve dead and a score overcome and in hospitals as a result of the cold wave, Gotham again prepared to battle with zero conditions to-day. Three thousand homeless men, women and children are being cared for in the various charitable institutions.

CONSERVATIVES DISAPPOINTED BY THE REPORT

Expected to Find Serious Evidence of Graft and Scandal as Result of the Transcontinental Inquiry

COMPLETELY ABSENT

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—The morning after the presentation of the much heralded national transcontinental investigations report finds little more than a ripple of interest among the members of either political party. The Conservative members are frankly disappointed because of the fact that they had been lead to expect some startlers from the inspirited articles which have been appearing in the Government press during the past two months. The complete absence from the report of any charges of graft upon the part of the officials of the late Government has probably caused the keenest disappointment to those who had been lead to expect that the report would provide serious evidence of scandal. The Liberals, on the other hand, are little disturbed at the finding of the commissioners. They point out in the first place that the report is purely partisan, one compiled with an eye toward political effect, and that the intention is to print the report, compiled at the expense of the Dominion, and afterwards circulate it as campaign literature.

"The forty million dollar waste alleged by the Government in the big work," said a prominent Liberal this morning, "is based upon the Crown arbitrary computations. They might as well have made it sixty-five or seventy millions while they were at it."

WASTE OF WAR.

John Burns, in a recent speech, stated that Great Britain in the last ten years had spent £670,000,000 on the army and navy, a sum nearly equal to the total national debt. He denounced the fatuous politicians and gushing journalists who "would make war the chief industry of the nation."

PARCEL POST.

The Parcel Post system is in Canada an experiment. It is rather early, with only two or three days' experience, to estimate its advantages and disadvantages; but it seems that it will be an advantage to local merchants; and if it does not entirely eliminate the undesirable competition of the departmental stores in the large cities, it will provide a compensation and encourage or increase the mail order business within the twenty-mile zone. It is to be noted that the rates of postage in this zone, the postage rate for all weights of parcels is more than doubled outside the twenty-mile zone. For instance the postage rate on one, two and three-pound parcels within the zone is respectively 5, 6 and 7 cents; outside the zone the postage rates for parcels of corresponding weight is respectively 10, 14 and 18 cents. We all know how eagerly "bargains," representing a very slight reduction in price, appeal to buyers, especially ladies, so that everybody living within the twenty-mile zone, wishing to give orders and get goods by parcel post and with little or no margin of difference in price, but with the postage rate doubled for the distant order, would prefer the home store and send orders accordingly. It therefore appears that the parcel post with its rates discriminating in favour of the local town or city, will develop an increase of mail orders in the twenty-mile zone. With rural mail delivery so generally in force, hundreds of farmers and the residents of surrounding villages get the daily papers of Peterborough, and have access to the advertisements of our merchants. If they see anything advertised that takes their fancy, they will naturally prefer to send their orders to Peterborough, especially as the postage rate (with earlier delivery) is more than half less than it would be on parcels sent from any part of the province outside the twenty-mile zone; and especially as many find out by experience, and will increasingly discover, the large stores in Peterborough keep just as good goods and at just as low prices, (and considering double postage, lower prices) as those charged by the big city stores. For instance, if a farmer's wife could get a four-pound parcel of goods from Peterborough at the same price as she could get it from Toronto, she would not hesitate to prefer the Peterborough order with a postage of 8 cents, to a Toronto order of the same weight and value at 22 cents postage.

ANTI-TREATING LAW.

Sir James Whitney, in proposing in the session of 1912, legislation to prevent the treating habit at bars, as a means of killing Rowell's banish-the-bar policy, made, among others, this explicit declaration:

> The public mind of this Province has declared itself and is a unit practically in favour of the change I have indicated (abolish treating).

In another column is printed a report of part of his speech on this occasion, and all through it he holds up anti-treating legislation as the best system of moral reform. Then it might respectfully be asked, why has not the panacea been applied? Why was not a bill to abolish treating introduced and passed last session?

It may be argued that more important matters than saving the boy from the blow of the bar engaged the Legislature. It may be argued that Hon Mr Hanna, who, as head of the License Department, should be in charge of a bill to abolish treating, was too busy, warming his way out of the Proudfoot charges. Of course that would be something of an excuse; that kept him pretty busy and even at that he did not quite get out of the woods. It is to be assumed that the matter of the Proudfoot charges is considered, by those most directly interested, to have been disposed of by suppressing evidence and preventing full investigation. In that event there is nothing to prevent an anti-treating bill being presented and passed at the present session. If, as Sir James said, in 1912, the "public mind of the Province is a unit" on the subject, such a bill would certainly pass the Legislature. We shall see, no doubt, a promise in the speech from the Throne of the introduction of a measure to abolish "the ridiculous, the disgusting habit of treating"

WILL "STAND PAT."

Finance Minister White has spoken on the big issue of the day, or rather the manufacturers have spoken on the big issue of the day through the Finance Minister. There will be no relief through any action of the Government for consumers who complain bitterly of the high cost of living. The Government even will not take the duty off wheat. Representatives of the milling interests have been at Ottawa and have settled that point. Representatives of all the "interests" have been in consultation with the Government and have settled all points.—Winnipeg Times.

WHY?

Mr. Burnham, M.P., in a letter to the Toronto Star, defends his abortive bill for the abolition of titles. One of his argumental buttresses is this:

> "The gross injustice of perpetuating classes, when all men are supposed to stand on an equal footing before the law ought to be manifest."

Then why does Mr. Burnham stand by and defend a government that refuses equal treatment for the farmers of the west who demand protection from a tariff impost that unjustly injures them, and the classes that benefit at the expense of the consumer from a tariff impost that unjustly benefits them—permits them to enhance prices to Canadian consumers above the prices they give to foreign consumers? Why does Mr. Burnham defend and support a government that divides the people of Canada in two classes—the big interests that profit from tariff favours and the consumers who pay in disadvantages for the advantages conferred upon the favoured classes?

SHALL WE HAV. ANTI-TREATING LEGISLATION?

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—Will the Speech from the Throne to be read at the opening of the Ontario Legislature next Wednesday forecast the introduction of an Anti-Treating Bill by the Government? It will be remembered that it was during the session of 1912 two years ago that Sir James Whitney introduced his resolution in favour of the abolition of treating in the following terms:

> "That in the opinion of this House legislation to prevent and put a stop to the treating habit should be enacted and if necessary supplemented by regulations under which retail licenses are granted and sold."

During the speech in which he proposed this resolution the Prime Minister made a number of comments which were the following:

> "Surely I need not say anything of reprehension as to that ridiculous, disgusting habit of treating."
>
> "I think it probable that if any legislation were enacted doing away with the treating habit with regulations by the Department which has control of the license system, holding over the hotelkeeper that he will lost his license if he disobeyed the law, it would have the effect of abolishing the treating and rendering more good service than any other measure could."
>
> "In my opinion, as Hon. Mr. Blake says, this question of treating is the root of the whole matter. It is my belief that legislation of this kind would in a short time kill and destroy the desire for the habit of treating and our young men and boys of the present day would grow up so that in five years from now it would never occur to them to enter upon this habit of treating because they would not see other people doing it."
>
> "Within the last forty-eight hours it has been communicated to me by more than one man who is engaged to-day in the wholesale manufacture of ardent spirits in this Province and in the retail sale of ardent spirits, that they hope distinctly that legislation of this kind will beu ndertaken because they want to see the treating habit destroyed."
>
> "The public mind of this Province has declared itself and is a unit practically in favour of the change I have indicated."

HICKS AND EARTHQUAKES

The Examiner last evening gave an account of the fulfillment of a prediction by Rev. Irl Hicks regarding the recent earthquake. Perhaps it was only a coincidence; perhaps he really does know. In his almanac, after forecasting the recent earthquake, he says:

"The second seismic period for the month will be central on the 24th, extending from about the 21st to the 28th. On and touching Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 24th, 25th and 26th, there is a great probability of destructive earthquakes, more especially in the southern hemisphere. Keep watch and let facts decide."

We will. If he hits it again this month we will acknowledge that he a success as an earthquake forecaster.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimer Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years — he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

FIXING FOR BENNIE.

While a farce comedy was playing at a local theatre not long since an old gentleman is said to have appeared at the stage door and asked for the "boss."

"I am the stage manager," said that individual, who happened to answer the call in uerson.

"If it isn't asking too much," said the old gentleman, "I would like to examine those stairs you use in the show."

"Those are trick stairs and they would be of no use to you."

"Yes, they would; that's why I want to look at them."

"Yep."

"What use would you have for stairs like that??"

'None whatever; but maybe I can make a bed on the same principle, then I will be able to get my boy Bennie up in the morning without pulling the house down."

Hints On Health And Exercise

(By Mac Levy of Babylon.)

(Mac Levy, the famous Long Island "health farmer," has been engaged for eighteen years in training athletes and building up run-down and worn-out business and professional men, and is one of the world's foremost authorities on physical culture.)

The Tree-Felling "Cure".

Having preached and practiced the wood-chopping "cure" for several years, I am pleased to learn, through the medium of a newspaper cable from Berlin, that no less a personage than Emperor William of Germany has derived great benefit from this form of exercise. The felling of trees and the chopping and sawing of logs and carrying them to a waggon tend not only to reduce surplus flesh, as in the Kaiser's case, but also to put more meat on those who are too thin. It is true that other forms of exercise are necessary to produce these results quickly and with certainty, but wood-chopping is far from being the least important part of the treatment. The Kaiser adopted a method which I have used successfully in hundreds of cases. Many boxers who have trained at my place have found tree-felling and sawing of great assistance in making weight. The fact that tree-felling and wood-chopping must be carried on in the open air is, of course, an important part of the "cure," since it necessitates deep breating of pure air. The motions used in chopping and sawing exercise and strengthen many of the most important muscles and organs of the body. The perspiration induced by such activity rids the system of poisons. For those who are weak and run-down it is necessary to begin gradually and avoid exhaustion. In beginning the "cure" thin people may even lose a little weight at first before they begin to gain. After perspiring freely the person taking the cure should immediately take a cold shower, followed by a brisk rubbing, and change to dry underclothes. Remaining out in the cold after exercising, without taking a shower or sponge or changing the clothing, is an excellent way to get a cold. People who are constitutionally averse to exertion may not like this "cure," but even these may overcome their prejudice by taking the cure with others. Under such conditions it becomes a competitive sport, rather than work. I have known men who were greatly aggrieved at the idea of chopping wood to become so interested in the "sport" and so anxious to excel the records of rivals that it was difficult to restrain them from overdoing it.

Plato on Exercise.

Plato, who was a "highbrow" if ever there was one, was wise enough to know that intellectual and spiritual progress were dependent on physical development, and he had no sympathy for the sickly sentimentality and disregard for the laws of physical health manifested by some who pose as his modern disciples. This father of idealism asserted that the way to awaken everything, which is the expression of the symmetry hidden within the soul, was through exercise of the physical body. Moreover, he was a believer in the religion of fresh air, and it was in a school in the Grove that he taught and founded the great philosophical system, which bears his name. His name, originally Aristotles, who changed to Plato because of his great breadth of shoulders, developed by exercise. He was a wrestler of great skill and proficient in many other sports. There are many modern philosophers whose thoughts would be clearer if they followed the example of Plato.

NERVOUS WOMEN

Made Strong by Vinol.

A case has just come to our attention from St. Augustine, Fla. Mrs. W. B. Mamocy had suffered for two years from nervous prostration and indigestion. She had no appetite and was miserable. After trying different medicines and doctors without benefit she saw Vinol advertised and tried it. Her appetite returned, nervousness disappeared and she was soon strong and well as ever.

Weakness may be caused by a run-down condition, mal-assimilation of food, lack of iron in the blood or a result of sickness.

Whatever the cause, we want to say to every person who needs strength, you need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, as it is the most efficient strength creator we have in our store.

It is the medicinal elements of the cods' livers contained in Vinol aided by the blood making and strengthening properties of tonic iron which makes it so successful and we will return your money if it does not help you.

SCIENCE NOTES.

To enable an automobile to pull itself out of a mud hole there has been invented a long strap to be fastened to a buried wheel and some stationary object in such a way that when the wheel is turned the strap forms a track for it.

Of German invention for war purposes is a mine which may be planted in a field until discharged from a distance by electricity, when it projects a few feet into the air a grenade which fires 400 bullets in all directions horizontally.

Automatic delivery of rural mail is provided by a North Dakota man's invention of a car to run on an aerial track, from which it takes electric power, automatically stopping at each house on a route and ringing a bell to announce its arrival.

A new rear signal for automobiles, controlled by a driver, is a four-sided prism to be mounted below a number plate, displaying words indicating that the car carrying it is about to turn to left or right or to stop or that there is danger ahead

A Widow's Dress—Of full crepe de Chine trimmed with crepe and Devonshire tulle; the chemisette and cuffs are of white crepe; the black tulle sleeves are posed on white. The newest phase of a widow's veil is also shown.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEMONSTRATION.
